AN IDEAL CIRCUIT FOR 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—In response to your request I will give my views of a California circuit for 1901, and the only condition that I ask is that you permit me to be known simply by the nom de plume which I sign to this as I am not a newspaper scribe and have not the time nor the inclination to be a regular correspondent. If my suggestions as to a California circuit have any merit, let them go for what they are worth, and if not, I shall be content as a correspondent to "fade like a bright exhalation in the evening, and no man see me more."

Our State is so large in area, and so small comparatively in population that the idea of one main circuit is entirely impractical. Small districts cannot afford to give large purses, and railroad hauls are too long and fares too high to make a circuit that extends from Red Bluff to Los Angeles anything but a losing proposition to those trying to cover it, unless they win a majority of their starts, which is a stroke of luck only allotted to a very few.

An ideal main or Central Circuit as you have already suggested in your valuable paper, would comprise the main districts in close proximity to San Francisco bay, say San Francisco, Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Napa, Vallejo, Woodland, State Fair, Stockton and San Jose.

This would make a circuit of ten weeks—about as long as horses are raced on the Eastern Grand Circuit, and give to those who followed it from start to finish enough racing to satisfy anyone that is not inclined to hoggishness.

I write from the standpoint of an owner who has campaigned trotters and also from that of a director who has tried in a modest way to serve his district, and knows what difficulty is experienced at times to make the expenses and the receipts balance.

In my judgment an association having its headquarters in a town of less than five thousand inhabitants cannot afford to give more than two $1000 purses, one of which should be for trotters and one for pacers. The other purses should be for about $500 each.

If possible the Secretaries of the districts on this main circuit should get together in January each year and agree on dates, but each should arrange his own program, which should be announced early but entries not close until three or four weeks prior to each meeting.

Another suggestion of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S that I would adopt would be that the program consist only of such races that fill—and that it be emphatically stated that no specials will be given. If 18 purses, or enough for six days' racing are advertised, and but half fill, make the meeting three days in length, which will be found much more satisfactory to everybody.

The dates I would select for this circuit for 1901 would be as follows:

Petaluma July 29th to August 3d, Santa Rosa August 5th to 10th, Napa August 12th to 17th, Vallejo August 19th to 24th, Woodland August 26th to 31st, State Fair September 2d to 14th, Stockton September 16th to 21st, San Francisco September 22d to 28th, San Jose September 30th to October 5th.

In regard to the program I would suggest races for two and three year old trotters and pacers owned in the district, races for 2:30 trotters and 2:25 pacers owned and bred in the district; a purse of $1000 for trotters of the 2:20 class and one for pacers of the 2:15 class. The other purses to be $500 each and arranged after investigation by the Secretaries in accordance with the classes that would fill the best. The $1000 purses should be the feature of each meeting and need not be of the same class all through the circuit. Conditions can be made that will be drawing cards here the same as in the East, where last year the M. & M., the Charter Oak and the Transylvania were all for different classes of trotters.

From my experience I am certain that with energetic work by intelligent secretaries, every district I have mentioned can give from three to six days of harness racing and have every event fill to the satisfaction of everybody. The conditions should be five to enter and three to start. This would give more entries in my opinion than the custom of calling the races stakes and requiring eight or more entries necessary to fill.

It would be best that a competent judge and starter be secured for the entire circuit and that they be paid a reasonable compensation for their duties.

Instead of figuring on $1500 from bookmakers for the week and $1500 for gate receipts, as some district associations do, I would have nothing but auctions and mutuels, and would figure on $500 for the privilege and $2500 for receipts at the gate, which can be secured with energetic work. If the main source of revenue is from the bookmakers' privilege it will be a bookmakers' meeting and these are not popular with the better element of any of the agricultural districts.

I have only referred to the harness racing portion of the district fair program in this communication, and will simply suggest that there should be liberal premiums offered for all live stock and for horses of all classes. A carriage pair that is worth awarding a first prize to should be required to come up to the standard and $100 is small enough for the first premium for a pair that fills the bill. Fewer but larger premiums would be a good rule to follow.

As a resident of California since the days of '49, I never had more faith in the future of the harness horse breeding industry than I have at this moment, and there is nothing that will so aid it and insure it as well conducted horse shows and light harness meetings, which should go together hand in hand, and the aim be to encourage by every honorable means the breeding of the highest types of horses for the park, the road, the speedway and the track. Let us all pull together in 1901, the first year of the new century, and the strain on the tugs will be much easier thereafter.

PIONEER.

Cresceus and The Abbot.

The early proposal to bring The Abbot and Cresceus together in a series of races next season on the Grand Circuit tracks has set the admirers of those horses to comparing their racing careers. In order that an intelligent comparison may be made as to the racing quality displayed by each of these great trotters, the following compilation has been made:

The Abbot has started in thirty races; first in twenty-three, second in two, third in one, unplaced in four, distanced in two.

Cresceus has started in thirty-three races: first in nineteen, second in nine, third in four, fourth in one, unplaced in none, distanced in none.

The Abbot has started in 104 heats; won seventy-four, of which seventy-six were in 2:15 or better, and thirty-eight in 2:10 or better.

Cresceus has started in 112 heats; won fifty-three, of which forty were in 2:15 or better, and twenty-one in 2:10 or better.

The Abbot's fastest first heat is 2:07½; second heat, 2:06½; third heat, 2:06½; fourth heat, 2:08½; fifth heat, 2:09½; his fastest two heats, 2:08½, 2:06½; fastest three heats, 2:09½, 2:07½, 2:07½.

Cresceus' fastest first heat is 2:06½, second heat 2:06, third heat 2:06, fourth heat 2:07, fifth heat 2:08½; his fastest two heats 2:06½, 2:07½; fastest three heats 2:07½, 2:06, 2:06.

The Abbot has started against time six times, in five of which he scored a winning performance.

Cresceus has started against time seven times in four of which he scored a winning performance.

The Abbot's fastest miles in 1900 were as follows:

Detroit, July 19th, 2:07; Readville, Aug. 22d, 2:05½; Providence, Aug. 30th, 2:04½; Hartford, Sept. 7th (wagon), 2:05½; New York, Sept. 13th, 2:04; Terre Haute, Sept. 25th, 2:03½.

Cresceus fastest miles in 1900 were as follows:

Pittsburg, July 4th, 2:10, 2:10; Cleveland, July 23d, 2:07, 2:06½; Columbus, Aug. 2d, 2:07½, 2:06, 2:06; Chicago, Aug. 11th, 2:06½, 2:07½; Syracuse, Aug. 29th, 2:06½; Hartford, Sept. 6th, 2:04½; Readville, Sept. 27th, 2:07½, 2:07½, 2:08½; Cleveland, Oct. 6th, 2:04; Toledo, Oct. 13th (half-mile track) 2:09½; Toledo, Oct. 12th, to wagon) 2:13½; Terre Haute, Oct. 16th, 2:05½; Terre Haute, Oct. 19, 2:04½.

A $10,000 Pacing Stake.

One thing which has been lacking at the Grand Circuit meetings at Providence the past two seasons has been a big stake race. Such events are a drawing card both to the owners and the public. It is now a settled fact that all this will be changed another year. F. E. Perkins, president of the association, is planning to give a Grand Circuit meeting which will outstep all others ever held at Narragansett Park. A $10,000 stake is already decided upon, and in all likelihood it will be made for pacers, as there is not an association which gives a big pacing event. The classes will be gone over carefully, and one which will give the best racing will be selected. Mr. Perkins believes that a star pacing event would furnish as good sport and make equally as good a drawing card as a trotting event. The trotters may be remembered, however, as Mr. Perkins is looking the ground over to see if a $10,000 stake would strike the owners favorably. If he receives sufficient encouragement he will, without a doubt, go ahead with a trotting stake of the size mentioned. W. W. Dexter, secretary of the association, will attend the meeting of the stewards of the Grand Circuit in February. He will obtain similar dates to last season, which followed Readville. A spring meeting will be given, probably along about the 1st of July.

Joshua Babcock is starting a stock farm on the outskirts of Albany, N. Y., with the Palo Alto bred horse Flower Boy by Nephew, out of the famous Wildflower 2:21, at the head of the stud.

Almonada 27079 Has No Record.

It has been stated in this and other turf papers that Almonada, owned by Mr. D. F. Ogelsby of Ventura, this State, got a record of 2:22 during the past season. This is a mistake as we now learn from Almonada's owner, and doubtless arose from the fact that one of the Southern California papers gave him credit for a heat in the summary of a race which he was not entitled to. While Almonada has no record he will certainly obtain one during 1901 if raced, and that is Mr. Ogelsby's intention now, having arranged to place him in the hands of a trainer May 1st, after giving him a short season in the stud. He is believed to be one of the most promising green horses in the State, and made a good showing last year for the very limited amount of training he received.

Almonada was foaled in 1894 and though bred by Frank H. Burke, of La Siesta Stock Farm, was foaled the property of Mrs. F. W. Moore, of Santa Barbara. His sire was Eros 2:29½, sire of Dione 2:07½, Wanda 2:14½ and others. His dam is Maggie E. 2:19½, by the great Nutwood. This mare is about 21 years old, still owned in Santa Barbara county and seems to still possess all her qualities and faculties regardless of her extreme age. She is safely in foal to George R., son of Allen Hope, a son of Guy Wilkes, the dam of George R. being Recta by Directum 2:05½, second dam the famous mare Grace by Buccaneer. The second dam of Almonada was May by Geo. M. Patchen Jr., 31, third dam a daughter of Rifleman, fourth dam the thoroughbred mare Ida May by Williamson's Belmont, fifth dam Mary by Red Buck and so on. From this it will be seen that Almonada is about as well bred as any horse that will stand for service in California.

Grand Circuit.

[Spirit of The Times.]

Horsemen now await with keen expectancy the announcements of the leading associations. At the recent annual business meeting of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, it was decided to have a $20,000 purse again this year, though the specified class will be determined at a later date. We hope the Board of Stewards of the Grand Circuit will meet as soon after the holidays as possible and outline their programs. In common consent other associations and horsemen will make no definite plans till the dates of the Grand Circuit are published. It is quite possible that the circuit may be enlarged this year, though there will be the usual difficulty about dates. If Buffalo has a new track it will certainly want to come in, still as the present club has prior rights it has the right of way, but as the great Pan American Exhibition will be in progress the city could easily support two weeks of trotting sport. Syracuse and Rochester are named as possible applicants for dates; the latter would have a chance, being a former member, while Syracuse has good claims. In spite of all the reports to the contrary we shall expect to see a Grand Circuit meeting at the Empiro City track, and we presume that Terre Haute will again hold the last meeting of the series. It will be remembered that last year there was a vacant week before Terre Haute, and we presume Detroit could start a week earlier, this would give us two out of three weeks needed, if Rochester, Syracuse and the New Buffalo Association want to come in. But none of these questions can be settled till a stewards meeting is held, and in the interests of all involved that meeting should be held early.

Free Coinage—This son of Abbotsford out of Agnes by Jim Liek, was bred by Hamilton Bowie of San Francisco, and campaigned by the veteran driver Peter Brandow. His record is 2:20 made at San Jose, California, September 27, 1894. His age is not given in the Year Books, but he was trotting in races in 1890 and is probably fifteen years old, and perhaps older if living.

Pacific Northwest Circuit.

A meeting of the fair managers was held at the office of the Rural Spirit in Portland on Saturday, Dec. 15th. From the columns of the paper mentioned we take the following account of the proceedings:

The meeting was called to order and W. H. Wehrung was elected temporary chairman and W. A. Austin temporary secretary.

Among those present were: D. A. McAllister, La Grande; Joseph A. Borden, Spokane; W. H. Wehrung, Hillsboro; M. D. Wisdom, Portland; A. T. Van De Vanter, Seattle; W. A. Austin, Lewiston; C. S. Loveland, Boise; W. H. Keary, New Westminster, B. C.; J. Peirson, Victoria, B. C.

The matter of forming an association to control and regulate the running races at the various fairs and race meetings was first discussed. A plan of organization was drawn up by the secretary, and after some slight amendments and additions, was adopted, which read as follows:

Resolved, 1. That an association be formed for the purpose of regulating and controlling the future of running races at the various tracks at fairs and race meetings throughout the circuit of the North Coast states.

2. That any reputable fair or racing association in the states of Oregon, California, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming or Utah, or in British Columbia be eligible to membership on payment of a membership fee of $25.

3. That the association be called the Pacific Northwest Racing Association.

4. That the officers of this association shall consist of a president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary. A board of directors, consisting of one member from each local association, to be elected each year.

5. That this board adopt for the government of racing the rules of the California Jockey Club, and that the by-laws of the National Trotting Association, amended to suit local conditions, be adopted as the by-laws of this association.

6. That the board of appeals, to be selected one from each state or province, who shall have the same powers and duties as are delegated to the board of appeals of the National Trotting Association.

7. That all fines and penalties imposed and collected at any race meeting held by its members, shall be paid to this association, and reports of all such penalties be promptly sent to the secretary.

8. That all jockeys must have a license from this association before being permitted to ride at any meeting held by its members, said license to be good for one year and to cost $1.

9. That the local officers, directors or judges of the local associations have no power to remit any fine once imposed, and that the only means of removing any such disability shall be through the board of appeals, and claims and protests must be made to that body.

10. That the annual meeting of the board of directors, of which the president and secretary are ex-officio members, and the board of appeals, shall be held in Portland, Oregon, the second Saturday in December of each year.

On motion, the meeting elected the necessary officers, with the exception of the board of directors, who will be chosen later by the local associations, with the following results:

President, W. H. Wehrung, Hillsboro, Oregon.

Vice-President, W. A. Austin, Lewiston, Idaho.

Secretary and treasurer, M. D. Wisdom, Portland, Oregon.

Board of Appeals—

For British Columbia—R. Leighton, Vancouver, B. C.

For Oregon—D. A. McAllister, La Grande, Ore.

For Washington—A. T. Van De Vanter, Seattle, Wash.

For Idaho—C. S. Loveland, Boise, Idaho.

Resolved, That the secretary be instructed to send at once to each local association a copy of the rules, and that each association be required to elect their member of the board of directors at the earliest possible date.

The meeting then endeavored to arrange the dates for the various meetings to be held during the coming year, but all could not be arranged to the satisfaction of the various local associations, and the list stands as follows at the present time, but will probably be modified somewhat latter by the local boards:

Vancouver, B. C.—August 31th to September 2d.

Everett, Wash.—September 9th to 14th.

Boise, Idaho—September 16th to 21st.

Salem, Ore.—September 23d to 28th.

La Grande, Ore.—October 1st to 5th.

Lewiston, Idaho—October 7th to 12th.

Victoria, B. C.—October 7th to 12th.

Spokane, Wash.—October 14th to 19th.

Dates for the Washington State Fair at North Yakima were not fixed, as they had no representative present.

Adjourned.

James Thompson's Speech.

When the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association met in San Francisco last December "Jim" Thompson, the well known trainer and reinsman appeared before that body in the character of plaintiff. He asked to be released from a suspension imposed by one of the district secretaries, but after hearing Thompson's side of the story the Board concluded that the suspension was legally made and James lost his case.

Before the case was submitted Mr. Thompson asked the privilege of addressing the Board, a courtesy that was cheerfully granted. It is a loss to the turf literature of the Pacific Coast that a stenographic report of the speech was not made as it was not only eloquently delivered but contained so many apt illustrations and bull's eye hits that it was worthy of preservation in its entirety. The writer, however, can recall a portion of it which was about as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Board, I would like to make a few remarks with your permission on the relations between associations and horsemen. As several of you doubtless know from experience, the horse owner and the trainer are not always inside the money in the races, or reclining on a bed of roses, when they retire at night to seek sweet and innocent repose. They have to dig deep into their pockets for entrance money, hotel bills, car fares, etc., and the majority find the balance on the wrong side of the ledger at the end of the season. We hear much about true and tried officials being necessary to make the drivers obey strictly and to the letter every rule in the book, but, gentlemen, what is sauce for the equine goose should also be sauce for the association gander.

I recall a meeting that was given down here at the beautiful Tanforan course during the first week in October last. When we trainers arrived upon the grounds we were confronted by notices which told us in big and impressive letters that the rules forbidding the laying up of heats would be most rigidly enforced. An eminent gentleman, high in the councils of the great Democratic party had been chosen as presiding judge. In stentorian tones and with profound dignity he called us drivers together and imparted the information that any one attempting to lay up a heat, drive unfairly or violate one jot or tittle of the statutes in such cases made and provided would be punished to the full extent of the law. Expulsion, suspension, imprisonment for life and hanging arose before us like grim spectres while listening to his deep and sepulchral warning. Then, gentlemen, they placed in the stand as second judge, the aged and learned author of the laying-up rule, the great and good and pure "Hoot Mon" of the turf who had by his side as third judge, one of America's greatest reinsmen, and it was given out that should one of us fail to drive his horse out to the limit, the animal would be taken from our charge and the man who piloted Dexter and Goldsmith Maid and Nancy Hanks to world's records would take the mount behind our horses and drive them to win.

"Gentlemen, this idea that here in California we were to have one association that would live up to the rules in every respect and require every man to do his duty, filled our minds with awe as well as fear, and during three days not a driver mounted his bike but with an apprehension that an innocent mistake might result in a ruling off. The drivers went out and raced well. Two or three suspicious incidents occurred and fines followed quickly. But, gentlemen, on the fourth day a few clouds appeared in the sky. They grew darker and darker until finally the gentle rain dropped from heaven upon the ground beneath. An edict went forth that the meeting was off. By the following morning the sun shone in all his regal splendor, and a better day and track for racing were never seen. The next day was like it, but the meeting was off and the horsemen that had entries in the races for those days had to remove their horses from the track and go home. Rule 27, section 5, was enforced as far as the drivers were concerned; rule 18, it seemed, did not apply to the association.

"Now, gentlemen, I think it would be as well if the rules could be enforced on all alike. Do not make fish of one and flesh of another. If we drivers must walk on a chalked line, have the Secretaries and all the officers do the same. In the language of the immortal Shakespeare, or some one of those poet fellows, 'hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may,' and I pledge you the horsemen will be satisfied. Gentlemen, I thank you."

Second Vice-President N. T. Smith reminded Mr. Thompson that the meeting he referred to was held under American rules instead of National, which released the latter association from any blame in the matter, but the Board seemed to acquiesce in the points made by Mr. Thompson's eloquent effort and there is no doubt but it had considerable effect, even though the case under discussion was decided against him.

Would Prevent Ringing.

A member of a prominent eastern horse dealer's firm makes a suggestion for the benefit of the parent trotting associations. Every horse handled by his firm is marked by a number on the off front hoof with a hot iron, and on the neck, under the mane, another letter in Roman numerals. This is done to preserve the identity of each horse. The numbers on the hoof indicate the number of the carload, and the numerals on the neck show the number of the horse in that particular load. Speaking of the application of this system to the trotting turf he says: "I never could understand why the National Trotting Association hasn't adopted a similar system to ours for keeping track of all the horses campaigned on its tracks. Suppose every horse was branded under the mane with a number the first time he started in public, and that the number was registered, along with the name of the horse in the secretary's office at Hartford. I guess the people who ring horses would have to go into some other line of business after that kind of a scheme was put in practice. It would stop every crooked horse in America, and most of them in Europe, too. The plan is practicable—thoroughly so. Every trotting meeting has a horseshoer, and he could do the work of branding just as easily as he could set a shoe. Make the owner of the horse pay for it, and let the association assign certain numbers to each member, so that no two horses would be branded alike. There is no cruelty about it. The United States government brands every horse bought for the army, and lots of private breeders and business firms do it, too." This scheme is not new by any means, but has never met with much favor from the officials of the National Association. The fact that many owners would object to having their horses branded has been the greatest objection to it. Many people have an idea that it disfigures a horse, but this is not so. All the horses bred at the famous Palo Alto Farm are branded under the mane, and while the marks are perfectly legible, they would not be noticed unless one was looking for them.

Horses With Memories.

The following stories are traveling on the hot air circuit:

"That horses remember their racing days was evidenced by the performance of Rachel B. 2:28½ by Allie West, at the Meadowlands Farm one day last fall. After she had weaned her last colt by Wood Boy it was decided to turn her out in the infield of the farm track. It was expected that the old mare would cross the track to the tract of clover in the infield, but instead she went to the stand, took the outside of the track and jogged around it three times, and then, turning above the wire, took the pole and went around. She kept going until stopped by the men. The next day when turned out she went through the same performance, and she made it necessary for the farm to find a new paddock for her. Rachel B. is 24 years old, and has not been raced in seventeen years. She is the dam of Raven 2:10 and Edna Cook 2:12.

Another instance that comes to mind is in connection with the famous ex-Cleveland whirlwind, Guy 2:09½. After passing to D. J. Campau, the Detroit political boss and owner of the Chicago Horseman, it happened that the old black gelding was being driven along Woodward avenue to a phaeton. A motorman, as is their custom, clanged away at his bell, and hearing it Guy pulled up at once and tried to turn. He fancied it was the recall bell, beyond a doubt. You know that in the event of a runaway at a race meeting the starter's bell almost always will bring a miscreant to his senses and a jog, to the end that he is readily secured. Always remember it, too.

Universally Endorsed.

Mr. A. W. Knight, a prominent horseman at Riverpoint, R. I., writes: "I have used Quinn's Ointment for several years and know it is all you claim for it. I cheerfully recommend it to all who want to remove a swelling of any kind." Quinn's Ointment is universally endorsed by the most noted horsemen throughout the United States. For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all enlargements, it has no peer. Regular size only $1.00 by mail or express prepaid, if you cannot obtain from your druggist. Address W. B. HOW TWO CHAMPIONS WERE SHOD.

"In my opinion there were horses bred twenty years ago that would have been as fast as the fastest we now have, had they received the advantages of education, modern harness, boots and tracks that the champions of to-day enjoy."

The above remark spoken recently in the presence of that veteran champion reinsman, Budd Doble, now a resident of San Francisco, elicited a prompt expression of acquiescence on his part and the next day he brought into the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN two shoes, photographic engravings of which are presented herewith, and told a few facts to illustrate the truth of the sentence above quoted.

"This," he said, "is the hind shoe worn by Nancy Hanks when she made her record of 2:04 at Torre Haute, September 28th, 1892."

We placed it on the scales and it weighed a very slight fraction over three ounces.

"Nancy," said Mr. Doble, "always slid her hind feet a little forward on striking the ground, and they slipped back a little as she picked them up. I wanted to keep every fraction of the forward slide if possible and get rid of the backward slide. Calks would prevent the latter, but also the former, and I finally hit upon the idea of making the toe of the shoe concave and rather sharp at the forward edge. It was successful and one can readily see from the formation of the shoe just how it worked. Nancy's shoe when first put on weighed 3.5-6 ounces, and the loss in weight is accounted for by the wear it received on her foot and has received in handling since, as many horsemen have held it and studied its style and pattern. Her front shoes weighed about ten ounces when first put on and wore down to eight, which was about what they weighed when she made her record."

"Now Goldsmith Maid in my opinion was just as fast a mare naturally as Nancy Hanks. She did not require any heavier shoes than the daughter of Happy Medium, but here is what she wore on her hind foot," and Mr. Doble produced a shoe that looked like those worn by the average buggy or road horse. It weighed ten ounces and had been worn down at least an ounce.

"The Maid had the same sliding forward and backward movement with her hind feet that Nancy did," said Mr. Doble. "I corrected the backward slip with the calks but am convinced now that I lost more than I gained as it prevented the forward slide, and allowing only a couple of inches for this (and it was more) one can figure out by the number of strides to a mile how much was lost. Having eleven ounces behind Goldsmith Maid had to carry fourteen on each foot in front. Had I known as much about shoeing in 1874, when I gave the Maid her record as I did eighteen years afterwards she would have had a record close to the present championship mark. And then she never pulled a sulky that weighed less than 90 pounds, and when it is further considered that Nancy Hanks and her successors all made their records with the aid of the modern bike, Goldsmith Maid's performances are still more wonderful. There has been a great advancement in the breeding of trotters since the days of Dexter, but I believe that there were horses then that had as much speed as the champions of the present."

Charles Marvin's Good Luck.

The many friends of Charles Marvin, formerly trainer at Palo Alto Stock Farm in this State, will be pleased to know that he was the recipient on Christmas Day of a gift from Miller & Sibley of their entire stable of trotting horses, comprising twenty-one head. A dispatch from Lexington received this week says:

"The gift of the Miller & Sibley trotting holdings, consisting of twenty-one head of horses, to Charles Marvin develops the fact that Marvin has been receiving more from the firm than Sibley was making in Congress. The trainer's retainer was $5000 a year, and in addition he received a percentage of winnings, which was guaranteed to be at least $2500.

Cecelian 2:22 and a band of six brood mares highly bred, are included in the gift. The good campaigner, Battlesign 2:13½, heads the horses in training, and there is a good lot of youngsters coming on from which Marvin expects to develop stake winners. Marvin will have the use of Ashland Park farm for two years, when the lease held by Miller & Sibley will expire. Marvin has ridden behind more world's record performers than any living man, and his reputation is national. The gift of Miller & Sibley is considered the equivalent of $25,000 by horsemen who are in a position to know the value of the animals transferred.

Miller & Sibley first attempted to establish a breeding farm in Pennsylvania, but, failing, brought their horses to Kentucky about ten years ago. Since then Marvin has been in their employ. They were heavy buyers of Palo Alto stock, and their Pennsylvania place was known as the Palo Alto of the East. Their retirement from the business is the cause of universal regret among the horsemen here.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN extends congratulations to Mr. Marvin and hopes that he will breed and drive as many record breakers in the future as he has in the past.

A Good Grandson of Hermit.

There is a horse now here in San Francisco, whose racing days are over, but that is strong and vigorous and in good condition for stud purposes that should make a good sire. We refer to Storm King, the son of imp. Whistle Jacket, one of the best sons of the great Hermit ever brought to America. Storm King was a good race horse—one of the best handicap horses of his day. He holds the world's record for a two year old on a circular track, 54½ seconds, made when he won the Maxwell House stake at Nashville. He won the same year the Pabst Brewing House stake at Milwaukee, beating the Burns & Waterhouse pair Altamax and Parthemax, running the three-quarters in 1:14 with 118 pounds up. He also won the Hollywood stake at New York, five-eighths over the Gravesend track in 1:01½, defeating Tragedian, Casseopia and the best two year olds of that year running on the New York tracks.

Storm King ran a mile and a sixteenth in 1:46, defeating the great mare Imp, and he has beaten such horses as David Tenny, Mary Black, Way W. and others of the top notchers.

As an individual he is a jet black with a strip on nose and stands 16.3. He is well proportioned and a grand looking horse every way. His breeding, as will be seen by turning to our advertising columns where it is tabulated to the fifth cross, shows that besides being a grandson of Hermit, he has two crosses of the great Stockwell close up mingled with the blood of the great Lexington and other of the leading sires of the world.

His owner was offered $12,000 for Storm King when he was a two year old by Gen. W. H. Jackson, owner of that princely domain Belle Meade. Storm King has run and won many races since and being but seven years of age should be a very valuable stallion for some stock farm.

Pleasanton Stalls Filling Up.

There must be nearly seventy-five horses occupying stalls at Pleasanton race track already, and it will not be long before regular work will be started on them for the great harness racing of the new century.

James Sutherland is working the track and has it in splendid condition for training—a nice cushion on it so that colts and horses will not be sore up; and still fast enough for them to show their speed if it is desired.

James Thompson has Little Thorne 2:07½, Goshen Jim 2:10½, Monica 2:15, Algonetta by Eros, a mare by Charles Derby, a three year old pacer by Steinway that is another crackerjack of the Oakwood Park breeding, and a chestnut mare by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Anna Belle by Dawn that will get a low mark.

Nine horses belonging to A. W. Shippee are being put in condition to sell or race. They are by Hawthorne, Dictator Wilkes and Moses S. and are a very promising lot.

Bert Webster, the trainer who developed the champion Bonnie Direct 2:05½, has about ten horses in his string all looking well. Mr. Griffith's great young horse will do well in the stud this year and deserves to as he is one of the fastest, most royally bred and handsome stallions in America.

John Blue, "the best conditioner and most careful man that ever worked a horse" as Tom Keating once said of him, has a public stable and will soon have his limit. He has seven now, some of them belonging to Mr. Juan Gallegos of Mission San Jose, a gentleman who is breeding on the right lines with some of the best bred mares in the country. He has patronized such stallions as Diablo 2:09½, Direct 2:05½, Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and McKinney 2:11½, and the results will soon be seen at the race meetings. Blue will soon get them all going, but of course no fast work need be looked for before May or June.

Millard Sanders has selected his stalls and will soon have about ten head from the Santa Rosa stock farm, those three great mares Janice 2:13½, Dolly Dillon 2:11½ and Bonsilene 2:14½ being members of the string. He will also have three or four youngsters that he thinks will be in the 2:15 list before the racing season is over.

J. M. Alviso is also at it again and will probably be out this year with a regular campaigning stable.

John Sawyer is expected now any day with his string from the Van De Vanter Stock Farm. He will bring seven or eight intended for the circuit of 1901.

Bill Murray has Diablo in fine shape for the season of 1901. This horse has been getting a better class of mares during the past two years than ever before and as his get are right up among the principal money winners every year, he is certain to be a well patronized stallion from now on.

Key Direct 2:10, Geo. Davis' stallion, is one of the grandest looking horses at Pleasanton and will be patronized to his limit this year. That colt stake which Mr. Davis proposes for the get of his horse ought to be given over the Pleasanton track and if it should be, my word for it, a big grand stand would be necessary to hold the crowd.

William Welch's stallion, G. W. Archer, by Allerton, attracts a great deal of attention and is surely a fine individual and moves like a trotter. He will get his share of patronage, as the Allerton blood is highly thought of.

The Nutwood Stock Farm's string are at the track in charge of William Cecil and all look good. There are eight three year olds by Nutwood Wilkes that will compare favorably with a like number from any stock farm in the country. Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ and Irvington Boy 2:18½ are looking as if they could reduce their records right now.

Pleasanton still remains the horse centre and is ready for visitors at all times.

OCCASIONAL.

Proposed Double Track.

A dispatch from Sacramento says: Judge Peter J. Shields, who is acting as secretary of the State Board of Agriculture until his successor shall be appointed, stated to-day that it was proposed, in case the Board is allowed by the Legislature to sell the present grounds and secure a new location, to build two tracks, one to be used exclusively for trotting races and the other for running races. The former will be a mile in length, and the latter a mile and an eighth.

This plan, it is expected, will do away with the objection of the running horse men to having races on the hard trotting track on the same days that trotting is indulged in. They complain that it breaks down their horses and have demanded that the races be run on alternate days in order that the track may be harrowed and softened for the runners. Judge Shields states that it is as desirable for a variety of reasons to have running races on each day of the fair, and that with the two tracks this can be done with less injury to the horses than would result in attempting to alter a single track from day to day.

SULKY NOTES.

Good prospects are held high.

The Central Circuit will do much for the harness horse this year.

John R. Gentry 2:00½ is jogging as sound as a dollar, and Andrews expects him to stand a preparation next year.

It is officially announced that Montana will have racing next year at Butte and Anaconda. Full particulars, including dates, will be published soon.

Dan Misner has received from W. J. Bruce of Oregon the horses Graceful George 2:23½ and Mack 2:22½, two of as good roadsters as Mr. Misner has driven over the park roads for some time.

A good report comes from Hollister. All bills incurred by the agricultural association, at their fair in 1900, have been paid in full and there is a small balance remaining in the treasury.

The well known trotting mare Derby Princess 2:08½, who was knocked down to B. B. Thomas of St. Louis at the recent New York sale, has been shipped to Grattan Farm, Wheaton, Ill., and will be bred to Tommy Britton 2:06½.

The two year old by Cresceus 2:04, out of Blessing sister to Larabie 2:12½, has been named Crescent. This is the youngster for which $3000 was refused early in the summer and which will be sent to the Ketcham Farm stable next year.

We want every trainer to send us a list of the horses he has or will have in his string this year as far as known. Secretaries must have this data to enable them to make up their programs for 1901 and look to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to furnish it.

A report comes from Buffalo that Geers has discovered a new pacer that he thinks will be one of the free-for-all candidates for 1901. He is called Shadow Chimes and is a full brother to Carillon 2:16½ and Charming Chimes 2:17½. His speed is said to be as great as any green horse Geers ever handled.

Ed Lafferty has seven horses in his string at Alameda that he is jogging and getting ready for work later on. The stallion Boydello 2:14½ is looking in extra fine shape and ready for the stud season. The grandson of Electioneer will be allowed to serve a few mares before being placed in training.

The correspondent of the Associated Press at Berlin learns from private sources that Emperor William will send a special envoy shortly to make a tour of the American stock farms, with the view of purchasing saddle and carriage horses for the imperial stables. Hitherto purchases have been made exclusively in Hungary and England.

Many reinsmen do not walk their horses between heats on warm days, and they seem to win as many races as the fellow who drills and drills. A prominent campaigner said: "Why, if I could learn my horse to lay down and rest between heats I could win first money oftener. We all do a great many things, because it's the fashion that don't amount to much."

It is officially announced that a harness meeting will be given at Nutwood Park, Dubuque, Iowa, in August next. The principal events will be the Dubuque Preparation Stake, $7500, for three year old trotters; a stake worth $2500 for pacing three year olds, and a $10,000 event for trotting stallions, will also be opened. H. L. Clark of St. Joseph, Mo., will be secretary under the new management.

Edwin Gaylord signed a three years' lease to Overland park, Denver, Col., and has already announced his dates for 1901. They will be June 15th to 29th inclusive. Two harness and four running events will occur each day and about $40,000 will be hung up in purses. Mr. Gaylord is well and favorably known among horsemen and will have the support of a good element in his meeting.

The Road Drivers' Association of New York, through its executive committee, has placed itself on record as disapproving of betting on match races held on the speedway, and in the future will in no way recognize or officially participate in any race in which there is money involved. The committee decided that in the future the association shall devote more of its attention to horse shows and parades and the giving of matinee races.

L. E. Clawson, owner of Phoebe Childers 2:10½, was presented with a good-looking, well-bred colt recently by his friend Geo. Fox of Clements, Cal., and on January 1st made a good start for the year by entering the colt in the Occident Stake for 1903. He calls the youngster Keeley. He is a bay, foaled in May last, and is by Silver Bow, dam Josie Clawson by Nushagak, second dam Venturuss by Arthurton, third dam Lady Venture, a full sister to the thoroughbred horse Venture that took a record of 2:27½ in 1877.

Mart Rollins, a well known Santa Rosa horseman who was recently employed with R. A. Thompson in buying horses for the German government, passed through Petaluma Wednesday morning for San Francisco to bring to this county a band of these self-same horses. The German government bought some 3500 head of California and Oregon horses at an average of $125 per head and then when the Chinese question quieted a bit the horses were on the government's hands without any immediate use for them. The government sold back to the supplying contractors several hundred head at a big sacrifice, and it is a portion of this stock that Mr. Rollins proposes to bring to Petaluma and put on the market.—Petaluma Argus.

Parties wanting good racing prospects for 1901, or roadsters that are good leeking and can step fast can find them at the Rose Dale stock farm, at Santa Rosa. A letter mailed to that address a day or two previous will result in having a conveyance in waiting at the depot to show visitors over the farm. There are a number of the get of Daly 2:15 and the grandson of Electioneer St. Whips in training now.

Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick of this city visited Pleasanton last week and knowing his appreciation of a ride behind a fast horse James Thompson asked him to get into a speed cart and drive Goshen Jim 2:10½, a mile. The son of Moses S. is in fine fettle and wanted to go, so Mr. Kirkpatrick let him step and he went around the track in 2:15½ so easily that Mr. K. was convinced that had he driven him hard he would have equalled his record.

Good horses are becoming very scarce. Reports from all over the country say that it is almost impossible to pick up desirable animals at any price. This is not only true of trotting stock, but also of high grade carriage horses. A number of dealers are even picking up two or three year olds, which they will keep over until they arrive at a saleable age. Desirable horses will bring prices for the next three or four years at least.

D. F. Ogelsby, one of our subscribers, writing from Ventura, says: "There is quite an interest being shown in and around this place and Santa Barbara, in regard to standard bred horses and roadsters. I think your published suggestions in regard to the directors of associations conferring with horsemen and shortening the number of days in smaller towns, has already in some and will be acted in other places with advantage to all interested parties."

Capt. Ben E. Harris owned some years ago a handsome road horse that he called Fauntleroy. He was a son of the Nutwood horse Brown Jug and was sold, finally dropping out of the Captain's sight entirely. A few days since he received a letter from a gentleman in Maryland asking for particulars of the horse's breeding, etc., and the letter stated that although Fauntleroy was getting old he could hold his own with any of the fastest roadsters in that locality.

The horse stock of the United States has increased in value since 1897 $150,000,000. With something like 14,000,000 horses in the country, this represents an improvement of about $13 per head. It is the opinion of experts that the next three years will show a still more remarkable increase in values. The markets of the world are now demanding horses of the highest class, regardless of price, and at the same time the horses of a low grade are becoming more and more unsalable.

At an appraisal of the property of the late W. B. Hinshaw of Sonoma county recently the draft stallion Napoleon the First was put in at $675, the price offered by a person who wanted the horse. When this sale came up for confirmation last week there was another bidder and the horse finally brought $900, being purchased by J. D. Hinshaw. Napoleon the First, we understand, is a cross bred horse, being by a Percheron stallion and from a Clydesdale mare, and is a very fine individual.

George H. Ketcham, the owner of Cresceus, is kept busy filling orders for high class horses for export to Europe. He recently received an order from Anna Held, the actress, to ship her a pair of high class show horses to Paris, and also filled an order from Louis Winans, of Brighton, England, for a great show horse with speed to compete in the show classes in England. The gelding Excellency, eight years old, with a three year old record of 2:29½, by Damo, dam by Erie Wilkes, was purchased on this order.

There were 305 original entries in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, $6000 guaranteed by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association for the foals of mares bred in 1900. The second payment was due Wednesday of this week and those from a distance will probably not be in until the early part of next week. Up to Thursday afternoon Secretary Kelly had received payments on 225 nominations at his office, which shows that the stake will come up to every expectation of its inaugurators.

The ready wit of an Irishman in saddle or sulky is proverbial. It was Johnny Murphy who said that a trotter given to running behind had "an impediment in his gait." It is related of an Irish car driver who had a sorry nag drawing a traveler at a snail's pace in his trap, that on being asked if the horse was sick, replied: "No, sor, he's not sick, but it's unlucky he is, sor, unlucky. You see, sor, ivery mernin, afore I put 'm in the shafts, I tesses him whither 'e'll av a feed of oats or I'll av a dhrink av whiskey, an the poor baste has lost five mornin's runnin'."

The Jewettville covered track is becoming very popular with trainers as a winter training ground. Quite a number of stables are already quartered there. At the head of the list is the Village Farm stable. This string wintered at the track last year and goes there again this year in preference to moving south. The stable is in three divisions, and there are thirty-eight horses in all, in charge of trainers Geers, Foster and White. Most of these horses have never been raced, in fact, only three of the thirty-eight have records. These three are in Geer's stable, and they are The Abbot 2:03½, Lord Derby 2:07 and The Queen 2:10½, which took her record in 1899, and was not raced the past season.

The green trotter Salient, by Wickliffe, having astonished New York Speedway drivers by beating J. W. Cornish's fast horse David B. 2:09½, in a brush on the Speedway, is a candidate for still further honors, as his owner Charles Weiland, has issued a challenge for a race with any green horse that may be brought to meet him. Salient's improvement has been so quick and decided that he is a formidable rival in the matter of development to Prince D., the green pacer bought by C. R. Bentley of Buffalo, at Muncie, Ind., for $3000 only a few days ago. Prince D. is expected to become a star of the turf next season. Shrewd horsemen who have seen Salient in action say that with proper handling he, too, may cause a stir in harness racing.—N. Y. Times.

John S. Phippen has been back in California for two weeks on a visit to the "folks at home" during the holidays. He left for Dallas, Texas, on Thursday, and will immediately begin getting a lot of horses ready for the Chicago sale which takes place in February. Phippen gave many of the get of Electrite records during the year just closed, but it is the custom of the Lomo Alto Farm to sell their record horses each year and develop new ones. After the sale Mr. Phippen will start in training a number of colts and fillies and will be out on the Mississippi valley circuit again this year. All his old friends will be glad to know that he has enjoyed the best of health since leaving California two years ago and expects to some day again make his home here on the Pacific.

In the State Fair edition of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN published September 1, 1900, it was announced that a gold medal for best display of horse boots and light harness would come to California from the Paris Exposition. That a telegram had been received from the firm's representative in Paris that the house of J. O'Kane of this city had been awarded the gold medal for its exhibit at the great show, which is the highest award to be obtained. Now that the gold medals have been issued by the proper authorities of the Exposition and distributed to the winners thereof, it is found that it is Mr. John A. McKerron of San Francisco who won the great prize, and herewith we present a photographic reproduction of the beautiful award. The medals are of pure gold, mounted in a handsome blue silk plush case, showing the obverse and reverse sides. No more exquisite workmanship or more beautiful and original designs have ever been issued from a world's fair and they must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated. Mr. McKerron has them on exhibition at his place of business, 203 Mason street, and they are worthy of inspection by those who appreciate art in any form. That Mr. McKerron received the gold medal is no surprise to California horsemen. It has long been known to them all that his harness and horse boots were the best on earth, and a majority of the leading Eastern trainers are evidently of the same opinion, as they use the McKerron goods, which also go to the principal foreign cities of the world in response to orders from those who want the best.

GOLD MEDAL. Awarded to John A. McKerron of San Francisco for Best Harness and Horse Boots at Paris Exposition.

THE SADDLE.

Chance Horse Breeding.

William Easton, the New York thoroughbred horse auctioneer, says that the American Breeders' Protective Association is wrong in theory and is perhaps a trust to discourage the small breeder. The theory of the association is to buy in cheap, underbred mares and fillies or high bred ones of bad individuality and sell them without their pedigrees as work horses. During the recent sales the association bought largely of the offerings through Secretary Chenault, and Mr. Easton frequently protested against his bidding on well bred youngsters which had not been given a trial. Mr. Easton maintains that the breeding business is largely a matter of chance, and that if the association had existed in past years the turf would have been deprived of some of its most famous horses. He declares that the breeding of the high-mettled racer can never be reduced to an exact science, and recites instances from turf history to substantiate his claim.

Being an Englishman himself and well acquainted with English horses, Mr. Easton naturally turned to that country first for his examples. Queen Mary was his first example. No one wanted her; she finally secured an obscure home and became one of the greatest broodmares of her time. She foaled, among others, the filly winner of the Derby, Blink Bonnie, the dam of the great Blair Athol; imp. Bonnie Scotland, imp. Balrownie. Haricot was another of her get, and she produced a St. Leger winner in Caller On and was the grandam of Hampton. Had she been offered at public sale here, the Breeders' Association would probably have bought her and the world would never have seen Blair Athol. The dam of the famous Crucifix was also much despised at one time, and was so bow-legged that a wager was offered that her foal, afterward Crucifix, could be rolled in a wheelbarrow between her legs. Having foaled Crucifix, she afterward made a fortune for her owner, Lord George Bentinek.

The famous Godolphin Arabian, generally believed to have been a Barb, was first the property of Mr. Coke, who presented him to Mr. Williams, the keeper of St. James' Coffee House, who in turn gave him to Lord Godolphin. It was by mere chance that he was bred to Roxana. She produced the superior race horse Lath and the stallion's reputation was made.

Marske, the sire of Eclipse, considered by many the greatest of all horses, was sold to a farmer, who sold him at half a guinea, which amounts to $2.55. In 1776 his owner, the Earl of Abington, asked 200 guineas for his services, although he was then twenty-seven years old.

Sydney Herbert refused to take Melbourne when he was offered to him with two other Humphrey Clinker yearlings. Had there been a breeders' association, the sire of the wonderful West Australian would never have appeared in the stud. Hybla, the dam of Kettle-drum, winner of the Derby, was once given away, and Marmelade, before producing the famous Dundee, was sold for a song.

Mr. Easton recalls Americans as well as English examples of this character. Fanny Jane, before producing the queen of the turf, Miss Woodford, was traded for a barrel of whisky, and Belle Knight was bought by John Harper only to throw Freeland and nine or ten other winners. At a sale in Lexington Bob Baker bought Sophia Hardy for $25, in foal to Pardee. The foal was Hardy Pardee, which sold for $2500. Mr. Baker got a gift season to G. W. Johnson and bred the mare to him. The result was Lieutenant Gibson, winner of the Latonia and Louisville Derbys and the Clark stake. Had the Breeders' Association been organized a few years earlier no Lieutenant Gibson would have been seen on the turf. May Hempstead was a seventy-five dollar yearling and Larkspur, winner of a number of races and several stakes, was sold in 1898 for $50. T. C. McDowell was very successful with Rush, Batten and Spirituelle, all the result of gift seasons. Since that time he has paid large stallion fees and, with the exception of Monarka, has nothing of high class. This is noted to show what a figure chance plays in breeding race horses. Some few seasons ago John Wallace, of Lexington, was given a horse named Pete Kitchen, his owner thinking him worthless. The owner at that time had sixteen horses in his stable and Wallace's gift colt won more races than all of them.

Old-time trainers recall Rufus Lisle of this country. He owned a cheap lot of mares, some of which he used as buggy horses. He never paid for a season to any horse, always breeding to stallions offered him free. Nearly everything he turned out won. One of the horses he bred in this way was Castaway II., winner of the Brooklyn Handicap, from a good field. Star Bright was a $65 yearling. As a two year old she sold for $6000. The grand racehorse Raceland and Proctor

Knott were cheap colts. Kinley Mack is another instance. A veterinary advised Mr. Easton to destroy him as a yearling, thinking he had been rendered useless by an injured shoulder. He was saved by careful nursing, to win the Brooklyn Handicap and the Suburban, a feat never equaled by any other horse. No better illustration of the chances of the racehorse business could be adduced.

The late August Belmont on one occasion weeded out his yearlings. Twelve were sent to New York to be developed for the big stakes. Three were left to be given away in Kentucky sales. The cast-offs were King Crab, winner of eighty-one races; Badge, winner of sixty-eight races, and Flitter, a fine performer. The two first could beat any colt in the Belmont twelve.

The dam of Garry Hermann was bought by the association and is now working in the Southern cotton fields. He won more races than any two year old of the year. This has suggested the plan of numbering the mares that are branded by the association, so that in case of a good winner being developed they can be reclaimed.

Mr. Easton is inclined to the opinion that the association is a trust of the big breeders, who do not like to see a small breeder pick up a mare like Sophia Hardy and get a colt that will beat the best from their extensive farms. He says, too, that a bid from the Breeders Association often brands a mare as worthless and prevents young breeders, who would be willing to take a chance of getting a good one, from bidding on her. The association has never been more active than at present, and a few years should show whether its work has a good or bad effect on the breeding of high class racehorses.

Daly Sale Catalogue.

The advance catalogue of the great sale of thoroughbred horses from the late Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Stock Farm, at Hamilton, Mont., has just been issued by the Fasig-Tipton Horse Auction Company. In very condensed form, announcement is made of general facts concerning the sale, which will be one of the most important, if not actually the greatest sale of thoroughbred racing stock ever held in America. Only one such event, the dispersal of the late August Belmont's immense breeding establishment ten years ago, compares with the coming sale. The dates fixed are January 30th and 31st and February 1st, in Madison Square Garden. All details of the offering are in the hands of the Fasig-Tipton Company, and preparations will be made to accommodate the greatest crowds that ever gathered to attend such an event, for breeders from all over the United States will be present in person, and from inquiries received from England, France and other horse breeding European countries, a number of foreign buyers will be on hand, interested especially in the great Hanover horse, Hamburg. Even in Australia interest in the future of Hamburg is felt.

In the catalogue, eight royally-bred stallions, ninety-eight of the choicest broodmares that money and care could collect, and all supposed to be in foal; twelve racehorses in training that will be each three years old at the time they are sold, and sixty-six of them two years in active training and being fitted to race in the coming spring are named to be sold. The stallions are, first of all, the mighty Hamburg by Hanover-Lady Reel, now five years old; Tammany by the English Derby winner, Iroquois, and himself a great racehorse; Ogden, winner of a sensational Futurity; Inverness, an imported horse of fashionable English blood; Isidor and Bathampton, both imported and both high-class race horses; The Pepper and Bute. Of the mares thirty-one were bred to Hamburg, these including the dams of Bannockburn, Motley, Isidor, Chaeornac and First Mate, and having among them such individuals as Casseopia, Cassalia, Meriden and Shipmate. Fourteen others were bred to Ogden, fourteen to Isidor, twenty-six to Bathampton, ten to The Pepper and others to St. Angelo, Scottish Chieftain and the Musket horse, Trenton. The coming three year olds in training and the coming two year olds are a splendidly bred lot of horses, and of great promise.

Washington Park Stakes.

In our advertising columns are given full details of the stakes for the 1901 summer meeting of the Washington Park Club of Chicago, and the attention of owners, trainers and horsemen generally should be given to them. The meeting will begin June 22d and close July 20th, overweight handicaps will range from $1000 upward, and no purse less than $600 will be offered, this being as promised at the close of the very successful meeting of 1900.

Prominent among the three year old stakes is the American Derby, with $20,000 added, over a mile and a half, an event which should attract the best horses in training. The Sheridan Stakes, a mile and a quarter, with $4000 added, comes next, and then follows the Englewood Stakes, one mile, $2000 added, and the Drexel Stakes, with $2000 added, one mile.

For three year olds and upward provision has been made in the Midway Stakes, a mile and a furlong, with $2000 added; the Auburn Stakes, a mile and half a furlong, with $2000 added; the Oakwood Handicap, a mile and a furlong, with $2500; the Great Western Handicap, a mile and a half, with $3000 added; and a new and attractive feature, the Young Handicap, one mile and one and a half furlongs, with $5000 added, and the Wheeler Handicap, a mile and a quarter, with $7500 added. This is a scale of attractive events which should surely bring together high class representative fields.

Two year olds have not been neglected, by any means, and there is the Lakeside Stakes, over five furlongs, with $2000 added; the Kenwood Stakes, over five furlongs, with $2000 added; the Edgewater Stakes, over five furlongs, with $2000 added; the Quickstep Stakes, over four furlongs, with $2000 added; the Hyde Park Stakes, over six furlongs, with $5000 added, and the Lake View Handicap, six furlongs, with $2000 added.

All of the above stakes and events close on Tuesday, January 15, 1901, and entry blanks may be obtained from the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

SADDLE NOTES.

Many improvements have been made at Tanforan Park of late. Several new stables have been built and much has been done in the shape of landscape gardening. The new steeplechase course has been laid out in the infield and races over it furnish a very picturesque spectacle.

Some interesting statistics on the 1900 two year old running have been compiled, showing that in the 576 races $983,112 was won in stakes and purses, while second and third money added brings the total to nearly $1,000,000. Commando and Ballyhoo Bey run very close for first honors, the son of Domino having $40,862 to his credit, while Ballyhoo Bey earned $40,240. Beau Gallant won $28,085, while Bonnibert is next with $25,982. Miss Benuett leads the fillies with $12,235. Garry Hermann won the most races, passing the post first on nineteen occasions. Altogether thirty two year olds won over $5000 each. Of the sires of these stars Belvidere leads with three representatives, while the dead Domino, imp. Esher and Sir Dixon each have two big winners.

The Owners' handicap at a mile was won by The Lady, with Tayon second and Bathos third. The race calls for no especial mention beyond the fact that Owners' handicaps are to racing what jack pots are to poker; and it is to be hoped that no more of them will be allowed on the card, as they are most unsatisfactory from all points of view, to say nothing of the element of danger introduced by allowing fifty pound boys to ride in them.

Bell Punch should never have been allowed to start in the race in which he was made joint favorite with Torsida. He was lame, both before and behind, and was evidently left in merely to affect the betting and keep up the price on Torsida's chances. Through the negligence of the Paddock Judge, his condition was allowed to pass unnoticed and the "educated" money poured in on Torsida in volumes, not only at the track, but throughout the country, as it was currently reported. The coup was well planned and carried through without a hitch, although the result was very unsatisfactory to the backers of Bell Punch, which was the legitimate favorite and class of the race, had he been in proper condition. The bookmakers and the general public were alike sufferers over this race and it is to be hoped that some action will be taken to prevent a repetition of such an occurrence.

Lieutenant Gibson, the colt that was favorite for the American Derby in 1900, is dead. Chas. Head Smith owned the son of G. W. Johnson and at one time refused $20,000 for him. The colt had quite a history. When a two year old there was some contention as to whether he was in the first class, but over a heavy track he was acknowledged to have no peer. He set a new record for the Kentucky Derby—2:06½—and carried 117. Shortly after this he set the seal on his greatness by winning the Clark Stakes—a mile and an eighth—in 1:54. The best previous record was 1:54, made by Pearl Jennings when a four year old. But she carried only 87 pounds to the 117 of Lieutenant Gibson. Gibson's most remarkable performance came after this. In his preparatory work for the Latonia Derby he made the mile and a quarter in 2:04½. Soon after the Derby at Washington Park last year, in which he ran third, being beaten by Sidney Lucas and James, it was announced that he had broken down, though he started a couple of times afterwards and failed to win. He was fired and a bad job was made of it, as blood poisoning set in and eventually caused his death.

One of the turf writers on a morning contempory is the latest advocate for the adoption of the recall flag at Tanforan. He advances, as a potent argument, that Mr. Dwyer desires the innovation on the ground that his reputation is at stake and for that reason he should be allowed to use the red butting. If Mr. Dwyer is at all anxious in regard to losing his reputation as starter, through the absence of the recall flag, the remedy lies in his own hands; but in justice to him it must be said that his starting thus far has been far in advance of any seen in California up to date, and it seems to be the consensus of opinion among turf followers that they are willing to take their chances without the recall flag in preference to what might, and frequently does happen when it is employed.

It is said that a syndicate of New York and Philadelphia sporting men are negotiating for the lease of the old race track at Guttenburg. John Mullens, one of the principal owners, said: "The negotiations are being conducted through an agent, and it is possible that the lessees may, as has been said, wish to hold a winter meeting without pool selling. But I could not say whether it is wanted for any such purpose or not and I do not believe it is." The intending buyers say that they can hold a meeting on the track without pool selling, and that it would pay as there is no racing carried on in the winter months except at New Orleans and in California.

The sale of the Corrigan horses took place Saturday at Tanforan and realized something over $8000. The Bassetlaw gelding and the Vassal filly brought $1300 and $1100 respectively, Pat Dunne being the purchaser. L. Scrogins secured Artella for $500. Albert Simon purchased Rattgar and Sam Howard for $650 and $400 respectively. Dr. Rowell paid $575 for Wallenstein and also bought Yodel for $225. To dissolve a partnership Count Hubert was purchased by Don Cameron for $400. Luke Dubois, of Denver, secured the stallion Montana for $1000. John Mackay purchased Primrose for $200. The two latter animals belonged to the Daly estate.

Headwater, with 119 pounds in the saddle, won the Berkeley Handicap from a fast field of sprinters. A shocking reversal of form from his last race when, with twenty pounds less on his back, he was beaten by Tayon and Bathos in an Owner's handicap at Tanforan.

Trevathan, a bay gelding by imp. Bassetlaw-Mercedes, starting in the colors of Atkins & Lottridge in the last race on Tuesday, fell passing the paddock and rolled over his jockey. The boy escaped with a few bruises but the horse's neck was broken.

The Hildreth stable was suspended Monday owing to the extremely bad race run by Bangor. The horse was a heavily played favorite and looked to be the legitimate choice; he displayed no speed at any part of the journey and despite the vigorous efforts of Jockey Bullman finally refused to run at all and was pulled up. A veterinary surgeon examined Bangor after the race, by order of the Judges, and reported that he could find nothing the matter with him. An investigation of the race the next day showed that Bangor was bumped by König, and his back strained, so the stable was reinstated, and Miller, who rode König, set down for five days.

The St. Louis Fair Association directors held a meeting last week and re-elected the old board of officers, including President Robert Aull, Secretary Joseph A. Murphy and Treasurer William M. Lockwood. It was decided that the next club meeting should open May 12th, and that the series of ten $1000 stake events given last year would be supplanted by overnight handicaps of equal value.

The duties of the Stewards at Tanforan Park are surely not so numerous that they have no time to devote to such cases as that of the hurdle race won by May Boy, the above mentioned animal showing a decided reversal of form, and Lomo and Eva Moo running most inexplicable races in connection therewith. An investigation of such racing should certainly be in order; and it seems most extraordinary that nothing was done in regard to this matter. Hurdle racing in California in times past has been prolific of scandals and dishonest performances, and unless a set of officials can be employed who are able to cope with and defeat the ends of the tricksters, it would be well to follow the well taken stand of the California Jockey Club and abolish the illegitimate sport from the racing program.

Jockey Bullman's actions at the post will gain him no laurels; in his endeavors to beat the gate he keeps his horse tip-toeing and turning, and on two occasions last week, when the barrier was released, he had his horse turned sideways and all chance of winning the race lost at the start. Both of these mounts of Bullman's were heavily backed; one of them being an odds-on favorite and the other carrying as much money as the actual favorite in the Christmas handicap. A little wholesome discipline will do Jockey Bullman no harm, and it should be properly administered to him. It will be remembered that he enjoyed a vacation of thirty days on the ground for another offense lately, and the racing proceeded on the even tenor of its way without the assistance of Master Bullman, as it would probably do again if he "got his needles."

The Ellison horses appear to have gotten into shape, and one or more representatives from this stable are now daily winners. As Mr. Ellison always backs his horses he must find the season a very profitable one.

The Juvenile Champion Stake for two year olds, value $2625, over seven furlongs of ground, brought together the best field of colts that ever faced the barrier on the Pacific Coast. Of the six starters five were bred in California, four of them being products of the Rancho del Paso, while the winner was bred at the Elmwood Stock Farm. All of the starters received more or less support in the betting, but Golden Age and Rolling Boer, the pair from the Hildreth stable, were hot favorites, coupled at 11 to 20. Canmore was next in demand at fours and Brutal went to the post at sixes, having been backed down from tens. To a fair start Brutal showed momentarily in the lead but was quickly passed; by Kenilworth, Golden Age and Bedeck who set the pace to the head of the stretch; here Canmore went to the front and ran head and head with Kenilworth to the eighth pole. At this point Brutal, which had been in last position, commenced to gain ground and standing a long, hard drive beat Canmore to the wire, winning by half a length. Rolling Boer was third, two lengths away. There was some disposition to detract from the victory of Brutal, many contending that Canmore should have won, on the ground that he got much the worse of the start, but such was not apparent from the way in which the race was won. The first quarter was run in the slow time of twenty-five seconds, and at the end of the quarter the proverbial blanket would have covered the entire field with Brutal in last position; from here on Canmore gradually improved his position without effort and looked all over a winner until Brutal, coming from absolutely last and making up fully four lengths in the run through the stretch, beat him out in true race horse fashion.

The bay stallion Loki by Logic, Slasher, dam by imp. Gleneig, sold in the recent Woodward and Shanklin sales to Joplin & Grundy of Elizabethtown, has been purchased by S. L. Cheney of Galena, Kan., and will be put at the head of the Windsor stud. Loki was first raced by E. R. McLoan, the Cincinnati turfman, who dropped dead in the timers' stand at Oakley in 1897. He won during his racing career the Crystal, Covington, Autumn and Merchant stakes, worth a total of $15,035. The horse was recently owned by Hon. W. C. Whitney.

The report that little Jack Martin had run away from his employers was prematurely published. He was quite a prominent figure in the paddock at Oakland, on Monday, before the racing commenced. He expressed himself as standing in no fear of Mr. Shields, but kept his weather eye open and was constantly on the lookout for him. When it was reported that Mr. Shields was coming into the paddock he suddenly disappeared and was seen no more for the balance of the afternoon. No doubt the differences between jockey and employer will be soon adjusted and little Martin will be seen riding in the colors of Carruthers & Shields before the Oakland meeting closes.

BRUTAL.

Chestnut colt by imp. Brutus-Inauguration. Winner of Juvenile Champion Stake at Tanforan, December 30, 1900.

The accompanying photograph of Brutal shows him to be a racy looking individual with quality and class showing throughout his conformation. He was sired by imp. Brutus, from Forma (dam of Formella and Premata), she by Inauguration (son of Wildidle and Miami), second dam Beauty (dam of Nebeau, Nabette and Romulus, the latter one of the highest class colts ever bred in California) by imp. Hercules; third dam the famous race mare Mamie Hall (dam of Viola Rea), by the unbeaten Norfolk; next dam Miami (again the most noted stud matron of her day in California), by Williamson's Belmont. Miami was an own sister to the phenomenal race horse Owen Dale. Brutus is the property of Prince Andree Poniatowski, President of the San Francisco Jockey Club, and was not started in races until last fall; he at once graduated from the maiden class and showed marked improvement in every race in which he started; winning several in succession and finally placing the last important two year old event of the century to his credit. This was a particularly meritorious performance as he was pitted against the highest class of two year olds that ever went to the post in California, all of them, with one exception, having been stake winners on New York tracks. A full account of his victory will be found in another column.

The turf career of the American hurdle horse Klondike, in England, has resulted in a pronounced failure, and the horse is now on his way back to this country. Klondike, who is a four years old, and by Sir Modred. Linotte, was shipped abroad last summer to have a try for the English hurdle events that are run there late in the fall. He had met and defeated the best of our jumping division, and his showing was such a good one that he was sent over to the other side, George Hill, his trainer, taking Jockey Donohue along to do the riding. The trip was a failure, as the hurdle obstacles on the other side proved to be too stiff for Klondike to negotiate, and at the same time keep up his high rate of speed. It is also possible that he was not in as good shape as when he raced on this side of the water.

Advance Guard at last succeeded in winning a stake; the New Year Handicap (value to the winner, $1650) falling to his portion. Mr. Brooks succeeded in allotting the weights so that his field were brought together on somewhere near even terms. He was not favorite in the betting, but was well backed at threes; probably carrying more money than the Jennings stable, the actual favorite. The start was fairly good and Mortgage was first past the stand, then The Fretter and Haviland, with Andrisa closely trailing. Before the far turn Bullman had taken The Fretter in front, the others retaining their positions until the stretch was reached; here Andrisa passed The Fretter, who was fast tiring, and things looked easy for the Jennings entry. Then O'Connor made his move with Advance Guard, who had been in fourth position, and coming fast, won by two lengths from Andrisa, who was the same distance before her stable companion, Vesuvian.

Tom Ryan had The Pride ready for his first start and he ran a nice race, winning rather handily from St. Cuthbert and Ralston, five and a half furlongs in 1:07.

Kingston, the leading sire of two year olds of the year, has been insured by the Messrs. Keene for an amount reported at from $60,000 to $75,000. A veterinary surgeon made an examination of the horse about three weeks ago and pronounced him in perfect health. This certificate was forwarded to the agent of a London company and the insurance was issued. Kingston is at Castleton Farm.

The first race of the year for two year olds was run at Oakland on New Year's day. The winner turning up in a slashing looking son of Golden Garter and Pink Cottage, from the stable of Groen B. Morris. It was a prettily contested race fought out in a fierce drive, the winner gaining the verdict by a nose from Dorino, with Evander two lengths away. The winner is said to have been highly tried last fall while at New York and great things were predicted for him.

San Francisco, Saturday, January 5, 1901.

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, as its name indicates, was not originally organized to furnish the sport of racing to the people, or to provide fat places for politicians. It was originated and has been supported by taxation for the main purpose of fostering the industries of stock breeding, agriculture, mining, horticulture, manufacture, etc., that will be of benefit to the State, assist in developing our resources and make us a busy, progressive and prosperous people. Racing is a side issue—the amusement portion of the program—so arranged as to encourage the breeding and development of the best thoroughbred and light harness horses and should be maintained. One would get the idea, however, when listening to place-hunting politicians and a certain class of horsemen that the large sum of money appropriated by the legislature for the annual exhibit of the State's resources, belongs to them and should be so distributed that they can get a larger share of it. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is of the opinion that Governor Gage fully realizes the objects and aims of the State Agricultural Society and in the filling of vacancies will appoint such men to the position of Directors as will carry the society along in the lines which it was intended to follow. A man need not be a horseman to be a competent Secretary and a professional politician would be entirely out of place in the office. Any man of known integrity and ability, who is conscious of the fact that the Board of Agriculture is one of the most important institutions in the State's development, who is energetic and has a fair amount of executive ability should be able to give the State good and efficient service in the office. The Directors in the past have been in the majority of instances gentlemen who have had the best interests of the State uppermost in their minds, and the California State Fair has been one of the most successful exhibitions held in the United States. We believe it should continue to be. Improvements can be made in some of the departments. More money can be properly given to the best breeds of cattle, sheep, hogs and heavy harness horses, and many other industries can be offered more encouragement than they now get. If the old fair ground could be sold and a new one purchased and fitted up with the money thus obtained it would be a great improvement. Many practical men are of the opinion that the pavilion should be within the agricultural park and there are numerous suggestions as to changes that would improve the fair. Whatever may be done it should be remembered, however, that the Society should remain true to its name and any attempts to make racing more prominent than it now is should be discouraged.

THE CENTRAL CIRCUIT is meeting with favor wherever the idea is discussed and within a few weeks a meeting of the Secretaries of the associations interested will be called to take action toward effecting an organization and arranging dates. Programs will be announced early so that by March 1st horsemen will know just what will be offered them at the principal meetings in California this year. A perusal of the list of money winners on the California circuit of 1900 published in our holiday edition will convince anyone that there is pretty fair money to be won in this State with a well arranged and well managed circuit. Ten horses campaigned in California exclusively won over $2000 each in 1900. Such high class trotters as Georgiana 2:09½, Major Greer 2:14, Gayton 2:08½, York Boy 2:09½, Contralto 2:10 and many others won less than $2000, though well campaigned all through the big circuit. California is not the poorest place in the world to campaign a harness horse and a good one, either trotter or pacer, can earn a pretty fair sum here. With the proposed Central Circuit in shape, harness racing should be extra good here in 1901.

MR. J. W. BAILEY, associate editor of the North Pacific Rural Spirit of Portland, Oregon, made this office a pleasant call last week. Mr. Bailey and Mr. Wisdom publish an excellent journal and we are glad to know that it is well supported by the horsemen and stockmen of the northwest. Mr. Bailey reports the outlook in all branches of live stock breeding as most promising all through Oregon and Washington and believes that harness racing will be held at nearly all the tracks in that country this year. The Oregon State Fair was a success last year and will be still further improved in future.

The Corrigan-Daly Sale.

Over 1500 people assembled around the salesring at Tanforan Park last Saturday. The occasion being the auction sale of yearlings and horses in training belonging to Mr. E. Corrigan. The two stallions, Montana and Primrose, belonging to the estate of Marcus Daly, were also among those to be disposed of. Wm. G. Layng conducted the sale in the same able manner for which he is noted and the bidding was quite spirited. The prices were fair considering all the sales held here this winter. Following is a list of those sold and the buyers:

249 Out of 250 Mules Lost.

Particulars of the awful voyage of the transport Leelanaw, which left this city with 250 mules for the army in the Philippines and arrived at Manila with only one animal left alive, were received by the steamer City of Peking this week.

After a voyage of forty days, the Leelanaw arrived at Manila on November 20th, with a tale of disaster sustained in a storm.

The storm was met in latitude 20 north, longitude 130 east, a few days out from Manila, the barometer falling to 27.94, remaining there while it lasted. The gale continued for twelve hours with a constant severe intensity. When the storm was at its height, and it was impossible to hear orders for the shrieking of the wind, the sea was perfectly smooth, and only began to rise in the morning watch, as the velocity of the wind decreased.

The immense waves gradually reached their highest fury, tossing the Leelanaw like a cockle shell. The poor brutes of mules, chained and wedged in their narrow stalls, had their necks and their legs broken, as the helpless ship alternately pitched and rolled.

The agonized brays of the mules, rising above the fury of the storm, are said to have been blood-curdling. Few of the teamsters or officers expected the vessel would survive the storm. Out of the 250 mules with which the Leelanaw started from San Francisco she brought only one poor, battered specimen alive to her port of destination. The other 249 were buried without obsequies in the Pacific ocean.

Advices from Manila state that the loss of so many animals will be seriously felt by the Government. The task of shipping horses and mules to the Philippines is an expensive, troublesome one. It is estimated that every mule shipped to these islands costs the Government $600. This disaster alone will lose the Government $150,000. The mules are needed to carry on the operations projected, and the loss of so many will be a serious handicap to the quartermaster's department.

Horses and Mules for South Africa.

A recent dispatch from New Orleans states that the British transport Montezuma will leave there with a cargo of 1400 mules. A big revival in the shipment of stock to South Africa for the use of the British army has occurred. Nine vessels have left for Cape Town during the month, carrying 3786 horses and 1700 mules, worth more than $1,000,000. Nearly all animals were purchased in Texas and Missouri.

The British officers bought originally the largest and finest mules in the market. They are buying today only the smallest animals which would be rejected on any plantation, animals not much larger than a burro, and they report that these little mules are far better adapted to the climate of Africa, stand the exposure better and have proportionately longer lives than larger ones. The transportation of the mules is so perfect that the loss in transport is barely 1 per cent, in spite of some overcrowding of the vessels, a long voyage of 7500 miles and very bad weather all the winter.

G. W. Archer, Allerton's Son.

When William Welch of Pleasanton brought the stallion G. W. Archer to this State he brought a horse that is not only a grand individual but one whose blood will be of great value to those who desire an outcross to a fashionable and worthy family of trotting horses.

Geo. W. Archer was bred by Mr. D. S. Hammond of New York, a gentleman who preferred to retain a horse in the stud without a record rather than to race him, and who would not have a tin cup record at any price. Had he been trained and raced there is not the slightest doubt but he could have trotted in 2:15 or better. Upon Mr. Hammond's death the horse was consigned to the Fasig-Tipton sale and Mr. Welch secured him. Geo. W. Archer is a perfect road horse of great beauty, took the first prize as a yearling at the great National Horse Show in New York and the second prize at the same place as a two year old.

He is by the great Allerton 2:09½, a champion stallion on the track and for the past four years the champion stallion of America in the stud. Allerton has eighty-two standard performers, eight of them in the 2:15 list, three of which are in the 2:10 list—Charley Hayt 2:07½, Gayton 2:08½ and Alves 2:09½. For four years, Allerton, now but fourteen years of age, has not only led all stallions as the sire of new standard performers, but has also been the leading sire of money winners.

Allerton is the leading member of the Jay Bird family which is rapidly coming to the front as one of the best of the sons of George Wilkes 2:22.

While there is little of the ultra fashionable blood on the dam's side in Geo. W. Archer's pedigree, there is good looks, great endurance and considerable speed in every strain of it. Tot, his dam, was one of New York's best roadsters and had a race record of 2:24. She was by Young Columbus 6429, a very handsome horse with a record of 2:30 that sired several in the list. Young Columbus was by Columbus 95, and out of a mare by the Morse Horse that will be remembered as the sire of the great California thirty mile horse General Taylor. The second dam of Geo. W. Archer is Young Maggie, a producer of speed, and she was by Vermont Volunteer, another very handsome and speedy stallion of the old days. There is size and good looks all through Geo. W. Archer's pedigree and he has speed enough himself to sire champions.

Death of Lord Beresford.

In the death of Lord William Beresford, who succumbed to peritonitis on Saturday morning, December 30th, the English turf has lost a thorough sportsman and an upright gentleman, one who had the best interests of racing thoroughly at heart, and who of late years has been thoroughly identified with American interests, having had Huggins, an American, as trainer, Tod Sloan and the two Reiffs as jockeys, at one time being in partnership with Pierre Lorillard, racing American bred horses, and having married the Dowager Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Mrs. Hammersley of New York, and previous to that Miss Lily Warren Price, daughter of Commodore Price, U. S. N.

Lord William Beresford was not unknown to Americans, and his fondness for the turf is evidenced by the expressions of American horsemen who have raced in England. This was also true of his fairness, and to him as much as to any man in England is due the foothold gained by American jockeys.

Weekly Shipments Abroad.

About a thousand horses are leaving New York every month for Europe. Last week the steamship Minnehaha took three hundred and forty-five horses booked for London. The horses belong to Victor Vervaeke, Joseph Hoar, E. C. Roberts, M. Lopez, M. Newgass & Sons, W. J. Groo and W. E. Drury. Mr. Drury is taking over some fifty cow ponies from the ranges of Montana. They were all specially selected by Mr. Drury, who is said to have the best and most exclusive connections in England for supplying polo ponies to the leading players, and the prices he is likely to obtain for some of these little broncos would make their original owners stare. However, only a man like Mr. Drury, who knows his business and has the connections, can make such ponies pay. In the hands of any one not an expert they are not worth their freight.

War is again being made on the hopped horse to good effect in many parts of the country, and the equine who will not pace without wearing the "straps" will be tabooed on many tracks the coming season. At the recent annual meeting of the New England Breeders' Association it was announced that hereafter hoppers will be barred by this association. A well known horseman in commenting on the action said: "That's good news. It will tend to make better horses for the colt breakers will use more time and patience to get their youngsters properly balanced, and once they get them to going without the straps they will have a better race horse and one that will always sell, before or after being outclassed, for more money than they could if the hoppers were necessary. A horse that needs the straps is of no use, even on the speedway, for he won't go fast there without them."

American Kennel Club Meeting.

The appeal of the Pacific Advisory Board for special legislative powers came up for action before the quarterly meeting of the American Kennel Club in New York, on December 18th. The matter was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. Knoeker, Rodman, Mortimer, Carnochan and Bloodgood, who will report back upon the same at the general meeting of the club in February.

The report of the Pacific Advisory Board contained the following communication by Mr. Merton C. Allen in answer to the previous refusal of the A. K. C. to grant the Board greater scope of authority:

"Mr. Chairman, and Fellow Members of the Committee: It occurs to me at this time that there is occasion for some decided action on the part of this committee. The present grant of power which we hold from the A. K. C. is utterly insufficient to justify our existence. We exert in dog affairs on the Pacific Coast no influence of substantial value to the interests we are supposed to subserv. We represent in theory a large and important territory holding claims upon the interest and attention of the A. K. C. In point of fact, however, we are so circumscribed in authority that in the eyes of dog owners and exhibitors we appear as mere figureheads. Our position is anomalous and unsatisfactory. Instead of promoting harmony between the A. K. C. and dog owners on the Pacific Coast the mere fact of the committee's existence under existing circumstances accentuates and aggravates points of differences between the A. K. C. and a great body of dog fanciers, differences, which, under a different arrangement, might be readily adjusted.

It does not please me, Mr. Chairman, that this committee should continue to act under such conditions. Unless this committee can be put in position to profitably serve dog interests on the Pacific Coast, it should go out of existence. After nearly two years of trial we are in position to thoroughly understand the situation. We know that never since the creation of this committee has it been able to serve the commendable purposes for which it was called into being. For this fact we are in no wise responsible. We lack power to accomplish for kennel interests on the Pacific Coast that which those interests demand and require. The sooner we recognize that fact the better for this committee and the A. K. C.

Mr. Chairman, in justice to kennel interests, we should present the existing condition fairly to the A. K. C. We should ask that our existence be justified by more positive authority, or, failing in that request, that the A. K. C. terminate our existence as a committee, and take to itself the imaginary authority we are supposed to hold. The sympathy of the members of this committee with the A. K. C. is well known. We are anxious to serve the interests of the organization in every manner possible, but at the same time we are not able to close our eyes to the physical facts by which we are confronted. Both in theory and in fact the committee stands for all that the A. K. C. is on the Pacific Coast. Candor and truth, however, call for an admission that because the committee is small in power and authority the A. K. C. appears small and is subjected to a petty opposition and rivalry for which under a more generous arrangement there would be no cause or excuse.

Let us not, Mr. Chairman, and fellow-members, deceive ourselves as to the truth. Let us recognize the fact that the Pacific Advisory Committee, as now organized, is of no substantial value to the A. K. C. or to dog interests on the Pacific Coast. To be of real value this committee should be to all intents and purposes the A. K. C. on the Pacific Coast. It should have power to do on this coast all things that the A. K. C. can do. This proposition carries with it the idea that the committee should receive and act upon applications for dates, receive for transmission to the A. K. C. (subject to confirmation) registrations and fees for listing approved rules for bench show clubs—in fact have original and complete jurisdiction in all matters connected with and arising out of kennel affairs on the Pacific Coast, subject of course to the rules of the A. K. C. and to such right to repeal as may be necessary at any time to correct error and mistake.

The geographical distance separating the Pacific Coast from New York renders it impossible that the A. K. C. exercise direct control, through its general officers, over kennel affairs in the far West. That has been proved in the past by various happenings which have contributed to the embarrassment of coast shows. The A. K. C. has made mistakes due entirely to a lack of knowledge and has thereby jeopardized its own interests, and paved with obstructions the pathway of supposed usefulness mapped out for this committee. It is justly claimed that the kennel interests of the Pacific Coast are of such character and importance as to justify a reasonable measure of home government.

Exhibitors demand that to the fullest extent possible their interests be governed here and their rights determined by men able to act promptly and with full knowledge of all the facts involved.

I have in mind, Mr. Chairman, two cases arising out of the last San Francisco show. In one case a win was cancelled because a registered dog was shown under a name other than a registered name; in the other case the secretary of the A. K. C. cancelled the win of a dog because, through a clerical error on the part of show management, the name of the dog was omitted from the listing blank forwarded to the A. K. C.

As to the merits of these cases there need be no argument. In the first case the secretary of the A. K. C. was technically correct. His decision came in such a way, however, as to leave room for had feeling. Had the case been decided here in the same way by a local committee fully understanding the equities, all feeling would have been avoided. The owner of the dog would have been made to fully realize the legal aspect of the situation and would have been able to accept the committee's judgment without question.

The moral of the second case is none the less apparent. If the Pacific Coast committee were allowed to accept listings for all shows within its jurisdiction such mistakes could not occur;—innocent owners would not be made to suffer for the mistakes of others. Under such an arrangement a rule could be made that all listings be submitted to the committee in advance of the show or shows to which they might apply. The committee would then have an opportunity to observe and correct mistakes. The show would be the gainer; there would be equal gain for the exhibitor, and by reason of the principle of homo government involved there would follow an immeasurable benefit and gain to the A. K. C.

In citing the above-mentioned cases, Mr. Chairman, my only idea has been to emphasize the proposition that this committee to serve any useful purpose must enjoy added powers. I fully believe that were this committee clothed with full power from the A. K. C. to regulate A. K. C. shows on this Coast that all local opposition to the A. K. C. would cease, that conflicting interests could be reconciled, and this committee could become an agency of far-reaching benefit to all the interests it is intended to represent. In a word, Mr. Chairman, this committee should be created the absolute agent of the A. K. C. for the purpose of transacting the business of the national organization, on this Coast, and I would go to the extent of saying that the A. K. C. should take no action in a purely Pacific Coast matter until it has been first referred to and acted upon by this committee. With such a power of agency this committee would be able to accomplish much for kennel interests in this jurisdiction. Lacking this power this committee is of absolutely no value and may as well go out of business.

My views as here expressed I have reduced to writing in order that they may be a record on the minutes of this meeting. I submit them to the committee for such action as may be deemed proper. Personally I am much dissatisfied with the status of this committee. Should the other members share in my views I favor such action as will promptly advise the A. K. C. of our position. In this spirit I leave the matter in your hands."

The Pacific Coast Advisory Committee endorsed the foregoing document and the members decided to tender their resignations should the A. K. C. still find it expedient to withhold additional powers from the Coast board.

Doings in Dogdom.

We were in receipt last week, too late for publication, of a communication from Mr. J. B. Stoddard (recent resident manager of the Verona Kennels and a widely known trainer) that he has located at Pala, San Diego county where he will work and train a few dogs. Mr. Stoddard will train and break dogs for the field and field trials and can be relied upon as a conscientious and capable handler.

The California Coyote Club has developed a practical line of sport that is replete with recreation and adventure as well as of benefit to the farmers living in the country selected by the club members in which they indulge their penchant for the chase. The killing of coyotes, wild cats, etc., during close season for deer is a valuable idea in game protection that could well be emulated by sportsmen—the field being a wide one in this state and the supply of material for the hunt plentiful. The club will soon have commodious kennels erected near Pinole for their pack of hounds—fox hounds being used in the club hunts. The club pack consists now of six high-class trained dogs, this number will soon be increased by a number of crack Eastern dogs. The club hunts commence in the morning after the coyotes have gone to their lairs; an earlier start is generally fruitless as the quarry is wary and will keep out of harm's way when the hunters are on the ridges and the dogs ranging the canyons. On Christmas day Dr. C. Quinan, K. Quinan and Master of Hounds Frietas hunted the hills from Crockett to Refugio and in by way of Pinole, a coyote fell to each rifle in the party after the dogs had started the animals; one coyote badly wounded escaped.

On New Year's day the sport was unhappily marred by a serious mishap to Captain Selfridge who slipped on the frozen hillside and unfortunately suffered a compound fracture of his left ankle. Dr. and Mr. K. Quinan and J. B. Kenniff had each bagged a coyote when the accident occurred. The party were in a very rough country and had their strength and ingenuity greatly taxed in bringing in their wounded comrade in a fairly comfortable manner.

A Louisiana Shrimping Camp.

Hidden away in the labyrinthine bayous of lower Jefferson Parish and scattered about the margins of Grand Lake, Little Lake and the musically named Cheneire Caminada, is a strange colony, the bare existence of which is practically unknown. It numbers, all told, at least 2000 people, three-fourths of whom are Chinese and the rest Manilamen and unclassifiable mongrels. They live in brushwood camps near the edge of the water, their habits are incredibly simple and semi-savage, and their business is the catching and drying of shrimps.

The singular settlement recently came to surface in some litigation on the calendar of the local courts over the ownership of a piece of adjacent property, but the industry had been quietly pursued from time out of mind in almost unbroken isolation. Its product is never seen in the New Orleans market, but is shipped direct to San Francisco and New York, and consumed entirely by the Chinese. At certain seasons the shrimp are caught by the millions in rude handnets, and spread in layers in platforms built over the surface of the water. The hot sun soon shrivels them up and they become desiccated. When thoroughly dry they are brown and brittle and have a sweet, nutty flavor that is far from disagreeable. In this condition they are packed loosely in barrels holding about 250 pounds each and sent to native merchants in Mott and Doyers streets, in New York, and to our own Chinatown. At both places they are in lively demand, and are eaten either as condiments, without further preparation, or with a curry of rice. Even some American barbarians claim to find them very good.

The scene in the shrimping camp is so strangely Oriental that it is hard for a visitor to realize that he is in the neighborhood of a big American city. As a matter of fact, the southern industry is an imported one and exactly the same process of fishing and drying as is pursued on a vast scale in China, and is practically the same as is in vogue around our own bay shores. Almost all the colonists come from families of shrimpers, and when they have sufficient money return to the flowery kingdom and send back relatives to take their places. There are thousands of common Chinese fans in the stores of New Orleans bearing pictures of shrimp fishers and dryers, and no doubt many a purchaser has been puzzled over the queer daubs and wondered what it all meant. The same thing precisely could be witnessed by making a trip to the outlying bayous of Grand Lake.

The Angler's Puzzle. Some Piscatorial Problems.

The sportsman who goes afield can predict with a reasonable degree of certainty the actions of the game animals or game birds which he is pursuing, writes E. Hough in the Chicago Tribune. The deer has certain known habits, and the man who understands these habits makes the deer an easy prey. The wild duck has habits of his own, which the sportsman comes to understand, and of which he avails himself readily. The great goose of the prairies has regular and clock-like habits which render him an open and easy read hook to the man who pursues him with a gun. It is a maxim among sportsmen that every wild animal has its blind side. To civilized man one of the most interesting studies in the world is that of hunting out the blind side of wild creatures of the forest and field. The trapper and the hunter are students and philosophers, and we take pleasure in following their philosophy when we go into the wild country with them.

So much we may consider as fairly accurate and true. But when we come to studying the lower orders of the creatures which we pursue in the way of sport we are bid to pause and to hark back in our own philosophy. Neither the scientist nor the business man, indeed not even the hunter or the trapper or the fisher may be considered specialists and experts in their calling, can tell you much about what is going on in the mind of the fish, which inhabits an element other than our own. We are of the earth and of the air. The fish is of the water. Our psychology does not encompass that of the fish. We understand things that are of the earth and of the air, but we cannot solve the equation of that other mysterious element so essential to humanity and to sport. We look at the fish as he floats about perfectly adapted to his own native element; we wonder at him, we want him, but we never understand him. We do not know what he is going to do next. We do not know what art to employ in order to accomplish his undergoing with a fair degree of certainty. Here then is a problem of sport. There is a possibility, but not a certainty. Upon these conditions arises the charm of the fascinating sport of angling, one of the most enduring sports in all the history of the word. It is enduring because it is fascinating and fascinating because it is mysterious.

In a general way the habits even of a given variety of fish may be determined by the general observer. From such observations we are apt to generalize. Thus we classify all fish of a given species as being exactly like the other under the same conditions. We do not accord to the fish family the status of any individuality. We say that one bass is just the same as another and will act exactly like the other under the same conditions. We expect one trout to be identical with all other trout. In this we probably err to a greater or less extent. A student of fishes will perhaps really observe among them a greater tendency to solitary habit and to individual initiative than may be observed among any sort of game creatures. Here again we have mystery, hence fascination. We do not, however, have any definite conclusions or any ultimate and established facts. We are not able to tell why a big trout will lie under the same stump in a certain stream year after year, resisting all the wiles of the angler; nor are we able to tell why at a given hour, and without any apparent change in the conditions of the atmosphere or water, all the fish in a certain part of the stream will go on the feed and presently stop as suddenly as they began. If we could tell why they begin to rise with this concerted action we could perhaps also tell why in another part of the stream not far removed the fish were lying silent and sullen as before. These are all studies, and they make up a part of the greatest psychological game on earth, that embodied in the art of angling.

Continually there come up singular instances of the perverseness and inscrutability of the fishes which we prize most. Thus not long ago a Chicago angler was up near Kilbourn, Wis., and while there he saw one afternoon an angler who had just come back from a little creek not far out in the country with a magnificent lot of trout, seventy-five fish in all, which he had taken in a short time that day. On question the successful fisherman said he had fished on that creek for some time without success. The fish would not rise to anything he could find in his fly book. Disgusted at this he had recourse to the universal expedient of the worm. After digging for some time in the sandy soil of that locality he manages to unearth two angleworms, which he prized highly, since he supposed they would fill his basket for him. One of these worms he unluckily lost, and much to his surprise and disgust he found that the remaining worm had no such value as he supposed. The trout did not care for it. One might suppose that this was simply instinct, since it does not seem natural that trout should care for a feed not indigenous to their environment. To disprove this, upon the other hand, it is well known that trout do take to the angleworm in streams of the pine woods, where such a thing as a fish worm never grew. This is supposed to be heredity or inherited tendency. It is just as apt to be freakishness or curiosity, but we will call it heredity for the sake of dignity. Neither for heredity or other reasons would these trout take the much prized angleworm which this fisherman had discovered.

Yet the latter had the true angling genius, and he knew there was some way to circumvent these creatures if he only could discover that way. He went back in the woods and searched in the grassy covers to see what other bait he could find. Here he got some black grasshoppers, and as he knew that the grasshopper is one of the least resistance lures possible to be found for a good trout he felt sure that he had solved his problem. Not so. The trout would have none of his black grasshoppers. He could see the fish in schools on the bottom of the creek, but he could not get them to rise. This was a discouragement, but not sufficient to stop the persistent angler in this case. He went back into the woods, and this time he secured some green grasshoppers, which he tried in turn. Imagine his joy, his exultation, his mental self-satisfaction! He had solved the problem. It was green grasshoppers which these fish wanted! He could not get green grasshoppers enough to satisfy the demand, and to make short the story he filled his basket more than twice over with grand trout. Now, these trout were evidently hungry and they wanted to feed. Yet they would not eat angleworms, the most universal of all baits, and they would not eat a black grasshopper. It was a green grasshopper which was wanted, and nothing else. Could we ask a better instance in proof of the fact that not all our angling science can claim the distinction of being either inductive or deductive, but must be branded with the less noble name of purely empirical?

Not long ago a Chicago angler was fishing in a Wisconsin lake, where thousands of other anglers fish every year. It is not now called a prolific water, though once in awhile one hears of a good fish being taken there. This angler was fishing in a little snaggy bay, where quarters were too cramped to allow him much latitude in playing his fish. He was casting near the boat, more from force of habit than from expectation, when all at once he had a strike from a big pike, or pickerel, as it is known in this region. The fish would have apparently have weighed twenty or twenty-five pounds. It was hooked and played for a moment, but soon broke away. The whole operation took place in a narrow little bit of water, and the fish took the spoon almost against the side of the boat, evidently having followed it up and seized it as it was about to leave the water. There was no question in the world that it saw the boat and its occupants, and one would think that it must have known the purpose of those occupants. Yet in a few minutes after it had broken away, it rose again at another spoon, with the first spoon still hanging from the corner of its mouth. Then the angler, having failed to fasten the fish again, sent his boatman more than three miles for another and better spoon. An hour and a half later this same fish, in the same cove, rose again, the spoon still dangling at its mouth. It was not fastened, and finally left the cove and never was taken. It had furnished for the Chicago angler a more interesting problem in fish psychology than if it had been brought into the boat on the first cast. No one can tell what was the motive animating this big pickerel. Possibly it was anger, possibly curiosity, possibly sheer stupidity. We may take our choice, but surely we will go out again to study some of these unsolved fish problems of the fish world.

It is commonly supposed that large fish have a restricted habitat and that they do not move far from their chosen feeding ground or lair, to which they return when not engaged in active operations elsewhere. There seems a certain amount of reason to suppose that a large muskellunge or pike has a certain spot to which he returns as soon as he has gorged his prey. A knowledge of this habit is useful to the angler who is casting for this big fish, as he will best serve his purpose by waiting some moments after the bait is taken before he strikes the fish. The "second run" is the time when the fish has gorged the bait and has started off for home, and that is the time the angler should strike, both for pike and for bass. This is one of the rules which are almost axioms among skillful fishers, yet it is a rule which certainly has exceptions, as the following instance would seem to prove: A couple of Chicago anglers were fishing at a little Wisconsin lake, casting frog for bass. It was a lake not much fished, though it held some good bass. At a certain spot one of the anglers had a heavy strike, but lost the fish, which parted the line within a short distance of the snell. The usual condolences followed, and both men agreed that the fish must have been a large one. It was determined to fish that spot carefully the next day, in the hope that the fish might be struck again. They did fish it carefully, but they never got a rise at that point again. Upon the contrary, on the afternoon of the second day they got a heavy strike on the opposite side of the lake, more than three-quarters of a mile away. This fish was landed and proved to be a four-pound black bass. It had a hook fastened in its throat, and hook, snell and line were identified as those lost on the first strike of the day before. Here was certainly an instance of a fish which did not observe the supposed rule of a limited inhabitant. He was wandering all about the lake, a bachelor, and strictly unattached.

The mystery of fly-fishing is, as has previously been remarked in these columns, as much a mystery to-day as it was centuries ago. The proof of this exists in the great variety of patterns of artificial flies which man has devised for the capture of his finny prey. There are literally hundreds and hundreds of different artificial flies. The most of these kinds cannot be called imitations of any living insect. Yet you may try the imitative flies and non-imitative flies, one with the other, over a score of years and a hundred different streams, and at the end of your observations you will not be able to tell which has averaged the most killing, the imitative or the non-imitative artificial fly. There are, of course, some general rules bearing on this subject, but these rules are much similar to those above noted, and are remarkable chiefly for their unreliability. Thus the writer within the week fished in a Wisconsin reserved stream which was certainly a remarkable water in many ways. Deep and unspeakably clear, it seemed under the bright sun hardly a different element at all, but simply a continuation of the air. In this case, certainly, one would, under all angling rules, use a small and dark fly, and cast a long line. It was found necessary to employ the long line and a light cast, but all small flies and all dark flies were utterly disregarded by the trout which inhabited that water! Contrary to all precedents and expectations we found that gaudy absurdity, the "silver doctor," the most killing fly which we could employ. This fly has a bright silver body, with wings mixed with mottled gray, yellow, red and blue, with hackles either of gray or blue. There are a dozen different patterns of "silver doctor," and they are all gaudy and impossible looking flies. We all experimented with different flies, and with this same fly on different positions on the cast, but the trout always singled it out. They wanted that absurd, fantastic creation, and they did not want anything else. They were just as particular as the Kilbourn trout were about having their green grasshoppers. They knew what they wanted, but why? This is the question. It is apt to remain a question as long as men go a-fishing.

There are still other mysteries regarding that weird fish, the brook trout, though some of these mysteries have been more or less solved by close observers, who have discovered things not generally known to the angling public. In a general way it is considered usually certain that fish will take on the color of its environments. Thus in a deep, dark pool we expect to find a trout which is dark in color, and probably with bright red spots. Over shallow, sandy bottom we nearly always find pale-colored fish, light in body tint and with their red spots less brilliantly marked. Nearly every one knows about this, just as every one knows that the plumage of the grouse, or the snipe or the quail is exactly of that coloration which will afford that bird the best protection and concealment in the sort of cover which it inhabits. You have walked within a few feet of a dead jacksnipe on the marsh and you have not been able to see it, or you have wondered how the big prairie chicken could crouch in the stubble without you seeing it until you almost stepped upon it. This is protective coloration. It is, no doubt, true that the protective coloration of the brook trout is the same thing, and intended to render the animal less easily observable by its natural enemies. But now witness the distinct difference between creatures of the earth and air and the creatures of the water, and witness, also, the limits of our knowledge regarding these lower creatures. The grouse or the quail or the snipe cannot change the color of its feathers all at once. The ptarmigan is brown all summer and white in the winter, for protective reasons, but it takes a whole season for it to effect this change. The lizard, the chameleon, effects this change of color immediately, and thereby it becomes one of the most interesting objects known in natural history. How many there are who know that the brook trout in its ability to change its spots is more like the chameleon than the ptarmigan? Yet this is really the case.

The Proposed Game Bill and Other Legislation.

At the late convention held in this city, of sportsmen and others interested in the protection and preservation of fish and game and also in the enactment of necessary and proposed legislation, the following changes in the present law and additions thereto were adopted and are here given in full. Much herein is mutually for the best interests of the people at large, and the sportsman individually. Some matter is questionable both in its application or its substantial worth. Great antagonism is felt toward these measures as a whole by sportsmen in general for the reason that the sponsors of these proposed changes and amendments—who can be counted on the fingers of one hand—are not in rapport with sportsmen or the people at large. We do not by this mean to cast any reflections on the committee who labored so hard and conscientiously in drafting the following proposed legislation nor upon the personnel of the recent convention. We allude to the few interested individuals who were primarily responsible for the whole movement, the ultimate purposes and objects of which is the enactment of the legislation suggested in the concluding paragraph of the resolution reported by the committee.

Section Six Hundred and Twenty-six of an Act entitled "An Act to establish a Penal Code," approved February 14, 1872, is amended to read as follows:

Section 626. 1. All wild animals and birds and all fishes found within the jurisdiction of the State of California are the property of the people in their collective sovereign capacity, and all private ownership and property rights acquired through reducing them to possession are subject to such limitations as may be imposed by the enactments of the legislature.

2. Every person who in the State of California between the first day of February, and the first day of November of any year shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, whether taken or killed in the State of California or shipped into the State from any other State, Territory, or foreign country, any quail, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

3. Every person who in the State of California between the first day of March and the first day of October of any year shall hunt, pursue, take, kill or destroy, or have in his possession, whether taken or killed in the State of California or shipped into this State from any other state, territory, or foreign country, any black brant, (also known as sea brant), or any kind of wild ducks, or any rail, or any English or Wilson snipe, or any curlew, ibis, or plover, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that the board of supervisors of any county in the State may designate by ordinance any three consecutive calendar months in which said birds may be lawfully taken, killed or had in possession; and provided further, that said three months shall be months included between the first day of October and the first day of March of the following year, and provided further, that until the board of supervisors of any county in the State shall by ordinance make such designation, every person who shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession any black brant (also known as sea brant), or any wild duck, or any rail, or any English or Wilson snipe, or any curlew, ibis, or plover, between the first day of February and the first day of November of the same year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

4. Every person who in the State of California, between the first day of January and the first day of June of the same year, shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, any dove, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that the board of supervisors of any county in the State may designate by ordinance any five consecutive calendar months in which said birds may be lawfully taken, killed, or had in possession; and provided further, that said five months shall be five months included between the first day of June and the first day of January; and provided further, that until the board of supervisors of any county in the State shall by ordinance make such designation, every person who shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession any dove or wild pigeon between the first day of January and the first day of August of the same year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

5. Every person who in the State of California, between the first day of November and the first day of September of the following year, shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, whether taken or killed in the State of California or shipped into the State from any other State, Territory, or foreign country, any partridge, grouse, or sage hen, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

6. Every person who in the State of California shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, any of the birds mentioned in this section, or any other wild birds, except English sparrows, any variety of geese except black brant, or any swan, sandhill crane, jay, meadow lark, eagle, hawk, crow, raven, house finch, or linnet, or blackbird, or who shall destroy the nests or eggs of any of the birds mentioned in this section, except those last above excepted, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

7. Every person who in the State of California shall at any time hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, any English or Mongolian pheasant, or any Bob White or Eastern or Chinese quail, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

8. Every person who in the State of California shall during any one calendar day take, kill, or destroy more than twenty-five quail, wild ducks, snipe, curlew, or ibis, or more than forty doves, or more than twenty rail, or more than eight black or sea brant, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The possession of more than twenty-five quail, twenty-five wild ducks, twenty-five snipe, twenty-five curlew, or twenty-five ibis, or more than forty doves, or more than twenty rail, or more than eight black or sea brant, by one person, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that such person did take, kill, or destroy the same unlawfully; provided, further, that if two or more persons shall have in their possession such a number of any of said game birds hereinabove mentioned that the ratio between the number of birds so possessed, and the number of persons so having such possession, would be greater than the number which any one person is by this section permitted to take, kill, or destroy, then such possession of said game birds shall be prima facie evidence that the persons and each and all of them so having such possession have taken, killed, or destroyed the same unlawfully.

9. Every person who in the State of California shall at any time hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession any female deer or spotted fawn, or any antelope, elk or mountain sheep, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

10. Every person who in the State of California, between the first day of December and the first day of July of the year following, shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, whether taken or killed in the State of California, or shipped into the State from any other State, Territory, or foreign country, any male deer or any deer meat, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that the board of supervisors of any county in the State may designate any two consecutive calendar months in which said deer or deer meat may be lawfully taken or had in possession; provided, further, that said two months shall be months included between the first day of July and the first day of December of the same year; provided, further, that until the board of supervisors of any county in the State shall, by ordinance, make such designation, every person who shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, any deer or deer meat between the fifteenth day of September and the fifteenth day of July of the following year shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

11. Every person who in the State of California shall hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession between the first day of February and the first day of August of any year, any gray squirrel, or any species of tree squirrel, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

12. Every person who in the State of California shall at any time buy, sell, offer or expose for sale, transport or carry, or have in his possession, the skin, pelt or hide of any female deer or any spotted fawn, or any deer hide or pelt, from which the evidences of sex have been removed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that nothing in this section shall be held to apply to the hide of any of the said animals when taken or killed in Alaska, or any foreign country.

13. Every person who in the State of California shall take, kill, or destroy, or have in his possession, whether taken or killed in the State of California, or shipped into the State from any other State, Territory, or foreign country, more than three deer during any one open season, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

14. Every person who in the State of California, owning, controlling or having in his possession, any deerhounds, foxhounds, greyhounds, or any other kind of dog, shall suffer, permit, or allow any of the said dogs to run, track, or trail any deer during the time when it is unlawful to kill the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

15. Every cold storage company, person keeping a cold storage warehouse, tavern or hotel keeper, or eating-house keeper, marketman, or other person who shall buy, sell, or offer or expose for sale, or give away, or have in his possession, any quail, pheasant, grouse, sage hen, dove, wild pigeon, black brant, or any kind of wild duck, rail, curlew, ibis, snipe or plover, during the time when it is unlawful to take or kill the same, whether they are taken or killed in the State of California or shipped into the State from any other State, Territory, or foreign country, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

16. Every person who in the State of California shall at any time use any horse, mule, ass, bull, cow, or steer, or any device representing any of the above animals for the purpose of a blind, or conceal himself behind any of said animals or devices in hunting any of the birds mentioned in this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

17. Every person who in the State of California shall at any time between one-half hour after sundown and one-half hour before sunrise of the following day, hunt, pursue, take, kill, or destroy, any of the birds mentioned in this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

18. Nothing in this section shall be held to prohibit the possession for scientific purposes or the taking alive for the purpose of propagation, any of the animals or birds mentioned in this section; provided, permission to take and possess said birds or animals for said purposes shall have been first obtained in writing from the State Fish and Game Commissioners; and said permission shall accompany the shipment of said animals or birds and shall exempt them from seizure in passing through any part of the State.

19. Every person found guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail of the county in which the conviction shall be had not less than twenty days nor more than one hundred and fifty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

20. One-half of all fines collected for the violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall be paid by the court in which the conviction shall be had, to the informant who caused the action or proceeding from which such fine shall be collected; and one-half of said fine shall be paid into the State Treasury; provided, that should the informant be a game warden drawing a salary of more than fifty dollars per month, the whole of said fine shall be paid into the State Treasury.

21. All moneys paid into the State Treasury from fines collected for the violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall be set aside and known as the Game Preservation Fund, and shall be applicable to the payment of salaries of game wardens and other expenses connected with the preservation of the game of the State, and shall be disbursed only on the warrant of the Fish and Game Commission.

All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SECTION 627. Every person who in the State of California shall use a shotgun of larger caliber than that commonly known and designated as a number ten gauge, for the purpose of killing or destroying any of the animals or birds protected in whole or in part by the provisions of section six hundred and twenty-six of the penal code of this State, or any gun composed of more than two barrels, or any combination of guns or gun barrels, or any other device whereby more than two loads can be discharged at a time, or loads can be discharged from more than two barrels without reloading, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Proof of the possession of any such gun in the field, marsh, bay, lake or stream, shall be prima facie evidence of its illegal use.

2. Every person who in the State of California, upon any enclosed or cultivated ground which is private property and where signs are displayed at distances of not less than three to the mile along all exterior boundaries thereof, forbidding such shooting, shall take, kill or destroy any quail, Bob White, pheasant, partridge, grouse, dove, wild duck, snipe, curlew, ibis, or plover, or any deer, without permission first obtained from the owner or person in possession of such ground, or shall maliciously tear down, mutilate or destroy any sign, signboard, or other notice forbidding shooting on private property, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

3. Every railroad company, express company, transportation company, or other common carrier, their officers, agents and servants and every other person who shall transport, carry, or take out of this State, or who shall receive for the purpose of transporting from the State, any deer, deer skin, huck, doe, or fawn, or any quail, partridge, pheasant, grouse, prairie chicken, dove, wild pigeon, or any wild duck, rail, snipe, curlew, ibis, or plover, except for the purposes of propagation, or who shall transport, carry, or take from the State, or receive for the purpose of transportation from the State, any such animal or bird, or any part of the carcass thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, that the right to transportation for the purposes of propagation, or for scientific purposes, shall first be obtained by permit in writing from the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners. Any person found guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be fined in the sum of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail in the county in which the conviction shall be had not less than twenty-five days nor more than one hundred and fifty days or be punished by both such fine and imprisonment.

4. Every railroad company, steamship company, express company, transportation company, transfer company, and every other person who shall at any time ship or receive for shipment or transportation from any one person during any one day more than twenty-five quail, wild duck, snipe, curlew or ibis, or more than forty doves, or more than twenty rail, or more than eight black or sea brant, or who shall transport any of said birds, or any deer in any quantity, unless such birds or deer are at all times in open view and labeled with the name and residence of the person by whom they are shipped, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

SECTION 631. Every person who shall at any time take, kill or destroy, by the use of any net, pound, cage, trap or set line, any quail, partridge, grouse, wild duck, or black brant, or any snipe, curlew, ibis, or plover, or who shall transport, buy, sell, or give away, offer or expose for sale, or have in his possession any of the said birds that have been taken, killed or captured by the use of any net, pound, cage, trap or set line, whether taken in the State of California or shipped into the State from any other State, territory or foreign country, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; provided that the same may be taken for purposes of propagation or for scientific purposes, written permission having been first obtained from the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners. Proof of the possession of any of the said birds which shall not show evidence of having been taken by means other than a net, pound, cage, trap or set line, shall be prima facie evidence in any prosecution for the violation of the provisions of this section that the person in whose possession such quail, partridge, grouse, sage hen, black brant, wild duck, snipe, curlew, ibis, or plover is found, took killed or destroyed the same by means of net, pound, cage, trap or set line.

SECTION 632. Every person who in the State of California buys, sells, offers or exposes for sale, any trout of any kind less than one pound in weight, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

2. Any person who in the State of California takes, catches, kills, buys, sells, or exposes for sale, or has in his possession, any salmon trout, brook or lake trout, or any variety of trout, except steelhead trout (Salmo Gairdneri) between the first day of November and the first day of April of the following year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

3. Every person who takes, catches, or has in his possession, buys, sells, offers or exposes for sale, any steelhead trout between the first day of February and the first day of April of each year, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

4. Every person who in the State of California, between the first day of November and the first day of April of the following year, shall take, catch, kill, or destroy any steelhead trout in any of the waters of the State above tide-water, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

5. Every person who at any time takes or catches any trout, except with hook and line, is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that steelhead trout may be taken in tide-water between the first day of April and the first day of February of the following year with lawful nets; and a lawful net shall be a net that, when placed in the water, is unsecured and free to float with the current or tide, and the meshes of which are, when drawn closely together, and measured inside the knots, not less than seven and one-half inches in length.

6. Every person found guilty of any violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall be fined in a sum not less than twenty-five dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail of the county in which the conviction shall be had not less than twenty days, or be punished by both such fine and imprisonment. All fines imposed and collected for any violation of any of the provisions of this section, shall be paid into the Fish Commission Fund. Nothing shall prohibit the United States Fish Commission and the Fish Commission of this State from taking at all such times such fish as they deem necessary for the purposes of artificial hatching.

An Act to amend an act entitled "An Act to create the office of Fish and Game Warden and to describe the powers, duties, and salary of such officer," approved March twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-five.

SECTION 1. The Board of Supervisors of each and every county in the State shall, at its first meeting held after the first day of May, nineteen hundred and one, and as often thereafter as there is a vacancy in said office, appoint a suitable person to serve as Fish and Game Warden of the county, which office is hereby created.

Sec. 2. Said Fish and Game Warden shall enforce the State laws and all county and municipal ordinances relating to the protection of fish and game, and he shall be vested with all the powers of a peace officer and to make arrests for the violation of such laws and ordinances.

Sec. 3. The salary of said Fish and Game Warden is hereby fixed in accordance with the classification of counties as follows: For counties of the first, second and third classes, one hundred dollars per month; for counties of the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh classes, the sum of seventy-five dollars per month; for counties of the eighth, ninth and tenth classes, the sum of sixty dollars per month; and for all other classes, the sum of fifty dollars per month. In addition thereto, said warden shall be allowed a sum not to exceed twenty-five dollars per month for expenses incurred by him in the performance of his duties. Said salary and expenses incurred must be paid monthly from the county treasury. Said Fish and Game Warden shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, execute a bond with sureties in such sum as may be required by the board of supervisors for the faithful and proper discharge of his duties as such Fish and Game Warden. Said Warden shall report quarterly to the board of supervisors of his county, giving a detailed statement of all arrests made, convictions had, fines collected, and generally, in regard to the management of his office.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

An Act creating all constables, sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, city marshals, and police officers ex-officio game and fish wardens.

SECTION 1. Every sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, city marshal, police officer, and each of them, by virtue of their election and appointment, are hereby created and constituted ex-officio game wardens for their respective jurisdictions, and they and each of them shall have authority and power without warrant to search and examine any boat, conveyance, vehicle, fish basket, fish-box, game bag, game coat, or any receptacle for game or fish, when they have reason to believe that any of the laws for the protection of game and fish have been violated, and the said officers shall at any time seize and take possession of any and all birds, animals, or fish which have been caught, taken, or killed contrary to any of the laws of this State. Each of the said officers shall, for the purposes of this act, have concurrent jurisdiction throughout this paper county.

Any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, city marshal, police officer, or game warden, willfully neglecting or refusing to prosecute any offense under said law, of which he shall have personal knowledge or of which he shall have notice in writing by any citizen, giving the name of the offender together with the names of the witness or witnesses, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars or undergo imprisonment in the county jail for two months, or shall be punished by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 2. All moneys recovered and all fines collected under this act, shall be paid to the treasurer of the county in which the suit, action, or proceeding shall have been commenced, or in which the offense shall have been committed, and the prosecuting attorney or treasurer of such county, upon the payment of any fine or judgment, may satisfy the same of record for the State by the payment of one-half such money, exclusive of costs, to the informer, whether such informer be the sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, city marshal, police officer, game warden, or other person, who caused to be brought the action or proceeding in which such fine or penalty shall be recovered. And the other half of such fine shall be retained by the county treasurer, to be applied to the State fund for the protection of fish and game.

Your Committee begs further to report the following resolution: WHEREAS, The Board of Fish Commissioners have expressed the opinion that a division of the labors connected with the preservation of the game and fish would result to the benefit of the State; and

WHEREAS, We believe the wild game of the State of California to be one of its most valuable resources, and that no effort on the part of the State should be spared to secure its fullest preservation; therefore, be it

Resolved: That we earnestly recommend to the Legislature of the State of California that the office of State Game Warden be created, and that an appropriation sufficient to properly equip the said office be made and placed at its disposal, under such necessary restrictions as will secure a faithful and honest administration, and give to the game of the State a protection commensurate with its importance and value as a food supply.

Cartridge and Shell.

The Christmas edition of Shooting and Fishing is a handsomely gotten up number full of good things for those who enjoy recreation with gun, dog and rod.

Our English contemporary, the Shooting Times and British Sportsman, has issued a splendidly illustrated holiday number replete with good stories and interesting information for sportsmen.

Wednesday and Thursday were ideal days for the duck hunter around the bay shores. Market shooters made large shipments this week from Dixon, Woodland, Colusa, Newmans, Firebaughs and points south.

The Du Pont calendar for 1901 is a beauty, aside from its intrinsic merit as a record of days it is quite a work of art. The principal subject of illustration is a scene familiar to sportsmen. Three hunters discussing congenial topics in one end of a baggage car where their dogs are located will bring many pleasant thoughts to the sportsman every time he looks upon the picture. A hunting scene in the winter woods with a Pointer and Setter in the foreground is another realistic picture. Two vignettes illustrating naval and magazine guns at work are grim reminders of the adaptability of the Du Pont powders for other purposes than those of recreation.

Tod Sloan, Phil Daly, Jr., Walter Patton, Jós. J. Sweeney, H. L. Van Wyck, Andrew Jackson and Bob Smith together disposed of about thirty dozen strong flying pigeons at the Ingleside traps on Sunday last. Six and ten bird races, miss and out events and three pair doubles developed some excellent trap work between the contestants. Sloan and Daly captured the largest ends of the purses.

"A Chip of the Old Block" is the caption to a striking picture decorating the Union Metallic Cartridge Company's calendar. A bright faced, handsome youngster is accoutred in the hunting habiliments of his father and with the latter's hammerless shotgun which he holds in front of him he has evidently brought down the brace of beautifully plumaged grouse hanging over his left shoulder. Possibly the youth may have been indulging in "forbidden fruit," but if his daddy is the sportsman he should be he will overlook the lapse and straightway buy his promising son a new 16 gauge.

SHOOTING WITH SMALL ARMS.

Longer Ranges Now in Vogue.

"It is remarkable what progress has been made in revolver shooting during the past twenty years," said Capt. James S. Conlin, of New York, who for many years was regarded as the best revolver shot in the world.

The Captain, who is now close to seventy years, was in a reminiscent mood as he sat in his gallery a few days ago and told with much enthusiasm how much progress has really been made in revolver shooting since he was the champion of the army, nearly forty years ago.

"Few persons have any idea how many people shoot with small arms. It has been taken up in all the clubs, and now I understand that the National Guard will encourage the art of revolver shooting. There are hundreds of persons who never go near a shooting gallery or an armory and are still as proficient as some of the cracks that we are always reading about in the papers. These people indulge in revolver shooting as a sport or pastime, as one may call it. They have a range at home, and whenever they feel inclined to pepper a few targets they get out their gun and retire to the range.

"Now, as regards the actual progress made in the art. Away back in my time—and that's a good many years ago—we used to shoot at twelve yards and thought that this was a long range. Now they are shooting at twenty-five and thirty-five yards; and in many cases matches have been shot at fifty yards. The time is approaching when we will be shooting at seventy-five and one hundred yards. Years ago it seemed impossible to hit a target at forty yards. The arms and ammunition used at present make it possible to shoot one hundred yards, and with accuracy, too.

"Twenty-five years ago the powder, ball and cap pistol was mostly used. It was a good arm, but if a man was able to hit the head of a flour barrel at forty yards he was considered a crack shot.

"It is much more difficult to shoot with a revolver than with any other arm, and that is probably why so few people care to take up revolver shooting. Some people want to learn how to shoot a revolver in a very short time, and if they fail they give it up as a hopeless task. They will say: 'Oh, I was never born for a pistol shot.'

"This is all wrong. Any one can learn how to shoot accurately with a revolver. Take Major Marks, of the army, twenty-five years ago. Why, the old major had paralysis, but could shoot as well as any one at that time. If a person, when he starts in to shoot with a revolver, finds that he cannot accomplish anything, it is a hundred to one that there is something the matter with his eyesight. Let him consult an oculist, and after he has been fixed up, say with the proper pair of glasses, I will guarantee that his shooting will improve.

"There are people who will say that they are too nervous to shoot accurately. That's another mistaken idea. A man is never too nervous to shoot. Technically speaking there are two classes of shooters. The one wriggles and the other can hold a revolver as if it were in a vise.

"Take the man that wriggles. If he has the active nerve he will pull the trigger at the supreme moment, and his score will be as good as a man who can hold the sight. The man that can hold his arm steady is usually best at rapid fire. I knew a great many shots who are only good at rapid fire shooting. Yes, this does seem strange, but it is a fact. The best shot is the man who can shoot the quickest, and that is the man who can get the aim quickest and pull."

Capt. Conlin's shooting days are over, so to speak. He injured his right hand several years ago. Some of the best known shots in the country visit his place, however, and seek his advice on revolver shooting. He has many pupils, many of them members of the National Guard. His collection of targets cannot be equalled. They include the scores made in all the important matches for years. Capt. Conlin took an active part in organizing the match between America and France, decided last summer, and which the Americans won easily. He intends to organize an international tournament next summer to decide the championship of the world.

THE FARM.

Fattening Food for Sheep.

This term fattening should be dropped. We don't fatten now, we feed the sheep for market. And in good feeding the sheep will take on as much fat as may be needed to make the flesh succulent. Even now mutton eaters complain of the excess of fat, which is a waste of good food and no one wants it. Feeding on the ordinary rations of clover or alfalfa hay, with a pint of corn a day, is sufficient for a lamb; for a two year old or older sheep this ration may be increased to twice the allowance of corn, with alfalfa or clover hay as will be eaten without waste. The fat should be intimately mixed with the lean meat, and to do this fattening must be a part of the growth. This, necessarily cannot be made in a few days, and thus the practice of feeding lambs all through the winter, slowly gaining good flesh, will be more judicious and effective than to feed highly for a few days or weeks with grain food. All the successful experimental feeding tests have been made during some months, nine or twelve in the most successful and standard trials, and we cannot expect to gain similar proportionate results with a few weeks excessive feeding, the results of which may be to make fat where it is not wanted, and so throw away the money spent.

The practice is coming into general use now for the shepherd to feed his own lambs and the intermediate feeder for market is no doubt being so much encouraged as he was when the owner of the sheep had not an easy opportunity to do the feeding for himself. But every sheep man should know how to feed for himself and now that rape and alfalfa are coming into general use, it is a very easy matter to bring the lambs up to the condition when the finishing may be done with cheap grain screenings and some corn.—American Sheep Breeder.

A Dairy Experiment.

At the Minnesota Experiment Station they tested six dual purpose cows as represented by grade Shorthorns of the best beef type against six grade Guernsey and Jersey, and one grade Holstein, all of the proper build for dairy cows, and give out the following results:

The six dual purpose cows gave an average of 5077 pounds of milk in a year, which gave 229 pounds of butter at a cost of 13.38 cents a pounds. The feed cost $30.64 per head, and the net profit was $10.37 each.

The seven others averaged produced an average of 6700 pounds of milk and made 446 pounds of butter per year at a cost of 8.43 cents a pound. The cost of food was $37.60 per head and the net profit $38.11 each.

But the comparison between the best of each sort was more plainly marked. The best dual purpose cow gave 274 pounds of butter at a cost of 12.14 cents a pound, with a profit of $15.69. The poorest of the lot gave but 196 pounds of butter at a cost of $14.76 cents a pound and a profit of $8.51 for the year.

The grade Holstein produced 550 pounds of butter from 7914 pounds of milk, at a cost of $10.61 cents a pound, having eaten $55.23 worth of food, but showing a net profit of $38.26.

This profit was exceeded by a grade Jersey which produced 493 pounds of butter from 7914 pounds of milk. Her butter cost but 6.08 cents a pound, she having eaten but $30 worth of food, and the profit from her was $54.45 for the year.

A cross bred Jersey and Guernsey was next to her, having eaten $35.15 worth of food and yielded $53.31 profit. She made 512 pounds of butter from 8796 pounds of milk at a cost of 6.86 cents a pound.

It has been demonstrated by actual experiments, observes Science and Industry, that many of our wild forest plants produce seeds that when buried in the earth retain vitality for ten to thirty years.

Feeding Hogs on Alfalfa.

C. H. Sessions of Los Angeles, Cal., says he has never raised hogs for market by feeding wholly on alfalfa. In his section many farmers pasture hogs successfully on alfalfa and think it is one of the cheapest feeds they can use. The hogs grow rapidly—eating the green feed like a cow. When the field is not overstocked they will not dig out the roots, but if it is, they will burrow down and dig out every one. It has been claimed that one acre of alfalfa will grow 1000 pounds of pork. Hogs grown on this feed are soft and the fat watery. They should be fed forty to sixty days on corn, barley or wheat, when the meat will be hard and sweet. Hogs fed in this way are wanted by the packers—as the meat is well streaked with fat.

In growing the young pigs which we sell for breeders, Mr. Sessions says we find they do better to run out on alfalfa and we always make a hole in the fence, where they can run out and in as they please, but we always give them plenty of skim milk, besides what they get from the sow. Land pastured in this way must certainly be put into better condition to be plowed for other crops.

The farmers generally divide off their large fields into smaller ones, and as the alfalfa is eaten off, the hogs are changed into another and the last pasture irrigated, so in that way they have fields in various stages of growth into which to run.

American Wool.

The wool product of the United States this year is placed at 288,636,621 pounds by the National Association of Wool Manufacturers in a report just published. This is the largest estimated yield reported since 1897, when it was given at 259,153,251 pounds, and compares with a maximum yield in recent years of 348,538,138 in 1893, before the repeal of the wool tariff under the Wilson bill. Available wool supplies on hand in the United States on July 1st last are estimated by the association to have been 578,084,304 pounds, against 667,109,028 at the same date in 1899, 539,309,125 in 1898 and 702,568,428 in 1897. It is thought that present supplies are ample to meet the requirements of the mills prior to the movement of next year's clip. The United States department of agriculture estimates the number of sheep in the United States on April 1st last at 40,267,818, against 34,784,287 in 1897, since which time there has been a steady increase, confined, however, almost entirely to the far Western States.

In October a collection of twenty-six Clydesdale stallions was auctioned off at Palermo, just outside of Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic. The horses were bred in the Argentine and sold for an average price of $530. The best price was $1250, and an Argentine-bred Shire colt made $1060. Two imported Clydesdale stallions averaged over $1250, the best one bringing $1755. Another imported pair brought $720 each. A Suffolk horse, imported, brought within a few cents of $1250.

To cure a Bruise or Strain quickly, proceed as follows: Wring out a sponge in boiling hot water and hold on the affected part, keeping the sponge hot by repeating the operation, for from 15 to 30 minutes. Rub dry and apply rubbing it in well. Use the hot water steaming process once a day and apply the Absorbine from three to four times a day. One or two days usually cures fresh cases.

Absorbine is unequalled in removing bunches caused by a bruise or strain from animal or mankind. Vet. size $2 per bottle, for mankind $1 per bottle, delivered or furnished by regular dealers. Write for pamphlets. Manufactured by W.F. YOUNG, P.D.F. Springfield, Mass.

For sale by Mack & Co., Langley & Michaels Co., Reddington & Co., J. O'Kane, and J. A. McKerron, all of San Francisco.

Occidental Horse Exchange

721 HOWARD STREET,

Near Third - - - San Francisco.

Having fitted up the above place especially for the sale of harness horses, vehicles, harness, etc., it will afford me pleasure to correspond with owners regarding the Auction Sales which I shall hold at this place EVERY TUESDAY at 11 a. m. Arrangements can be made for special sales of standard bred trotting stock, thoroughbreds, etc. My turf library is the largest on this Coast, hence I am prepared to compile catalogues satisfactorily to my patrons. I take pleasure in referring to any and all for whom I have sold horses during the past two years. WM. G. LAYNE, Live Stock Auctioneer.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. R. Malone, with 55 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 51 straight kills.
All used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration; it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask. Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

A great pair of trotters owned by Mr. Graham E. Babcock of San Diego

A Son of Electioneer.

Strange as it may seem, here in California where the great stallion Electioneer lived and founded the greatest family of trotters that ever existed, there are very few of his sons standing for public service. This is not because Californians failed to appreciate the value of the blood of the deceased premier of Palo Alto farm, but for the reason that the wealthy breeders of the East were more able to pay the large prices Electioneer's sons brought at the annual sales, and purchased all that were offered.

There will be in the stud at Weedland, Yolo county, this year, however, a handsome, fast and well bred son of Electioneer that is worthy of patronage, and the breeders of California should take advantage of the opportunity to mate their best bred mares to him. We refer to Alta Vela that made his first campaign during the California circuit last year and closed it with a record of 2:15½, which is not the limit of his speed as the result of the races of 1901 will show. Alta Vela is a bay stallion 15.2 hands high with a little white on his near hind foot. He was foaled May 10, 1888. At an auction sale at the farm some years ago he was purchased by the late S. L. White of San Francisco, who used him as a road horse. At his demise Alta Vela passed into the possession of Dr. G. W. Kleiser, a member of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association who started him several times at the Club's matinees. The horse showed so much speed that the Doctor was advised to put him in training for the circuit, but was reluctant to enter the racing business and finally sold Alta Vela to J. D. Heins. Mr. Heins placed Alta Vela in J. M. Nelson's charge and the latter raced him on the circuit last year, winning close to a thousand dollars with him and being inside the money in a majority of his starts. Before the season ended Mr. S. A. Hooper of Yountville, Napa county, purchased Alta Vela and after making a short season with him at Woodland this spring will again race him with the idea of reducing his record to 2:10 or better, a mark that every horseman in California believes him capable of reaching.

Alta Vela's blood lines are such that a simple tabulation of his pedigree to the third generation is sufficient to show all students of breeding that he is bred to trot fast and sire extreme speed.

His sire, Electioneer, stands at the very head of the list of speed producers, being the grandsire of the famous Abbot 2:03½, champion trotter of the world. Electioneer has sired 160 standard performers, all of them trotters but two. At the close of 1899, ninety of his sons had produced 748 with standard records, and sixty-five of his daughters were producers of standard speed. He has grandsons and granddaughters that are producers and no blood in the trotting register is breeding on and increasing in speed as it goes like that of Electioneer.

The dam of Alta Vela was the race mare Lorita, with a trotting record of 2:18½. She was sired by the game race horse Piedmont 2:17½, sire of twenty-three trotters and two pacers in the standard list, and he by that wonderful speed progenitor, Almont 33, whose descendants with standard records number thousands.

Alta Vela's second dam was Lady Lowell, dam of Ladywell 2:16½ and Lorita 2:18½, and whose daughters have produced Local 2:19½, Lady Piedmont 2:21½, Electro 2:29 and others. Lady Lowell was by Schultz St. Clair, and her dam was Laura, the dam of Doc 449, who sired Occident 2:16½, the horse that was the wonder of the Pacific Coast back in the early '70's.

To recapitulate, Alta Vela is a fast and game race horse. His sire is the leading sire of extreme speed at the trot in the world. His dam has a fast record and is a producer. His paternal and maternal grandams are producers, the former, Green Mountain Maid, being the greatest of broodmares. There is nothing but producing blood in his pedigree all through. As he is a fine individual, a trotter with perfect action, with a level head and game as a pebble, he is worthy to be mated with the very best mares in America. Mr. Hooper has located him at the Weedland track and fixed his service fee at $50, at which price Alta Vela should have a full book by March 1st.

State Fair Grounds in Bad Shape.

A correspondent writing to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN from Sacramento says that Agricultural Park there "is in the worst condition it has been for years, and would be considered a disgrace to any little country fair district. The trotting track is in good shape and with fair weather will make an excellent track to train on, but the stalls and other buildings are wrecks, and the grounds and walks in front of them are a series of mud holes. It is a wonder some of the old stables do not fall down as the foundations are badly decayed and the walls leaning over, while the shingles are so few that they let in the sunshine and the rain in large quantities. But few of the stalls are dry enough for a horse to be kept in with safety and when one considers the many thousand dollars invested in stallions and racing stock that is sheltered there, one wonders at the owners trying to stay there at all, and it is a marvel that lung fever and pneumonia are not more prevalent. Eastern visitors look with contempt upon the place where they are inspecting the horses, and are very suspicious when told that some of the greatest horses in the world have been trained here. While the Legislature is in session it would be a good thing if the body could go on one of those junketing tours as they call them, out to Agricultural Park and see for itself what a miserable place it is. One of the big expenses of the annual fair are the repairs that are necessary to place these old rookeries in presentable appearance, and while the Directors do the best they can it is money thrown away. What is needed is new buildings and new stalls, with drainage, etc., properly provided for, or what would be still better, permit the Directors to sell the present grounds and purchase new quarters and fit them up in keeping with the requirements of the only great annual fair on the Pacific Coast." If the proposed improvements could be gotten under way by the first of March, the first California State Fair of the new century could be held on grounds that would be somewhat in keeping with its importance. Exhibitors are entitled to better accommodations than those now furnished.

The Handsomest One of the Family.

In our holiday edition was the photo engraving of a two-year-old filly by Educator, the son of Director 2:17, owned by Mr. M. Henry of Haywards. The filly is owned by J. McConaghy of Haywards and is certainly one of the handsomest pieces of horseflesh in California. Last week Mr. Henry received the following letter from a resident of Tacoma, of whom he had never before heard, but who is evidently an admirer of a handsome horse:

DEAR SIR—In the Xmas number of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN I noticed a picture or a cut of a two year old filly by Educator, I have known the great grandsire of this filly, Dictator, and have seen many of them for several generations, but she is undoubtedly the handsomest one I have ever seen. She is my ideal and I should like for you to allow me the privilege of naming her Ideal or Educator's Ideal. I do not remember of ever having seen her equal for beauty, and I have seen the best of them, while in Lexington, Ky., and on many other farms besides those contiguous. Have you a photo?

Yours respectfully,

T. S. BLAND.

As Mr. McConaghy had already selected the name of Beauty for the filly, the request of Mr. Bland, who is a prominent attorney of Tacoma, could not very well be granted although the name suggested is an excellent one, and Mr. Henry has sent him an elegant photograph of the filly.

An Eastern dispatch says that it will no doubt be a source of disappointment to the many admirers of the famous racing mare Imp to learn that Uncle Dan Harness, after a long and careful deliberation, has come to the decision never to race her again. Instead of disappointment to the actual admirers of the mare it will be a great pleasure to them. Imp has done all that any race animal should be asked to do, and her retirement is in order. She should have at least a year's rest before being bred and then ought to give to the racing world something that will be of her own class.

The highest tried yearling at Montgomery Park this fall is a colt by Hindoo-Lady Beth, a brother of Queen Dixon, and the property of Paddy Tomlinson. John W. Schorr recently offered $4500 for the youngster, but Tomlinson refused to part with him.

Full Brother to John A. McKerron 2:10.

No horse in America caused as much talk and controversy during the close of the year as the California bred stallion John A. McKerron, a son of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. By winning the race for the amateur cup at Readville, Mass., in which he pulled a wagon two heats in 2:10 and 2:11 he attracted the attention of all horsemen, but when the National Trotting Association, in spite of an earnest plea made by Mr. H. K. Devereux, his owner, decided that the time was an actual record, even though made at a matinee performance, it started a discussion that gives evidence of lasting well into the new century. There is no doubt that John A. McKerron trotted his miles in the time given, or that a few days later he pulled a wagon in 2:09 at Cleveland at a public trial against time, but as they were trotted at matinees where there was no money charged at the gate and no purse awarded, Mr. Devereux thinks the old race record of 2:12½ should determine the classes in which the horse will be eligible to race.

The attention attracted to John McKerron and his grand blood lines has caused California breeders to remember that there is standing for public service at San Jose a full brother to him, that for individual qualifications is the equal of the champion stallion trotter to wagon, a distinction that McKerron's record now gives him the title to. We refer to Wilkes Direct 2:22½, owned by T. W. Barstow, of San Jose. Wilkes Direct is as grand an individual as one would wish to see, as the small cut in the advertisement published in this issue will show. His breeding is unsurpassed. Of his sire, Nutwood Wilkes, our readers have heard and seen much. He is one of the great sires of extreme speed of America, and one of the best bred.

He combines the blood of the great families of Wilkes and Nutwood backed up by that greatest of thoroughbred strains, Williamson's Belmont. Nutwood Wilkes is the sire of such fast ones as John A. McKerron, the champion stallion to wagon in the world, Who Is It 2:10½, Claudius 2:13½, Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, Georgie B. 2:12½ and many others. He is considered by all horse breeders as one of the greatest horses California has produced.

The dam of Wilkes Direct is the great pacing mare Ingar, dam of three in the list, by Director. With the Director family California breeders are familiar. A wonderful race horse, champion of his day, bred in the purple, he sired Directum 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½, two world's champions. The latter in turn sired Directly 2:03½, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Directum Kelley 2:08½, Rey Direct 2:10 and a long list of champion trotters and pacers. That Ingar was by Director and has produced three standard performers, one the champion wagon stallion, would be enough, but his pedigree does not stop with her. The second dam was Anna Titus, a producing mare by Echo, and Echo produced the dam of Direct 2:05½, Loupe 2:09½ and many other fast ones, besides siring 16 standard performers, ten producing sons and two producing daughters.

The third dam of Wilkes Direct was the Tiffany mare (dam of Gibraltar 2:22½, the sire of Our Dick 2:10½ and other fast ones) and she was by Owen Dale, son of Williamson's Belmont. It will be seen that Wilkes Direct traces to the great thoroughbred foundation of Belmont on both his sire and dam's side.

What better combination of blood can be found anywhere? Geo. Wilkes, Nutwood, Director, Echo, Williamson's Belmont. It is of the royal strains, and in every generation has proved its ability to produce speed. Wilkes Direct has had no representatives to face the starter as yet, but his colts that are old enough to be harnessed show wonderful speed and have size and good looks as well. We advise our readers to study the pedigree of Wilkes Direct and to take advantage of the opportunity to breed to this very promising young horse this year at a moderate fee.

Silk Gown, the valuable broodmare, sold anonymously by the Lexington Horse Breeders' Association a year ago, and afterwards very much wanted when known to be the dam of a great colt Garry Herman, appears to have been found. Mr. R. G. Lemon of Milton, Ky., writes to a Kentucky paper that he bought a racing mare in St. Louis last summer for $30 which he is sure is the much wanted daughter of Longfellow, and had a brilliant racing career. A few years ago she was put in the stud, but none of her produce amounted to anything, and Mr. Kinsca Stone, her owner, sold her to the Breeders' Association for $35. These breeders make it a point of getting rid of worthless breeding stock and sold Silk Gown without her pedigree in St. Louis for $30 at auction. Last spring her colt Garry Herrman, developed into the best Western two year old of the season, and his owners refused $10,000 for him. Inquiry was at once made for his dam, and then the sad fate of Silk Gown was learned. All efforts to trace her failed until Mr. Lemon's letter came to-day. It is believed he has the right mare.

LEAGUE OF AMATEUR CLUBS.

T. L. Quimby, of Boston, Secretary of the League of Amateur Driving Clubs, recently formed at a meeting of representatives held in New York, sends us a copy of the by-laws and rules adopted for the government of the League and clubs that are members thereof. Amateur racing, if properly managed, is destined to take the very first place among American amateur sports and even though there may be some differences of opinion in regard to the manner in which an organization of the amateur clubs should be effected, we hold that as all are evidently working for the good of the cause, that the work done will eventually result in much good being accomplished. The by-laws and rules adopted by the League of American Driving Clubs are as follows and seem to have been compiled and arranged for the sole purpose of placing on a firm footing and elevating to its proper place, the great sport of amateur harness racing:

BY-LAWS.

ARTICLE ONE.

This Association shall be known as the League of Amateur Driving Clubs.

ARTICLE TWO—OBJECT.

The object of this League shall be to further the interests of Amateur Driving Clubs, to formulate such rules from time to time as may seem necessary for the governing of its members, and to serve as a sponsor for its members to the National and American Trotting Associations.

ARTICLE THREE—OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS.

Sec. 1. Each Club member of this League shall select one of their number who shall act as delegate for their Club, and these delegates collectively shall compose the Board of Directors for this League. They shall serve for one year or until their successors are elected.

Sec. 2. The officers of this League shall be a President, Vice-President and a Secretary-Treasurer. They shall be elected by the Board of Directors and serve for a term of one year or until their successors are elected.

Sec. 3. There shall also be an Executive Committee which shall consist of the officers of the League and two Directors selected from and by the Directors, which Committee shall serve for one year or until their successors are elected.

ARTICLE FOUR—DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

Sec. 1. The President of this League shall preside at all meetings of the Board of Directors; or in case of his absence the Vice-President shall preside; in the absence of both, the Board may choose the presiding officer pro tempore.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the President to fix a time and place for all meetings.

Sec. 3. The duties of the Executive Committee shall be to attend to all legislation by the parent associations affecting the interests of the League; to settle all questions that may from time to time arise between members of the League, and to act upon all such matters as are not specifically delegated to the Board of Directors.

Sec. 4. The Secretary-Treasurer shall have the custody of all funds of the League, which he shall safely keep and account for. He shall keep a record of the proceedings of all meetings and send a report of them to each member. He shall also notify each member of time and place of each meeting.

ARTICLE FIVE—MEETINGS.

Sec. 1. There shall be an annual meeting during the month of November and on such day and at such place as may be fixed by the President, it being understood that the place of meeting shall be such as is most convenient to all members.

Sec. 2. The President shall call special meetings by request of a majority of members of this League.

ARTICLE SIX—QUORUM.

Sec. 1. A representative from two-thirds of the Clubs composing this League either in person or proxy shall constitute a quorum.

ARTICLE SEVEN—APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP, INITIATION FEES AND DUES.

Sec. 1. Any Amateur Driving Club of recognized standing and which is a member of the National or American Trotting Associations may become a member of this League by a written application through its officers, and by a full vote of Directors, one dissenting vote being a black ball.

Sec. 2. After the application shall be approved by the Directors as provided, it may become a member by the payment of $50 to the Secretary-Treasurer of this League, which shall be an initiation fee and dues for the current year, and thereafter shall pay to the Secretary-Treasurer annual dues of $35, payable in advance at each annual meeting.

Sec. 3. Any member whose dues shall be in arrears for a year may be expelled by a two-thirds vote of the Directors.

ARTICLE EIGHT—FUNDS.

Sec. 1. After such incidental expenses have been paid as are found necessary by the Secretary-Treasurer, and which shall be approved by the President, the balance shall be placed in a fund which shall be known as The League Fund.

Sec. 2. The League Fund shall be kept in trust by the Secretary-Treasurer, and when the same has reached sufficient proportions to in the opinion of the Board of Directors, warrant it, it shall be used for purchasing some suitable plate to be offered for competition to members of this League. The details of this expenditure and conditions following the same shall be in the hands of the Board of Directors.

ARTICLE NINE—PENALTIES AND FINES.

Sec. 1. Any offending member guilty of violation of the rules of this League shall be subject to fine or expulsion by two-thirds vote of the Directors.

ARTICLE TEN.

Sec. 1. Any of the fore-going articles of the League may be altered, amended, or added to upon one month's notice, previously given in writing to the Secretaries of each member of the League, by a two-thirds vote of the members present.

RULES.

Rule 1. No pool selling or book-making of any kind shall be allowed at any of the Matinees of members of this League.

Rule 2. No performances other than those made to rule at regular meetings of the Clubs composing this League, or at regular meetings of Clubs composing this League, or at regular meetings of members of the National or American Associations will be recognized.

Rule 3. It being compulsory that every Club composing this League shall be a member of either the National or American Trotting Associations, all performances must be made under the rules of such parent Associations, except as to the following:

- A.—Making of entries.
- B.—Drawing horses.
- C.—Change of program and postponements.
- D.—Carrying of weight.
- E.—Distance.
- F.—Accidents.
- G.—Fines.

Rule 4. No Club member of this League shall allow the use of hoppers in any of its regular matinee events, and no performance wherein hoppers are used will be recognized.

Rule 5. All regular events in harness held by members of this League must be to road wagons.

Rule 6. It is understood that all members of Clubs composing this League shall be amateurs.

A.—An amateur is defined as a man who has not accepted wages or hire for his services as a trainer or driver. Any individual club member who competes for a purse or against professionals, except in such events as are especially arranged for amateurs, after May 1, 1901, shall forfeit his amateur standing.

Rule 7. Any protest as to the amateur standing of any individual, or as to the question of any amateur record, shall be made to the Directors of this League through the President or Secretary-Treasurer, and they with the other Directors shall at their first meeting decide such protest, a majority vote deciding. Every Club member of this League must have notice of protest, and shall have a vote on the matter either through their delegate or by proxy.

Rule 8. Any individual member of Clubs composing this League who either by the rules of this League or by a majority vote of its Directors is or may be adjudged a professional shall be barred from taking part in any open contests of members in this League. Any record made by any horse driven by an individual not an amateur, as provided, shall not be recognized.

Rule 9. All Clubs, members of this League, shall appoint a Clerk of Course whose duty shall be to keep an accurate record of all performances, a copy of which shall be filed with the Secretary of the League, who in turn shall submit such reports to the Secretaries of the National and American Trotting Associations and to the American Trotting Register Association.

The Question of Amateur Records.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—The question as to whether amateurs are to be allowed to compete among themselves for cups and ribbons, wherein no money is at stake, without being penalized with records, is a most vital one to the horse interests of this country. This is made more so by the rapid growth of this amateur interest. It is strange that for years we have been permitted to conduct our matinee races and have met with nothing but encouragement from everybody concerned, and now when an amateur club has generously donated a valuable trophy for the express purpose of stimulating interest in the trotter, so many should attempt to place an embargo on the very thing they heretofore encouraged and recognized as a benefit.

Will you publish the annexed list of questions which, from years of active interest and work in this connection, I believe are honestly answered?

Is matinee racing by amateurs as conducted to-day a good thing for the trotting horse industry? It certainly is.

Do amateur driving clubs educate and induce men to take an interest in racing? Yes.

Do the public enjoy amateur racing? Yes.

Does the free gate of the amateur driving club, and the entertainment given, educate people, and arouse interest in the trotter? If the increased attendance each year at the matinees of the Cleveland Club, the enthusiasm exhibited, the increase in active membership, and the weekly attendance of from 2000 to 6000 people counts for aught, it certainly does.

If there is an increased interest in the horse industry, does this not benefit the breeder, the trainer, the dealer and the merchant of horse goods? Without doubt.

Does matinee racing injure anybody? No.

Does matinee racing make a market for outclassed and unsound horses? Yes.

Does it develop horses, horsemen and horsemanship, and does it add to the number of men interested in racing and the number of horses eligible for racing? Yes.

Does it in any way injure professional racing? No; on the contrary, it helps it, as years of experience proves here in Cleveland.

Does anybody directly make money out of matinee racing? Yes; the breeder, the trainer, the dealer and his employees.

Do men who spend from $500 to $50,000 a year for the pleasure of driving their own horses in contests with their friends injure horse interests? Most assuredly not.

Does a man who is privileged to develop his horses in matinee races have any advantage over the man who must develop his horses in the usual way? Certainly not.

Do not both methods lead to the same results, and do they not both cost money? They do, and for the credit of matinee racing be it said it is the most expensive way of enjoying a horse.

Is it fair to give a horse a record that is used in matinee races because he wears a ribbon? No.

Is it fair to give this horse a record because he wins a cup? No.

Is it fair to give matinee horses records? No; for it injures everybody interested in horses and does nobody good.

Does it injure anybody to permit a horse to trot in matinees, and award the owner a paltry silver cup, to designate the honor he has acquired, by his most liberal expenditure of money for a cause that is of interest to every man connected with horse interests? It does not.

Are there many men interested in the trotters that are rich enough so that they can afford to accept records on their horses by winning only cups and ribbons. Very few.

Are there enough of these men who can afford this pleasure to maintain matinee racing? Indeed no.

How long will matinee racing with a free gate last if horses shoulder records for winning nothing of value? It cannot exist.

If the existence of one matinee club has in six years caused a market for 300 high priced horses, would the existence of thirty more such clubs help the horse market any? Ask the breeder and dealer.

Is it fair to call a race like that for the Boston Cup a public race, where no admission was charged, and where competition was limited to five named matinee clubs? It would seem not, and that the spirit of the rule never contemplated such a thing.

If this was a public race, were not all the races held that day and at that meeting public races? Certainly.

Did Elloree acquire a record when she trotted in 2:10 to wagon and won the Championship Cup, a duplicate of which was given her owner to keep? No.

Was the matter of this performance discussed in the turf press. Yes.

Did any of the turf papers decide that it was a record? Not a single one.

What is the difference in this performance and the McKerron performance at Boston? Elloree won a cup and a blue ribbon for beating 2:15; McKerron won a blue ribbon for winning a matinee race and the Driving Club of Cleveland got a cup.

Was the decision of the Board of Review regarding this record a fair one? It was considered by them the proper construction to place upon the rule.

Would it have been possible, fair and proper to have construed the rule differently? Under the conditions, yes.

Would such a construction of the rule have injured anybody, or have opened the door for fraud? No.

If such performances as these are to be records, what is the future of the amateur clubs and matinee racing? Read the answer in the stars.

Does all this interest the turf press? Indeed it should. The fostering of this amateur interest should be their greatest boon.

The question of the decision of the Board of Review anent the McKerron case seems to me to go beyond an argument as to whether that interpretation of the rule was logical. It undoubtedly was logical, but was it for the best to all interested? Did it avoid trouble, did it avoid possible fraud, and did it do anybody any good? Would not the other interpretation of the rule have been best, and would it not too have been logical. Would it not have been fair to have considered matinee racing without gate money by members of the parent association as not public races, and cups, ribbons, etc., as not premiums?

Yours very truly,

H. K. DEVEREUX,

Pres. Gentleman's Driving Club, Cleveland.

"Rey del Valle," King of the Vale.

Rancho del Valle, Home of Rey Direct, 2:10.

PLEASANTON, Cal., Jan. 7, 1901.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I promised to let you know about the first foal this century from Rey Direct. He is a fine upstanding horse colt, dark bay, two white hind ankles, the very image of his last year's full brother. I want the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to name him and therefore send a short tabulation of his pedigree. He wasn't quite a New Year's day colt but was very close to it, born the third day of the twentieth century. He looks like a sure winner of part of that $6000 Futurity, any way he has got a few days start of the others—drawn the pole so to speak.

Yours very truly, GEO. A. DAVIS.

Thanking Mr. Davis for his compliment in entrusting to us the pleasant task of naming such a grandly bred colt, we shall call the youngster Rey del Valle, or "King of the Vale," a name that is not only musical when pronounced in the "liquid Spanish," but has a meaning and brings to mind the name of the sire and the beautiful farm whereon the colt was bred. Midget, the dam of this colt, is the dam of Too Soon 2:24½. the colt that Monroe Salisbury intended for a record breaker but arrived a few days too early so that he would have had to meet colts one year older than himself had he been raced in his colthood. Too Soon was put in training this year in the East and got the record above given. May Rey del Valle be a worthy scion of his illustrious family and make Rey Direct the sire of a two minute horse.

The Time to Advertise.

The season is at hand in which owners must put before the public their stallions, and in fact the merits of their entire breeding establishments. Many really high class stallions have wasted one-half of their lives in retirement because their owners were not far sighted enough to see the advantage of placing their names and breeding before the public. No matter how great a stallion may be in the estimation of his owner, he never is considered so by the public until he has accomplished great things as a sire. It is for this reason, if for no other, that young stallions should be advertised prominently, for when colts by comparatively unknown stallions are offered at public auction buyers that do not know the horse will decline to purchase, as few men will buy a colt that is by a stallion unknown to them even by hearsay. The time to place a stallion's name before the public is when the breeders of the country are undecided as to where they shall mate their mares.

Owners cannot afford to allow their stallions to become forgotten; they must keep them constantly before the public, first by judicious advertising, then by entering their get in stakes, and lastly by winning some of the latter. The first two conditions can easily be complied with; unless the last can at least be approximated the sooner the owner rids himself of his horse the better for him, for the public will pass him by. It is wise to advertise a good article, but folly to do so with one that is known to be worthless.—Spirit of the West.

Sidney Pointer Sold.

W. H. Anderson of Kemptville, Ont., has purchased the fast pacing stallion Sidney Pointer 2:08½, by Star Pointer 1:59½, from A. McLarren, of Ottawa. It was fully expected that this horse would pace close to two minutes, but he developed a temper and acted like a mad horse. Trainer John Kelly, who drove Directum to his champion record of 2:05½, trotting, could do nothing with him. He would fight, kick, bite and do anything but race. As a last resort a Canadian farmer who bred and broke him, was sent for, and the raging tiger became as quiet as a cat. He drove him in several races with success, but as soon as he left him to get in his autumn crops he began to relapse. If W. H. Hoffat drives him next season he may be the sensation of the year.

A Great Pair of Trotters.

Our front page this week contains a good likeness of Mr. Graham E. Babcock of Coronado driving his great pair of trotters Toggles 2:09½ and El Moro 2:13½. Most horsemen would not suppose these horses would mate extra well, but "they trotted together as one horse when hitched together for the first time and made an ideal road pair." Now that Toggles has been sent to C. E. Clark at Fresno to be made ready for the campaign of 1901, Mr. Babcock has nothing that can make El Moro step, so when he desires to ride fast drives him single.

Sir Gibbie II.

Down at Menlo Stock Farm there is a little pony hackney stallion that is, as a Hibernian horseman remarked on looking him over, "the purtiest and biggest horse of his size in the State." He is only 13.3 hands high and is just the stallion to breed to if one wants small horses with good looks and extravagant action for park and other purposes that ponies are put to. Sir Gibbie II is the only representative in this country of the two best British Hackney pony strains, and his sire and dam lines have long been recognized as the surest producers of beauty of conformation, combined with true, high and spirited action. Sir Gibbie II is by Sir Gibbie, a pony stallion that won many prizes in England before being imported to America, and founded the line known in Scotland as the Sir Gibbie ponies. The dam of Sir Gibbie II is Harebell, a member of the other famous pony family the St. George.

Crossed on small handsome mares here in California, it is not unreasonable to expect Sir Gibbie II to found a family of ponies that will within a few years be known the world over.

Matinee Racing at Riverside.

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 1.—A large and fashionable crowd witnessed the harness races run here New Year's day under the auspices of the Riverside Driving Association.

Nine horses, owned and driven by Los Angeles gentlemen, were entered in the several events and they came near sweeping the board.

Milo M. Potter of Los Angeles shipped three of his fast ones here and they were returned winners of three races.

G. B. Tibbot's General Wiles won one heat and ran second to Midnight in another of an unfinished half-mile event. W. H. Stimson's Richmond Chief was third in both heats, which were made in 1:08½ and 1:09.

M. M. Potter's Sweet Marie 2:24, by McKinney, won two straight heats and the race from a field of six. The fastest heat was made in 2:27½.

Primrose belonging to the same owner, stepped a half in 1:06, beating Sunday and Newport. Maud McKinney, also owned and driven by Mr. Potter, won a mile dash handily from Zelum in 2:29.

In the only other race on the card Tim Crowley won two heats and Lady May one. A. W. Herwig's Leotta was third in every heat. Time, 2:36 2-5, 2:42, 2:59 2-6.

The Riverside association will send a lot of horses to Los Angeles to compete in the Washington's Birthday matinee races at Agricultural park.

Should Be a Great Race.

The Tanforan Park management has offered a special purse of $1000 for a race between Brutal, Rolling Boer, Articulate and Canmore. It has been decided that the weights carried shall be seven pounds below the scale and the distance one mile. To make it more interesting a jackpot of $100 a corner will add to the value of the added money, the owner of each three year old putting up that amount. The race will be run on the second Saturday of the coming Tanforan meeting. An effort will be made to get Sam Loates, the English rider, to pilot Articulate. Nash Turner will have the mount on Rolling Boer, O'Connor astride Brutal and Mounce or Sloan on Canmore.

Fine Team for McKinley.

A team of fine coach horses, purchased for President McKinley by an agent, were shipped from Fairlawn, Summit county, Ohio, last Friday. They are perfectly matched bays, with black points, sixteen and one-half hands high, and weighing 1250 pounds each. The horses were sired by a Morgan stallion, Bay Highland, first dam by the imported coach horse Sensation and second dam by Erie Abdallah.

Likely to Be Changes.

From recent Eastern advices received it is prophesied that the forthcoming meeting to be held by the American Turf Congress at the Wellington Hotel, Chicago, on Wednesday, on January 16th, is to be an exceedingly warm one. The forecaster who transmits the intelligence likewise says it will result in a complete dissolution of the Congress. This is startling news to the turf world, for the American Turf Congress was considered well nigh impervious to the assaults of time and its enemies.

According to the very latest advices the American Turf Congress will become a thing of the past, but in its stead will rise a new organization, more powerful in its sway and more dictatorial in its policy. The new association, whose name is yet a matter of conjecture, will be represented at the commencement by probably seven different jockey clubs, among the cities represented being Memphis, Louisville, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco. The letter states that Lansing Mizner, one of the stewards of the San Francisco Jockey Club, is now in Chicago and will represent Tanforan Park at the coming meeting. Indeed, it is said that the San Mateo Club has been adjudged guilty of flirting with the Chicago racing associations in their efforts to smother the smaller Southern racing centers.

Reviewing the ruffled turf horizon, the new organization, it is said, will be most exacting in its demands. Every club or racing association becoming a member will receive a license, and dates will be set for all tracks in the west and south of the Mason and Dixon line. Dates will be allotted to tracks not members of the new congress, and unless these dates are lived up to the tracks in question will be outlawed. This is a very arbitrary stand, but weak as the present Turf Congress is in regard to rules and regulations, the new one is to be as solid and unyielding as the rock of Gibraltar.

This, of course, will place the California Jockey Club and the San Francisco Jockey Club in a very peculiar position. They must either accept the dates assigned or become outlawed. The opinion generally prevails that if there are so be two great racing associations there should be three. The climatic conditions of California are entirely different from the South and Middle West, the people and the customs are different and there is no valid reason why this State should be dictated to by a body of turfmen unfamiliar with our ways and more than 2000 miles away.

At the meeting held at Chicago on January 16th the question will arise as to what disposition is to be made of the $40,000 or $50,000 in the American Turf Congress fund. In all likelihood it will be distributed among the different associations now members of the congress.

Wounds on Horses.

In all wounds of horses, union is promoted by putting the part at rest. Healthy wounds are seldom much benefitted by the application of lotions or ointments. When the wound is of small size it is best to leave it uncovered; and, if it be in summer, it may be smeared with zinc ointment, or with forty parts of olive oil to one of carbolic acid. In large wounds the surface should be lightly covered with a cloth, kept wet with a solution of carbolic acid in forty parts of water. When a wound shows what is called "proud flesh" it should be rubbed over at its most prominent part with sulphate of copper (bluestone) or washed with a solution containing two ounces of sugar of lead to a pint bottle of water.

The Marcus Daly Sale.

Bitter Root Farm's great dispersal sale will be held in New York beginning January 30th and will continue three days. The Fasig-Tipton Company have issued complete catalogues for the sale which will be ready for distribution in a few days. There was a large demand for the preliminary catalogue which simply gave the sire and dam of each animal to be offered and the name of the sire to which each mare was bred. We have a half dozen of these left at this office and they can be had on application as long as they last. We expect copies of the regular catalogue next week.

The subject of heat betting or book-making at trotting tracks is receiving considerable attention at present from turf writers. The subject is an important and complex one. It is just beginning to dawn upon the intelligence of a good many people identified with trotting that betting upon heats, under the plan of three in five races, is opposed to about everything that is of good repute in connection with the sport.—Trotter and Pacer.

A filly that is causing the railbirds at Memphis to crane their necks and say "hully gee" as she comes through the stretch in her work is Miss Gaines, a two year old by imp. Simon Magnus, dam Onvirlace (the dam of Remp) by Onondaga. Miss Gaines has worked quarters in 23 seconds.

SULKY NOTES.

A Negro Love Song.

Seen my lady home last night,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
Hol' huh han' an' squeeze it tight,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
Hyeard huh sigh a little sigh,
Seen a light gleam in huh eye
An' a smile go fittin' by,
Jump back, honey, jump back!

Hyeard de win' blow tro' de pine,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
Mockin' bird wuz singin' fine,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
An' my h'art was beatin' so
When I reached my lady's do',
Dat I couldn't b'ar to go,
Jump back, honey, jump back!

Put my a'm aroun' her waist,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
Raised huh lips an' tuk a taste,
Jump back, honey, jump back!
Luv me, honey, luv me tru' ?
Luv me well ez I luv you ?
An' she answe'd: "Cose I do,"
Jump back, honey, jump back!

Olema, Jan. 1, 1901.

—RUSTIC.

Send us a list of horses that you expect to train this year.

Everything is progressing favorably toward a Central California Circuit.

There are one hundred and twenty-five trotters with records from 2:03½ to 2:10.

Several new faces will be seen among the owners on the California circuit this year.

The great Western circuit of harness racing is expected to be a strong one this year.

It is now said that Andy McDowell did not close a contract with the Keystone Stock Farm, Omaha.

Dr. Powell Reeves, Seattle, is going to sell all his trotting horses and go into the raising of fine cattle and sheep.

Entries for the Occident Stake of 1903 and payments made on the same stakes for 1901 and 1902 will be ready for publication next week.

It looks as though Village Farm, instead of retiring from the turf, would have the strongest stable it has ever sent out at the races next season.

President Johnson of the National Trotting Association has granted an appeal on the McKerron case, and it will come up for a hearing at the next meeting of the Board of Appeals.

A. G. F. Stice, of Monmouth, Ill., who was in California last year, owns a chestnut yearling filly out of the pacing mare Nellie M. 2:10½, sired by Colbert 2:07½, that is very promising.

Trotwood says, "If I was a preacher I'd put half of my salary in a good 2:10 out classed pacer, and every time I met a conceited sinner on the road I'd do him up until he was ready for the mourner's bench."

Speedways built by public money are not the proper place to race for money, whether it be a purse or side bet between the parties concerned. These speedways were built for pleasure driving pure and simple.

The Pleasanton track is in better shape than it has been for years and by the way horsemen are taking up their quarters there it will remain the horse centre all right through the first year of the new century.

The sale of standard bred horses from Palo Alto Stock Farm held in Los Angeles last month, proved so satisfactory that Superintendent F. W. Covey will probably take another consignment to that city some time in February.

A. M. Macpherson, the well known commission merchant of this city, has sold to N. Nathan one of the most promising fillies in the State, Georgie Mac by Charles Derby 2:20, dam Nellie E. by Leo Wilkes, full brother to Sable Wilkes.

Mr. Geers is credited with having driven the green pacing stallion Direct Hal a half in 1:03½, at Jewett's covered track the past week. This will make some of the hot air fellows from the bushes move up closer to the winter stove.—Horse World.

We are authoritatively informed that Uncle Davy Cahill has recently refused $50,000 for the five year old trotting stallion Charley Herr 2:07. Mr. Cahill values the horse more highly than this amount, and consequently there was no sale.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

Monterey 2:09½ will probably make the season of 1901 at $50. He is looking fine and wintering in excellent shape, and his foals that are now weanlings and yearlings are regular top notchers for looks. Monterey should make a great sire of speed as well as form, size and style.

Thomas W. Lawson recently wanted one of his horses registered under the name of Boralma's Brother, when he is not a brother of Boralma. P. P. Johnson and Wm. R. Allen, of the American Trotting Register Association, have both agreed that the name was misleading and should be rejected.

Editor J. W. Thompson of Turf, Farm and Home, of Waterville, Me., has been presented with a silver medal by the State Agricultural Society commemorating the exhibition mile in 2:14, by his three year old pacing filly, Neldoral, made at the State Fair at Lewiston, Sept. 5th last.

When John A. McKerron 2:10, returns to Cleveland from Kentucky Charles Turner will have the fastest nine horses ever trained by one man. They are Free Bond 2:04½, Lucille 2:07, Sunland Belle 2:07½ to wagon, John Nolan 2:08, John A. McKerron 2:10, Mabel Onward 2:11½, Peko 2:11½, Aggie Medium 2:12½ and Major Geer 2:14—nine whose records average 2:09½.

Al Thomas, who shows the horses in the Fasig-Tipton Garden sales, will succeed Scott McCoy in the training stable at Keystone Stock Farm, Omaha, Neb. Thomas served ten years at the Caton Farm, Joliet, Ill., and for a time was trainer at Ashland Farm, near Lexington. For the season of 1900 he was trainer for John H. Shults, at Parkville Farm.

The list of mares on which second payment has been made in the Breeders Futurity will be printed next week. There are 240 of them. As the first payment of 305 entries amounted to $915 and the second on 240 aggregates $1200, there is now $2115 in the treasury of the P. C. T. H. B. A. to the credit of this stake. The next payment of $10 on each foal is not due until next January.

There are nine yearling fillies at Palo Alto Farm, sired by Dexter Prince, and out of record mares. The dams are: Manzinita 2:16, by Electioneer; Elden 2:19½, by Nephew; Bell Bird 2:22, by Electioneer; Carrie C. 2:24, by Electioneer; Sweet Water 2:26, by Stamboul; Lucyneer 2:27, by Electioneer; Mary Osborne 2:28½, by Azmoor; Anselma 2:29½, by Ansel, and Wild Maid 2:30, by Wildnut.

S. A. Hooper, owner of that good looking and fast stallion Switzer 2:13½, writes us that this son of Secretary will make the season of 1901 at his home at the Gibbs ranch at Yountville, Napa county. Thirty-two mares have already been booked to Switzer and as he is much thought of in that county there is no doubt but he could make a very big season, but Mr. Hooper intends to race him and will not permit him to serve more than forty mares.

OCCIDENT 2:16½.

The first California bred horse to gain a world's trotting record.

P. W. Hodges roan pacer by Dictatus worked a mile at San Jose last week in 2:14½. He is a sure crackerjack as the effort did not make him tired in the least, and he was ready to kick up his heels five minutes afterwards when he heard a horse go by at speed. Mr. Hodges has had several offers for him but is reluctant about selling, as he thinks he can win many races with him this year.

Two more of the McKinney family have trotted in standard time. The mare Sweet Marie that won a matinee race at Los Angeles on Christmas Day in 2:24 is a daughter of McKinney, and another daughter, Maud McKinney, won a race at Riverside matinee New Year's Day in 2:29. As there was no admission fee charged and no trophies of any kind raced for, these performances do not constitute records, however.

Will Welch has a pacer in his string at Pleasanton that is known there as the Honolulu horse, as it is owned by a resident of the islands. It is a bay gelding called G. D. Bennett and is very fast. Mr. Welch drove him a mile last year in 2:16½, which is pretty fast for a green horse that has never raced. G. D. Bennett is by the Yolo county stallion Alex Button, and his dam is a running bred mare.

The time, by quarters, of three most recent miles that constituted new trotting records was as follows: Nancy Hanks 0:31, 1:02½, 1:32½, 2:04; Alix, 0:30½, 1:01½, 1:32½, 2:03½; The Abbot, 0:31½, 1:02½, 1:31½, 2:03½. It will be noticed that the only quarter as fast as a two-minute gait was the third quarter by The Abbot, in 0:29½, while his first quarter was considerably slower than that of either of the mares. This shows the advisability in such supreme tests of keeping as much as possible in reserve to finish with.

Zephyr, a filly foaled in 1898, bred and owned by Mr. C. A. Winship, trotted a quarter the other day over the Los Angeles track in 34 seconds, last eighth in 16 seconds. Zephyr is by Zombro 2:11 out of Gazello 2:11½ (dam of Zolock 2:10½) by Gossiper. Zephyr is considered a crackerjack by the Los Angeles horsemen and is said to very much resemble her sire in appearance. A big price was refused for her recently. Mr. Winship owns another filly of the same age by Zombro out of Vernie McGregor that showed a quarter in 37½ seconds lately.

A. B. Gwathmey of New York, has re-purchased of Charles Weiland the beautiful bay trotting mare Salient, by Wicklife. Mr. Gwathmey brought the mare from Virginia a few years ago and drove her on the Speedway until he exchanged her with Mr. Weiland for Lorna McGregor. She is one of the handsomest and most perfectly mannered road mares in New York. On one occasion not long ago she won a brush from David B. 2:08½, and on Sunday, December 30th, she defeated Franker 2:14½.

James Butler will not sell the fast mare Hetty G. 2:05½, although Anaconda, Coney and Gayton will go to the auction block in February. Mr. Butler in giving his reason why she will not be sold, said: "She has been lame since I got her, and may not stand training. Should she threaten us at all, why, I'll breed her to Direct. That ought to be a pacer, eh? You can tell 'em I'll sell the rest of them, though, for I'm going to race my own horses from now on. Heretofore I've made a lot of reputation for a lot of stallions owned by other breeders, but I have now shifted my tactics."

C. E. Morrison, who has his training stables at 260 Second street, Oakland, has seven head of horses and colts in his stable at present and is jogging them on the roads. Among them is the fast but heretofore high strung mare Lady B. by Balkan that is going nicely now and looks as though 2:12 would not stop her. A two year old pacer by Woodmark looks like a good one and Mr. Morrison says he expects to receive in a few days a two year old filly by McKinney out of a Guy Wilkes mare that he says is the best prospect he ever saw and that she looks and acts like ready money.

The annual report of Agricultural District No. 40, which has been completed by Secretary C. F. Thomas and published in the Woodland Democrat, occupies a page of that journal and is the most complete report we have ever seen from the pen of a district secretary. It shows every item of the receipts and disbursements and is preceded by an excellent article on the resources of Yolo county, which comprises the district. Agricultural District No. 40 gave the most successful fair held in the State in 1900 and the manner in which its affairs are conducted is worthy of emulation by other district associations. Secretary Thomas is especially entitled to praise for his work.

The way I cure thrush, and I have never failed to bring about a perfect cure, is as follows, says a horseman: First remove all the decayed portion of the frog by tearing it away. Do not use a knife—cutting the frog in any manner is injurious to its health. Take a rope about three-eighths of an inch thick, soak it somewhat in hot water, use no soap—and draw it through the crevice of the frog and along its sides so as to thoroughly cleanse it of any deleterious matter. Then pack into the crevice and all around where there is any appearance of thrush powdered borax. This is a simple and sure cure, and it cannot have any deleterious effect upon the parts or upon the system.

P. C. Knox and two or three other horsemen of Pittsburg will take a try at the team record next year, with good chances in favor of their placing the mark a notch or two lower. With Wirt and B. C., a $20,000 team, Mr. Knox has a pair noted for manners, speed and beauty. He intends that they shall trot under official conditions. Harry Darlington also has a fast team in his recent purchase, Dr. Buckner and Maltby, By hooking Dr. Buckner to pole with Dr. Middlemay he thinks he will have a faster team. So far as looks go they make a splendid pair, and as both possess speed they should go a fast mile when they are keyed up. He also has a fast pair by Wilton that will be prepared for a speedy mile. J. D. Callery also has a team in Stranger 2:12½ and King Humbert 2:19½ that he thinks will have a chance of lowering the mark. They are said to be faster than Guy and Ferris, that have poled a mile in 2:13½.

The American Horse Breeder has this story about a famous mare: "The trick by which Uncle John Sherman won the race in the dark by driving across the track in a cow path reminds us of a race that occurred in Mystic Park years ago, that was finally won by Fanny Wilcox. Fanny, even at that time, was often cranky in scoring, and sometimes made losing breaks during the progress of the race. On the occasion referred to she was so far in the rear that instead of going down to the wire her driver guided her off the track above the distance stand and drove to the stable. Neither the distance judge nor the judges in the stand noticed this, and by some means placed the mare instead of distancing her, as they should have done. The other drivers had business of their own and were not watching Fanny Wilcox. When the next heat was called, Fanny's driver had her out on time, and from that to the end of the race she was so much on her good behavior that she won first money."

A valued correspondent of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN who resides at Sacramento, writes to us suggesting that the California State Agricultural Society open a stako for colts foaled in Sacramento county. Our fair contributor seems to forget that the association referred to is a State institution and would not be doing the proper thing by opening district purses. Sacramento is greatly favored by having the fair held at the capitol and a stake offered by the State Board for foals of that county would raise a demand from every other county to be treated in the same manner. We suggest to our correspondent that she induce the State Fair Club of Sacramento to offer the stake, as it would be the proper body to handle local affairs of this kind. There should be district and county stakes but the State Agricultural Society is not the proper body to offer them. It has been proposed to add Sacramento county to the 40th District, which now comprises Yolo county alone. This is an excellent idea and should it be done a stake for two year olds for that district would not only fill well, but one of the best races on the circuit would result.

THE HORSE IN HISTORY.

In tracing the lines of history, no subject is of more interest to those who are in any way connected, than is that of the horse. It is related by a historian who is unquestionably versed in the subject, that the early history of the horse could be traced to Central Asia, where he is found running the wilds of the plains and deserts. It is supposed by this writer, James H. Sanders, that the horse was first domesticated in Northern Africa or Central Asia. Those of Arabia were, perhaps, the first to attract attention of the European nations, although it is well known that Arabia was one of the latest of the Oriental countries to engage in the raising of horses. Prior to the time of Mohammed, they were scarcely recognized as a part of the possession of an Arab, his riches consisting chiefly in camels, oxen, sheep, and goats, but Mohammed was an enthusiastic lover of the horse, and while he succeeded in engraving upon so large a portion of the Orient his own religious tenets, he also imbued his followers with a large amount of his enthusiastic admiration for his favorite animal. He taught them to love the noble animal, and to show their kindness to him. In fact, it became so strong a hobby with him, that kindness and love of the horse became a part of the religion of all true Musselmans.

Mohammed had his stud, the most magnificent which could be procured, and the Arabian to this day seeks to trace the genealogy of his favorite horse to those supposed to have been bred by Mohammed's favorites. Whatever may be the truth or error of the tradition which ascribes the excellence of the Arabian horse to the fostering care of Mohammed, it is undoubtedly true that it was from the horses of the Orient, and largely from those of Arabia, that Europeans at a later date drew the improvements, especially in the matter of speed. Great Britain was the first country to make a thorough attempt at breeding, with anything like a definite purpose. Britain was overrun at the time with a class of horses notoriously deficient in size, and the first efforts of the people were directed to remedying this defect. The era of improvement began with the conquest of the island by the Saxons by the importations of large horses from Normandy, Flanders, and Germany, the original habitats of the great black race.

The horse family embraces three types, largely dissimilar in some respects, but all possessing the characteristics of the family to which they belong. The first is typically represented by the horse of the Orient, the Arab, the Barb, and the Turk, distinguished for speed and docility, beauty of form, and gracefulness of motion.

The second includes all the modern breeds of draft horses, the cart horses, and are chiefly descended from the great black horses, that, in the wild state, roam over the vast expanse of marsh and forest which have been stretched across the mouth of the Rhine to the east of the Euxine Sea.

The third is seen in the tough shaggy Shetlands, that were originally found in that inhospitable mountainous region which formed the source of the Ganges or Indus, and to the very crest of the great Himalayan Range. From these the more modern Shetland, Welch, and Norwegian ponies were practically descended.

It was from the second class of these horses, the great black horse of Europe, that Great Britain first bred to obtain size. Later on they sought to enthrone more of speed, beauty of form, and gracefulness of action, by the introduction of the blood of the Arab, the Turk, and the Barb. Many years prior to the reign of Charles II horse racing had become a popular amusement and recreation among the people, and from that time it has held first place as an out-of-doors amusement in that country.

It is, therefore, to the long-continued and persistent passion of the people for horse racing that the world is indebted to that course of breeding which has resulted in evolving a race of horses, that on account of the great care bestowed upon their breeding, their standing and purity of lineage, form the first race of domestic animals to which the term "thoroughbred" was applied.

Promiscuous mingling of the horses of the Island of Great Britain was the foundation upon which all the best breeds were built. Normandy, Flanders, and Germany furnished strength and size; Spain and Arabia, docility, beauty, and speed; Egypt, Morocco, Tunis, Arabia, and from the various parts of Europe, the importations of class were carried on until the entire stock had become permeated.

So thoroughly had the passion for the turf taken possession of the people as early as the beginning of the reign of Charles the First, that ability to run and win a race was regarded as a proper test of merit in horses, and those most successful on the turf were the most highly prized for breeding purposes.

The racing calendar was kept in form until 1791, when the English Stud Book took its place, and the standard of admission to the first volume of this book was a creditable performance upon the turf, as shown by the racing calendar, it being taken for granted no horse could be a creditable performer that was not well bred, an assumption that has never yet been found at fault.

Of the Oriental sires imported into England, it is generally admitted that the Godolphin Arabian, really a Barb, imported in 1720, was the last that has proved of any benefit to the English stock, and while this blending of the blood of the Orient with the old houses of England, furnished the foundation, there can not be the slightest doubt of the fact that the care and skill of British breeders in selecting and coupling the stoutest and best of the successful generations, has been a most important factor in the breeding of the Turk, Arabian, and Barb, to all of which the history of tradition has subscribed its power.

From this blood the United States has made many importations since 1850, and to the intermingling with these breeds descended from the stock abandoned by the Spanish invader in early attempts at conquest of the new world, the foundation of the American trotter was unquestionably laid.

Until the rise of Hambletonian, the great father of the American harness, racing family, slight notice was given to the American trotter, outside of the country itself; but before Hambletonian was laid away, in 1876, his descendants had become noted throughout the world, and the horse-owning public of Europe began to cast their eyes towards the most perfect of cross-breeds in existence. Hambletonian's sire was Abdallah, the son of Mambrino, a thoroughbred, and he a son of Messenger, an imported thoroughbred. Hambletonian's dam was by Belfounder, an imported trotter, of a class which at that time had attained some degree of popularity in England. Further back in his Hambletonian ancestry, the thoroughbred largely predominated.

Another noted sire that has left his trace on the history of the American horse, is Mambrino, who was foaled in 1844, and who took his name from Mambrino Chief, a horse owned in New York. Mambrino Chief's sire was a thoroughbred, and his descendants have been largely crossed with those of Hambletonian, with profit to the stock. The Clays, the Bashaws, the Pilots, the latter of which is of French-Canadian extraction, the Morgans of Vermont, the Vermont Black Hawks, the Morrills, the Ethan Allens, the Gold Dusts—all are branches of the same family of Morgans.

The trotting horse is unquestionably the most scientifically bred animal in existence, and in no branch of live-stock breeding is the influence of heredity, the patient, persevering selection with views of perpetuation and improvements of desired quality, more apparent than in the breeding of the trotter.

Russia has given to the world a type from the Orient, known as the Orloff trotting horse, which has attained great celebrity in Russia, where it originated. The Orloff, prominent as he is among the harness performers of his own country and elsewhere in Europe, is no equal of the American trotter, either in speed or endurance.

Mainly from the English thoroughbred, crossed with the heavier breeds, descendants of the great Black horse, came the Cleveland Bays and the Hackneys. France has given to the world a type known as the Percheron or La Perche, a counter-current of Oriental and Arabian blood, and that of the large Black horse family of Europe. The Percheron horse is invariably of a grayish color, and unquestionably this mark is due to his relationship to the Arabian, this being the prevailing color of the horses of Arabia.

Discussing the Percheron horse, there is little doubt but for draft purposes, he is the most selected and profitable of all the heavy breeds. He is famous for his capacity to travel at a comparatively rapid pace while drawing a heavy load. The pony type of the horse family, descendants of the shaggy stock found in the Himalayan Range, is the Shetland, the best known representative of this class that exists. The chief purpose for which the Shetland is used is as playthings for children. It may be said that the Shetland is the toy of the horse world.

American Mustangs, Bronchos, and Ponies are degenerate descendants of the Barb horses, brought over and abandoned by the early invaders of Mexico and South America.

The history of the horse is long, varied, and full of deep interest, but through it all the one great source of pleasure and congratulation is found in the living fact that the science of breeding to produce speed is to be credited with all the worthy improvements that have been made in class. It was the desire for speed that moved nations to foster the industry of horse breeding, the fact being recognized that perfection in this was the acme of glory in the horse.

News From the North.

[From Portland Rural spirit.]

The U. S. transport Thyra loaded 530 horses and mules here this week for Manila.

Pat Barry says it will take $1000 in gold coin to get a deed to his McKinney colt out of a mare by Gossiper.

Remember there will be a $1000 stake for 2:15 pacers and one for 2:20 trotters at the Oregon state fair next year. Get your material ready.

There are enough men in this city interested in driving to form a genuine driving club, if they would only get together and work together along intelligent lines.

Leon Cohen is driving the bay gelding Rockford, a son of Caution-Warwick Maid, on the road this winter. This fellow has a nice way of going and Mr. Cohen thinks he will do to prepare for the races.

Thos. Clancy Sr., of Seattle is wintering his horses Freddy C., and Direct C., at Pleasanton, Cal. They will be campaigned in the East, probably coming to the Oregon State fair for the races.

Emmett Williams spent most of the holidays out on his farm mixing up a little nature with Blackstone and enjoying himself looking at his fine McKinney two year old colt out of Alice M., (full sister to Trumont 2:21½) by Altamont; second dam Minnie by Rockwood; third dam Sally M.; (dam of Pathmont 2:09½) and Altao 2:09½) by Pathfinder.

J. B. Stetson has returned to Portland for the winter leaving his stable of trotters at Boise, Idaho, in good hands to be looked after during the winter months. Mr. Stetson will return to Boise early in the season and take charge of his stable for the season's campaign. He says Boise will give a rousing big meeting this year and if proper arrangements can be made for grounds, a new track will be built for future meeting. The business men having subscribed $5000 towards holding the fair, and nothing will be left undone to make the meeting a success.

Mr. V. Maulsby of Wichita, Kas., arrived in this city last Saturday for the purpose of looking at the stallion Claymont that has been advertised for sale in the Rural Spirit for the past few months, with the view of buying him if he was as good as represented in the advertisement. So well was he pleased with him, that he immediately wired Dr. J. E. Oldham of Wichita, Kas., for whom he is buying the horse, that he had closed the bargain and that he would ship him by express in order to prevent any accident that might happen by freight.

Claymont is by Altamont-Tecora, and is a full brother to Chehalis 2:04½, Del Norte 2:08, Touchet 2:15, Tenino 2:19½, Lyla 2:27, Coquette 2:30, and is one of the best young stallions that was ever bred in this State. He is a horse of even more substance than any of his full brothers, and while he may not possess the speed of his pacing brothers, he has size, form and individual merit that commends him very highly as a sire.

Claymont is a square trotter, with no inclination to pace, and we predict a mark inside the 2:20 list this season. He was sold by E. W. Spencer and Sam Casto of this city, both of whom regretted to see him go. He was shipped last Tuesday, and will be placed at the head of Dr. Oldham's breeding farm near Wichita, Kas., where, we are informed, he will have a splendid home.

SPOKANE NOTES.

D. B. Stewart is jogging Alteno and Alcounter, a green pacer, preparatory for this year's racing.

Thos. Griffith is jogging a Hambletonian Mambrino mare, a Duke of Portland mare and a Delpho filly.

There is some talk of having a rousing race meeting at Spokane, and also having a horse show in connection.

H. W. Leel, Spokane, has two McKinney colts. Olene is the dam of one and the other is out of a full sister to Chehalis.

Mr. Boyd, who was with the Bitter Root Stock Farm for many years, is going to start a brood farm and has 12 head of fine brood mares as a beginner.

W. H. Boyd, of Spokane, is jogging the following horses: Winona Maid, four year old trotter by Inca 2:25, by Woodford Mambrino, first dam Vista by Nutbreaker; Honey Brook, four year old by Arrowpin by Nutbreaker, first dam Kate Dawson by Capoul. He is also jogging his stallion Bitter Root, preparing him for races this year; a three year old by Bitter Root which shows lots of speed, first dam Lena, by Aleto; a three year old filly, full sister to Caryle Carne. She promises to outstrip her swift brother.

Lute Lindsay is jogging Arab 2:20; a green trotter, whose dam is a full sister to Vanquish, and a two year old pacer by King Altamont, which he will enter in the colt races. Lute has his old standby, Hambletonian Mambrino, who will be placed in the stud this spring. Lute is suffering from a wrenched knee. We hope he will soon be around again. He is also jogging Lady Shot Three, a very promising mare, and a five year old green pacer, belonging to E. N. Jones, Babe Chapman, owned by Dr. Coyne, and a Warwick Medium mare owned by A. Petersen.

THE SADDLE.

It is now stated that Beau Gallant will race around New York next season. When purchased by Senator McCarren it was generally understood that he represented Richard Croker and that the colt was intended for England. Now Beau Gallant and Bellario will both race here, unless present plans miscarry.

So Odom is not going to Europe after all. It is stated that he will ride for Clarence M. Mackay, who will maintain a large stable, with Charles Hill as trainer. Mr. Mackay's colors were carried to the front in the first trial by Banastar, whose horse he purchased at the sale of the late W. H. Clark, for whom Banastar won the Brooklyn Handicap of 1899. The only start of this horse in 1900 was at the Empire City track, when he proved conclusively he was still in the ring.

Sir Walter's first and only representative on the turf this season will be The Talisman, a two year old colt that claims Ida K. as his dam. The Talisman is owned by Mr. H. K. Kapp, owner of Sir Walter, and has been well entered in the two year old stake events of the year. His career, which, it is to be hoped, may prove successful, will be followed with interest by the many friends of his owner and admirers of his sire.

Dr. Hasbrouck, the speedy sprinter of nearly a decade back and popular sire, has been in Missouri for some seasons, but will this year be in Kentucky. He is now at Balgowan in the hands of Capt. Thomas J. Clay.

Uncle Dan Harness, the owner of Imp, has decided to retire the famous black mare from the turf and will breed her to some famous stallion. She goes to the stud perfectly sound and is retired solely for the reason that it is impossible to get her a place in races without handicapping her with weight that renders her success difficult if not impossible. During the four years of her turf career she has won fifty-eight races, besides finishing inside the money on numerous other occasions. One of her best performances was in the last Brighton Handicap, where carrying 129 lbs. and conceding weight to every horse of a very high class field, she finished a close third in a mile and quarter run in 2:04 3-5, a marvelous race considering the weight carried and the extremely fast pace set throughout.

Hermoso is something of a dog, and showed the white feather in his last two essays very badly. On both occasions he looked to be winning in the stretch and quit badly when challenged.

Ike Morehouse, the Montana turfman, made quite a clean up with Esperando on Tuesday. The black gelding was not supposed to like a route as long as seven furlongs and consequently the books layed as good as eights about him. He was quickly backed down to fours and, making his own pace throughout, won rather handily.

Lou Rey has shown great improvement in the hands of her new trainer and has won three straight races. Her last effort was at a mile and a quarter, in which she made Malay, Locochee and Topmast look very cheap.

A dispatch from New Orleans states that Jockey Coburn has arrived there, but the officials have decided not to allow him to ride.

The representatives from the Schorr Stable keep the public guessing as to what they will do in their various races. These horses seem to have absolutely no form; one day running most disgracefully and on their next essay beating better fields than those which beat them the day before. Then when they are believed to have gotten into shape, they will drop back into the ruck again.

Entries for the rich Washington Park stakes close next Tuesday, January 15th. Don't neglect to make entries in time. Blanks can be had at this office.

Procure the necessary blanks and make your entries in time for the rich stakes offered by the Washington Park Club of Chicago. The blanks can be had at this office and the stakes with amount added and conditions will be found in our advertising columns.

The American Derby has $20,000 added this year. It will be the greatest race of the first year of the new century in America. Entries close next Tuesday.

The Pride is in great form at present, having won both of his starts at Oakland this season. His first effort was at six furlongs with a very fair class of sprinters, which he defeated rather handily. On Saturday he started in the Naglee Selling Stakes, a $1500 event; and although off absolutely last gradually worked his way through the bunch and catching Meehanus and Ordnung half way down the stretch, finally won by a length from Meehanus; Grand Sachem came fast at the end and snatched the show money from Ordway by a nose.

Although the racing season of 1900 has only just concluded, the majority of the leading jockeys in England have already completed their arrangements for next year. Some of their intentions have already been made known, but the following claims are worthy of publication: H. Jones, for his royal highness, the Prince of Wales; M. Cannon, for Kingsclere and Egerston house stables; C. Jenkins, for Lord Soltykoff; the brothers Reiff, for Lord William Beresford and Wishard's stable; F. Rickaby, for Lord Durham and Bedford Lodge; S. Leates, for Sir J. B. Maple; O. Maddon, for James Waugh's stable; K. Cannon, for Mr. L. de Rothschild and M. T. Cannon; D. Maher, for Blackwell's stable, and W. Lane, for Mr. R. S. Sievier.

Among the callers at this office during the week was Mr. Elmer Lawrence, of New Orleans, who has been elected Secretary of the Montana Jockey Club, that will begin a season of racing on the 29th of June this year. Races will be given at Butte and Anaconda and last sixty days, after which there will be two or three weeks at Helena and Great Falls. Mr. Lawrence is now Assistant Secretary of the Crescent City Jockey Club and returned to New Orleans last Wednesday. At the close of the meeting there he will return to California and secure the attendance of as many horsemen as possible for the Montana circuit. Montana is a great place for racing, one of the peculiar features being that the miners all have money and like to back their favorite horses, but will not stand for bookmaking, preferring the mutual system of betting. Mr. Lawrence is no stranger in Montana, having acted as assistant secretary to Ed Tipton when the latter was in that State as manager of the racing there. Mr. Lawrence states that a number of stakes will be announced soon and every effort made to arrange a program that will attract a good class of thoroughbreds from California. Horsemen will find at the close of the season here that the Montana circuit will offer many advantages, and we look to see a very large number ship direct to Butte at the close of the season here.

Dandy Jim, with Turner in the saddle, ran a very different race from his last essay when E. Matthews had the mount. He was an even money favorite and won with ridiculous ease; although Intrepido might have given him a contest if he had not been pocketed all through the stretch.

Mr. G. W. Cushing, the Superintendent of Tanforan Park, had the pleasure of seeing his colors borne to victory by Saintry in the second race last Thursday week. Saintry went to the post at the remunerative odds of thirty to one and it is reported that Mr. Cushing had quite a good bet down at that figure.

Articulate, the brown colt by St. Andrew-Utter, owned by W. C. de B. Lopez, showed himself to be a youngster of very high class, running six furlongs in 1:13 1/4 with 122 lbs. up, and making the field opposed to him look very cheap. It is said that an offer of $10,000 has been refused for this colt which is well entered in a number of stakes, among which is the California Derby for which he looks to be a very promising candidate. Although classed as a three year old at this date, and forced to pick up the three year old weight, he will not be full three years old until the latter part of next May.

The Blingum handicap was won by the uncertain Bathos, with Herculean in the place, and Dr. Bernays, the favorite, third. The winner was well backed, as is usually the case when he wins. Dr. Bernays ran a most disappointing race, and Herculean showed sudden improvement.

Buchanan is showing very poor form in the saddle just at present and has allowed himself to be beaten out in nose finishes when he should have won handily on several different occasions.

Trainer Murry says that Yankee Dame, the two year old filly which gave Dorine such an argument, is the fastest breaker he ever saw.

Little J. Walsh had the backers of Telaman very much worried in his last race. The colt was pounds and pounds the best and should have won by himself. Master Welch made such a wide turn at the head of stretch that Malay coming up on the inside and hugging the rail made up all the lost ground and came dangerously close to beating him out, Telaman gaining the verdict by the narrowest of margins.

Catalogues for the sale of the Marcus Daly horses will be issued soon. There have been a number of inquiries for them, and it looks as though there would be several bids sent on from California.

It is reported that Senator Clark of Montana will be a heavy bidder at the coming sale of the Daly horses in New York.

It is reported that the Tanforan association will drop the claiming clause out of many of its selling races which will be run at its future meetings this season. The claiming clause is an excellent thing where racing is a sport, but when it develops into a business, as it is now in California, large fields and lively betting are the requisites, no matter if $5000 horses run in races at a value of $500.

Gene Leigh will be present at the sale of Daly horses the last two days of this month, in New York. He not only has carte blanche to make purchases, but will endeavor to obtain the mighty Hamburg for Mr. Gardiner, as that gentleman is anxious to establish a stud that will be the equal of any in the British Empire.

M. A. Gunst is of the opinion that the price of admission to race tracks in this country should be raised to $2, and gives as a reason that it would keep from the track that element that ought to be at home looking after their business instead of attending the races. There is no doubt but catering to bettors who can only pay a small admission fee is bad in principle, and that the raising of the admission price would help matters some, but a much more effective way to accomplish the result would be to abolish the dollar book and permit no bookmaker to accept less than a $5 wager.

Wandering Nun has a big lusty colt at her side down at La Siesta Farm that has for its sire Chas. Boots' good stallion Brutus. The colt arrived January 5th and will have a chance at the following rich stakes in which his dam is named: The San Francisco Futurity, The Produce Stakes to be run at Brighton Beach, The Futurity, $10,000 added, to be run at the Coney Island Jockey Club meeting, and The Matron, $6000 added, to be run at Morris Park. All these events are for two year olds and will be decided in 1903.

It is thought that this year's Futurity will be the richest prize of its kind ever offered in America. Its value is estimated at $75,000. The Futurity was inaugurated in 1888. The first winner of it was Proctor Knott and the value that year was $40,000. Chaos won it in 1889, the figures being $54,530. In 1890 Potomac was victorious and $67,675 was cut up. His Highness carried off the honors in 1891, the prize amounting to $62,675. Since then the purse has been systematically smaller. Ballyhoo Bey was the Futurity winner last season and the purse was $33,790.

In the Century stakes, which has a cash value of $10,000, a famous entry has been received. It is a weight for age race at a mile and a half, to be run at the autumn meeting at Sheephead. The fifty-nine entries are: Sarmatian, Jack Point, McMeekin, Prince of Melbourne, Ethelbert, Batten, Bellario, Beau Gallant, Ildrim, Alcedo, Kinley Mack, Bonibert, Mortallo, Black Fox, Irritable, Blues, Belvino, Zeus, Imp, Martimas, Demurrer, Dr. Barlow, Commando, Toddy, Conroy, Tommy Atkins, Militant, Outlander, Choir Master, Water Color, St. Elias, Phosphor, Sweet Lavender, Beau Ormonde, Banastar, Smile, Bedeck, Janice, Vitellius, McClurg, Standing, Chuctanunda, Rockton, Douro, Alvard Scheck, Tammany Chief, Sam Phillips, Dangerline, Lady Schorr, Far Rockaway, Basuto, Terminus, Box, Garry Herrman, His Lordship, Sidney, Lucas, Ballyhoo Bey, Star Bright and The Parader.

The following is the assignment of weights for the Follansbee high weight handicap at seven furlongs, which is to be run to-day: Waring 140, Vesuvian 137, Meehanus 130, Gold Or 132, Gibraltar 130, Eddie Jones 130, F. W. Brode 128, Vulcain 128, Tillo 128, Autumn 128, Andrisa 127, Yellow Tail 127, Wooster Boy 123, Formero 123, St. Cuthbert 123, Rolling Boer 122, Jerid 114, Babbler 115, MacGyle 113, Bard of Avon 113, Dangerous Maid 113, Lothian 112, Alleviate 112, Tyr 111, First Tenor 110, Boundleo 108, Mortgage 108, King Carnival 108, Scallawag 108, Cougar 108, Bab 108, Doublet 107, Golden Age 122, Canmore 122, Joe Frey 119, Articulate 120, Herculean 118, Handicapper 118, Specific 117, Torsino 117, Telamon 116, Kenilworth 116, Panamint 116, Beau Ormonde 116, Jerry Hunt 115, Prejudice 115, Don Orsino 115, Broadbrim 115, Matt Hogan 103, The Benedict 103, Courtier 103, Vain 103, Gold Badge 101, Gartalee 100, Onyx 100, El Fonso 100, Mithridates 100, Sinti 100, Sarah O. 100, Bonitary 100, Kingstelle 100, Sebastiania 100, Joe Doherty 100, Daniel 100

The Fretter ran a remarkably good race in the Crescendo handicap, coming from behind and beating out Lennep and Lady Meddlesome. Mounce seems to handle The Fretter to better advantage than any other boy who has ridden him of late. Bullman and others making the running in front with him and dying away in the stretch. The Fretter does not like a route and Mounce nurses him along and always has something left with which to finish.

Eddie Dominick heads the list of winning jockeys for the year 1900. This youngster, who has come to the front rapidly within the last two years, rode in exactly 1000 races and earned brackets 241 times. This record, while not equal in percentage to that of Tommy Burns in 1899, who rode 282 winners in 900 attempts, is a remarkable one in many respects, showing, as it does, how a boy may ride into the front ranks from comparative obscurity all within two years. There are a number of jockeys who may be rated above Dominick in ability by turfmen, but probably few turf followers, if asked to name the leading winning rider for 1900 would guess that the little fellow under contract to Fred Cook was the fortunate one. The low weight, however, at which he can ride has kept Dominick busy and given him the opportunity to head the jockey table. Dominick began riding at New Orleans in the winter of '98-'99, where he had six mounts and failed each time to land a piece of the money for his employers. From there he went to St. Louis and began to show marked ability. He rode 31 winners in 153 races, and then went to Chicago. He rode at Harlem and Hawthorne, where his success was less marked, and completed the season with a record of 49 firsts out of 293 mounts.

San Francisco, Saturday, January 12, 1901.

AMATEUR RECORDS have started a discussion among the turf papers and their contributors that is getting acrimonious in spots. Many of the bitter things that have been said were entirely out of order, and as our legal friends say in court, "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial." It all started from a race won by the California horse, John A. McKerron, at the matinee given by the Boston Driving Club at Readville last year, when he won the race in straight heats, trotting them in 2:10 and 2:11. It was the first race for a magnificent cup, and the horse, which is owned by Mr. H. K. Devereux, represented the Cleveland Driving Club in the event, which will occur annually until the trophy is won three times by the same organization. Mr. Devereux desired to race his horse this year on the regular circuit and asked the Board of Review to declare the 2:10 made by John A. McKerron in the cup race no record, claiming that it was not a public race in the meaning of the National rules. There is no use repeating all of the circumstances. They have been published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and every other turf journal in the land and all horsemen are familiar with them and the decision of the Board, which was against Mr. Devereux. Situated out here on the Pacific Coast, far removed from the strife and turmoil which the discussion of this matter has kicked up, we believe we are entirely unbiased in this matter, and after a careful reading of all the arguments pro and con that have reached us, we cannot see wherein the Board of Review has erred, except in the closing paragraph of their decision, where they say "when a cup cannot be won, or in other words is a perpetual challenge cup, heat winners in contests for it do not acquire a record or bar." There is not one shadow of a doubt that President Devereux and all the members of the Cleveland Club, the Boston Club and the other amateur organizations of America are earnest and honest in their efforts to build up the great sport of amateur racing and that they fully believe that this decision is a serious blow to them. From time immemorial there has been an effort to draw an impartial and exact line between professionalism and amateurism in all sports and a final result has not yet been reached. The trouble invariably arises when a person is desirous of taking part in both ends of the game, and will continue to arise under those circumstances, we apprehend, until the end of time. In our humble opinion amateur and professional harness racing would both receive a serious blow should the parent associations ever decide that a horse could be raced for cups and other trophies at a stated public gathering, no matter whether gate receipts were charged or not, and no record given him when winning a heat. Such a decision would give wealthy owners and others who were so situated as to take advantage of the opportunities a chance to develop and educate horses in actual races and after proving them to be able to compete in the free for all purses, enter and race them in the slow classes. It would not be either right or fair. It is true that amateur racing has been a tremendous aid in advancing the prices of trotting and pacing horses, and, according to the rules of racing, the majority of the events pulled off at matinees are not public races, but these are not reasons why a heat or a race for a cup, or for an interest in a cup is not a race. The cup race at Readville was widely advertised. Thousands of people took note of the time set for the race and were in attendance. Judges and timers were in the stand, and the association under whose auspices the race was given was a member of the National Trotting Association. If it was not a public race within the meaning of the rule then a public race was never trotted. We know there is a great deal of feeling over this matter and Mr. Devereux has stated, it is reported, that owing to the decision he has reconsidered his intention of racing his great young stallion this year on the Grand Circuit and will only start him in club races. We hope the report is untrue and that John A. McKerron will be given an opportunity to demonstrate to the satisfaction of all that he is able to compete in races with the best trotters in America of the 2:10 class. It seems to us that a horse winning a heat in a competition for a cup which he did not win is as much entitled to a record as a horse winning a heat in a $20,000 race which he afterwards failed to win. A true sportsman should set more value on a cup than a purse, and if his horse demonstrates his ability to trot in 2:10 in a race for a valuable trophy, which is duly programmed and takes place at a stated time, he should not ask the privilege of starting him outside that class in races for money. A trainer may work a horse for months and pace or trot him many miles in very fast time; he may work him heats and in company, but it is the actual contest which tests his qualifications as a race horse, and this is the test the parent associations have set up for records. Whether a horse starts for money or for marbles makes no difference so long as he is contesting for something of value, and if he wins a heat he should be given a record.

HARNESS RACING will not be a very prominent feature of the Montana Circuit this year. There will be nearly eighty days of racing in that State, beginning June 29th at Butte, and including shorter meetings at Anaconda, Great Falls and Helena, but the program in each instance will be made up principally of running events. The officials of the track will be gentlemen who are closely connected with the running tracks and the circuit will be arranged primarily to accommodate the thoroughbred. Secretary Lawrence, who was in San Francisco this week, made this statement to the editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and stated that he expected from four to five hundred runners would go from California to Montana to take part in the races. "There will probably be some good purses offered for the harness horses," said Mr. Lawrence, "but the program will be principally for the runners." This being the situation it would be a very wise thing on the part of the district associations in California if they would make up their programs almost entirely of harness events. Very few district associations can afford to give purses of any respectable size for the runners. Owners of gallopers will not enter where entrance fees are charged and it is out of the question for the district associations to attempt to give even ordinary purses without entrance money being required. It will bankrupt any association that tries it. Six months' high class racing here in the vicinity of San Francisco during the fall, winter and spring months makes the running racing provided at county fairs seem very tame, and there is no demand for the sport after the season closes here. If the district associations of California will devote their racing program to harness events, put their tracks in first class condition for them, and make an effort to secure the best horses in training, they can give meetings that will not only be successful from a racing point of view but be a source of profit to the organizations. Let there be a united effort to make a California harness racing circuit this year that will reflect credit on both associations and horsemen. It can be done with intelligent effort and energetic work.

A BILL has been introduced in the California Legislature providing for the improvement of the Fair Grounds at Sacramento, authorizing the State Agricultural Society to sell a portion of the present property and to purchase adjoining land, and appropriating the sum of $100,000 for this purpose. There is a great future before California as the base of supplies for the entire Orient, and if properly encouraged the industries of cattle, sheep and horse breeding in this State can be increased a hundred fold and be one of the greatest sources of wealth in the world. China, Japan, Russia, Hawaii, the Philippines and Australasia are already coming here for the best products of our farms and this trade can be developed until it assumes gigantic proportions and makes California the leading supply depot for all breeds of live stock. There is nothing that encourages the production of high class cattle and horses like an annual fair, and stock show, and there is no reason why the California State Fair should not eventually take the very first position among exhibitions of this character. The greatest handicap in the past in giving a high class fair at our State capitol has been the poor accommodations for stock and the miserable buildings, some of which have the moss of forty years on them. The bill introduced by Senator Devlin aims to provide a modern fair ground, and no appropriation made by the Legislature will bring quicker or more profitable returns on the money invested. With proper accommodations the State Fair can be made the greatest stock show in America and bring to this State each year hundreds of buyers for the best products of California farms.

THERE ARE RUMORS of much race track legislation being brought to the attention of our law makers at Sacramento this winter. About the best thing that could be done with the many bills that will be introduced is to consign them to the waste basket. Racing is either a legitimate sport and enterprise or it is not. The schemes to place it under State control, to limit the season, and to interfere in other ways with it are no more entitled to a place on the statutes than would be measures that placed the same restrictions on golf or football. The associations and clubs that give racing in California are fully conscious of the fact that the public is ever ready to prohibit any sport or business that it thinks is a menace to the community. The racing of thoroughbreds has developed into a business here in California and at other great centres of population like New York, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans. It is conducted in as clean and honest a manner as strict and watchful officials can keep it, and will compare favorably with any other business of a speculative nature. The State can ill afford to meddle with it and it is to be earnestly hoped that our legislators will not waste the public money in efforts to fix laws for its government. The bill that prohibits gambling on contests outside of the places where the contests are held is a good one. It makes no attempt to regulate racing or interfere with it in any way, but will simply put an end to gambling games that have no excuse for existence. It should be passed at once, and all efforts to control racing should be sidetracked.

HOLIDAY EDITIONS have been issued by the majority of our turf exchanges and all are worth much more than the money asked for them. The Horse Review easily leads them all, its pages being filled with statistics that no other journal contains and which represent an immense amount of labor and research. The Horseman also has issued a very valuable edition, interesting in every page, while the Kentucky Stock Farm, the Kansas City Horse Show Monthly, the Rider and Driver and the New York Spirit of the Times are fully up to the standard of excellent holiday journals. The Chicago Breeders' Gazette is in a class by itself, as it devotes its columns principally to cattle, sheep, hogs and heavy horses. Its illustrations surpass anything we have seen in the photo-engraving line, and no more artistic magazine has ever been issued. It leads all journals of its class in America.

MURRAY HOWE, the well known writer on harness horse affairs, has our thanks for a copy of his book "Stable Conversation," the greatest satire of turf literature. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has published many of these talks of Jimmy, the Swipe, taken from the Chicago Horse Review, and as our readers well know they are brim full of genuine wit and humor with a large vein of philosophy running through them. These conversations have been collected by their author and published in handsome book form and are for sale by The Horse Review at $1.50 per copy. One of the features of the book are the drawings by Robert L. Diekey, whose pencil point traces lines that would excite laughter in a graven image. "Stable Conversation" is a hundred dollars worth of amusement for a dollar and a half with a big bunch of genuine horse sense thrown in.

SENATOR BELSHAW has introduced in the California Legislature a bill which if it is enacted into a law will close the pool rooms. It absolutely prohibits the selling of pools, or bookmaking on contests between horses, men or dogs, except within the enclosures where such contests actually take place. It is to be hoped that this bill will pass without a dissenting voice and we hold it to be the duty of every horse breeder especially to use his influence in favor of the measure. A letter written or a few words spoken to the member from your district will have its weight. Horse values are decreased by pool rooms and the business of breeding and the sport of racing are injured and brought into disrepute by them. There is not one argument that can be made in their favor. Ask your Senator and Assemblymen to vote to close them up.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association for the election of directors and officers for the ensuing year will take place at the association's headquarters in the Palace Hotel, next Tuesday evening. At the last meeting the following members were placed in nomination for directors, of which eleven are to be selected by ballot at the Tuesday evening meeting: J. C. Kirkpatrick, Ed. Aigeltinger, Geo. L. Sweet, H. F. Patrick, Wm. C. Hamilton, H. B. Slocum, I. B. Dalziel, J. B. Ohlandt, L. Richardson, F. W. Thompson, James O'Kane, A. B. Spreckels, Al. Schwartz, E. Stewart, Frank G. O'Kane, Dr. Geo. W. Leek.

Pacific Bull Terrier Club.

A meeting of the Pacific Bull Terrier Club was held on Monday evening last. In response to a communication received from the San Francisco Kennel Club asking for an expression from the club as to a choice in the selection of a judge for the May show, the sentiment of the meeting was favorable to the engagement of Mr. Chas. H. Mason.

Cocker Club Meeting.

At a meeting of the California Cocker Club held on Tuesday evening at No. 125 Geary street, Mr. J. H. Dorian presiding in the absence of the president W. C. Ralston, much business of importance to the Cocker fancy was transacted. Among the new members enrolled were Miss Ethel H. Tompkins, owner of the Pine Hill Kennels, and C. A. Mauldin. The club will possibly, at the next meeting, adopt a standard for their particular specialty.

In response to a communication from the San Francisco Kennel Club requesting an expression of choice in securing the services of a judge for the May bench show, the members present unanimously favored Mr. C. H. Mason, a committee composed of Messrs. J. H. Dorian, E. C. Plume and H. A. Wegener were delegated to wait upon the San Francisco Kennel Club then in session, and advise the bench show club of the sentiment of the Cocker club in regard to the choice for a judge for all breeds this year.

Pacific Fox Terrier Club.

The Pacific Fox Terrier Club held a regular meeting at 41 Sutter street last Monday evening. N. H. Hickman presiding and Messrs. Foster, Hogan, Harley, Moore, D'Aguin and Martin present.

J. P. Brown of Riverside, Cal., and G. D. Troy of San Francisco were elected members.

A communication from the San Francisco Kennel Club was read, requesting this club to designate its choice for judge at the forthcoming dog show; after considerable discussion, the members unanimously decided to recommend George Raper, of Wincobank, Sheffield, England, and furthermore have notified the S. F. K. Club that if he is selected, this club will subscribe $50 to the guarantee fund.

After the regular routine had been completed the members indulged in a general talk of doggy matters and, judging by the number of promising youngsters under cover, the next show should develop some cracks.

J. B. MARTIN, Secretary.

Bench Show Club Meeting.

The San Francisco Kennel Club meeting held at the Occidental Hotel, last Tuesday evening, was attended by Mr. J. E. de Ruyter, presiding, and Messrs. W. S. Kittle, N. H. Hickmon, E. Courtney Ford, Chas. K. Harley, Dr. F. E. D'Evelyn and Secretary J. P. Norman. Much detail matter concerning the bench show this year was taken up and disposed of.

The club had invited from specialty clubs and prominent fanciers an expression of opinion as to a choice in the important matter of the selection of a judge. In response to this request for collaboration the Cocker Club, through a committee consisting of Messrs. Dorian, Wagener and Plume reported a unanimous preference for Mr. C. H. Mason. The San Francisco Kennel Club members present, with the exception of one, were also favorable to Mr. Mason for judge. The St. Bernard Club of California submitted the name of Miss A. H. Whitney of New York, who has an Eastern reputation as a judge of St. Bernards and has not yet been seen in the ring here. The St. Bernard club offered a certain sum of money towards the guarantee fund in the event of Miss Whitney's judging the May show. The sentiment of the Bull Terrier and Fox Terrier clubs in this matter are noted elsewhere on this page.

The preference for judge will not be settled for a few weeks. It is possible that this matter will evolve quite a little campaigning before a selection can be made and this will be contingent of course upon advices received from the other side—the judge's.

The win of Oakside Tremont, Mr. H. H. Carlton's Boston Terrier who won first in limit at the May show and which was subsequently cancelled by the American Kennel Club, has, on appeal, been allowed to stand. Hereafter the dog must, however, be known as "Tremont," which is his registered name. The prefix Oakside cannot be used in future for this dog.

The Field Trials at Coronado.

On Monday morning the eighteenth annual field trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club will commence with the Derby at North Island, Coronado Beach, San Diego county. The ground selected for the trials embraces about 3000 acres and is said to be an ideal location for running a field trial. This neck of land has practically been the private shooting domain of Mr. E. S. Babcock and his guests. Birds are plentiful, and water, feed and other circumstances have been very favorable for the quails. All impeding and detrimental cover has been removed and the district patrolled for some time past. Weather conditions down south are not so extreme as to cause any apprehension of interference with the trials in this respect.

The attendance at the trials promises to be larger than for years past. This is due in a great measure to the easy and convenient manner of reaching the scene of the trials and the assurance to the visitor when there of every accommodation at one of the best resorts on the Coast and that within ten minutes distance of the trial grounds. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company and the hotel management have both made material reductions in favor of club members and visitors to the trials.

Mr. Thomas Johnson, of Winnipeg, Man., who will judge the trials, was due in this city on Thursday evening. The main delegation from this city left yesterday on the south bound train. Some of the veterans who had not attended a field trial in ten years were among those booked for Coronado.

The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN will be represented at the meeting by Mr. Albert Betz, the Secretary of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club.

Pacific Kennel League Meeting.

The third annual meeting of the Pacific Kennel League was held at San Jose on Saturday, December 29, 1900. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: H. A. Wagener, San Francisco, President; Matt Coffey, Sacramento, First Vice President; Julius Redelsheimer, Seattle, Second Vice President; H. T. Denham, Tacoma, Third Vice President; W. F. Burrell, Portland, Fourth Vice President; N. J. Stewart, Aromas, Monterey county, Secretary-Treasurer.

A petition was read from the Seattle Kennel Club requesting the P. K. L. to adopt a classification somewhat similar to that in force now under the A. K. C. rules. It was felt that while the present P. K. L. Rules were better suited to the requirements of the Pacific Coast when the P. K. L. was formed, at which time the shows had dwindled down to three shows, yet at the present time when the organization has seven shows booked for the coming season, that the A. K. C. classification could be adopted with advantage here. The following classification was accordingly adopted.

1. The Puppy Class shall be for all dogs over four months and under twelve months of age, and no entry can be made of one under four months or whose date of birth, breeder, sire or dam is unknown.
2. The Limit Class shall be for all dogs never having won four first prizes in said class, at any recognized show, but no dog having acquired the title of champion shall be eligible to this class.
3. The Open Class shall be for all dogs of any age over six months. No prize winner shall be debarred from competing.
4. The Winners' Class shall be open only to the winners of first prizes at any show giving all of the above classes, and the winner of five wins in this class will thereby become a champion of record, and will be so recorded in the Pacific Kennel League Record of Wins, and will be entitled to a Pacific Kennel League Champion Certificate. Before awarding "Reserve" in this class, the dog or dogs having been placed second to the winner in any of the regular classes must be brought before the judge for competition with the remaining dogs in said Winners' Class.

No class winner shall be withdrawn or withheld from competition in the Winners' Class and no entry fee shall be charged for said competition in this class. The Winners' Class shall be divided by sex, provided the three foregoing classes, announced in the Premium List, are also divided by sex.

N. B. Judges are requested to be particularly careful in awarding a prize in the Winners' Class. While a puppy might be deserving of a first prize in the Puppy Class, it does not follow that he is worthy of a first in the Winners' Class if alone.

Rule 5. Miscellaneous Class will remain as before. Rule 20 was altered to read: "Bench Show Committee may accept entries of bitches with whelps at side for exhibition only."

It will be noticed that the Novice Class has been cut out altogether. It was claimed that the fewer the classes the better the competition would be. This new classification makes the A. K. C., the C. K. C. and P. K. L. classification practically the same and it is believed ought to simplify matters for exhibitors.

The All-Round Dog.

Considerable notice and comment has recently been given an article which appeared in the Christmas number of the Shooting Times and British Sportsman. Coming from such a well known authority and able writer on kennel affairs as Mr. Fred Gresham we have no doubt the article in question will be of novel interest to our readers.

"It has been a difficult point to decide by the one-dog man what breed of animal is best suited for his purpose. By the one dog man it is to be understood a sportsman who desires to do a bit of shooting, together with ratting, and to engage in the pursuit of all sorts of vermin, and to have an agreeable companion and good guard far the house. This class of dog, even to the most accomplished judge or exponent of kennel matters, must of necessity be a subject for considerable discrimination, whilst it is apparent how almost impossible must be the task of finding one animal uniting in itself the gifts of many. The Pointer or Setter must be discarded at once, as, although both are excellent in the field to find game and can sometimes be made to retrieve, they have not the slightest idea of hunting for and killing rabbits or rats; indeed, it might be expected that the endeavor to teach one of these dogs to act as vermin destroyers would entirely unfit it for its legitimate work.

[The work cut out for the Pointer and Setter in England is not of the versatile character which our dogs are trained for. The Retriever in the field here, acting in concert with the Pointer and Setter is an unknown feature, and possibly would be regarded by many sportsmen as either superfluous or an incubance. Our Pointers and Setters working in brace or singly do all the field work for the gunner, and that so quickly, intelligently and thoroughly that the Retriever, as used in England, would be almost a handicap in the field. Many gunners train their Pointers or Setters to hunt and retrieve rabbits and hares, which game is here very plentiful, and they do clever work of course, but this practice tends to spoil a dog's work on birds and should never be indulged by the owner of a good "bird dog."—Ep.]

The Retriever, maybe, is the most useful of all dogs that are used with the gun; he will hunt a hedgerow, do the work of a Spaniel in turnips or covert, bring the game to you when it is shot, and has been known to take his part at rat-catching. Still, it is such an exception to find one that is tender in the mouth when retrieving fur and feather and hard-bitten when the rodent is under consideration that the dog of this breed that is required for all round purposes is difficult to obtain. Under the same category may be classed the Spaniel, who, although he cannot be surpassed as a good game dog, and is, in fact, preferred by some eminent shots to either of the above, is altogether out of place for anything except as a chum and to lie upon the hearth rug when his duties are over.

It would be useless to take into consideration any of the various breeds of Hounds, although the Basset-Hound and Beagle, like the Clumber Spaniel, are remarkable for their prowess in thick covert when game is to be driven to the gun, but here their utility ends as dogs for general use; and, as regards any of the larger varieties that hunt their game by sight and kill the fact of their not putting their noses to the ground entirely does away with their usefulness as sporting associates when it is desired to combine the work of the Pointer, Retriever and Terrier in one dog.

With the exception of the Poodle, whose appearance is incompatible with any connection with sport, although he has sometimes been trained to hunt, the Collie is more easily brought under command than any other of the canine race, but his vocation lies in the direction of tending sheep, and his aptitude for finding game and a love for hunting would seriously interfere with his duties. Still, Collies have been known that would do all that is required by the all-round sportsman, even to pointing game, but it is only the exception that proves the rule in this instance.

Of the many varieties of the Terrier tribe, the Fox Terrier is undoubtedly the most popular, his keen love of sport, natural aptitude to associate himself with the gun, and deadly animosity to vermin, together with his many other sporting qualities, making him a most valuable assistant to anyone who spends his life in country pursuits, but he is not large enough to occupy the position for which an endeavor is being made in this article to discover the most versatile representative of dogs. The same remarks apply to the Irish Terrier, who is equally game with the Fox Terrier, but again is deficient in size, although he loses somewhat to the latter from the fact that he is too large to go to ground, but being able to enter an earth to bolt a fox or badger is only a minor consideration amongst the numerous qualifications that are desired.

Having so far enumerated the virtues of the various breeds of possible all-round utility dogs for sport, we now come to the one of all others in which perhaps is to be found a combination of the characteristics which should be portrayed in the animal of which we are making an effort to find a more or less true representative. In the Airedale Terrier is to be seen many points to solve the difficulty to which we have referred. Almost as large as the Retriever, Pointer or Setter, and considerably more so than any other of the Terrier family, which he emulates in gameness and sporting proclivities, he can be broken to hunt and retrieve all descriptions of fur and feather, whilst his undoubted proficiency in the water renders him a valuable adjunct in a hunt after the wily otter. Although unable to go to ground, he is the sworn enemy of the badger and fox, both of whom would have a poor chance of success in a struggle for existence, and, moreover, when the business of the day is over he is a most capable yard dog.

"Man's Best Friend" in holiday attire is to hand this week. The number is liberally illustrated with elegant engravings and full of interesting doggy lore—in other words a fancier's high class journal.

A Fine Trip for Winter.

The following description of wild-fowl shooting and other attendant delights and recreation dear to the heart of the sportsman and lover of nature, all to be found in the region of the Colorado delta, is from the inimitable pen of Thos. S. Van Dyke in the Los Angeles Herald. The country written of is but little known to many of our shooters save that it is looked upon as the southern Ultima Thule of wild ducks, geese and shore birds when they become scarce as the season wanes. Plume hunters have also been ever ready to give those regions a reputation for hardship and inconvenience that practically kept the sportsman away. This narrative discloses so much valuable information to the sportsman that we take the liberty of republishing it in full:

Among the many who know that the Pacific Coast has the most extensive list of summer attractions in our country, few are aware that the winter pleasures, though more limited, are fully equal to those of summer. Ducks and geese with snipe and quail now take the place of trout, deer, grouse, salmon and doves; but the number of sportsmen who enjoy the field is probably greater than in summer, the difference being almost wholly in the fishing.

But the majority of sportsmen enjoy the background almost as much as the game and like a constant variety in scenery, while many more quickly tire of the same old ground and are always in search of something new. For all such a trip to the mouth of the Colorado river in the bright warm days of winter, especially about Christmas, will furnish about the largest amount of novelty now to be found on the Coast at that time of the year.

The absence of regular boats from Yuma to the mouth of the river seems a drawback. But if there were any cheap and easy way of going most of the attractions would now be ruined by a horde of tourists. As it is all that part of the river lies in almost primeval wildness, making exactly what so many wish to see, yet safe and pleasant beyond expectation. The best way is to get up an excursion and charter a boat at Yuma, where there are several good ones with parties who know the river thoroughly and go prepared to stay two or three weeks at least. One can also go by wagon on a very fair road on the Sonora side, but a small boat should be taken along to cross the river when needed. The distance is something over one hundred and fifty miles, but the river route is so pleasant that one wishes it were longer, while the land trip is nothing if one is well prepared.

The first hundred miles or more of the river winds through rich bottoms almost level and covered with a heavy growth of cottonwood and willow, with mesquite of great size taking their place as the bottom lands become dryer, and running from that into ironwood and pala verde, with ocatilla and other varieties of cactus as it slopes out into the dry desert beyond the reach of the water of the river.

Here you may still find in considerable abundance the brightest of his family, the quail of Arizona, or Gambel's partridge. A few days spent with this quail will repay one for all the time spent in reaching the ground, and no matter how well one may know the slippery quail of California as improved by modern guns and the conflict with the best of dogs, one's education on the crested quail of this Coast is wholly incomplete without a good interview with this trickster of the chestnut sap and jetty breast. Here, where he has never heard the sound of a gun and no one ever troubles him, he is full of the most varied wiles. The vast masses of tangled mesquite, whose great snaky arms reach in a thousand directions like the locks of Medusa, give a fine field for the display of his talents; and the arrow weed, dense as quills on the fretful porcupine and eight to ten feet high, assist him in giving you variety when you are weary of his performances in mesquite.

Along each bank of the river are Indians about as primitive as when Coronado came, but perfectly well behaved. Those on the east bank, the Maricopas, are peaceable and polite, while the Cocopahs, on the west, are peaceable with all who attend to their own business. They are perhaps the most independent people in North America. The Mexican government never bothers them, and no one else dares to. They make their own laws, even to the infliction of the death penalty; but if you don't try to fool with the camera and treat them decently you will have no trouble with them anywhere. They are agricultural entirely, and farm the rich bottom of the Colorado in the old Egyptian style from the overflow of the river, having a large territory of the richest soil in America and one well worth seeing.

In the lower part of the Cocopah territory wild flax begins to appear on each side of the river, growing very rank and dense, while tules of great size rise everywhere from the sloughs and lower lands that remain damp from the overflow. All through this some deer live all the time, but the land is so flat that it cannot be hunted to advantage except on horseback, and in many places one cannot see even then far enough to do much with deer. But another animal abounds that will give you far more excitement and variety. Years ago some enterprising American thought the rich feed on these bottoms would make it a good place for a hog ranch. The hogs thought so, too, and have thought so ever since.

All the pork ever harvested has been taken on the wing and mighty little at that. But it is the most exhilarating sport in America, surpassing even the pursuit of the grizzly bear. The ground between the tule patches is well adapted for running, the quality of the ozone is very superior and with a good lively razorback in your rear you can get your mouth wide enough open to inhale the climate to the best advantage. The bright sun and clear dry air are charmingly adapted for displaying to the best advantage the gleam of a five-inch spiral of ivory, with edges like razors and mounted on each side of jaws that pop like dynamite crackers in a bottomless pit of fiery red in a setting of bristly black and brown mounted on legs equal to those of a deer. You need stovepipe leggings for this hunting and it is well to have a lot of dogs to receive the charge while you are ambling for the boat. And it will need several dogs, too, for no matter how brave they may be hardly one of them will be quick enough to dodge the whirling swing of a robust boar about the time he gets his teeth well anchored in the mud-encrusted ham.

While there are some sloughs along the sides all the way down the river in which ducks may be found, it will hardly pay to stop for any of them until you reach the large slough known as Hardy's Colorado. You will see many ducks flying with snow geese and white-fronted geese (white and gray brand), with some Hutchins' geese or "little honkers," as they are called in California, with more flocks of sandhill cranes than can now be seen in any part of the country that is at all settled. If you stop long enough at any one point to find the evening and morning flyways you can get some good shooting on these, for they are very fat on wild flax. It is the common impression that the sandhill crane is one of the bittern or heron family and therefore not good for the table. But it is a graminivorous bird, having nothing in common with the fish eaters, and has no equal on this Coast for good flavor when it has good feed, as it has here. And nothing in America save the wild turkey and the great white sandhill, or whooping crane, is its equal in those wild and wary ways that give the real charm to everything in the line of game.

Huge flocks of white pelicans with black-tipped wings, circling high in the dome of the blue, show that you are nearing salt water and curlew and willet, with other shore birds, trotting along the muddy margins of the stream prove still more strongly that the river is rising and falling a little every day from the tide. Vegetation, too, is growing gradually smaller as the area increases that is overflowed a long time in summer from the high water of the river meeting the high tides of the gulf. On the river itself there is no shooting on ducks or geese, but in some of the sloughs and ponds along this lower part that are formed from the overflow of the river the rush of wild fowl is equal to the best of old-time flights on the western prairies or in the early days of California. Some of these sloughs are some distance from the river and can be located only by seeing the birds flying there or hearing their noise at night. But some are so large and the cover so good that it seems impossible to drive the game out of them. Even the geese would only circle and alight again in some of them, and in most all the bottom is hard enough to allow one equipped for wading to go where one will.

Here one may find about all the varieties of ducks found on the Pacific Coast, though most of them come down the river direct from the great basin of the Rocky mountains in the north. Mallards stream through the air in long, green-necked ranks, the white of the canvasback flickers through the golden haze that rests on the top of the dense masses of tule, the forked rudder of the sprig-tail steers him as gaily along the sky as elsewhere, the plaintive whistle of the widgeon greets us on every breeze that blows across the sloughs, the red-head and the gadwell enliven the scene with their noble presence, while teal and ruddy ducks, with spoonbills and buffleheads whisk here and there, dot the quiet waters of the sunny coves or bask in the sun along the edges.

Outside of the desert there is nothing in California that equals the winter climate of this section. From the middle of November until March the air is well nigh perfect except when some unusual storm is on the Pacific Coast, when it may be cloudy on the river, and even cool and drizzling weather may be met on the edge of a great California storm. But nearly all days are bright and cloudless, with warm air, cool nights and perfect freedom from mosquitos and other insects, as well as malaria. The nights are cool enough and the air of day dry enough to enable you to keep game and take it home if you have a boat large enough to allow you to hang it in the shade.

Near the mouth of Hardy's Colorado vegetation begins to dwindle rapidly from the excessive overflow and high tides, and is entirely gone long before the mouth of the river is reached. Here are vast tracts of alluvium making new territory that in time will give Mexico more good land than we ever got from her. This is perfectly flat for many leagues and in winter, when the river is at its lowest stage, is perfectly dry. The air also contains the very minimum of humidity, and these three conditions make the most perfect combination for mirage such as can be seen nowhere else in America. On the flattened portions of the Colorado desert one may see beautiful lakes, with timbered islands and embowered shores, but they are far away. But on this level plain, lying under an atmosphere that, even on the very edge of the gulf, is as dry as any part of Arizona, the blazing sun cuts queer antics from the moment it swings, like a ball of fire, over the rugged hills of Sonora. Not merely lakes but little ponds and sloughs begin to shine with silvery brightness, not a half a mile away, or even a quarter, but within a hundred yards or even less. And on their shores are cranes and bitterns, and on their bright waters ride ducks so natural that you can hardly keep the gun on your shoulder, well as you know that it is "all in your eye."

At this point on the river you meet the great tidal wave or "bore" of the Colorado. Of course it is very much exaggerated. I spent several days where it is the strongest, and while it is strong enough to rock the boat and probably swamp a badly managed scow, there is no wall of water fifteen feet high with perpendicular face or anything of the sort. At the time of the spring tides it is about eight feet high, and with a decided crest from coming in in a hurry, but there is nothing dangerous or wonderful about it.

As the river winds through many miles of these dry open flats, with the shores becoming ever flatter and wetter, the shore birds of all kinds increase, until at mouth of the river and below them form a sight that probably has no equal on the Pacific water. As far as the eye can reach down the miles of glistening mud that form the shore, snipe, willet and curlew, with dowitchers, turnstones, and waders of every imaginable variety, dot the shores as densely as quail ever dotted a stubble surrounded by hills in California. That charming bird, Wilson's snipe, is about the only one of the long-billed tribe that seems lacking, there being not enough fresh water mud to suit his fastidious taste. All these are easily got at along the shores at low tide, and the tenderfoot who wants something to shoot can here keep his gun hot on birds that are really very good game and that have plenty of feed to keep them in good order.

Here, too, vast flocks of ducks ride the broad waters, darkening, not merely acres of the surface of the gulf, but whole quarter sections, and swinging here and there in great clouds that equal any ever seen on the prairies of the west or in California in the early days. Though many of these are scoters and all of them impossible to get at because of lack of cover, it is none the less a grand and interesting sight for all those who love the action of the wild life of the field quite as much as the size of the bag. Nearly all sportsmen at some time pass the point where the love of killing is predominant while in some it is never so. For all such the scenes at the mouth of this river have now no superior in our country, if in the world.

Though there are fine clams along the mouth of the river and fine oysters lower down on the gulf, there is no fishing in winter worthy of the name. The Colorado salmon is not a salmon at all, is caught with a set line over night and tows in much like a wet rag in the morning and that is about all one can catch in winter. What fishing there may be in summer I know not but do know that you want none of it as long as there is a trout left in the Sierra Nevada. For the same reason you do not need to explore, even in winter, the dreamy lines of hills that enclose this bright ribbon of verdure the Colorado awakes from the desert. Arrayed in the soft tints that the many metals that the sinking sun weaves into the softest and most perfect of all color harmony, they are the most deceptive and dangerous of all the mountains of our country. The mountain sheep yet lingers there in the home of his fathers undisturbed by men and the fact that he is undisturbed is the best of proof that you had better not try to disturb him. For unless you are not only equipped but thoroughly trained for the work, know perfectly well what you can stand and how to get along without guzzling water every five minutes on a hot day, you want to leave in its primeval solitude that worst of the deserts of the world that lies on the west of the lower Colorado and from the deck of the steamer looks so soft and serene that it is all the more dangerous to those who do not understand it.

From Our Exchanges.

In a recent issue of this journal we saw fit to criticize a statement which appeared in the Marysville Democrat. The following in answer thereto places the subject matter in another light and also contains a few germs of reasonable game protection philosophy that are worthy of attention. The question on the limit of the individual bag of ducks per day is one that has many opponents who argue that this comparatively small number is unnecessary and that the requisite protection and good will be accomplished if the limit is raised slightly.

"It undoubtedly is true that all men are to a certain degree selfish, and we do not claim to be an exception. But we do not write of the scarcity of game in this city in the sense conveyed by the esteemed contemporary in the foregoing. Our intent was to show to what extent market hunting is conducted in this vicinity, the game birds being killed and shipped to other markets than this under contract. And again, we desired to show by ample proof that the market hunters and members of clubs now occupy practically all good fields for game within reasonable distance of this city. As to the rights of the market hunters, we have ever contended they ought to have equal protection under the law with sportsmen or club members. We have contended that a law that permits the killing of game and at the same time fixes a penalty to be applied to a person who sells it is a discrimination, therefore unjust and unconstitutional in California. The correct theory of protection of game and fish, as we view it, is to shorten the time in which they may be taken and when that will not cover the demands limit the number a person may kill in a day or a season. In the late convention of sportsmen held in San Francisco it was the opinion of members from all parts of the State that present protection is not adequate. Then to meet the growing demand for greater protection the members discussed various propositions, including a close season during a period of one or more years. It was decided by practically unanimous vote that the conditions do not demand a close season covering all of one year or more, nor to prohibit the sale entirely. Limitation has been successful in several States, and that plan was adopted by the convention. To limit the number of ducks and quail to twenty-five by a hunter in one day will be just to all classes, give them a sufficient number and prevent slaughtering them on reserved ground or any other place. In all kinds of game a limit has been placed on the bag, and that is additional protection and justice to all who shoot game."

The Los Angeles Express of December 20th, in an editorial on "the bag limit," calls names and indulges in abuse in order to prove that the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is an advocate of fish and game slaughter (what brought fish into the argument, we cannot understand.) We deny the charge emphatically. The article we referred to has the earmarks of similar vituperative screeds that are not unfamiliar to local sportsman. This particular style of argument—"San Francisco club men have become so notoriously swinish," etc., for instance—is poor material with which to prove a principle or gain adherents to a worthy cause, and continuously emanating from the fountain head of the present game protective movement, instead of making friends has grown a crop of opposition and antagonism that will undoubtedly have an effect not desired or contemplated by the "apostles of game protection;" may their shadows grow less in the effort to get their names on the State pay roll.

We noted in our issue of October 6th the combined bag of about 1100 ducks for a total of twenty guns, on the Suisun marsh ponds at the opening day of the season. This would give an average of 55 birds to the gun. Since the first day of the present season we know of 500 guns shooting, from that time to this in the Suisun marshes that have not averaged five birds to the gun. We again state that the opportunity to bag twenty-five birds in a day is the exception. It is estimated that there is at least 2500 shooters in this city and vicinity, we venture to assert that the average has not been up to date three ducks per gun. The conditions for a large bag are not under control of the sportsman.

We have not yet expressed our objection to a limit of twenty-five ducks or any other limit numbers. What we have done and will continue to do is to publish the sentiment of the many sportsmen who do not countenance the designs of the "apostles of game protection."

Cartridge and Shell.

Spare and protect the birds. The Pajaronian has the following significant paragraph in this respect:

"The orchards of this district are now worth several million dollars. Their value can be kept up by keeping down pests; and to keep down pests the battle must not be for one day but for nearly all days. Pajaro valley produces one per cent. of the apple crop of the United States and that one per cent. has sold for as much money each year as have three or four per cent. of the balance of this nation's apple crop. Good prices have been obtained because of the good quality of our apples. That quality and that reputation will have to be kept to a high standard if the orchard business is to continue as a wealth producer.

The birds commonly known as bobolinks, meadowlarks, orioles, blackbirds, grackles and cowbirds are all comprised in a group known as the family Icteridae which is represented in the United States by twenty-nine species and subspecies. In bulletin No. 13 of the division of biological survey prepared by F. E. L. Beal, B. S., assistant biologist of that division, issued by the Department of Agriculture are discussed the food habits of the bobolink, the cowbird, the yellow-headed blackbird, the red-winged blackbird, the rusty blackbird, Brewer's blackbird, the crow blackbird and the boat-tailed grackle. These comprise all the important members of the group with the exception of the meadowlark and orioles. The ravages of the bobolink in the rice fields of the south and of some of the blackbirds in the grain fields of the upper Mississippi valley at planting and harvesting time, are matters of common knowledge, but the other food of these and other species is not so well known. The bulletin is devoted mainly to the food of the various blackbirds during the summer months and is based on a careful examination of the contents of more than 4800 stomachs, representing nine species and several subspecies of American blackbirds. This examination, while confirming to a certain extent the popular estimate of their grain-eating propensities, has shown also that during the season when grain is not accessible these birds destroy immense quantities of seeds of harmful weeds, and that during the whole of the warmer portion of the year, even when grain is easily obtained, they devour a great number of noxious insects. It appears that the vegetable portion of the food usually considerably exceeds the animal and is chiefly hard seeds. The animal portion consists mostly of insects. The damage done by the red-wings and some other species has partly arisen from the excessive number of individuals rather than from the habits of the species, and there is no doubt that in the Mississippi valley the red-wings and yellow-heads, and farther west Brewer's blackbird, are much too abundant for the interests of the grain grower. The bulletin is illustrated with one plate and six text figures.

THE TRUCKEE FISH SUPPLY.

Letter From a Nevada Angler Showing the Need of Legislative Action.

Mr. J. P. Morrill of Verdi, in the following letter published in the Nevada State Journal, pertinently draws attention to a deplorable condition of affairs, from the angler's standpoint, in the Truckee river, a stream that should be unequalled as a trout fishing water. It is to be hoped that proper action may be taken so that all interests will be observed and that the preservation of the river for the angler and as a spawning ground for the propagation and preservation of the different varieties of trout as a food supply will not be impaired. The towns along the Truckee have been famous for years as angling resorts, surely this fact will be of importance enough to the commonwealth for the proper legislation to remedy existing evils

The conditions shown will interest many Coast fishermen and are as follows:

The streams and lakes of this State are fast being robbed of their supplies of trout, and if the present unregulated methods of taking fish continue, the fishing industry will soon cease to be remunerative. It is very essential that we have an office of Fish Commissioner to look after numerous obstructions, such as dams without fishways; and destructive substances, such as sawdust, and other deleterious substances in our streams, that may render our water unfit for use.

Our annual run of fish, which leaves the lakes for the purpose of performing their function of reproduction, must be permitted to reach the most favorable spawning grounds. Almost the entire run of trout which leaves Pyramid lake, must deposit their eggs in the lower portion of the Truckee river. The eggs having been deposited under a thin gravelly covering, heavy rains come and the water continues to rise until it has become so high and swift that not one of those eggs could possibly survive. They may be washed away, devoured by insects, or covered to such a depth as to be entirely lost. Under the above circumstances the eggs perish by millions, and the wonder is, not that so many perish, but that any survive at all.

On the other hand, had we an adequate appropriation for the maintenance of a hatchery, fully ninety per cent of these eggs could be saved, while by the natural way of spawning, not more than five per cent. become fertilized, and from this amount only a small percentage attains to maturity. We have an excellent code of protective laws, and all that is now required is that we put into practice the art of fish breeding and aid in maintaining a natural supply, and, also increase the supply beyond its natural limits rapidly enough to meet the necessities of a constantly increasing population. To unaid and derange, nature can do but little to meet the natural demand for fish to eat, for fishing, unsupported by fish culture, will soon destroy a cheap and healthful food for thousands of our people.

Practically, from now on, the Truckee river will be divided into two streams, and the great benefit we have in the past derived by California stocking the headwaters of the Truckee will be cut off for the reason that for ten months during each year all the water in this stream from the paper mill to the power plant will be diverted from its natural channel and conveyed by pipe and flume to the turbines, and the result will be that small fish moving down stream will be destroyed by passing through the wheels. During the high water of spring when fish can pass over these dams, they are migrating up stream, thereby greatly reducing the amount of parent fish that we now have, for they cannot drop down stream during the period of low water. Plantings of trout for the benefit of our people, must be made below the above named establishments, and I would prefer not to see any fish distributed from the hatchery into the Truckee river, for the benefit of our State, about the head of the Steamboat ditch.

So thoroughly do I understand the exact condition of the Truckee river since the operation of the paper mill thereon, we must not approve of the taking of eggs to be hatched and planted solely outside our State, as it will result in absorbing the only means which we have of restocking the various mountain streams throughout the eastern portion of this State, which are becoming barren of trout. To replenish these streams, we will be dependent on the parent fish in the Truckee river, as there are few, if any, outside this stream, that produce a sufficient amount of parent fish to replenish itself. Great care must be taken that we do not impoverish the supply of rainbow trout in the Truckee river, for sooner or later, we will have to resort to this stream for planting of trout elsewhere within this State. If we should be so unfortunate as not to secure an appropriation for the maintenance of a hatchery, we must certainly legislate against the affecting of the natural breeding throughout our streams. It is with regret that I lay down my pen when writing in connection with our fishery interests, but I recognize the value of newspaper space and trust this matter may be given the necessary consideration by our coming Legislature.

Striped Bass Club Banquet.

The annual meeting of the San Francisco Striped Bass Club was held last Tuesday evening, January 8th. The club members and invited guests enjoyed an excellent dinner as a preliminary function to the consideration of club business and the social features of the evening.

The election of officers resulted in the unanimous choice and re-election of the incumbent board, consisting of Charles H. Breidenstein, President; James Watt, Vice-President; James S. Turner, Secretary, and Charles H. Kewell, Treasurer.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the club's financial condition was an exceedingly healthy one and that the membership limit of twenty-five was complete, with a number of desirable angling associates on the waiting list of applicants.

Within the near future and possibly in time for the opening of the fishing season next March the club members will have at their convenience a comfortable club house, whose site will probably be located in the vicinity of Sears Point.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Breidenstein, Watt, Evans, Ashcroft, Lynch and Mitchell were appointed who will make and report upon changes in the by-laws of the club.

During the distribution of the prizes won last season, Mr. A. B. Finch presided as chairman and awarded the angling trophies to each of the lucky fishermen with appropriate and pleasant presentation speeches, which in return were responded to by the winning members. The Ripley "high-hook" medal was won by Andy Legaspo, who caught the record club fish during the year; its weight was nineteen and one-half pounds. The conditions for holding the medal are the following:

"This medal shall remain in the possession of the member catching the largest striped bass in conformity with the Club rules. He shall surrender it to the member catching a larger bass, and so on. This medal shall remain in the permanent possession of the member catching the largest bass in the season. No witness shall be necessary, and all days shall be record days to compete for this medal."

The prizes next awarded consisted of a choice selection of fishing tackle and were distributed in the order following, commencing with the fisherman who caught the next largest fish to the bass above mentioned, which latter fish weighed eighteen pounds:

First prize, split bamboo rod, Charles H. Breidenstein; second prize, split bamboo rod, A. Legaspo; third prize, Vom Hoffe reel, D. E. Morris; fifth prize, steel rod, William Ashcroft; sixth prize, rod case, Louie Daverkosen; seventh prize, telescope gaff, Terry Evans; eighth prize, jappanned tackle box, W. S. Turner; ninth prize, leather reel box, Sid Hall; mysterious prize, split bamboo rod, Jas. Lynch. This prize had been donated by Charles H. Kewell under sealed conditions, which directed the prize to be awarded to the club member who came nearest to but did not win any regular prize.

The rules under which the club prizes are competed for are as follows:

Rule I.—The season for taking striped bass shall be between the first day of January and the first day of December of each year.

Rule II.—The official days when bass may be taken by members of the Club shall be on all legal holidays during the season.

Rule III.—No fish weighing less than three pounds shall count as a record fish, and all record fish must be taken with rod and line.

Rule IV.—Any member using a drop line, throw line, or any other contrivance but rod and line, on any official day, shall be ineligible to compete for a prize on that day.

Rule V.—All record fish must be weighed in the presence of one or more members of the Club.

During the social session which followed, Mr. Finch, Dr. W. E. Brooks, James Turner, James Watt and others entertained the assembly with song and story. Mr. Ashcroft, although a heavyweight, was the light comedian of the evening. In response to an encore Mr. Watt recited the following lines dedicated to "The Hermit Bass":

Down in the deep, mud holes I keep,
And there in the noontime I float and sleep;
'Neath the springing bog and the sunken log,
And the waving weeds I lie "Inoog."

King of the creek, no angler's hook
Fills me with dread of the sweaty cook.
For here I lie and laugh as they try.
Shall I bite at their bait? Oh, no—not I!

The angler's clam comes floating by,
But never a moment it cheats my eye;
Nor is this bass quite such a lout
As to be by a wading boy pulled out.

But when the sloughs, with silver gleams,
Sparkle all starlight and moonlight beams,
Then look out for the Hermit Bass,
For he springs and he "rolls" in the shallow pass
While the tired (?) angler dreams.

The following members and guests were present: Charles F. Breidenstein, J. S. Turner, Andy Legaspo, Dr. W. E. Brooks, Charles H. Kewell, A. B. Finch, James Watt, William Ashcroft, Bert Spring, E. L. Sanford, George Vance, Louie Daverkosen, Terrence Evans, J. E. Lower, James Lynch, Clarence Maynard, J. X. De Witt and Nat E. Mead.

"There is a small boy that I know who is going to be a millionaire some day," said Professor Bob McFarland the other day to a group of fishermen who were catching big fish in Butler's creek. "At present he has only an innocent face splashed with sun spots, over which he never even allows the ghost of a smile to flicker. I am, as you all know, fond of fishing; so fond, in fact, that I don't mind now and then coming back from a fishing trip without even having enjoyed the sight of a fish. But there is one thing that I cannot stand, and that is the guying of my friends, who don't understand that the pleasures of a fisherman are not solely confined to a big catch.

"I went fishing the other day for striped bass in a small slough which I have always held sacred even from my closest friends of the rod. I had no luck, and was on my way home when I met this small boy with a string of fine fish. His outfit would have caused a horse to laugh; but he had the fish and I had none, so I did not feel like laughing myself. With my guying friends in mind, I struck a bargain with the urchin, paying him three prices, and went on my way rejoicing. Two days later I visited the same creek and had the same luck, not even hooking the big one that always gets away. Coming out I met the boy again, carrying another string of bass and we struck another bargain.

"See here," said I, somewhat exasperated at his luck, 'I'll give you 50 cents if you will tell me how you manage to get such a string of bass every day.'

"The boy held out for a dollar and got it.

"It's just this way," said he, 'all the kids around here fish more or less and sometimes they catch one or two, and I go around and buy 'em up; then I sell 'em to some greeny that ain't had no luck. I ain't caught a fish myself this year. I ain't had time,' he added, with a grin.

"It is a great scheme, and I don't begrudge him the money that he made out of me."

C. B. Hollywood and J. M. Pariser caught a large number of silver smolt last Sunday in the Alameda canal at the upper end of the Oakland estuary. These delicious pan fish are running now in myriads. With a light trout rod and tackle and using black gnat or red flies on a No. 14 hook the fisherman can have quite a little sport whipping the water for the smolt.

Coast streams are muddy, rapid and very high. This has given the fish a chance for an unmolested run to spawning beds that should be productive of good results.

Recently grilse weighing from three to seven pounds have been caught at Lombard street wharf in fair quantities.

THE FARM

Fattening Poultry for Market.

We Westerners have a very crude idea about the necessity of fattening poultry by the forcing process and this necessity may in some degree at least account for the poor quality of the henery product which gluts the Denver market every day in the year. We might take some lessons in this important cult from European folk. There the crates in which the fattening is carried on are six and one-half feet long by sixteen inches square, inside measurement. A crate is divided into three compartments, each of which holds four or five chicks according to size. The crates are made of slats running lengthwise on three sides and up and down in front. The slats may be from one to one and one-half inches wide by five-eighths of an inch thick.

The spaces between the slats in the front should be two inches wide to permit the chickens to get their heads through for feeding. The slats on the bottom should be placed three-quarters of an inch apart. Each compartment has a small sliding door in front. The crates are placed on stands from two and one-half to three feet from the ground. The droppings from the chickens in the crate are received on sand or some absorbent material below. A light V trough two and one-half inches inside is placed in front of each crate running the whole length of it. The bottom of the trough is level with the floorslats of the crate. The birds of the larger breeds are best suited for fattening. Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes are good sorts as well as Light Brahmas and Cochins crossed with other and lighter breeds.

The age may be anywhere from three to four or even five months and the condition of the birds should be such as to indicate healthfulness and a tendency to fatten. The feed may be barley or wheat, preferably oats ground very fine, the seeds and hulls being kept in and also thoroughly pulverized. The ground grain should be mixed with skim milk only. The skim milk may be sweet or sour—preferably sour. The mixture should have the consistency of thin porridge so thick that it will not run readily and so thin that if a large spoonful of it were put on a plate it would spread. The chickens should be fed from the trough in front of the crate three times a day.

During the first three or four days they should be fed quite sparingly. After the first week they should be fed as much as they will eat clean twice a day. It is desirable to have the chickens fed in the crates from the troughs for about two weeks. During the last ten days of the fattening period a small portion of tallow should be put with the feed at the rate of one-half pound a day to about seventy to 100 chickens, according to size, increasing to one pound a day.

The total sheep receipts last year in Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha and St. Louis exceeded 6,000,000 head. In 1870 in Chicago and St. Louis—the only western markets at that time—the sheep receipts were 444,300. This means an increase of five and a half million in thirty years, in these four western cities alone, to say nothing of the eastern markets or of the thousands of town and village markets where mutton is bought and sold. Even ten years ago mutton could scarcely have been given away by the butchers. Scientific education through the agricultural press is one of the factors leading to this condition and flockmasters ought to appreciate this fact more fully. It is now well known not only that mutton is a pleasant food but is one of the most nutritious. Thus the prospect is that in the future the demand for mutton as a food will grow as the knowledge of its worth becomes more widely disseminated.

As we have said before sugar-beet pulp may be successfully fed to fatten sheep at the rate of twelve to fifteen pounds a head daily. At $1 a ton it is cheaper food for fattening sheep than corn silage at $3 or alfalfa hay at $8 a ton. It cannot, however, become a stock food of importance outside of a radius of a few miles from the sugar beet factory until some means is invented for expressing the water out of it. The best results can be obtained for fattening sheep on sugar-beet pulp with alfalfa hay.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. L. Maloue, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 51 straight kills.
Used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask. Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR COLT STAKES.

Proof That Harness Horse Matters are Very Much Alive in California.

The list of money winners on the California circuit in 1900, published in our recent holiday number, showed that in spite of the false reports sent out by the Knockers' Club harness racing made a very good showing in this State last year. There were 32 horses in that list that won upwards of a thousand dollars each and ten whose earnings exceeded two thousand dollars.

The entries and payments made on the three principal California colt stakes for trotters, on the first of January this year, are further proof that there are many owners in this State who have faith in the business and believe that the future is worth banking on to the extent of payments in these stakes at least.

The Pacific Breeders' Futurity, for which $6000 is guaranteed by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, had 305 mares bred in 1900 named in it. The second payment was due on the 2d instant, and payment was made on 241, which shows that a large percentage of the mares are considered to be safely with foal. The next payment on this stake will not be due until January 2, 1902, when the foals will be weanlings and if the average good luck prevails with the colts and fillies that come this year, this payment should be made on at least two hundred foals, especially as the substitution clause in the conditions of the stake will not expire until the date of that payment. There is every promise of the Pacific Breeders' Futurity for foals of 1900 to be trotted and paced in 1902 and 1903 furnishing four of the greatest colt races ever seen in California. A full list of the mares on which second payment has been made, together with the names of mares substituted, is published in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The Occident Stake of 1903, original entries for which closed January 1st, received one hundred entries, the largest number in the history of the stake. As this payment is $10 it will be seen that there is already the neat sum of $1000 to the credit of this very popular stake.

For the Occident Stake of 1902, on which there were ninety-seven original entries, second payment of $15 has been made on fifty-nine, which brings the amount already in that stake to $1855. The Occident Stake of 1901, to be trotted at the State Fair this year had sixty-five original entries at $10 each; second payment of $15 was made on forty-eight, and third payment of $25 has now been made on twenty-six entries. It will be seen that this stake is already worth $2025 and allowing $500 additional to be obtained from starting fees the stake will be worth close to $2500 this year of which sixty per cent. will go to the winner. As the stakes of 1902 and 1903 showed largely increased entries of the one to be trotted this year their values will doubtless be increased in the same relative proportions.

The Stanford Stake, another of the State Agricultural Society's events for three year old trotters shows a healthy increase. The stake of 1901 had fifty original entries at $5 each or $250; second payment of $5 was made on forty-three foals, or $215; third payment of $10 each was made on twenty-five which puts $250 more to the credit of this stake or a total of $715 to date. Another payment of $10 to be made before the race will bring it up to something near $800 in value this year. The Stanford Stake of 1902 closed with seventy-two entries at $5 each or $360; second payment has been made on fifty of these at $5 which adds $250 to the first named sum, or a total of $610 with two payments of $10 each yet to come. The prospects are that this stake will be worth nearly $1000 to the winner. The Stanford Stake of 1903 will close about May 15th this year for foals of 1900, and will get a big list of entries.

As the payments made in the Occident and Stanford Stakes this year show that there will be a larger number of three year olds in training than for several years past, we renew our suggestions to the district association to inaugurate colt stakes for district trotters and pacers. They will not only encourage the breeding and training of harness horses but will add very attractive features to the regular program of the annual fairs.

Percheron Stallion for Sale.

The four year old Percheron stallion Native Son, bred by Jos. Blondin, of Livermore, is offered for sale in our advertising columns. Native Son is a grandly bred horse and a sure foal getter, having been bred to eight mares last year and all of them are in foal. He will make a tou horse when fully matured. There will be many mares bred to good draft stallions in California this year and Native Son should be well patronized if placed in the stud. He took second prize at the Tanforan Horse Show last October in the class for three year old draft stallions, there being five horses entered.

Denver Races.

The following is from the Denver Republican of a recent date:

The meeting in the rooms of the Gentlemen's Driving and Riding Club was largely attended by the representative breeders, owners and drivers of this vicinity. The attendance was so large and of so varied a character that all who may be in any manner interested in the June meeting were either on hand or represented. A full discussion was had concerning the classes that will make up the program, and many changes were suggested, some of which were acted upon. Others will be considered at a later time.

Joseph A. Osner called the meeting to order, and called upon Secretary William Schuckman to read the provisional program that had been prepared. The horseman suggested many changes in the classes and many more in the arrangement of races. The races that will certainly be on the program are all the early closing events. The entries for these will open as soon as an office room is secured, and will close on March 1. The early closing harness events are: For three-year-old pacers, purse $1000; three-year-old trotters, purse $500; two-year-old pacers, purse $500; two-year-old trotters, purse $500; 2:25 trot, purse $600, and the three events of the Gentlemen's Riding and Driving Club.

Races that are definitely upon the program and which will not be changed, except possibly as to their place upon the lists, are the 2:09, 2:11 and free-for-all pace. The other pacing races announced are, in classes, the 2:27, 2:16, 2:32, 2:23, 2:40 and 2:14, and of the trotting classes, the 2:14, 2:35, 2:20, 2:27, 2:18, 2:40, 2:22 and 2:11. Any of these last-named may have been made for classes lower than 2:11, but the experience of past years has been that those classes would not fail. The association does not intend, if it can prevent it, to open any classes that will not fill and eventually find a place on the program.

A second stake has been opened for Colorado-bred thoroughbred runners. It will be a five-furlong dash, entries to close at the same time as those for the Colorado Derby, probably March 1. The five-furlong race will be for two-year-olds.

Edwin Gaylord will leave in a few days for California where he will interview the owners and trainers to see what horses will be brought over the mountains. The announcement has been made that there will be no harness racing on the Coast in the early summer, and the Denver meeting will thus be the first at which the California horses may start.

Portland Items.

[Rural Spirit.]

Mr. L. C. McCormack has purchased the dam of Deceiver 2:15 and will breed her to his McKinney stallion Harry McC.

W. O. Trine of Eugene writes that his stable of horses is wintering well. Al Me is stronger and better than ever, and will be a hard one to beat in the 2:15 pace. He has also a few green ones and some youngsters for the two year old stake.

Albuquerque, one of the noted sires of the Pacific Northwest, died last Monday at T. J. Matlock's stock ranch near Heppner, the cause of death being kidney trouble. Albuquerque was of Alwood-Bellfounder stock, and was 19 years old.

The Portland Hunt Club, recently formed in this city for the promotion of horse back riding, has the promise of large membership in a short time. Secretary Chase says he expects to enroll 100 names before spring opens.

W. F. Mattock, now of Skagway, Alaska, is back to Oregon in search of draft horses for that place. This will be the fifth shipment from here to Alaska, the fourth shipment being made last week. He says heavy draft horses are in demand in Alaska, and are likely to be for some time, but there are very few left now in Eastern Oregon. He will visit portions of the Willamette valley in quest of a carload.

Sister to Charley Hayt Dead.

The Terrace Stock Farm, Titusville, Pa., suffered a severe loss on January 2d when the two year old filly Novello, sister to Charley Hayt 2:07½, while being ground broken, reared and fell and was injured so badly as to necessitate killing her. This filly was purchased by the proprietor of Terrace farm, J. C. McKinney, at the recent Fasig-Tipton sale, $1275 being paid for her, the highest figure paid for a yearling at that auction. Unlike her famous brother, whose record of 2:07½ pacing was made in his first winning heat at the Buffalo Grand Circuit meeting, Novello was a pure gaited trotter and gave promise of proving a fast mare. She was by Allerton 2:09½, dam Highlawn Maid (dam of Charley Hayt 2:07½, and sister to Rensselaer Wilkes 9:11½), by Alcantara 2:23. Mr. McKinney has another promising Allerton filly in Nysa, sister of Kaffa 2:19½, etc., her dam being Cyprus 2:22½, by Strathmore.

Give the Youngsters a Chance.

Agricultural colleges are now established in every state. We are sending our next generation of farmers to these schools to fit them for battling with close competition on all matters pertaining to successful farming. These schools of training are commendable, but the large per cent of the farmers of the future will come from the farms without the advantage of science as developed in these schools. It therefore stands us in hand to make the best use of our home schools—the farms themselves. Every boy and girl likes to own something and for educational purposes alone they should own something.

Nothing fills the bill better than an incubator and a flock of poultry. It cultivates a sense of care and business management that would be lacking when they were called out to do business with a competing public. It is during this time of life that impressions are most permanent, good or bad. The writer was a boy once, raised on a farm; owned every colt—or rather owned a new colt every spring—owned it until it became really valuable; then he had the privilege of trading it for the youngest again and was educated to think the young colt more valuable for a boy than the colt old enough to bring a good price.

The result of this line of training and encouragement was that he landed in business at twenty-one, a regular pumpkinhead to do anything. The farm had no attractions for him. He could see nothing in it but plow and harrow and doing without money from crop to crop. I am not blaming Dad—he simply did not know how to educate a boy. Had there been an agricultural college or other school that occurred to him to be a good thing for a boy, money would not have stood in the way. As stated, he was not aware that he ran the best school on earth right at home among realities.

Of course, we would rather the farmer would buy an incubator for his boys, but rather than see them grow up without ideas of business cares and management it would certainly pay to give them a start, even if it was nothing more valuable than hens and chicks. Boys and girls like to own something. As soon as they are old enough to play marbles they will want to own the marbles and a rope at least. In buying an incubator for the young poultry raiser it is just as important to have a good one—large enough for business and well enough made to do the work properly—as it is that his father has a good implement for his work. Give the youngsters a fair chance.—M. M. Johnson.

Foreign Demand Still Active.

David Bonner issues for the National Trotting Association the export certificates of trotting horses leaving New York. These certificates are recognized by the customs; authorities of Europe and by the trotting associations, and no horse can compete without one. The foreigners take more logical precautions against ringers than we do. During the past month thirty-eight certificates have been issued, and as usual with three exceptions they are all for stallions or mares. The Austrians, who are the principal buyers, have no use for geldings, but are keenly alive to the value of a good mare. They certainly made no mistake when they bought such good ones as Neeretta 2:09½, Contralto 2:10, Bertha Lee 2:13½, and Normeda 2:15½, and several others with slower records. The stallions they bought were also of good value, and in Greenbrino 2:10½, they have a horse who will do himself justice. During the spring and summer the export trade in fine trotters was almost dead, yet the total number of certificates issued from January 1st to December 24th is 251, while a large number of trotting-bred roadsters have been exported without certificates. The foreign demand is still active and will continue so.

Scarcity of the Cavalry Type.

The following from the Salt Lake Tribune is interesting: "There is a great scarcity of the cavalry type of horses," said Veterinary Surgeon John Tempeny of the Ninth Cavalry at the Cullen yesterday, "because of the great draft the United States and other governments have made in the last two years. In Wyoming, for instance, our government gathered up all of the desirable, high standard horses, and then the English army officers came along and picked up 600 others, for the Englishmen are content to put up with a lower grade of animal than the American army authorities. There are no more cavalry horses in Nevada and the market generally is bare and will be for some time. Prices are stiff and our government was paying $100 to $125 for the grade of animal required; but the demand for the Philippines is falling off with the return of quieter times there, and the war in South Africa is over, so there is not much call now for horses for army purposes and general prices are going down."

The old-time trotter Leander 2:24, died a few weeks ago. He was foaled in 1871 and in 1879 was bought by William K. Vanderbilt of New York for $10,000.

A Good One for Sale.

Mr. J. D. Heins of this city offers for sale his pacing stallion John A. 2:12½, by Wayland W. Mr. Heins cannot find time from his business to devote the proper attention to the horse and is opposed to leasing or partnerships, so has decided to offer him for sale, and we will state that a live man can earn with the horse by placing him in the stud, the price asked by Mr. Heins. John A. is a brown horse foaled in 1896. His sire Wayland W. has a trotting record of 2:12½ and his dam Lady Moor by Grand Moor, is also the dam of Arthur W. 2:11½. Few stallions in California have as many producers close up in their pedigree as John A. and as he is a good race horse himself and a good individual as well there is every probability that he will be a producer of speed at both trot and pace. John A. first appeared on the circuit in his three year old form. There were few races for three year olds that year and he started but twice meeting Roblet 2:12, Clipper 2:06 and ten other fast ones in his first start. He won second money in this race and took a record of 2:15. His only other start that year was at the State Fair where he had the misfortune to have to go against Kelly Briggs 2:10½, and other whirlwinds. He beat them all but Kelly Briggs, got second money and reduced his record to 2:14. In 1900 he had to meet another fast lot of aged horses, but made a good showing, winning three races and out of nine starts was outside the money but twice and won $1195. At Woodland, when he lowered his record, he paced his three heats in 2:12½, 2:12½ and 2:13½, and could have gone faster had it been necessary. That he is a game race horse every horseman knows and as he is as sound as a newly milled dollar there is no reason why his record should not be below 2:10 this year. At the price Mr. Heins has placed on him we think John A. is one of the best bargains ever offered in horseflesh.

Long Tails in Fashion.

"I won't attempt to say whether it is sentiment or fashion, but from some cause or other there is more inquiry for long tailed carriage horses than there was a year or two ago," remarked a prominent New York dealer. "Some of the highest priced horses we have sold this winter have been long-tailed steppers, and some of the best ones now in our coach horse department have never been docked. For a rockaway, or a station wagon, or a runabout, or any other light trap, I think the long tail is certainly to be preferred. It is more in keeping with the style of a carriage like the rockaway, for one thing, and, for another thing, it affords better protection to the driver in a runabout from flying gravel and dirt. I wouldn't recommend a long-tailed horse for a spider phaeton or a spicy gig, or any sporting vehicle of that sort, but I like to see a long-tailed horse in a landau, or a brougham, or a Berlin coach, or any heavy carriage. It may not be quite so smart, but it strikes me as adding to the dignity and substantial appearance of such a turnout."

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Interesting Meeting Held last Saturday at Sacramento.

The Directors of the State Board of Agriculture met at the Pavilion at Sacramento on Saturday last, the following members being present: President A. B. Spreckels, Park Henshaw, M. D. Chamberlain, D. W. Wilson, John Mackey, W. R. Mathews and A. W. Barrett.

Prior to the meeting the Board held a conference with Governor Gage and discussed the necessity of the proposed appropriation of $100,000 for the use of the society in making the proposed changes at Agricultural Park. They also pointed out the great benefit which had been derived by the entire State by the past work of the society. The improvement of the various breeds of cattle, hogs and poultry, the introduction into the State of grass food, such as alfalfa, which was first brought to California by the society, and the great advancement in dairy products which had accrued through the establishment of creameries, etc., were urged as good reasons for the Legislature aiding the Society.

President Spreckels called the Board to order, and in his opening remarks said that Senator Devlin, who had accompanied them in their visit to Governor Gage, had stated to the Governor that the title to the park property was vested in the Board of Agricultural Directors, and did not belong to the State. Judge Shields, who was present, said there could be no doubt but what this was a fact. The title was perfectly legal and clear, and was vested in the Directors. Director Henshaw asked what disposition could be made of the money in case the property should be sold by the Directors. Judge Shields said it would have to be paid into the State Treasury and reinvested in a like property, and could not be used for any other purpose.

Director Mathews said that the State could not dispose of the property without the consent of the Board, while it could at any time sell the property of the Folsom Prison or of the various asylums throughout the State and close those institutions.

On motion of Director Mathews, the Secretary was directed to prepare a document setting forth all the work of the society since its inception, and the good that it had accomplished in advancing the agricultural, dairy, cereal and livestock interests of the entire State, so that the public at large would better realize how essential the society was to the advancement of the State, and seeing the necessity of placing it on the basis it should occupy.

Director Barrett, of Los Angeles, then presented the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, The condition of the buildings, barns, show rings and other appurtenances of the California State Agricultural Society is such as to interfere with the work and highest usefulness of said society, and that it is unable to carry on its work, as indicated by the necessities of the State, and in keeping with our vast agricultural and industrial possibilities; and

"Whereas, The proper equipment and maintenance of said society and sufficient provision for the annual State fairs given under its management are necessary to the continuation of said work, and of inestimable advantage to California; and

"Whereas, The annual exhibitions given by our said society have been of inestimable advantage and value to our State, and are necessary to the maintenance of our present agricultural growth and progress; now therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society most heartily indorse the bills presented by Senator Devlin and Assemblyman Johnson to the Legislature, and earnestly urge the passage of the same."

The present condition of the various stakes to be read before the society was then read: The Occident Stake of 1900 had fifty-two entries; thirty-four paid first money, twenty-two paid second money, and four paid third money. The same stake closed for the year 1901 with sixty-five entries, forty-eight paying second money, and twenty-six third money. For the year of 1902 there are ninety entries, of which fifty-nine had paid second money, while for the year of 1903 there are 100 entries, which is the greatest number ever known in the history of the Occident Stake.

The Stanford Stake of 1900 had thirty entries, of which twenty-one paid second money, fourteen third money, and eleven fourth money. For the year of 1901 there were fifty entries, of which forty three had paid second money, and twenty-five third money. For the year 1902 there were seventy-two entries, and fifty have paid second money.

The Futurity Stake of 1900 had forty-five entries; that of 1901 thirty-one entries, and of 1902 there are 169 entries.

The Stallion Stake of 1903 has fifty-eight entries, and the value of the Stallion Stake of 1902, soon to close, is nearly $5000, and with the future payments will certainly be worth $10,000.

The Board decided to open six harness races at an early date, entries to close April 1st, $500 to be added and $10 entrance to be the only expense, unless they start, with no deduction from money winners. The idea is to place harness stakes on the same base as running stakes.

After the meeting, in speaking of the proposed changes in the park, in case the appropriation bill carries, President Spreckels said he would favor double tracks—one for running and one for harness races. The grand stand would be two stories, with iron pillars set in concrete, and the stables would be made continuous, and would be placed so that the visitors could view all the stock without making two separate trips to different portions of the track, as at present.

Emperor of Norfolk's Great Trial.

Isaac Murphy, the great colored jockey, was asked just before he died what horse, of the many which he had ridden during his career of ten years, he thought the best one. Murphy instantly said, "The Emperor of Norfolk." He said he made a bet once with trainer Thomas that The Emperor could beat 1:38. The wager was $500 a side.

When it is remembered that the record for a mile at that time was Ten Broeck's 1:39½, that had stood for almost a dozen years, one may realize how much Murphy thought of the horse.

It was just at dawn that Murphy took The Emperor out of his stall and saddled him. Murphy mounted in the clothes he wore, and with a "tack" that was heavier than he usually used in races. Nobody ever knew the weight the horse carried, but judging from Murphy's riding weight of 110, and the fact of his saddle being a heavy exercise leather one, the total could have been but a bit short of 120.

Thomas stood at the wire and did the timing. Murphy broke the horse going at a pace which he thought was a 1.38 clip. The further he went the faster The Emperor galloped. Thomas himself could not believe the quarters his watch was showing him. At the end of the mile, with Murphy hustling The Emperor, the lone watch on him said he had done the distance in 1:36½.

Thomas lost his $500 to Murphy, and the Emperor of Norfolk broke down. He didn't cave at the moment of his race. He went a bit longer and won races against good horses, but he was never himself after the daylight trial, and that effort, without preparation, started him on the road that led to retirement.

Thomas kept the secret with Murphy for years, but one night in Chicago he took to the cups, and then he told of how the California horse had done the greatest thing under the sun. Salvator's mile with Ten Broeck's weight up on a straight track, with every preparation made for it and two pacemakers to carry, cannot compare with this effort of the Emperor of Norfolk.

Breeding of Harry Gear 25,382.

The breeding of this stallion has been asked for by a subscriber to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN who owns several of his get and thinks they will be fast enough to win races. Harry Gear is a bay horse foaled in 1882 and the tabulation of his pedigree to three generations is as follows:

HARRY GEAR	{	Hambletonian 10.....	{ Abdallah 1
		Echo 462.....	{ Chas. Kent Mare
	{	Fanny Felter.....	{ Magnolia 68
			{ By Webber's Kentucky Whip
	{	Chieftain 721.....	{ Hiattoga
		Clara.....	{ By Trimble's Eclipse
	{	Sally.....	{ Reynold's Messenger
			{ Untraced

This is as far as the Trotting Register gives the dam of Harry Gear. Clara was the dam of Crown Prince 2:17½, a good race horse that took his record at Sacramento in 1892. Clara was bred by John Patterson of Linden, Cal., as was also Harry Gear. The writer never saw but one of the get of Harry Gear and that is a three year old pacer owned by Dr. Boucher of San Jose. He is out of the Doctor's great mare Miss Logan 2:06½, and is a whirlwind pacer, besides being a grand looking horse.

California Clubs Left Out.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Representatives of the race tracks which met here yesterday to form a new Western Jockey Club held another session to-day, but postponed the details of permanent organization until a special meeting in Chicago about February 1st. The territory to be covered by the new jockey club will extend from Pittsburg to Denver, leaving out Tanforan Park in California. This is done not for any special reason, but because the turfmen think it would weaken the body to have a member so far removed from the central body. Tanforan is willing to be left out, and suggests that the Coast clubs adopt the rules of the jockey club and co-operate with the new organization, receiving protection in return. This movement will promote harmony on the Pacific Coast, whereas if Tanforan had been admitted to an exclusive organization, Oakland, which was not even a member of the Turf Congress, would have in all probability have represented the move.

Polo Season Soon to Open.

The polo season which will open about Feb. 1st, will be the best in the history of the game in the West.

Every one of the Burlingame players has his ponies up.

The arrival of Frank J. Carolan on Wednesday from the East, has given added interest to the plans already under way for the Polo and Hunt clubs. Mr. Carolan while in the East saw a number of the polo players of that section, among them Mr. Hubert, president of the American Polo Association. As the members of various clubs on the Atlantic usually take a winter or spring outing, journeying to Florida or to other points in the South, they would like to come to California for a change. The only difficulty is the cost of transporting strings of polo ponies across the continent. This, however, will be obviated by members of the Burlingame Country Club supplying good mounts to visiting polo men.

All the Burlingame men have new ponies. Mr. Hobart has now one of the best strings of polo ponies in America. Every one of them is fast, and some are said to be even fleet on foot than Slat's, the famous sprinter that won everything it tried for at Del Monte and Tanforan. Mr. Carolan has four new ones, and Tom Driscoll, Dick Tobin, Joe S. Tobin, Peter Martin, John Lawson, Ed J. Tobin, Charlie Dunphy and Walter McCreery have good ponies in training.

That California will be the Mecca of polo players this year is evidenced by the fact that the great English Hurlingham team is already here. This famous four is made up of Walter McCreery, Charles Menges and J. B. Mackie.

Lawrence McCreery and Mr. Mackie arrived from England the other day and brought along a lot of ponies, ten in number, which they picked up in Texas.

Texas is the place which supplies the Eastern polo players with their mounts, but Peter Martin, who saw George Gould's stables and was a guest of the latter recently, is confident that the California ponies far surpass the Texan breed.

While it has not been definitely settled, it is expected that the team which will meet the Hurlingham players will be Joseph S. Tobin, Thomas R. Driscoll, Walter S. Hobart and Charles Dunphy.

The members of the clubs belonging to the American Polo Association cannot as such members play outside teams, of which Burlingame is one, but they can contest as individuals, and both Mr. Gould and his set are pretty sure of coming West.

Games are already scheduled for Burlingame field and Tanforan Park, and a new field is to be built at El Cerrito, in San Mateo. There is to be a new summer field at Walter Hobart's race track, as he has had the enclosure seeded with Bermuda grass.

While in the East both Mr. Carolan and Mr. Martin hunted in the Tennessee Valley with the famous hunt club of that name. Mr. Carolan, who is Master of the Hounds of the San Mateo County Hunt, has secured eight hounds from Peter Burke, master and owner of the pack of the Tipperary Hunt Club, Ireland. Mr. Burke is well known to Californians, having married a daughter of the late Peter Donahue. These hounds will be used to-day, when the San Mateo Hunt Club will meet at Tanforan Park. A hunt breakfast will precede the laying on of the pack.

John Phippen Reaches Texas.

LOMO ALTO FARM,

DALLAS (Texas), Jan. 13, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I arrived here in Dallas on the 7th inst. after a pleasant visit with my family and friends in California all safe, found my horses and boys all well; stepped all of the colts that are going to be sold on February 5th in Chicago yesterday, and I assure you that they put the foot down right and can all show fast. I feel sore that they are going to be sold so soon, but as Mr. Exall needs money they must go, as the market demands good ones. I hope that they will fall into the hands of men that will give them a chance, for I believe there are great prospects for race horses and matinee performers among them.

Ima Electrite 2:15½ and Emerin Electrite (p) 2:12½ would make a great addition to a wealthy road rider's stable in any country. Very truly yours,

J. S. PHIPPEN.

Entitled to First and Second Moneys.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Please answer the following through the columns of your paper. Two horses started in a race in which first and second moneys were offered. One of them distanced the other and the owner claims both first and second moneys. Is he entitled to them.

Respectfully, W. P. YANCY,
Sec'y. 18th Ag. Dist.

Answer.—Rule 36, National Trotting Association provides that a horse that distances all competitors in a heat, "shall receive the entire purse or stakes contended for, unless otherwise provided for in the published conditions."

SULKY NOTES.

Boston will spend $25,000 on a speedway.

One hundred entries in Occident Stake for 1903.

Two hundred and forty-one second payments in Pacific Breeders Futurity.

The Year Book will be out February 15th, if the printers do not get behind time.

J. W. Stufflebeam is jogging his stallion Sidney Boy by Sidney at the Tulare race track.

Good purses will be offered on the California circuit of 1901, and entries will be numerous.

Added money for trotting stakes is a new plan of the California State Agricultural Society.

It is proposed to have one harness race a day at the meetings to be held at Butte and Anaconda.

Myron McHenry is in Chicago at present getting together a stable for the next season's campaign.

The report that Frank Rockefeller was negotiating for the purchase of John R. Gentry is denied by that gentleman.

James Brown, the American trainer, has twenty-five horses on the Vienna, Austria, track, including Countess Eve 2:09½.

According to government estimates the horse stock of the United States has increased in value $13 per head since 1897.

The good trotter Joe Watts 2:10½, by Electmoneer, was purchased by P. W. Connelly, of Pittsburg, Pa., last week at a stated price of $5000.

Will Welsh of Pleasanton recently purchased a three year old filly by Welcome 2:10½ out of the dam of Gaff Topsail 2:17½ that he thinks will do to take to the races. The price paid was $300.

Horsemen who talk about going East to race will find when the day of departure comes that it takes big money to pay car fare and entrance fees and only first class horses are worth taking a chance on.

"If you buy a horse for what he's worth and sell him for what some owners think he's worth," said Frank G. Smith, "what a pile of money a fellow could make during these hot air talks of winter time."

Athalie, the dam of Athadon 2:10, is destined to be one of the greatest of broodmares as she has already four in the charmed circle. These are Athadon 2:10, Athavis 2:18½, Athadon 2:27 and a new one for 1900, Athalbo 2:24 by Diabolo.

Col. J. M. Morehead of Santa Clara has a two year old filly by Hambletonian Wilkes out of Anna Belle, by Dawn, that he believes is the best foal the mare has ever had. The filly has been named Maggie N., and is entered in the Occident Stake and the Hartford Futurity.

The Overland Trotting and Running Association of Denver, Cal., and Charles N. Roberts, secretary, have been fined $250 and suspended by the Board of Appeals of the N. T. A. for not complying with the rules in refusing to return judges' books and sending in fines and suspensions collected.

Millard Sanders has arrived at Pleasanton with Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Janice 2:13½ and a green mare from the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. He will have a half dozen more green ones in a short time from the same farm and expects to get quite a formidable string out of them for the campaign of 1901.

J. Malcolm Forbes, the Boston millionaire who owns Arion 2:07½, will send him to the Glenartney farm, near Versailles, Kentucky, to be placed in the stud this year. Mr. Forbes has at his farm at Ponkapog, Massachusetts, Peter the Great 2:07½ and Bingen 2:06½. No breeder in the world has three such fast trotting stallions.

"Uncle Davy" Cahill, of Lexington, Ky., states that he will campaign Charley Herr 2:07 the coming season, and that he stands ready to meet all of the best trotters in the country, including The Abbot, Cresceus, Lord Derby, Bingen, Arion, Grattan Boy, Boralma, Lord Vincent and any other that would like to compete with him.

There were nearly 20,000 guesses submitted in the contest for the prize offered by Fasig & Tipton to the person who guessed nearest the price Axtell would bring at their December sale. The prize was won by Mrs. H. M. Booth, of Rich Hill, Missouri, who guessed the exact figure—$14,700 and she has been awarded the prize, a Frazier bike.

The personal effects of the late Charles Backmann, former owner of Stony Ford, were sold by auction last month, and mementos of the famous horseman were eagerly bought by his friends. Among the purchasers were General Benjamin F. Tracy, Messrs. W. B. Dickerman, James C. Van Nuyse, John McCarthy, Dean Sage and Capt. B. H. Tuthill.

At Nicholasville, Ky., recently a novel horse trade was consummated between William Monahan and B. D. Spears. Spears fancied a horse owned by Monahan, and remarked that he would girth the horse with ten dollar bills and take him. The offer was accepted and the measurement taken, and it required nine bills or $90 to encircle the animal's body. Both gentlemen were satisfied with the trade.

The managers of the Boston Horse Show have decided to offer a $500 purse for the stallion best adapted to sire carriage horses, the stallion to be of any breed and to be shown with two of his get. This leaves it open to competition to all breeds of horses.

Mrs. D. M. Holmes, of Norwich, N. Y., who died at her home there about a week before Christmas, left a special request that none of the horses used at her funeral should wear any check lines. This request was complied with, and although a large number of private carriages as well as those hired for the occasion, followed her remains to the grave, there was not a check rein in use on any of the horses.

Joseph Hoar and Thomas Manghan, two of the largest horse dealers in London, are now in this country. Mr. Manghan is going to visit Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City and Montreal. He brings the news that two of the largest auction firms in England—namely, Manghan & Co. and Moore Brothers & White of London—have lately consolidated, to be known hereafter as Manghan & Moore Brothers. Their business is almost exclusively American.

Diablo 2:09½ will make the season of 1901 at Woodland at $40. Mr. Murray should get a very large patronage for his grand young horse at this figure. There is no better bred horse in America than this son of Charles Derby, he was an unbeaten race horse on the turf, and his get have size and style and great speed. No horse ever stood in Yolo county that was a better one for the farmers to patronize as he will sire horses that are large and fine looking as well as elegant roadsters.

S. Christianson has sent his mare Simone to Grant Lapham who will get her in shape to work fast later on. Simone is one of the best individuals in the State and her breeding cannot be surpassed. She is by Simmons out of Mi Lidy by Baron Wilkes, second dam Lady Gay by Mambrino Patchen. Mr. Christianson has recently purchased another grandly bred one in Emma Smalley who is registered in Vol. 14 of the Register. She is by Blue Dawn, son of Jay Bird and her dam is Sally Russell by Mambrino Russell.

Superintendent Frank Covey of the Palo Alto Farm says that in the lot of colts that are to be shipped to Cleveland in May next for the Blue Ribbon sale are two as fast fillies as the farm has bred. Before the first of January, and while they were yearlings both these fillies stepped an eighth in 17½ seconds. One is a sister to Idolita 2:12 (by Mendocino-Edith), and the other is a chestnut filly named Festival (by Dexter Prince-Flower Girl). Covey is highly elated with the pure trotting action of these fillies, and believes that they will be the sensation of the season on the trotting turf.

We will publish next week a list of all the trotters and pacers with records in California that are likely to be campaigned this year, arranged according to their classes. We will do this for the benefit of Secretaries arranging purses for the meetings to be given this season. We desire every California reader of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN who has a horse with a record of 2:25 or better that he desires to race or thinks can be put in condition, to send us the name, record and pedigree of the animal as soon as possible. If every owner and trainer will do this our list can be made most complete.

The National Trotting Association is in excellent financial shape. At the beginning of the year May 1, 1900, they had a cash balance of over $6000, and received during the season about $19,000. The disbursements amounted to $8000, leaving a balance on hand November 1st of over $16,000. The fines that were paid under protest were the Louisville Driving Association, $650; W. O. Foote, $600; F. W. Noble, $500; W. J. Johns, $250; Kent and Queen Ann County Fair, George Sanders, Charles O'Brien, James Golden, John Cheney, George Huber, $100 each; Thomas T. Maxwell and S. S. Lyman, $50 each.

T. W. Barstow of Los Angeles expects to have quite a string of horses ready to race this year in California. He has two with records, Wilkes Direct 2:22½ (a full brother to John A. McKerron 2:10) and Claudius 2:13½ by Nutwood Wilkes. He has a trotter called Mormon Girl for the 2:40 class, Alone, a three year old pacer, Uncle Dewey, a three year old trotter, and Belle Jackson, a four year old mare that he will start in the green pacing classes. Mr. Barstow's stallion Wilkes Direct will get a good patronage this year. The youngsters by this horse are grand looking colts with size, style and substance and he will make one of the greatest stock horses in California.

Joseph Depoister is located at the Tulare race track and is jogging daily a few horses with the view of racing them this season. Among them are Peter Jackson by Designer, and the following three belonging to W. F. Ferguson: Gloaming, bay mare, 6, by Secretary; Gloaming's two year old bay colt by Harry Gear, and a four year old filly by Iris. He has a five year old chestnut mare by Iris belonging to J. W. Carlisle, a two year old grey colt by Harry Gear out of Ella by El Capitán, and a three year old filly by the same sire out of a mare by Algona that belong to E. L. Scott. Mr. Depoister's horses are all looking well and there are several very promising ones among them.

The Los Angeles Express remarks: "Interest increases with every succeeding matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club. The club has demonstrated that racing can be conducted on a high plane and still attract a large audience of lovers of fine horse flesh. It was the original intention to hold the next meeting on Washington's Birthday, but a general demand for an earlier date induced the Directors to decide on a matinee the latter part of this month. Since the Thanksgiving Day races, interest in the meeting has become so widespread that the demand for fast horses has increased apace and prices of good animals have mounted up by leaps and bounds."

John Dickerson, who has been in the service of Senator John McCarty's Parkway Farm, Goshen, N. Y., for the past two years, severed his connection the first of the month, and has been engaged by Gen. B. F. Tracy, to train the Marshland stud youngsters. It is understood that John's younger prother Will, will remain in the employ of Parkway Farm.

During the month ending December 24th, David Bonner, export agent of the National Trotting Association, issued certificates of identity for thirty-eight trotters that were sent abroad. Among them were Neeretta 2:09½ by Neernut, Contralto 2:10 by The Conqueror, Greenbrino 2:10½ by Woodbrino, Bertha Lee 2:13½ by Senator Rose, Normeda 2:15½ by Norval Chief, Grace Greenlander 2:18½ by Greenlander, and Dolly Marschutz 2:19½ by Charles Derby.

Recently John W. Springer, the millionaire president of the National Live Stock Association, was arrested at Denver, Col., charging him with importing a docked horse and placed under $300 bonds for trial. Last July Mr. Springer imported the great show horse Troubadour into the State of Colorado, and entered him in the Denver Horse Show. April, 1898, the Colorado legislature passed a statute forbidding the docking of horses' tails, and their importation into Colorado forbidden. It is said that Springer welcomes the intended prosecution, as it will give him an opportunity of contesting the constitutionality of the statute, for the benefit of horsemen and others who possess docked horses.

The owner of Connor 2:03½, Mr. Charles T. Chapin of Rochester, N. Y., says the famous pacer will be taken up this week in preparation for another campaign down the Grand Circuit. When Connor took his record of 2:03½ he won jogging at the wire, and as he has been a half right at a minute and any number of quarters in 29 seconds Mr. Chapin has reason to expect a mark of 2:00 for his good horse in 1901. It is possible that before his days are over Connor will once more be seen in trotting races. He was a wonderfully good colt trotter, and as a four year old took a record of 2:13½ trotting. Now that he has developed such wonderful speed it is likely that he would go very fast at the trot. Alta McDonald has told Mr. Chapin that he could drive Connor to a trotting record of 2:07 or 2:08.

The pacing stallion Oddity 2:10½ that died recently at the farm of his owner, Frank Jacobs, at Crab Creek, Ohio, was a chestnut stallion by Sidney, foaled in 1891; first dam Miss V. by Valensin; second dam Lightfoot by Flaxtail. He was bred by G. Valensin of Pleasanton, Cal. He was a consistent performer on the turf, and nearly always on the big rings of the Grand Circuit. In September, 1899, on the half-mile track in Dayton, he defeated Effie Powers and others of the half-mile cracks in a five-heat race, pacing the fourth heat heat in 2:14½. In the 2:11 class in Cleveland in the same year he made 2:08½, finishing a close fifth to Hydrogen 2:07½. Oddity went through the New England Circuit in 1896, and at Old Orchard, Me., won the 2:13 pace in a four-heat event, taking the fourth heat in 2:10½.

Geers has three green horses from a new maternal branch which promise to earn as much fame as any blood line ever developed at Village Farm. The three are out of one mare and are showing remarkable speed. Their dam, Jewel, is by Hamlin's Almont, out of Fero-line by Kentucky Prince; second dam Lady Dexter, sister to Dexter 2:17½, by old Hambletonian. The three year old is called The Jeweller by Athanio 2:10. He has trotted a half in 1:03½. Diamond King is the name of the four year old. He is by Mambrino King, is a pacer, and has gone a half in 1:06½. Lord March is the third one, also by Mambrino King, and has trotted a half in 1:09. It is conceded that the last is the best green one that Geers has in training. He is a grand looking, dark chestnut, trots square, and his half in 1:09 was stepped off after the weights had been removed from his toes. Direct Hal, Diamond King, Shadow Chimes and King Charles are probably the four greatest green pacers now in training. Shadow Chimes is coming so fast that there is doubt if Direct Hal is much the better pacer. The Chimes horse stepped a half mile last week in 1:05½ in handy style. He is a four year old by Chimes, dam Charmer by Mambrino King, and is an own brother to Charming Chimes 2:17½ and Carillon 2:16½. King Charles has only done a half in 1:07 at the covered ring, but last fall he paced a mile in 2:17, the last half in 1:05½. He is by Mambrino King, dam Ruffles. Geers had him in his stable for a short time last summer.

The last time the late Marcus Daly was in Washington he performed a humane act which very nearly brought a brutal hack driver into the police court, and was a topic of conversation at the hotel and other places which Daly frequented, says the Washington Post. Daly was coming out of Chamberlain's one morning when he espied a negro hackman brutally belaboring a crippled old horse with a heavy whip in an almost futile effort to increase its speed from a walk to a slow trot. Daly hailed the driver, who quickly drew rein and approached the curb with the prospect of obtaining a fare. "Where do you want to go boss?" inquired the negro. "I'll want you to go to the police court if you don't stop beating that poor old horse," replied the millionaire. "You could coax that nag along faster with a handful of oats and a whip of hay in front of him than you can by beating him from behind. When did you feed him last?" The negro complained that times were hard, that fares were scarce, and that he could not afford to provide better for his horse. Daly saw the force of the argument at once, and inquired how much the cabman averaged a week and was told that $8 or $10 was considered a good wage. Daly reached down into his vest pocket and drew forth a roll of bills, from which he peeled off a $20 note and handed it to the astonished negro. "There, take that," said the copper king, "and put that rack of bones in the barn and treat him to a banquet of hay and corn, and if I see you with him on the streets in the next two weeks I'll have you arrested."

THE SADDLE.

Imp's Great Career.

Whether Imp was the greatest mare the American turf ever saw is a question, though many assert that she was. There is no doubt, however, that for the last two seasons she was the most popular piece of horseflesh in the East. When the names of Miss Woodford, Thora, Los Angeles, Firenze and Yo Tambien are recalled, it is hard to place the black mare on a pedestal above them. Both Firenze and Los Angeles won more money than Imp did, the former in seventy-eight races netting $116,156, and the latter in 108 races putting some $97,000 to her owner's credit. Imp, however, ran considerably more races in her career, as she started 158 times, and landed in stakes and purses money amounting to $67,924, made up as follows:

	Starts	First	Second	Third	Value
1896.....	11	3	5	4	$ 1,310
1897.....	50	14	12	8	4,894
1898.....	35	21	6	3	12,140
1899.....	31	13	3	5	31,830
1900.....	31	8	10	9	17,950
	158	59	36	26	$67,924

Imp came by her speed and gameness naturally, for she was far more royally bred than many imagined. She was by imp. Wagner, dam Fondling, she by Fonso-Kitty Heron, who was by Chillicothe-Mollie Foster, Chillicothe being by Lexington and the dam by Asteroid. Wagner was by imp. Prince Charlie, the king of the T. Y. C., dam Duchess of Malfi by Eland.

Prince Charlie was the son of Blair Athol, winner of the English Derby and St. Leger in 1864, dam Eastern Princess, while Blair Athol was by Stockwell-Queen Mary, and Stockwell was the founder of the famous Doncaster, Ben d'Or, Ormonde, Orme and Flying Fox line.

Imp commenced her racing career by winning a purse for maiden fillies at four furlongs at Cincinnati on May 22, 1896, when over a heavy track she beat Dulcinea, Scarf Pin and others in 0:50½.

In her two year old career she did not presage her future excellence, but she did fairly well, starting eleven times and being unplaced only twice. As a three year old she did her hardest work, starting on April 1st at Newport, when she ran third in a mile race to Winker and Vengeance, and finishing the season at Lakeside on November 15th, when she captured an owner's handicap at a mile, beating Harry Thoburn, Ben Waddell and others.

In 1898 she commenced racing at Newport on April 9th, and after four straight victories at that track she came to Lakeside, where she started out with a win, but at their second venture was beaten in a five-furlong sprint by Abuse, to whom she was giving considerable weight. She won two more events at Lakeside before going to Harlem, where she captured three events in succession, scoring ten wins and one second out of eleven starts. C. E. Brossman, who had her in charge, then determined to start East with her, as she was entered in the Suburban.

A rather good story is told of Brossman about this time. A friend of his remarked to him, "How is it that you always favor mares and have such good fortune with them. You had Bessie Bisland, and now you have Imp and you have been successful with them both."

"Well," said Brossman, "I prefer mares, some like stallions, and some like geldings, but I do not. I suppose I succeed with them on account of the way I handle them."

"How is that?" inquired his friend.

"I treat them just as I would treat a woman," replied Brossman. "I let them have their own way."

Imp's first appearance in the East was at Brooklyn on June 13th, when, in a handicap for three year olds and upwards, at a mile and an eighth, carrying 108 pounds, she beat Havoc (6, 126), Knight of the Garter (4, 93), and two others in a canter in 1:55½. When the news reached Harlem that afternoon pandemonium broke loose, and the victory of the black mare was hailed with cheers, while predictions of her winning the Suburban were numerous. Unfortunately, those prophecies were not fulfilled, for carrying 102 pounds she got off badly, last but one in a field of eleven, and though she ran a great race, being second to Ogden at the three-quarters, the effort was too much for her and she finished sixth.

After the Suburban she came back West, and at Washington park ran third for the Oakwood Handicap, being beaten by Fervor and What-er-Lou, to both of whom she was giving pounds of weight. After winning a couple of races at Washington park she captured six events in succession at Hawthorne and Harlem, among them the Austin, Speed and Dash Stakes, and she finished up the season on November 15th by winning a mile and a sixteenth handicap at Lakeside, carrying 116 pounds, and beating Macy, 114, and Al Fresco, 97 pounds, very easily.

The season of 1899 may be looked on as the banner year for Imp, for she reached the zenith of her fame when she captured the Suburban handicap, and for the first time placed the name of a mare on the roll of victors.

In this year she started thirty-one times, was first thirteen, second three and third five, being unplaced ten times, and winning $31,360.

The black mare did not race at all in the West this season, but commenced operations at Washington, D. C., where, as a starter, she had 126 pounds on her in a mile and 100-yard race, and was unplaced. With the same weight, however, she won a few days after at the same meeting at a mile and a sixteenth, after which she did not get a winning bracket till May 23d, when she won a handicap at a mile and an eighth at Morris Park, carrying 125 pounds, winning handily in 1:53½.

At Brooklyn, again with the top weight, 123 pounds, she won a condition race for mares at a mile and a sixteenth easily in 1:49. At the same meeting, carrying 126 pounds, she won a mile and an eighth handicap, and then at Coney Island came the triumphs of her life, when, with 114 pounds, she captured the Suburban, beating Bannockburn (4, 112), Warrenton (4, 114), and ten others. Imp was at 7 to 1 in the betting, and, getting off in front, she lay third till the mile, when she took the lead and won handily in 2:05½. There was joy among her backers on that day.

On July 6th, at Brighton Beach, she won the Brighton handicap after four defeats, carrying 115 pounds, and beating Ethelbert (3, 106), Bangle (4, 112) and Martimas (3, 112½) handily in 2:05 2-5. This victory of Imp's caused some hard things to be said of the mare's handlers, as, after her poor showing since the Suburban, she went to the post at 8 to 1. After winning a mile handicap at the same meeting with 126 pounds, she, on July 31st, captured the Islip Stakes, at a mile, with 111 pounds up, beating Firearm (4, 113) and others in a drive in 1:40 3-5.

At the Coney Island fall meeting, with 123 pounds, she won the Ocean handicap, one mile, beating a large field, and at the same meeting, with the steady impost of 128 pounds, she won the Turf handicap, one and a quarter miles, beating five others easily. At Brooklyn she captured the First Special, at one and a quarter miles, with 119 pounds in the saddle, and followed this up by winning the Second Special, at one and a half miles, at the same meeting, carrying 124 pounds.

She finished the season by placing the Oriental handicap to her owner's credit, when, carrying 128 pounds, she beat Charentus (5, 106) easily in 2:07 3-5.

Imp's performances this season were marvelous, as she carried heavy weights on all occasions, and met and defeated the best that were going.

In the last season, though she has done remarkably well, it has not been up to the standard of her banner year. She began the season at Washington, but her first victory was at Brooklyn, when, carrying 124 pounds, she won the Parkway handicap, at one and one-sixteenth miles, beating Kinley Mack (4, 127), Survivor (4, 104), and others. This was on Wednesday, May 30, and on the Saturday previous Kinley Mack, with 122 pounds, had beaten her in the Brooklyn handicap, she running sixth with 128 pounds.

After winning another race at Brooklyn, she started in the Suburban with 128 pounds up. She and Jean Beraud raced in front for over three-quarters of a mile, but they could not stand the pace, and Kinley Mack, Ethelbert and Gulden all finished in front of the black mare.

At the same meeting, carrying 131 pounds, she won a mile-and-three-sixteenths handicap, and captured the Advance stakes, one and three-quarters miles, with 113 pounds up. At Brighton Beach she won a condition race on July 23, and then did not get a winning bracket till the fall meeting at Coney Island, where, on September 3, carrying 128 pounds, she won at one and one-sixteenth miles on the turf.

She had her revenge on Kinley Mack by defeating him in the Second Special at Brooklyn on September 15, when, with 118 pounds, she beat him in a drive, he carrying 126 pounds, with Ethelbert third, with 121 pounds, and one and one half miles being run in 2:34 1-5. This was the old mare's star performance of the year, and her backers fared well, as she was the outsider in the party, 7 to 1 being laid against her.

Imp's last victory was in the Mahopac handicap, one and one-sixteenth miles, at Yonkers, N. Y., on October 25, when, carrying 126 pounds, she beat Kamara and others in 1:47. She finished the season at Washington, where, in a mile and 110 yards handicap, she, with 123 pounds, was second to First Whip, on November 23.

It is to be hoped that the report of her retirement is true, for the great black mare has earned a rest and an easy life for the future. All will wish that she may have better luck with her progeny than has fallen to the lot of other great mares, and that some day or other a son or daughter of Imp may follow in the footsteps of the illustrious mother, and become as great and popular as she is.

Answers to Correspondents.

H. G. Hawaii—Kindly give breeding of imp. Kyrle Daly and mare Cinderella, sire and dam of Harold, also the breeding of Milner, sire of Marigold.

Ans.—Imported Kyrle Daly was by Artillery, (son of Touchstone) out of Colleen Rhue by Gemme di Vergy; second dam Princess by Retriever, third dam Echidna by Economist, fourth dam Miss Pratt by Blacklock, fifth dam Gadabout by Orville.

Cinderella is by Catesby, first dam Slipper by imp. Yorkshire, second dam Kitten by American Eclipse, third dam Eliza Jenkins by Sir William of Transport, third dam Nell by Orphan, fourth dam by imp. Buzzard, fifth dam by Silvertail.

Milner was by imp. Leamington, first dam by Lexington, second dam Kate Anderson by imp. Sovereign, third dam Chloe Anderson by Rodolph, fourth dam Belle Anderson by Sir William of Transport, fifth dam Butterfly by Sumpter.

Constant Reader—Morello was a bay horse foaled 1890, and died on the farm of J. O. Reis at Alamo, Contra Costa county, in November 1896. He won the Futurity in 1892 in 1:12 1-5. He won the Wheeler Handicap at Chicago in 1893, carrying 117 lbs. and ran the distance in 2:05. He also ran one and one-eighth miles in 1:53½ with 128 pounds up. He was one of the greatest race horses ever produced in America. Morello stood at the Sonoma Stock Farm of J. B. Chase and at Alamo. If you have a mare said to be by Morello you should be able to ascertain whether that breeding is correct. Find the name and breeding of her dam and learn whether such a mare was bred to him.

M. B. S., Cottonwood—You will find two different lotions advertised in your business columns, either of which will be as good as anything you can use. Or you might try the following: Take biniodide of mercury one and one-half drams, vaseline or lard one ounce. Mix thoroughly and after clipping the hair from the parts, rub in well for fifteen minutes. Leave it on for thirty-six hours and then do not wash it off, but apply lard or vaseline and keep on with it daily for three weeks. Keep the colt's head tied up so that he cannot bite the blistered parts.

SADDLE NOTES.

The following have been elected stewards of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association, to serve for three years, or until their successors are appointed: J. O. Green, J. H. Alexander, R. C. Hooper and W. H. Sands.

Prince Poniatowski was the only Californian to make a nomination in the Brooklyn Handicap.

The thoroughbred horse owned by the Marcus Daly estate have been insured for a large amount, the insurance to run until February 2d. The horses are to be sold January 30th, 31st and February 1st.

Entries to the New Louisville Jockey Club's stakes, which show a marked increase over those of last year, closed as follows: Debutante stake 93, Winonah stake 92, Juvenile stake 95, Bluegrass stake 52, Frank Fehr stake 86, Turf Congress stake 67, Kentucky Derby for 1902, 112, Kentucky Oaks, for 1902, 79; Nursery stake for 1902, 153. Six stakes to be run at the spring meeting of 1901, closed January 5th. The average number of entries to each stake is 83. There will be run at the spring meeting nine stakes, the Kentucky Derby, the Clark stake, and the Kentucky Oaks that closed in 1899, and the six just closed.

Park Commissioner Brower of the borough of the Brooklyn has formally taken charge of the grounds of the Coney Island Jockey Club at Sheepshead Bay, under a recent legislative enactment relating to public parks, whereby the grounds of the club become known as the Sheepshead Bay park. Under this act the grounds are to be open to the public at all times except the thirty days of racing given by the club.

Jockey Overton, at Washington Park, Chicago, in July, 1891, rode in the six races on the card and won them all, which is the American jockey record for one day. At Alpin, in New Zealand, on January 28, 1899, a jockey named Thompson won seven races and a match, making eight consecutive wins in one day.

Leon N. Salmon, well known as a turf writer and also in other positions he has held on the turf, has been appointed secretary of the new Saratoga Racing Association.

Robert Curran of Butte, Montana, who is attending to the correspondence of the Montana Jockey Club during Secretary Lawrence's absence at New Orleans finds that he has his hands full as the correspondence increases in volume daily. The outlook is that the meeting will be one of the best that has ever been known in Montana. It is stated that there will be at least 450 horses from California, and 100 runners from Denver. New Orleans and Memphis are expected to contribute a large number of horses for the races. Two of the best race tracks in the country are located in Butte and Anaconda, and horsemen know that there is no better field for racing than in Montana. There will be a number of Montana horses contest for the prizes, and Montanans are rapidly increasing their stables in anticipation of the meeting.

The death of Lord William Beresford will not affect Mr. William C. Whitney's English racing plans, except that Lord Beresford would have managed Mr. Whitney's stable had he lived. J. Huggins will train the horses and the Rieff brothers will do the riding.

The stakes of the Harlem Jockey Club, numbering twelve, with added moneys to the amount of $25,000 and estimated values of $44,500, have been announced by Secretary Nathanson. Two new events, the Twentieth Century Handicap and the M. Lewis Clark Stakes, are among those offered. In view of the prosperous season passed by the club last year, the increase in the value of the stakes is marked. Nearly all are more than doubled in value, and the Twentieth Century Handicap will add $5000 to the total offered in added moneys. The increases offered by Harlem tally to a dollar with those offered by Hawthorne, and the two rival tracks will race with practically the same attractions, so far as stakes are concerned. Secretary Nathanson also announces that no purse of less than $500, except for the cheapest fields, will be offered at Harlem, and that overnight handicaps, with $600 to $750 added, will be given frequently.

Thompson Brothers say that Sidney Lucas will be a greater horse this year than ever, and they do not care how much weight is packed upon him in the handicaps. They are willing to chance him against anything in the country, they say.

Papinta, the famous dancer, will soon be in California and will, no doubt, have the pleasure of seeing some of her horses start in races at the local tracks. Eddie Cassin this week brought down six two year olds from Papinta's farm at Concord, Contra Costa county. One by Buck Massie is a crackerjack in Eddie's opinion.

It is stated on good authority that Tod Sloan, when he returns to England in March, will apply to the English Jockey Club for a license, and he fully believes that it will be granted him.

The total amount of added money offered by Washington Park, Harlem, Hawthorne and Lakeside is surprising. It is nothing less than $603,250. Basing an estimate upon the number of entries received in former years to stake events at Chicago, the values of the stakes offered by the four tracks reaches $725,000.

Lester and Johnnie Reiff, the jockeys, who scored such successes in England and at home, have purchased a fifteen-acre home for their parents near San Jose. The place is located on the Infirmary road and Moorpark avenue. It is the old Burgess home. There is a fairly good house on the place and the land is in fruit. The boys say they will not retire from the track and engage in fruit raising, but simply want the place for a home for their parents. The price is said to have been $21,000.

The prospects for the annual spring meeting of the Little Rock Jockey Club, which opens March 25th, are very bright, and the indications are that the attendance will be the largest in its history. There will be three stakes, two by the Turf Congress and one by a St. Louis brewing company, which this year succeeds a local brewing company. The latter firm has for several years been giving an annual stake of $500. There will be more money up this meeting than ever before, the association having provided for about $1800 a day during the six days racing. It is announced that the betting ring will be open to all reputable book-makers, which will be the means of preventing much of the dissatisfaction that the closure rule has produced at some of the previous meetings. There are now about 100 horses at the track, the largest number ever stabled there so far in advance. Among the owners who now have stables in quarters are George W. Long, Louisville; J. E. Cushing, Minneapolis; Charles Mahone, Kentucky and Ben Vincent. George C. Bennett, the Memphis turfman, will take over his stable of thirty racers by January 15th, one of the largest stables in the United States, and one of the heaviest winners on the Western tracks. Ed. Graves of Lexington, Ky., will take over fourteen head and Burrows of St. Louis will have twenty. The association has a large force of men at work on the grounds, stables and the track, putting them in good shape for the meeting.

In the Follansbee handicap, a high weight affair, run off last Saturday at Emeryville, Articulate demonstrated that he is a "sure enough" race horse, defeating the good colt Golden Age with comparative ease. There was a delay of twenty minutes at the post, the flag finally falling to a bad start with Articulate off behind. Golden Age was first to break and set off at a killing pace; Articulate, however, ran him down in the first sixteenth of a mile and then opened up a gap of five or six lengths, which advantage he held until the stretch was reached; here Golden Age, gamely replying to punishment, drew up to within two lengths of the leader, but could get no closer, and in that order the wire was passed in the fast time of 1:29 for a slushy track. Articulate's win was a most impressive one and stamps him as a colt of high class and great speed. He is a wonder in muddy going and is probably the best three year old racing here—at present. He combines in his veins the blood of St. Simon and Musket, which has proved such a great success, especially in Australia. St. Andrew, his sire, is one of the few sons of St. Simon (the leading race horse sire in the world) which has been imported to America. Utter, the dam of Articulate, was by Martini Henry, a son of the famous Musket, and her dam was by Chester. Articulate thus carries the best blood of both England and Australia.

Jockey Coburn has returned from New Orleans and made his reappearance on the turf last Monday, riding Casdale in the opening event. Many bettors who had the misfortune to back Casdale expressed much sorrow at Coburn's return, as the thoroughly ill-judged ride which he put up on Casdale was solely the cause of his defeat.

Ordnung is about the most improved horse racing here at present; he shows an ability to carry weight, and run in any kind of going, and in any kind of company. While he is hardly of stake quality it seems as if he has a chance, at least, with the best of them.

The McLaughlin selling stakes at one mile and a sixteenth brought out rather an ordinary lot of horses, of which the three year old Telamon looked to be the best and went to the post favorite. The winner, however, turned up to be Anjou, which came from behind and snatched the victory from Lena by a neck; Malay off none too well, at the start, finished third, a length away.

Sam Hildreth is making changes in his stable; during the past week he has sold Meehanus to Caesar Young, Gibraltar and Bangor to Burns & Waterhouse and the two year old Sol Lichenstein to Dr. H. E. Rowell.

Lester Reiff, the famous jockey, was a visitor at the Emeryville track last Saturday.

It is rumored that Mr. Charles Reed has made up his mind to race again. He is the owner of the Fairview Stud., who, when St. Blaise was offered at auction years ago, promptly bid $100,000 and secured that grand sire at the only bid made on the stallion. In 1902, it is said, he will race a strong stable of two year olds and the cherry, blue sleeves, cherry cap and blue tassel, will be warmly welcomed back to the track.

Lou Rey was bid up $300 Saturday above his entered price by Mr. Lewis, his former owner. Mr. Simons retained him with the customary $5 advance.

The condition of the track at Emeryville has militated against the success of the current meeting, from a racing standpoint. The sea of mud which has prevailed during the two weeks has been responsible for a great many upsets and may account for the defeat of the extraordinarily large number of favorites which went wrong.

Two year old racing is now in full swing and three furlong events for the youngsters have become regular features. It is usually not a very difficult matter to select the winner in these races as two year olds run more consistently and closer to form than older horses do; but this season, owing to the perfectly ridiculous manner in which the starting is conducted these events have been decided immediately upon the release of the barrier and are thus robbed of a large amount of interest.

Catalogues for the Marcus Daly sale have been received and can be had at this office.

The catalogue of the Bitter Root horses to be sold in New York the last of this month have been issued by the Fasig-Tipton company and are complete in every particular. Besides containing a history of the performances of the stallions and tabulations of the pedigree of each animal catalogued there are many handsome half tone engravings of some of the leading stallions and broodmares.

The Canadian racing circuit has announced the stakes it will offer for the meetings at Fort Erie (Buffalo) and Highland Park (Detroit). The principal ones are as follows: At Fort Erie: Canadian Derby—One and one-quarter miles, for three year old foals of 1898; value, $2000. Hamilton Stake—Six furlongs, selling, for three year olds and upward that have never won a stake of $800; value, $1000. Pan-American Handicap—One mile, for three year olds and upward; value, $1000. Buffalo Stake—Five furlongs, for two year olds; value, $1000. Barrie Stake—Four and one-half furlongs, for two year olds and upward; value, $1000. Grand Canadian Handicap Steeplechase—Short course, for four year olds and upward; value, $1000. At Highland Park: Turf Congress Stake—One and one-sixteenth miles, a sweepstake for three year olds. Turf Congress Stake—Four and one-half furlongs, a sweepstake for two year olds.

W. D. Randall has returned from Montana and states that everything looks favorable for a most successful meeting at Butte and Anaconda next summer. The season will open on July 2d, and as the Montana people have enjoyed a three years' rest they are looking forward to a meeting with great interest.

A new set of colors will probably be introduced to the Eastern turf world at the Brooklyn meeting. They will be those of W. H. Jackson, Jr., son of the well known breeder, and his stable will be mainly two year olds selected from his father's Belle Meade Farm. All have been highly tried and it is thought that there is some stake timber among them. They will be handled by John Brandon, who is trying to make a rider out of Justice Forehand, a very promising lad. Forehand's brother, Thompson, who was a crack rider in the West, is in bad odor, and although strong efforts are being made to lift the ban, the chances of his riding this year are not considered very bright. Mr. Jackson has already raced in the West with some success.

Fred Taral has signed a contract for three years to ride for Baron von Zeitaffel, of Vienna. He will sail for Austria, February 15th. He has sold his place in Mount Vernon. Taral is noted as one of the strongest finishers in the business, and while he has not done much of late years, he has not accumulated weight, and with good horses to ride will probably prove he is as good as ever he was.

J. J. McCafferty's good filly Belle of Orleans has broken down so badly at New Orleans that it is thought her racing career is over and she will probably be retired to the stud at once.

A telegram of January 6th from Lexington, Ky., announces the critical illness of Major Barak G. Thomas at his home in that city. Major Thomas is now 74 years of age and has for many years been one of the most prominent American turfmen and breeders and to enumerate the famous horses which have come from the Dixiana Stud would require a column or more of American turf history. Major Thomas is known as the Nestor of the turf and he and Col. S. D. Bruce, of New York, now in his seventy-sixth year, are probably the only turfmen living who saw the great Grey Eagle and Wagner race at Louisville, Ky., in 1839.

For every horse foaled in 1898 (now two years old), or thereafter, a name must be claimed through the registry office of the American Stud Book on or before March 1st of its two old year. In case a horse is not named prior to March 1st of its two old year it may be duly named upon payment of a fine of $50, if name is claimed and allowed at least two days before date of racing.

The San Francisco Jockey Club has arranged for longer distance races at Tanforan. The book for the three weeks' meeting, commencing January 21st, was issued Tuesday and in it are numerous events at over a mile. There will be three jumping events a week. On the 25th the Vernal stakes for three year old fillies eligible to the California Oaks will be run. The Winter handicap, with $3000 added, is carded for Saturday, the 26th. The Eclipse stakes will be run February 2d and the California Oaks on February 9th.

The Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Latonia and Tanforan tracks will withdraw from the present Turf Congress and organize a new body similar to the Eastern Jockey Club," said a prominent delegate to the session of the Turf Congress held at the Wellington Hotel in Chicago last Wednesday. "This will mean a dissolution of the present Turf Congress, the throwing out of the smaller Southern tracks and the organization of a strong Western body, with a board of stewards that will be extremely powerful in turf matters." The combination includes the big tracks of the West, with the exception of Oakland and Ingleside. The latter has not been in operation this season. It also leaves out Little Rock and other southern tracks. These will be provided for, however, if the present plans carry. It was planned after the Turf Congress adjourned to have the big tracks withdraw. The new body, if it goes through, will fix all racing dates. The object of the meeting was to provide for the division of the money now in the treasury. This was accomplished. Each track in the Turf Congress secures $2900. This leaves the sum of $2600 in the treasury, which will cover present expenses. It is likely the big tracks mentioned will turn their $2900 into the treasury of the new jockey club to be formed later. The delegates favoring the new organization adjourned to the Auditorium annex. The name chosen for this body was the Western Jockey Club.

San Francisco, Saturday, January 19, 1901.

THE WORLD IS GOVERNED TOO MUCH is an aphorism that is becoming more pertinent every day. So accustomed have people become to asking legislative bodies to pass laws favoring special schemes in which they see big profits, that from Congress to the board of trustees of the smallest school district, the legislative apartments of National and State Governments are asked to hang out the department store sign "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." It makes no difference what the nature of the "want" is there seems to be no limit to the demands for legislation in its behalf, and the State is asked to take control of everything from religion to racing or from the selling of a glass of beer to the disposal of the carcass of a dead duck. There is, just now, in a circle that we believe is so narrow that not more than a half dozen persons can find standing room in it, a call for race track legislation, which will limit the racing season to thirty days in any one county. Because the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has intimated at various times that long continued race meetings were not conducive to the highest class sport, and that they were of but little benefit to the breeding industry of the State, some seem inclined to the opinion that this journal should favor legislation limiting the racing season. We take this opportunity to state for the benefit of those who hold these views, that we see no more cause for legislative control of racing than we do of baseball, golf, or even the games of marbles played by the school boy. Because racing from October to May has made San Francisco "a poor harness horse town" is no better reason for limiting the running season by legal enactment than the fact that vaudeville and farce comedy draw larger houses than the Shakespearean dramas is a sufficient ground on which to pass an ordinance restricting the lighter shows to fewer performances. The only control over sports of any kind that the legislature should attempt to exercise is that they shall not be cruel, brutal or immoral and when those points are covered there is no demand for any further legislation. Racing, both running and trotting, will work out their own salvation in this State as they will in every other locality. Galloping contests are better gambling propositions than are those at the trot or paco, and will always be more popular with those who gamble on them for the sake of gambling. Harness racing does not appeal to everybody as the greatest of amusements, but it does to a great many and there are enough of this sort in the country to keep it in the front rank of American sports. The trotting horse man that sits down and whines because the running tracks draw larger crowds and make a larger profit every year than the harness meetings is not a true lover of the sport that he claims to admire, and the man or set of men who would have the running season shortened so that some other game can run, have a disposition very similar to that of the little girl who said to her brother when he took the choicest apple from the plate: "You greedy boy, I wanted that myself," and if that little girl is still living we do not doubt but she is an enthusiastic advocate of woman's suffrage and aspires to be a member of the legislature that she may introduce a bill prohibiting boys from having a grab at any plate of big red apples until she has had a chance to make a selection herself. But, all joking aside, this question of asking legislative interference in the matter of sports is a very serious one, and we hope that every fair minded person interested in any way in the breeding, training, developing or racing of harness horses will frown it down. Laws governing or limiting racing have no place on the statute books. Let them once be placed there and there will be no end to the additions and amendments that will be offered every year, until no man will know how to win a race until the Supreme Court has rendered a decision in the matter. There is no demand among the harness horse men of California as a class for any law limiting running races. They are too representative a set of individuals, too broad minded and liberal to ask for any such selfish legislation and too far sighted to fail to see the wreck and chaos that will follow government paternalism in racing matters.

IT LOOKS as if there is an inevitable clash coming between many of the racing associations of America before many years, and if it does come the cause will be greed—the vice that is the downfall of nearly all corporations. There is no doubt but that racing as conducted in the big centres of population is very profitable to the associations that manage them, and this fact leads to many new clubs being formed and new tracks built. An organization that has been accustomed to making a profit of $1000 per day for thirty days does not see why it should give up one half its time to a new club, and the new organization cannot understand why it should not be permitted to engage in business on dates of its own choosing. The result is that around New York everything is in the hands of that powerful organization, The Jockey Club, whose members are mostly very wealthy gentlemen who care more for the sport than they do for the gain to be made and they keep the Shylocks of the business under control. Around Chicago, however, a different condition of affairs exists and the contest for dates is on every year. The Western Turf Congress could not solve the question and has gone out of existence. A new organization is to take its place, but breakers are already ahead. The Washington Park Club of Chicago stands in a better position than any of the others. It can always depend upon a large attendance, many high class entries and a profitable season. It is above the fighting crowd and stands on its dignity and reputation, like the New York associations. The others are fearful of opposition and it will not take them long to make an attempt to outlaw all the smaller tracks that try to give meetings on dates not satisfactory to them. The result will be a race war that cannot help but work great injury to racing as well as to the breeding of thoroughbreds.

A GUARANTEED STAKE OF $25,000 for trotters of the 2:14, 2:15 or perhaps the 2:18 class would be a great drawing card for the next State Fair, and we suggest that the Directors look the field over and see if some such stake cannot be arranged. It should be something after the plan of the big trotting stakes that are decided in the East every year and for which buyers are always out with big money looking for likely candidates. Such a stake should be an annual event and nominations should close early and the name of the horse not required until the opening of the circuit, which is generally the last of July. We believe a stake of this kind could be opened with an entrance of five per cent, payable in installments and that it would cost the association but very little money. We think first money should not be less than $1500, second $750 and third $250, with nothing deducted from the money won. A stake of this nature would increase horse values and attract the attention of horsemen all over the country.

AN EFFORT IS BEING MADE to arrange a circuit of harness racing to begin at Petaluma and take in Santa Rosa, Napa, Vallejo, Woodland, the State Fair, Stockton and perhaps one or two other places, and we can assure horse owners that there is every probability of it being successful. By the middle of February an official announcement will be made and if everything progresses favorably a circuit of harness racing for purses worth trotting and pacing for will be assured horsemen.

SAM LOATES, the champion English jockey, left Chicago yesterday for San Francisco and will probably be seen in the saddle here. He stated that he was not coming to the coast for the purpose of riding, but for a pleasure and sight-seeing trip, and added that he would probably ride, however, if invited. There will be a general desire on the part of horsemen to see Loates ride and note his style.

IF THE LEGISLATURE would divide the State into not more than ten agricultural districts and appropriate money for annual fairs held in each, and some provision could be made whereby the Boards of Directors appointed to take control thereof would be composed of men actually interested in the progress and development of their respective districts, a great step in advance would be made.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY H. LOWDEN, of the California State Agricultural Society, writes us that the Occident Stake has 100 entries, the largest in its history and that he will send us a full list, together with a list of those that made second and third payments in the Occident and Stanford Stakes as soon as he has them checked up, which will be in a few days.

THE FUTURITY STAKE run last year at the California State Fair had but forty-nine original entries yet had a total value of $1660 on the day it was won by St. Rica, the two year old by St. Andrew. The Futurity of 1902 has 168 entries and by the rule of three it should be worth over $6000 next year.

A New Plan Suggested.

Assistant Secretary Harry Lowden of the California State Agricultural Society is sending the following circular to trotting horse owners and trainers throughout the Coast.

SACRAMENTO (Cal.), Jan. 16, 1901.

DEAR SIR:—I enclose you the number of payments on the Occident and Stanford Stakes for 1901 and 1902, also the entries for Occident Stake of 1903.

On my suggestion, the Board authorized the opening of six harness races for the State Fair of 1901. They have made these races as an experiment to lighten the cost to owners and breeders of harness horses, placing them in the same line as running horse stakes, excepting the division of moneys. They add $500, which all goes to the winner. The entrance, $10 only, and $25 additional for starters. The entrance and starting moneys paid in to be divided as follows: $50 to the fourth horse and the balance paid in—60 per cent. to the second horse and 40 per cent. to the third, five horses to start, and no deductions from money winners. You will see that under those conditions the horse that wins the race gets $500 for an entrance and starting fee of $35, as against $50 for original entrance and $50 as a money winner, in all $100 in a $1000 purse, under old system. I am sure the second and third horses will do better than under the old plan, while the fourth horse heretofore only saved his entrance, he will make $15 over and above what he paid in. These will be nomination purses that will close early in April, and horses are to be named in June that are then eligible to their classes. You will notice that if a horse goes amiss or the owner should not wish to start, he is only out $10. I would be pleased to have your views on this proposition, also what you think would be best classes, for four trotting and two pacing races. We will see how these take and be guided by them, whether we continue the balance of our purses under this proposition or revert to the old system for the program of races for the next fair. Kindly give this your closest attention and let me know your ideas on the system and also the classes at your earliest possible convenience. The intention is to lighten the cost of entrance to owners and provide attractions and drawing contests for the association.

Yours truly, HARRY LOWDEN,
Ass't Sec'y.

There is no doubt but this plan will lighten the cost to horse owners, and be especially favorable to those whose horses go wrong and cannot start, as instead of being out $50 entrance in thousand dollar purses it will cost them but $10. The winner of first money will get $65 more than he could in a purse of $1000, and the winner of fourth money, as Mr. Lowden states, would earn $15 net instead of simply getting his entrance money back. The second and third moneys would depend for their value on the number of entries and starters. Let us take a big list of entries and a big list of starters for example. Twenty entries at $10 each would bring in $200 as we understand the $10 must be paid at time of entry. Ten starters at $25 each would make $250 more which with the $500 added by the association would make a total of $950 in the stake. Of this $500 would go to the first and $50 to the fourth horse. Sixty per cent. of the remainder, or $240 would be paid to second and $160 to the third. In this case every horse would get more money net than he would in a purse of $1000 under the old style, and at a less cost, but the association would be the loser, as under the old plan with twenty entries and ten starters the association could not possibly be out over $300 even though not one cent was collected from those that failed to start, and if six non-starters paid the race would cost the association nothing. Now, let us figure on a race with a few entries—say eight, with the required five starters. With the $500 added money it would be worth $705. First and fourth money would be the same—$500 and $50—leaving $93 for the second horse and $62 for the third, and this division of the money should surely make a horse race, as the difference between second and first money would be too great for an owner to be content with second place. On the old plan of five per cent entrance money a thousand dollar purse with eight entries and five starters would cost the association $600 net if it collected every entrance fee, and $25 additional for each non-starter that it failed to collect from. Mr. Lowden's plan looks to be a good one for the horsemen, especially where entries are numerous.

We hope every horseman who receives one of Mr. Lowden's circulars will take the time to reply to it and state just what he thinks about it. Do not hesitate to give your opinion, whether it is for or against the proposed plan and give the reasons for thinking so.

Also state what classes you think will fill best and what ones you will enter in. If the horse owners and the officers of the State and district associations will get in close touch with each other the racing season of 1901 can be made a great success.

Richard Croker has purchased of Colonel W. S. Barnes, of Lexington, six head of the choicest thoroughbred colts of the 1900 production of Melbourne Stud. The total amount involved is $20,000. The best youngster of the lot is the handsome Beau Imperial, by Prince of Monaco out of Bonita Belle, the dam of Beau Gallant, which cost Croker the stiff sum of $6100. The youngsters bought for Croker will be delivered in June, when they will be sent across the water to race. They are by Prince of Monaco and Jim Gore and out of such dams as Bonita Belle, Poti Olo, Quintette, Bamboo, etc.

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

The eighteenth annual trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club started last Monday at North Island, Coronado Beach. In the Derby, the first event, there were eighteen starters. This event was finished Tuesday. The winners were: First—J. E. Terry's orange and white English Setter Lady (Ch. Count Gladstone IV—Peach Mark. Second—W. W. Van Arsdale's black, white and tan English Setter bitch Peach Blossom (Ch. Count Gladstone IV—Peach Mark). Third—P. D. Linville's white, black and tan English Setter bitch Maggie F. (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Lady Rodscaff).

The Derby winners are all daughters of Champion Count Gladstone IV, which fact is a pleasing feature to Coast fanciers and another vivid showing of the old dogs wonderful career as the best producing sire in the country. Lady won third in the recent Northwest trials at Whidby Island, being beaten by North-Huntress and Clipper W., who both ran in the Derby this week, but were unplaced.

The All-Age stake was started on Thursday morning, the number of starters including the three Derby winners was six. Peach Blossom won first, Lady second and Cuba's Zep and Merry Heart divided third.

Following the All-Age, the Champion and Members' Stakes were on the card, among the entries for the first named event were Tod Sloan's Vi, Albert Betz's Merry Heart, W. W. Van Arsdale's Lou, P. D. Linville's Maggie F., W. S. Tevis' Petronella, J. W. Flynn's Senator's Trinket and H. W. Keller's Valsmark. W. S. Tevis' Cuba of Kenwood and W. W. Van Arsdale's Peach Mark were entered in the Champion Stake. The trials were concluded on Thursday afternoon. In the All-Age Maggie F. won first, Vi second and Merry Heart third. Cuba of Kenwood won the Champion Stake.

During the trials birds were plentiful, weather conditions were changeable, varying from extreme heat, which interfered with point work, to heavy fogs during which it was difficult to keep track of the dogs.

The attendance of sportsmen from the beginning was large, during the running there was many arrivals of field trial enthusiasts. The trials were a source of much interest to the many guests of the Hotel Coronado, the trial grounds being located within a few minutes walk of this famous resort. Mr. E. S. Babcock and Mr. Graham E. Babcock were untiring in their efforts to show club members and visitors to the trials every accommodation possible.

At the annual meeting of the club, held on the evening of the 15th inst., the following officers for the ensuing year were elected, President, W. S. Tevis; Vice-Presidents, J. E. Terry and W. W. Van Arsdale; Secretary and Treasurer, Albert Betz; Executive Committee, C. N. Post, J. M. Kilgarif, C. E. Worden, J. H. Schumacher and H. W. Keller.

The next trials will be held during the second week in next January. Entries for the next Derby will close on July 1, 1901, and for the All-Age Stake on December 15th.

During the running of the trials Mr. Thomas Johnson was assisted in the judging by Mr. C. N. Post of Sacramento and John Schumacher of Los Angeles. Mr. Johnson, we regret to hear, was handicapped during a portion of the trials by a slight illness which necessitated his following the dogs in a buggy instead of on horseback.

The cup won by Mr. W. S. Tevis last year in the Champion Stake at Bakersfield was voluntarily placed in competition again for the stake this week. W. W. Van Arsdale, Frank Maskey and John E. de Ruyter also donated handsome cups to be run for in the different events.

A detailed report of the trials will be presented to our readers next week.

Vibo's recognition as a sterling and high class Fox Terrier is attested by the recent matings with two bitches, the owner of these having the reputation of being one of the best judges of the breed on the Coast. So much does Vibo show his superiority that it is reported a well known winning dog will not compete against him at the coming May show.

Two Good Ones.

The breeding of two young English Setters whelped February last year, recently received by Mr. Clinton E. Worden shows a purple lineage which should have its corresponding good influence on the breed out here, the youngsters are now at Stockdale Kennels, one is a black, white, and tan and the other is an orange and white dog. They are by that good Setter Dave Earl out of Accelerando, she by the crack Gath's Mark ex Countess Rush out of Cit Noble ex Belle of Piedmont by Dashing Rover ex Rancee. Cit Noble by Ch. Windem ex Nora. Gath's Mark by Gath ex Gene by Gladstone ex Gazelle. Gath by Cit Noble ex Peep o' Day.

Dave Earl by Ch. Count Gladstone IV ex Dan's Lady by Dan Gladstone ex Lilly Burgess by Gath's Mark ex Esther. Dan Gladstone by Gladstone ex Sue. Ch. Count Gladstone IV by Cit Noble ex Ruby's Girl by Gladstone ex Ruby Gladstone.

Doings in Dogdom.

We know of two good Bull Terriers that are for sale.

We have heard the pleasing rumor that the California Collie Club propose to make a great exhibit of Collies at the May show.

Wade Crane, a well known sportsman of Pennngrove, Sonoma county, has a large pack of hounds thoroughly trained for coyotes, wild cats and bear. He has recently received three good ones from the East.

The third annual show of the St. Louis Collie Club proved a success and is reported to be a good illustration of what a few enthusiastic fanciers can accomplish. Mr. Henry Jarratt, of Philadelphia, officiated as judge. There were 194 entries divided among nineteen classes.

The All-Age Stake of the United States Field Trial Club closed with thirty-three nominations. The list includes the best Pointers and Setters in the country that have run in field trials for a year or two. The trials will commence near Grand Junction, Benton county, Miss., on Monday:

A grand litter of Great Dane puppies is reported by Mr. J. L. Cunningham, the result of a breeding of the beautiful Duke to his well known blue bitch Champion Juanita. The markings are of a variety and richness that promises a sextette of harlequins that will be hard to beat. The litter is evenly divided by sex.

The St. Louis Coursing Club's annual election of officers for 1901 took place January 2d, and resulted as follows: John J. Lavin, President; James Menown, Vice-President; Thos. McClure, Vice-President; M. F. Gibbons, Treasurer; C. P. Benson, Secretary. Executive Committee—W. H. Ries, Thos. McClure, G. Schuette, F. Schraut, J. J. Curran, A. D. Aldrich and J. J. Lavin. J. J. Lavin, Slip Steward; W. H. Ries, Field Steward; Lawrence J. Smith, Judge; John Egan Slipper.

In order to help the restoration of stolen dogs, the French society "Assistance aux Animaux" has made arrangements to tattoo a number on the ear of every dog or cat presented at the society's establishment in Paris. The process, it is claimed, will be painless, and as a register of all pets tattooed will be kept, owners will always be able to establish identity by reference to the number on the animal's ear and the testimony of the society's books. The plan is likely to be very successful it is said.

Good dogs, it is claimed, bring better prices in England than in the United States. We hear now and then of American purchasers who pay large sums for dogs, but it seems that the average of prices is larger across the water. According to the English Stock-Keeper good individual dogs bring more money and the market for ordinary specimens is better. A recent Greyhound sale at Barbican, London, shows some excellent selling figures. Mr. Graham's consignment of seventeen first and eight second season Greyhounds brought $7200. The sensational price of over $2000 was obtained for the pair Good Form and Garbitas, too straight in the shoulders to please fanciers present but otherwise perfect Greyhounds, the former being beautifully moulded for running, a brace any man could be proud of. They formed part of a litter by Gallant, winner of the Waterloo Cup in 1897, and the aggregate price of the litter was no less than $3480.

The judges for the Westminster Kennel Club show will be: St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Bloodhounds and Deerhounds, Mr. Arthur Trickett, Kansas City, Mo.; Great Danes, Mr. J. Blackburn Miller, Newburgh, N. Y.; Russian Wolfhounds, Mr. Edward L. Kraus, Slatington, Pa.; Greyhounds, Dalmatians, Bull Terriers, Airedales, Skye and Bedlington Terriers, Mr. F. S. Bellin, Minneapolis, Minn.; Foxhounds, Sporting Spaniels and Collies, Mr. Henry Jarrett, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Pointers, Mr. George Jarvis, New York; Setters, Mr. W. S. Bell, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Old English Sheepdogs, Basset Hounds, Black and Tan Terriers, Yorkshire Terriers, Toy Terriers, Pugs, Pomeranians, Toy Spaniels and miscellaneous classes, Mr. R. F. Mayhew, Clifton, S. I.; Poodles, Mr. H. G. Trevor, Southampton, L. I.; Bulldogs, Mr. L. C. Beadleston, New York; Boston Terriers, Mr. J. F. Holt, Faneuil, Mass.; French Bulldogs, Mr. John R. Buchan, New York; Beagles, Mr. A. J. Purinton, Palmer, Mass.; Dachshunds, Mr. Joseph Graeffe, New York; Fox Terriers, Mr. G. N. Carnochan, Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Irish Terriers, Mr. O. W. Donner, Rye, N. Y.; Scottish Terriers, Mr. J. Steele, MacKenzie, North Bend, O.; Welsh Terriers, Mr. J. W. Mitchell, New York.

Pampered Pets of the Fashionable Women of Paris.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald is responsible for the following interesting letter concerning the "lucky dogs" of Paris. We know of many owners whose dogs lead a life of canine luxury in most respects, but the French article seems to be the "lum tum proper caper." Rather!

No woman of fashion in Paris is ever without her lap dog, whether shopping from her carriage or driving or promenading in the Bois. At the smart dog store in Paris, where every dog of high degree procures his wardrobe, are shown the latest fashions in dogdom. Each winter sees a change in the cut of their coats and the color and design of their pocket handkerchief.

No fashionable dog over dreams of driving or walking out without a coat, even in summer, when coats of pique take the place of the winter ones of cloth, velvet or fur.

Among these coats is one in scarlet cashmere bound with black silk galloon, delicately embroidered in black silk, and lined with quilted black satin. It straps under the tiny terrier with three straps of cloth with little gold buckles. The neck is finished with a gathered granny hood, which, on cold days, may be drawn up over the dog's head, there being little places through which his ears pass. On the back of the coat, a little to one side, there is, as on every dog's coat, a tiny pocket for the handkerchief.

A French lady was buying these handkerchiefs by the dozen while I was looking at them, and I could not help laughingly saying: "But, madame, why is not one enough, since he does not use them?"

"But, madame, he does use them. They are most necessary. He would perhaps soil my frock with his wet nose on a cold day when he sits beside me in the carriage. I just wipe his nose with this little morsel of linen, and when we get home it goes into his own laundry bag. Oh, they are quite necessary, I assure you."

These handkerchiefs, so necessary to mistress and dog, are about three inches square. They are of finest linen, and have the narrowest of colored hems, in the corner of which there is an embroidered initial in the color of the hem.

On one coat the handkerchief pocket is fixed to the belt that straps about the dog's back and keeps in place his elegant coat. This is in white satin. It was designed for the dog to wear when he accompanies his mistress on the day of her wedding next month from the house where the reception is to be held in the Fourbourg to the chateau outside of Paris, where the honeymoon will be spent, the trip to be made, as is the thing at present, in an automobile. This coat of white satin is entirely lined with ermine fur, which turns over enough to show a tiny border. The belt is embroidered in white silk and buckles in gold, and a narrow-down collar of fur frames the neck.

All the dog coats this winter have turn-down collars, instead of the flaring Medici which last winter stood up about every dog's head.

A coat of black Persian baby lamb had little jewelled buttons fastening the straps under the neck, and a collar of black panne. Another of pale blue broadcloth has a collar of sable fur, and an initial worked on the pocket.

Great care is taken in choosing cloths and furs that will harmonize best with the pet's color, and the shapes are most carefully arranged to set off their elegant points to best advantage. Coats are always made to order.

Quite as important to the fashionable dog as the coat are the rubber shoes which he must wear when he walks out. They are expensive necessities, too. One doesn't often see rubber-shod dogs on the boulevards; for the smart dogs shun the sidewalks as much as does his mistress, except to trip across it from carriage to pastry shops or tailors. But in the Bois, in the alleys where the fashionables leave their carriages for a promenade, one will see almost every dog so protected from the mud—or, rather, it is his mistress' frock that is protected, when he jumps back into the carriage with her and the footman pulls off the mud-died shoes. They come in all possible sizes, from those little enough for tiny black Terriers that can crawl into any lady's muff to those big enough for a Mastiff, for at the country estates of the smart world even big dogs wear them when they are let out for a run, so that they may come into the house directly after with impunity to rugs and gowns, the man having removed their goloshes at the porte cochere. These shoes are shaped to fit perfectly and button about the ankles.

More fascinating than either coats, handkerchiefs or rubber shoes, are the various pieces of jewelry provided for the pampered lap dogs of the haute monde. Rich gems and uncut stones are used to stud their collars, many of which in their delicacy resemble a lady's bracelet more than they do an ordinary dog collar. These loveliest ones are composed of carbuncles, of cabochons or Egyptian scarabees connected by frail and lovely gold links, with a little clasp or pendant where they fasten. A jewelled anklet of like design is not unusual, and the jewelled leash that does duty in the park might be worn by the dog's mistress as a muff or purse holder. The plainer kid dog collars match the dog in color, and are rimmed with gold or silver and studded with metal flowers.

One does not realize what an extravagant and luxurious city Paris is, until one sees the possible richness of the wardrobes of the lap dogs of the rich.

Tinkering the Game Law.

The Chronicle of Thursday last published an editorial under the above caption which, while good in principle, does not reach the mark aimed at. The writer of the article in question is not conversant with the situation. In the first place, we are led to believe that the bill introduced is not the proposed bill which was advocated by the game convention held in this city last May. An entirely new bill has been drafted, it is said, and presented under the prestige of the late convention and offered as the legislation desired by the sportsmen of the State.

This action on the part of two or three individuals responsible for the alleged game protection agitation of the past two years nullifies the purpose of the convention held last May and is practically a breach of faith. In one respect the Chronicle writer is about correct when the statement is made that "the proposed amendments" "are the outcome of a convention which was held in this city a few weeks ago and have only one object in view—the regulation of wild game killing for the benefit of those who enjoy this kind of sport and have the means and leisure to indulge in it."

Whether the bill is submitted in good faith or no, we are not at present advised, it is possible that the obnoxious features are in the nature of counter-irritation. A great deal of feeling has already been stirred up on the subject of game protection and this bill will not improve the situation.

The whole movement has been inaugurated by interested individuals for the purpose of ultimately bringing about the creation of a State Game Commission and the appointment of a salaried State Game Warden. The men who are desirous of reaping the benefits of such proposed legislation are unworthy of endowment in that respect and have not the support of sportsmen, taxpayers nor the public at large.

A Day in Marin County.

OLEMA, January 9, 1901.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Some large bags of canvasback ducks have recently been made by the Country Club members shooting at the "laguna"—a sheet of brackish water separated from Sir Francis Drake's bay by a narrow sandspit. This inland pond is just about opposite the rocky Farallones. The half-moon expansion of sea northward to the shore as it stretches away to the south head of Point Reyes—an open roadstead—is the bay; whence the redoubtable English navigator whiled away the winter ere he sailed off roundabout to the Philippines on his voyage home, his ships laden with the rich spoils of the Spanish Main. A friend, I note, has but recently erected a pine cross twenty feet in height, commemorative of the first Protestant services held on the shores of the Pacific.

But to return to the "laguna." W. S. Kittle and Alex. Hamilton had killed the Sunday before I went to this haunt of the "cans" 118 birds. On the succeeding Tuesday, New Year's Day, Chas. L. Wheeler and Le Roy Nickel, of Miller & Lux, killed fifty-four. So I said, why should not I? I stopped my mare, Lady Falls, on the water shed, where flood, forest and field lay in the quiet sunshine before me. My Pointer Don was immovable on a bevy point. I jumped out, marked the bevy down, as they flushed to the noise I made in getting out of the cart.

The birds were located in a high cover of greasewood. Upon my near approach the birds flushed again when I killed one with each barrel. I saw the cover was too high for me to shoot in, besides the birds had made a long flight and lit beyond my sight, so I called my dog in, got up behind my fleet-footed mare and away I went to the "laguna." My heart misgave me when I reached the shores of the pond. The barrel blind which the game keeper, Ben Aleantara, had told me of, was under water and the decoys were gone. Perhaps fifty canvasback duckswam and dove out of gun shot. Out at sea a steamer was puffing and panting northward. The two Italian fishing steamers were close in shore fishing for the San Francisco market. They steamed along side by side some 200 feet apart, a net stretched between. When the fish are caught they are put alive into tanks in the boats, so that they are not only fresh but live fish when they reach the market. I staid until the stars came out; until the Farallone light flashed and gleamed o'er the waters of the deep "like a good deed in a naughty world." The whir of incoming birds apprised me that canvasback come high, too high for my L. C. Smith, so I sadly hied me home. PAYNE.

A Great Game Preserve Projected.

The establishment of a great game preserve by Arizona sportsmen, embracing a portion of Southwestern Arizona and Northwestern Mexico, and probably a small part of California, is a project which was not conceived until recently, but which will likely be talked about by sportsmen all over the country within a few months. A small party of explorers recently passed through Tucson after making a trip through the country adjacent to the head of the Gulf of California, representing, it is believed, a number of sportsmen of the Middle States, bent on formulating a plan for the protection of game, and to prevent the extermination of certain species. A convention of sportsmen will soon meet in Chicago or Denver to consider a plan for the establishment of a great game preserve, and representative sportsmen from all sections will report the advantages offered for game preserves in their immediate sections.

That portion of the country south of Yuma, including a small section of California and considerable territory in Mexico, is one of the most fruitful fields for the Nimrod of this country today. It abounds in wild game of all sorts, and with the help of man a large expanse of land could be converted into one of the greatest and most inviting game preserves in the world. Mexico offers liberal aid to such enterprises, and it is understood that already that Government has promised to make important concessions if American sportsmen are willing to carry out the plan of establishing a game preserve lying partly in Mexico.

The extermination of wild game in this country and the urgent necessity of adopting drastic measures for the prevention of further ruthless slaughter are two subjects which have long occupied the attention of American sportsmen. Never before have they been stirred up to the necessity as within the past few months when from all over the country there have been demands for Congressional action. State and territorial legislation has proven insufficient, but Federal action in recent years has checked wholesale slaughter in this and other territories and States. However, slowly but surely, certain kinds of wild game, such as deer and antelope will be extinct in Arizona within a few years, and in a shorter time the mountain sheep now found in a few parts of this territory will disappear unless early action is taken. It is because of the threatened extermination that Congress will soon be asked to make an appropriation for creating a game preserve, or at least for its moral support.

The redskins of Arizona have made great inroads into the ranks of deer and antelope, leaving their reservations frequently to engage in systematic slaughters of those animals. The Apaches in Eastern Arizona kill only the game they require for meat and leather. It is said that the Navajos of Northern Arizona and other Indians of this territory do not kill game on the wholesale plan merely for the sport, as is commonly believed, but they seem to require an inordinate amount for ordinary use. Occasionally they leave their reservations, where long ago game became too sporadic to invite the hunter, and organize bands which go after big game with guns and bows and arrows in much the same manner that Americans organize rabbit drives. Great piles of hair scraped from the hides speak unmistakably of the slaughter which attends one of those expeditions.

A party consisting of Professor W. J. McGee, Delaney Gill, an artist, and others representing the Smithsonian Institution, recently passed through Phoenix, after exploring the Tiburon island in the Gulf of California, returning from Sonora by an old road near Tenajos Atlas. The party went to examine the condition of the cannibalistic Ceris Indians of Tiburon island, who murdered R. E. L. Robinson, a newspaper man, and a companion six years ago and feasted on their bodies. On account of tribal friction a few years ago a small band of these savages left the island of Tiburon and made their way to the coast of Mexico, subsequently traveling north and establishing a small colony near Quitovac. The Smithsonian party went among the Indians at that place for the third time, finding them in the same condition on each trip. They have not multiplied in any numbers in the past score of years, and their manners of living and habits have not varied.

In visiting those Indians McGee's journey took him through the heart of the game country, which in time may be set apart as a preserve. All along his path he discovered game in such profusion that he made a part of his trip the study of the wild animals of that region.

The Indians near Quitovac led him into some remarkable hunting grounds where deer and wild hogs, a large species of pccary, tame and unfamiliar with the white sportsman's methods, were but little intimidated by the approach of the party. The professor returns enthusiastic over the game conditions of that region. Wild animals abound there as they did only a few years ago in many parts of this country, but although the region is not remote from thickly populated sections, it has been almost entirely neglected by hunters, untouched by the hand of white man, and its isolation from the haunts of men would be complete but for the presence of a handful of redskins who roam over that section. The country is so formed, said Professor McGee, that some of the lands could be irrigated by water from the Colorado river, making of them even more alluring stamping grounds for wild game.

How to Keep a Gun New.

In the days of the old muzzle-loaders there was some excuse for allowing a gun to remain dirty. Before drawing a wiping rag through the barrel, as we do in the case of modern arms, it was first necessary to remove the breech-pin, and as this was a job that generally required the use of a bench-vice and monkey wrench, it was never undertaken when avoidable. To wipe a gun with the breech-pin left in simply meant to crowd all the dirt and fouling to the rear of the barrel; and when this practice was followed for any length of time the cylinder and tube would become clogged and miss-fires would result. Later, as the accumulation of dirt increased, the barrel would become rust eaten at this point, or "breech-burnt," as it was commonly termed. A more satisfactory way of cleaning muzzle-loaders was to wash them thoroughly with hot water; after which they were wiped dry, and a light powder-lard fired from them to expel all moisture from the tube and cylinder. Re-wiping and oiling should have followed this, but generally did not. The arm was placed in the rack or set in its corner, its interior black with the residue of burnt powder; in a condition better calculated to invite rust than before it had been scalded out. How satisfactory shooting could be done with arms so treated (or mistreated) is a mystery to every practical sportsman of the present day. But this we know: That every year or two it was necessary to re-cut rifles to improve their shooting qualities, and the art of "floating out" shot guns to a larger bore was not unknown among the gunsmiths of that day and time. A rifle which originally required bullets running 100 to the pound might come to throw a half-ounce ball before its period of usefulness was over, and this will explain why you can hardly find two old-time rifles of exactly the same calibre. The barrels of shot guns were lighter and would not stand re-boring so often. Still, they could safely be given two or three "dressings" without rendering them unsafe. It is necessary to state that choke-boring was not then practiced. All shot guns were cylinder bores, or, perhaps, "choked the wrong way"—i. e., bell muzzled. Wads were not commonly used. I mean by this "cut wads," as they were termed.

Fragments of newspaper were used as wadding, rammed down tightly to form a gas check behind the shot—and in consequence the size of the bore was a matter not considered. But at the present time few rifles and practically no shot-guns are re-cut to a larger gauge, though in many instances there could be with advantage a return to this time-honoured practice. Generally speaking, rifles of small calibre may be re-bored for a larger cartridge at trifling cost. "The best snipe gun I ever shot," said S. D. Barnes in Sports Afield, "was a rusted Parker, sawn off back of the choke and dressed out perfectly. It was originally a 10-gauge. After a re-boring it was probably a 9, as a No. 10 wad would almost fall through the barrel. I used it with brass shells exclusively, loading with 8-gauge wads, and it shot very hard and made a beautiful pattern. I mention this incidentally, and not in palliation of the neglect that renders necessary the re-boring of a gun or rifle." With proper care the barrel of a firearm may be made to outlast almost any other part of its construction. The secret of the whole matter is to watch for the first rust speck and be sure that you never see it. The only way to remove rust is to cut it out of the metal and re-polish the surface. Any roughness in the interior of a barrel will catch the dirt and hold it, and, no matter how thickly you plaster it over with grease, it will rust. And a rust spot once formed will never grow smaller. Depend upon that. Furthermore when the interior of a gun barrel becomes pitted the owner is more likely to lose all interest in its care, and after this the story of its utter ruin is soon told. Pay attention to the following rules, and your gun or rifle can be kept in perfect condition for many years:—never leave it over night dirty. Never put a drop of cold water in the barrel, nor hot water unless you follow with a thorough drying and oiling. A dry rag will not remove fouling unless it is first softened with hot water or oil. Some authorities condemn the application of mineral oils to the interior of the barrels. The writer can recommend coal oil (kerosene) for this purpose. He has used it for years and found that it served admirably. Draw a kerosene rag through the bore and follow with a careful wiping. A greased rag will remove moist fouling from the gun barrels, but the dry residue or dirt and lead is somewhat different. For these a soft wire brush or wire gauze cleaner should be used to scour out the barrels. These cleaners should be just hard enough to remove the lead or other adherent matter without scratching or injuring the gun barrel. Then oil with vaseline. If you chance to be caught out in the rain with your gun it is best to dismount it, dry each part carefully, and oil them well. Use vaseline, gunoleum, or other good lubricant. Every time you clean your gun, go over every portion of the exterior with a rag soaked in vaseline. It will prevent the metal parts from rusting and keep the wood stock and fore-end clean and bright. A dingy and dirt-specked gun is a standing reproach to its owner.

Cartridge and Shell.

The sportsmen of Biggs, Butte county, will hold a live bird shoot on February 22d. Three moneys in the principal event on the card will pay $100 to first, $60 to second and $30 to third.

Hon. Bernard Collins, Assemblyman from the seventh district comprising Butte county, succumbed to an attack of pneumonia on the 15th inst. Mr. Collins was Chairman of the Committee on Fish and Game.

On Washington's Birthday, under the auspices of the San Francisco Trap Shooting Association, an attractive blue rock program will be made up for an open-to-all meeting. This will practically be the opening of the coming trap shooting season.

The live bird grounds will be improved for this year's shooting and brought up to date. Among other innovations it is contemplated to operate the pigeon traps from a chamber underneath the trap circle, after the custom in vogue at the principal Eastern trap grounds.

"A Chip of the Old Block" is a suggestive title for a congenial subject pictured on the handsome calendar issued this year by the Union Metallic Cartridge Company. A smiling youth, evidently garbed in the borrowed hunting clothes of his sportsman sire and with the latter's 12 gauge Remington hammerless shotgun in his hands has demonstrated his ability to handle a gun by bagging the brace of grouse which he proudly carries pendant on his left shoulder. The calendar has a practical value besides its monthly record of days. Postal and revenue information of value are printed upon its back and ready for daily reference.

Sonoma county has a local Creelman who is very industrious in unearthing natural history specimens that, on paper, are remarkable.

Several days ago Harry Smith of Peungrove killed a very peculiar specimen of a bird on the laguna near Santa Rosa. It had the body of a rail in size and shape, but its head is that of a widgeon. It is of a deep chocolate color, and its legs are like that of a rail, while the feet are the same as those of a canvas-back duck.

The open season, for quail and wild ducks will close on March 1st, this is the general statute in that respect. In Alameda, Sonoma, Fresno, Kern, San Benito and Santa Clara counties the close season on quail commences February 1st. It has been unlawful to hunt or kill quail in Los Angeles county since January 1st, in Marin county since January 15th, in San Mateo county since December 1st, in Yolo county since December 3d, in Ventura county since November 1st, in Orange county since October 5th. The close season on quail in Kern county will prevail after February 15th.

Fish Commissioners' Report.

The sixteenth biennial report of the State Board of Fish Commissioners for the years 1899-1900 has just been issued. The document is replete with much interesting information, statistics, data, etc., pertaining to the value and importance of the fishes in our inland and coast waters, game protection and enforcement of the law, fish propagation, needed legislation, inspection and seizure of fish and game shipments, the present ruinous system of shrimp fishing, fish hatcheries, trout and salmon statistics, fish protection, an interesting chapter on sea lions and their status as fish destroyers, with a short history of their contemplated thinning out last year and letters explanatory of the withdrawal of Federal sanction for the killing of the animals upon property under the immediate jurisdiction of the Washington authorities.

A few brief extracts from the report are the following:

"Through the efforts of this Board, the delicious and abundant shad and striped bass, which are the food of the wealthy in other States, come cheaply to the humblest of our citizens. If this Commission in thirty years has accomplished nothing further than the introduction and propagation of these two species, it has justified all the expenditure that the State has made in its support. These two species are increasing year by year."

"By the efforts of this Board, the salmon has been saved to our State. The decrease of the spawning areas and the encroachments of civilization would long since have put this king of fishes among the creatures that were, if the efforts of this Board had not super-vened to save it. It has been maintained in full supply, and hopes are high that it may be increased to something like its pristine abundance."

"In the two years ending August 31, 1900, our patrol force has made 526 arrests, of which 104 entered pleas of guilty, 86 were convicted, 150 were acquitted, 62 were dismissed by the Justice or District Attorney, 76 are pending, and in 48 the defendants were unknown, but the evidence for their conviction was secured. The total of fines imposed for these violations was $5779. Of this amount, $2712.08 was paid to County Treasurers and $3091.83 to the Fish Commission Fund. In addition to this showing, our force removed 23 set-nets and 430 sections of Chinese sturgeon lines from the public waters, the owners of which were never found, and the apparatus was destroyed.

"Eleven thousand three hundred pounds of under-weight striped bass was seized by our force while it was en route to marketmen. The fisherman who consigned these fish were unknown to us, and the fish were seized, as the consignee disclaimed it. Over 2500 game birds, killed or possessed in violation of the law, were seized. This great quantity of fish and game was distributed among the hospitals, asylums and charity homes, etc."

"With the advance of industries in the State, the establishment of mills, factories and other plants and smelters, the natural spawning grounds of the salmon are slowly but surely being destroyed, and in time there will be no natural propagation. Even the present run could not be maintained without the work of the hatcheries, and this work will become more and more important as the destruction of natural grounds proceeds.

It is probable that in time there may not be a sufficient run of salmon up to the points where spawn is now secured to warrant operations there, and that the stations may have to be located much below the points now used, and that streams that have heretofore been of little consideration in securing eggs may become of the first importance.

We hope that this question may be entirely cleared up by the investigations now being conducted."

"We have continued the investigations of the movements and habits of the young salmon liberated from the hatcheries. This study has been confined to their movements in the Sacramento river and Suisun and San Pablo bays. After the young fish leave the river and enter the bay, it becomes very difficult to locate them. During the time the young fish are descending the river, we have been enabled to observe their movements with considerable accuracy. The results of these observations can be summed up as follows: They move down stream as soon as the sac is absorbed, continuing the descent, reaching tide water within a few weeks. While in clear water the descent is made at night. After reaching discolored water they continue their downward movement both day and night. The contents of the sac contain sufficient nourishment to sustain life until they reach tide water, though they feed upon surface insects during the descent. The rate of growth during the descent is slight. They apparently have few enemies that can capture them after the sac is absorbed. We found but few fish that had caught young salmon. From the time the eggs are deposited until the sac is absorbed and they swim well, they are at the mercy of many forms of water life as well as many birds. The fry should not be liberated until the sac is fully absorbed. They should not be held after that time. After reaching salt water their growth is rapid. Their movements after they reach the sea are still unsolved, but there is some evidence that their range in the ocean is much more extensive than is generally supposed. Marked fish liberated in the Columbia river basin in 1896 were captured in nets in Suisun bay and the Sacramento river in this State in 1898 and 1899. This would indicate a very wide range and that the work of propagation on any stream on this coast might affect the run in all. If this be true, it is not unreasonable to believe that the propagation carried on for so many years on the Sacramento river has been a factor in maintaining the supply taken from the Columbia, where propagation was not conducted until after many years after the work was begun on the Sacramento. This study of the movements of young salmon in fresh water has been carried on jointly by the United States Fish Commission and our staff. The final detailed report of this work will be published by the United States Fish Commission, whose agents are still engaged in the study in this State. We hope to see this report within two years, as it is one of great interest to all concerned in the salmon fishery.

An interesting chapter on the capture of shrimps and destruction of small fish demonstrates the necessity of legislative prohibition of a practice that does damage to the commonwealth of the amount of many hundred thousand dollars.

The following amendments to the fish laws are recommended and shown to be necessary and wise:

Amend Section 628 to permit the catching and possession of striped bass of one pound in weight, and to prohibit the catching or possession of any striped bass from May 31st to July 1st.

Prohibit the taking or possession of any shrimp from May 1st to September 1st.

Prohibit the catching or possession of any crawfish or spiny lobster between April 15th and August 15th.

Prohibit the catching or possession of any egg-bearing female lobster at any time.

Prohibit the catching or possession of sturgeon at any time.

Prohibit the taking of steelhead trout above tide water between November 1st and April 1st.

Prohibit the taking of steelhead trout in any water between February 1st and April 1st.

Striped Bass Club.

The first casting contest of the season by members of the San Francisco Striped Bass Club took place last Sunday at Stow Lake, Golden Gate Park. In the accuracy event five buoys were placed at distances of fifty, seventy-five, one hundred, one hundred and twenty-five and one hundred and fifty feet respectively, the contestants using a casting rod and a one and three-quarter ounce sinker on the line. Each member made five casts, the scores made were as follows: L. E. Daverkosen, 92 1-5 cent; C. F. Breidenstein, 91 4-5 per cent; Charles H. Kewell, 88 per cent; James Lynch, 82 3-5 per cent; James Watt, 79 3-5 per cent; James S. Turner, 77 4-5 per cent.

In the distance event the results were: L. E. Daverkosen, 75 per cent; James Turner 66 per cent; Charles F. Breidenstein, 66 per cent; Charles H. Kewell, 62 per cent; James Lynch, 42 per cent; James Watt, 33 per cent.

The percentages for accuracy and long distances were: L. E. Daverkosen first with 84 4-5 per cent, C. F. Breidenstein second 79 4-5 per cent, Charles F. Kewell third 75 per cent, James Turner fourth 72 4-5 per cent, James Lynch fifth 62 3-10 per cent, James Watt sixth 56 3-10 per cent.

In casting with a two and one-half ounce sinker in an effort made to beat the Chicago record of 266 3-10 feet Mr. Breidenstein made the longest cast, 256 feet. The judges were W. H. Ashcroft and W. S. Turner. The next club casting contests will be held on the first Sunday in February.

Big Game Fish of the Ocean.

The seeker after big game should attack the orqual if he would see sport indeed. For this agile monster has such a reputation for almost supernatural cunning that even if he were as valuable as he really is valueless commercially, it is highly doubtful if he would ever be molested. As it is, all the tribe are chartered libertines, since no whaler is likely to risk the loss of a boat's gear for the barren honor of conquest. And not only so, but the orquals, whether "fin-back," "sulphur-bottom" or "blue-back," as well as the "hump back" and grampus, make it a point of honor to sink when dead, unlike the "cachalot" or "bow-head," who float jawash at first, but ever more buoyantly as the progress of decay within the immense abdominal cavity generates an accumulating volume of gas. Any old whaler would evolve in the interest of sport ne end of dodges for dealing with the wily orqual, such as the collection of strongly attached bladders affixed to the line to stay his downward rush, short but broad-barbed harpoons to get a better hold upon the thin coating of blubber, etc. In this kind of whaling there is quite sufficient danger to make the sport exciting in the highest degree. Not, however, from the attack of the animal hunted, but because his evolutions in the effort to escape are so marvelously vivacious that only the most expert and cool-headed boatmanship can prevent a sudden severance of the nexus between boat and crew.

A splendid day's sport can be obtained with a school of blackfish. Although seldom exceeding a ton and a half in weight, these small whales are quite vigorous enough to make the chase of them as lively an episode as the most enthusiastic hunter could wish, especially if two or even three are harpooned one after the other on a single line, as the whalers' custom is. The sensation of being harnessed, as it were, to a trio of monsters, each about twenty-five feet long and eight feet in girth, everyone anxious to flee in a different direction at the highest speed he can muster, and in their united gambols making the sea boil like a pot, is one that, once experienced, is never likely to be forgotten. The mere memory of that mad frolic over the bosom of the bright sea makes the blood leap to the face, makes the nerves twitch, and the heart long to be away from the placid round of every day life upon the bright free wave again.

Even a school of porpoises, in default of nobler game can furnish a lively hour or two, especially if they be of fair size, say, up to three or four hundred weight each. But of a truth there need be no fear of a lack of game. The swift passage from port to port made by her passenger vessels is apt to leave the voyager with the impression that the sea is a barren waste, but such an idea is wholly false. Even the sailing ships, bound though they may be to make the shortest possible time between ports, are compelled by failure of wind to see enough of the everyday life of the sea population to know better than that, and whosoever gives himself up to the glamor of sea study, making no haste to rush from place to place, but leisurely loitering along the wide plains of ocean, shall find each day a new world unfolding itself before his astonished eyes, a world of marvels, infinitely small, as well as wondrous great—from the thousand and one miracles that go to make up the "Plankton" to the ante-diluvian whale. Fishing in more heroic phases is obtainable in deep-sea cruising as nowhere else.

Do Fishes Sleep?

"Do fishes sleep—and how?"

This question was once addressed to Eugene G. Blackford, formerly Fish Commissioner of New York State. His acquaintance with fish began when he was very young, and at the present time he is a recognized authority all over the world.

"Certainly they sleep," was Mr. Blackford's response. "They sleep suspended in the water, with their eyes wide open. I have seen them do it often. I have many fish in tanks with glass fronts and can watch them. Sometimes I see a fish suspended in the water keeping perfectly still for half an hour at a time and then I conclude that he is asleep. He does not even move a fin at such times, and the motion of the gills is barely perceptible.

"Fishes don't close their eyes, because there is no necessity for their doing it. They have no eyelids, because their eyes are not exposed to dust as ours are. They don't close their eyes in sleep because the light is so modified by the water that it is not hard for them to find a twilight spot.

"But they can close their eyes if they want to do it, and they do on very particular occasions. I will show you," and addressing an attendant said, "John, bring me a trout."

The man went to a tank, and soon returned, bearing in his hand a fine trout about eight inches in length. This Mr. Blackford held, while he took a lead pencil and touched one of its eyes with the point. The trout wriggled about vigorously, and at the same time drew an inside yellow curtain over the eye.

"You see, he can close his eyes if he chooses," said the former Fish Commissioner. "The habits of fish are little known in many respects. We have only begun to study their migrations in a way that promises to lead to anything. We have captured some thousands of cod and mackerel and put metal tags on their fins. Some of these will be caught in nets far North and South, and as they have the address of the United States Fisheries Commission on them, they will give an idea where the untold millions of fish that race along our shores at certain periods spend other parts of their year."

The shark is held in almost universal fear by nearly all mankind; his carcass, however, has a high commercial value. Thousands of sharks are annually caught and the catch devoted to useful purposes; the liver supplies a certain amount of oil, the residue being used for various purposes, fertilizers, etc. The skins are dried and sold at various prices according to size. The drying process makes the skins exceedingly hard with a surface smooth as ivory. This material is known as "shagreen" and is used mostly for covering whip handles and instrument cases. Cabinet makers and others use it for polishing fine grained woods. From the fins a glue is manufactured that is used extensively by silk manufacturers.

The bill introduced by Senator Belshaw is one that should have the support of every angler and citizen who is interested in fish protection and the supply of fish as a food product. The subject matter of the bill is practically the same legislation which has been suggested by the Fish Commission.

Canada was awarded the grand prize for forestry, fish, game, mineral and agricultural exhibits at the Paris exposition.

THE FARM.

Encourage Local Fat-Stock Shows.

The Chicago Breeders' Gazette says: An opinion entertained by most men well able to judge of the meat-making situation is that henceforth the farmer who in the last week of November and the first two weeks of December has well bred, well-fattened, ripe bullocks, wethers or lambs to sell will receive a "Christmas price" for them. The desire has become more and more marked on the part of the packers and wholesalers of meats to bid up actively for all choice lots of cattle and sheep suitable for holiday trade. The feeders of America should take full advantage of this fact. The impetus given this phase of the business at the International Live Stock Exposition has indubitably set to thinking the working men who propose to profit more extensively from the existence of this Christmas demand for fancy meat-making animals. The fat-stock show has been resurrected, the breath of life blown into its nostrils to such good effect that it has become part and parcel of the annual stock-marketing round and it will prosper from this day forward.

In the United Kingdom for half a century past the fat-stock show has been putting pounds, shillings and pence in the pockets of British feeders. The distribution has been much more general than it would have been had the exhibition of well-fattened bullocks, heifers, sheep and lambs been confined to the great shows at Edinburgh, Norwich, Birmingham and Smithfield. At these annual gatherings, of course, the fanciest of the prices have been paid for the champion animals. That much was to be expected, but at dozens of less important shows of fat animals the prize winners have been taken at increased values, while the unsuccessful exhibits have been sold almost right at their owners' doors at prices wholly acceptable by reason of the augmented attendance of buyers attracted by the holding of the show and the subsequent disposal at public auction of the animals entered.

Why cannot this idea be utilized in the United States to put dollars into the pockets of our stockmen and merchants? It is necessary that all fat-stock shows be held at the great centers of sale and distribution? Must Chicago, Kansas City, South Omaha and Pittsburgh have a monopoly of the fat-stock show business? There are many districts in this country where large numbers of well-bred cattle and sheep are fattened for the shambles each year and in each one of these districts there is a populous city. Would not a local fat-stock show prosper in each of these cities? If the feeders of each of these localities should enter single animals and car-lots in suitable classes great throngs of people would gather eagerly to inspect them. Only one day need be taken up with the show. A very small outlay of money would suffice to transform the local stock-yards into adequate quarters in which to house the show. The railroad companies would doubtless lend their aid, financial and otherwise to such a project. Then let it be known that on a certain day at a certain easily-reached point so many single and so many car-lots of prime bullocks and heifers, and so many fat wethers and so many fat lambs would be on exhibition for prizes, thereafter to be sold at auction to the highest bidder, and the attendance of buyers would be in every way satisfactory. The exhibitor would secure his money at his very door. The busy season being over the people would attend in large numbers; the merchants would profit accordingly. Competition of buyers would be secured for all with select cattle or sheep to sell and the highest going market prices would be paid.

Nor would such a show cast a straw in the way of any larger exhibition. Naturally the best single specimens and car-lots would gravitate onward to more important events, taking with them their honors won. Farmers unable to seek education at far distant points would at such local shows gain vastly in information as to what constitutes the prime butcher's beast. In towns where the system of holding monthly or semi-monthly markets obtains much benefit has accrued. Why not extend this principle so as to include an annual show of Christmas stock? The expense can only be nominal for premiums, management, housing and all. The profits, of all sorts, must be large.

Sale of Holsteins.

ED. BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—I desire to report to you the sale of thirteen head of my thoroughbred Holstein-Friesian cows to the Milbrae Dairy, property of D. O. Mills. As this is the second herd of these thoroughbred Holsteins that I have sold him in two years it speaks well for the breed and his satisfaction with the same as they milk some four hundred cows and claim to be able to make more money with these thoroughbred Holsteins, despite the increased price they have to pay for them, than of any of their herd. All but three of these animals are of my own raising and are many of them prize winners at recent fairs, the cow Hight Ulah IV. having won the first prize in the butter contest at the State Fair, both in 1890 and in 1899, the best herds of Durhams and Jerseys on the Coast competing. Carena of La Siesta won second prize in the butter contest of 1898, my cow also winning the first.

The following is a list and breeding of those sold:

Belinda of La Siesta 41,098 by Sirocco, dam Wyntie Clothilde.

Hight Ulah IV 38,500 by King Aagie Clothilde's Leader, dam Hight Ulah.

Hight Ulah V 39,639 by King Aagie Clothilde's Leader, dam Hight Ulah.

Carena of La Siesta 41,101 by Clothilde's V Clothilde, dam Carissima.

Fidelia of La Siesta 41,149 by Van Moulke Clothilde, dam Fansje of San Mateo.

Marian Wilder 42,877 by Sir Walter Clothilde, dam Miss Tinnette.

Klondyke of La Siesta 46,935 by Tirannia II Zozo Paul dam Juna Padua II.

Hester Ulah of La Siesta 42,885 by Tirannia II Zozo Paul, dam Hester Ulah II.

Faith of La Siesta 39,641 by Von Moulke Clothilde, dam Fansje II Clothilde.

Duchess Brackenhof 42,881 by Sir Walter Clothilde, dam Queen Brackenhof.

Dora Zweifel 43,178 by Zweifel, dam Dora Midnight.

Patty Gerben 46,509 by Mechthildus Sir Henry Gerben dam Sharon Patty.

Sharon Grace 48,043 by Zweifel, dam Jetty Whitefoot. Respectfully yours,

FRANK H. BURKE.

San Francisco, January 14, 1901.

An Eastern wool dealer who thinks he knows all about it says: "The wool of the Shropshire leads all others both in quality and style, though on some accounts if it were possible to raise sheep profitably for wool alone it would be needless to look for anything better than the Merino. As mutton has now driven wool to a second place in the consideration, from the fact that foreign wool growers can produce it cheaper than we do, the Merino must go back to remote districts and give place to the mutton sheep, foremost among which is the Shropshire, with a fleece very nearly or quite equal to the Merino."

Dairying is an industry which maintains the fertility of the soil, furnishes a large amount of labor the year round, is wholly devoid of the speculative features of the fruit business and secures the greatest possible quantity of nourishing food from the products of the soil. It is the basis of diversified farming which is the most promising hope of the farmer for maintaining his position as an independent man. All dairy countries will gradually grow rich and the field for advancement is as good to-day as it ever was.

Clydesdale and Shire.

A correspondent propounds the following query:

"What are the distinguishing characteristics of the Clydesdale and Shire breeds of draft horses? In other words, what is the difference between them?"

This question, many times answered in these columns, seems to be one that will keep on bobbing up serenely till the crack of doom. There are many differences and many similarities. When the writer was getting his practical experience he was in charge, at one time, of a large stable containing many stallions of both breeds. Some visitors would insist that it was no trick at all to pick out the representatives of one breed from those of the other, but in not one solitary instance was the division ever made accurately when a string of ten or a dozen stallions was presented for examination. On one occasion eleven Shires were run out in a row. A really good judge of a horse divided them about equally into Shires and Clydesdales and from the moment he was shown the catalogue he was cured of the idea that he could always tell the one from the other. On another occasion all Clydesdales were presented and another almost as good, though not as experienced, a judge made the selfsame mistake. It is only fair to say, however, that the entire lot of English and Scotch horses had been selected by one man and a Scot at that. This will serve to show that by keeping away from the extremes in both breeds a very great similarity is found to exist.

The fact of the matter is that the difference between the two breeds is very much the same as the difference between the peoples of the two kingdoms, Scotland and England. Your Scot is inclined to a preponderance of wiry muscle; your Englishman to as great strength but to rather more adipose tissue in connection with it. On the whole the Englishmen are the heaviest race of men. So with their horses and with the increase of the adipose tissue comes a certain collectedness of movement, not perhaps to be denominated slowness. The Clydesdale may be called the "gimpiest" horse of the two. Again the national characteristics are to be discovered in the legs of the horses, but as both the Scotchmen and Englishmen have been working in large measure toward the common end of establishing more quality the difference, once very marked, is no longer great in the high class specimens. It must be admitted, however, that the most quality belongs to the Scotch horse.

The men from South of the Tweed have not sought so strenuously the extreme size of foot, slope of pastern, ivory quality of bone and silky hair that at one time almost infatuated the Scotch. They have been and perhaps still are content with sound, big bones and pasterns of ample length without seeking extreme quality. And they have reserved all the immense size the Shire breed ever possessed. In short the latest teachings of the showyard are that while the English horses have over all a trifle the most size the Scotch horses are the best at the ground, but taking the average it is hard to separate representatives of the breed.—Breeders' Gazette.

Dairy cows to give best returns must have much better shelter than beef animals. The beef animal is well protected by a coat of fat and the material which it takes from the feed is stored in the body, strengthening the whole system. The dairy cow is thin, her body is not protected by a coat of fat and what she extracts from her food goes into the milk pail and not to build up her body and strength. A loss from the usual methods of feeding is that many winter feeds tend to make the cow constipated. The world over, the dairy cow gives the best returns under June conditions and the nearer we can give her these conditions in winter the greater will be the yield.

Protest Against Careless Breeding.

Not a little of the trouble in grading up herds of live stock comes from indiscriminate and ignorant cross breeding. New blood is necessary for every flock or herd and some introduce it with a vengeance. That is, they cross with about every thing that comes along. They seem to take a certain amount of pleasure in introducing the blood of nearly every breed—good, bad or indifferent—into their flock. Some will defend their position by saying that they are experimenting and that the work is all done in the interest of scientific breeding. They will even point to some accidental discoveries of fine breeds produced through cross breeding unexpectedly.

They are wrong in this logic, for the accidental discoveries have not been produced by indiscriminate cross breeding. There were no doubt breeders who were conducting a line of experiments with certain animals for certain results and accidentally obtained something else. They were doing every cross for a purpose and were thus intelligently conducting experiments in the interest of science. It is very different from the indiscriminate cross breeding, which has no other object or aim and is carried on in a haphazard style. It only leads to confusion and generally to the degeneration of a flock or herd.

Vicious and undesirable qualities are pretty sure to be introduced in this way and in the end there will be absolute loss. Intelligent cross breeding is of the utmost importance on our ranches and it is something that can be carried on by every stockman. All that is necessary is an intelligent desire to improve the animals and a clear aim in view. A cross should be made only with superior animals to the live stock on hand. A neighbor's bull may have some merits, but the chances are that they are not superior to those of one's own herd. At a little more expense a high grade bull can be secured to head the bunch; or the services of another may be secured at a trifling higher expense than the neighbor's.

It never pays to cross with an inferior bull. Such an animal should have been killed long ago for beef. It is the best thing we can do with bulls that have no special merits for breeding purposes and the sooner the range is cleared of such animals, the less danger there will be that stockmen will injure the standing of their herds through the temptations of economy. In-an-in breeding is bad enough when the stock is all high grade, but to practice this with inferior animals is something almost criminal. It means degeneration in quality and vitality and the loss of nearly all animals that can be called profitable in any sense of the word.—E. P. Smith in Fidd and Farm.

The days of range cattle will soon be numbered in this country. A Colorado livestock paper predicts that in a very few years there will not be a herd of 5000 cattle anywhere in this country outside of Texas. It is easy to foresee what the effect must be. The demand for beef is and will continue to be constantly on the increase, as the range product decreases, the smaller farms, both East and West, must supply the deficiency. Prices will no doubt be high enough to make beef a profitable production upon any farm. Even at present, as conditions now are, the production of beef cattle is not a bad business upon any farm. It affords a home market for hay, grain and roots, and very much roughage can be cheaply produced and thus turned into cash, and besides, it helps to secure the maintenance of fertility, which the selling of these products does not. The two great questions which should most concern every farmer are, how to maintain and increase the fertility of the soil, and how best to conserve the moisture which nature does supply. We must use our opportunities and husband our resources to make any progress in this world.

Sheep and Weed Seeds.

A neighbor who has a nice little flock of grade Shropshire sheep came to our ranch in a great hurry a few mornings ago. He reported two of his fine yearling ewes dead and a third one sick. We found the trouble to be impaction of the stomach from eating too many weed seeds. These sheep had been running on green feed until the snow fell, which covered it and they had to go on dry feed suddenly. He had fed them some screenings from the threshing machine and they got too much of it, which produced in the stomach the same state of things as smut eating does in cattle. A change of food for sheep appears to be the only remedy, as the sick dies so quickly after the trouble is observed. Too much care cannot be observed in getting the flock from green feed to dry in the fall, and they should have plenty of clean water and salt to aid the digestion of the dry feed. The roughage at this time of year, too, should be the early cut kind so as to be as tender as possible. These three young ewes were quite a loss in this little flock as the young ewes are the hope of the flock, and these were worth at least $6 per head for mutton and more than that for breeding purposes, as they were choice.—Rural World.

It is said that there are but three women in the United States who make what might be called a wholesale business of raising turkeys for market, one of them being Mrs. B. F. Jackson, of Kentucky, who began five years ago, and now has an income of several thousands of dollars a year from her turkeys, while the demand for them is larger than she is able to supply, and another is Mrs. Mary R. Thomas, of Maryland, who has seven farms devoted to the business. A third is Miss Anita Martin, of Texas, who has been at it about as long as Mrs. Jackson, and now raises them by the thousand.

Mrs. Thomas makes a specialty of the bronze turkey and has taken first prizes on her stock, the gobblers weighing from 36 to 45 pounds each, and the hens from 18 to 26 pounds. Mrs. Jackson says the young turkeys should not be fed until they are at least 36 hours old, and it is better to wait 12 hours longer. Then they get three meals a day of bread crumbs, curds and chopped onion for a few weeks and then it is changed to wheat and cracked corn. When she has 100 or more hatched out she puts them with three of the best turkey hens and lets them choose their own mothers. They may be turned loose at ten days old, but care must be taken to protect them if a shower comes up, and to keep them from straying in the wet grass, as they are subject to taking cold, and seldom recover from the effect. They need the sunlight. They must be protected from vermin, and she finds no better method than to dust the young turkeys with insect powder in cold weather, and when it is warm to rub the head and neck at night with a mixture of lard and kerosene, which will kill or drive them off before morning.

Miss Martin keeps about 100 stock birds and employs two women and several boys to help her, and says she cleared more than $2500 last year. She raises shallots and peppers, as well as corn to feed them, and her method of caring for them is about the same as Mrs. Thomas', excepting that she uses unsifted corn meal as grain, and substitutes the shallots and peppers as green food until they are old enough to find the green food for themselves. After they are four months they are only fed twice a day.

A man by the name of Francisco started a dairy farm in New Jersey 12 years ago, almost without capital, producing 35 quarts of milk a day. Now he has what is probably the largest dairy farm in the world, keeping 525 cows and selling 4000 quarts of milk every day in New York at 12 cents a quart. His cows, 35 horses and some young stock make over 600 animals on the farm. The secret of his success is absolute cleanliness in stables and all pertaining to the handling of the milk. Even the linen suits worn by the men while milking are never worn but once without washing. Each group of 20 cows has an overseer whose business it is to see that all feeding and milking rules are carried out. All milk as soon as drawn is taken to a milk room a considerable distance from the stables, and as every cow has been tested for tuberculosis, and no new one is added to the herd until she has been for some time in a barn apart from the others, and has been proved free from disease, he guarantees his milk to be from healthy animals, and drawn under the most favorable conditions as to cleanliness.

A novel way of booming farm lands is credited to the general passenger agent of the Atchisan, Topeka & Santa Fe R. R. He has had traveling about the West an expert shorthand writer, to visit individual farmers in their homes, find out what success has been met with, and then write letters at their dictation, addressed to Eastern friends, telling all about the big crops and resultant good times. This private secretary goes about with a team, and carries a small typewriting machine and stationery. He interviews the owner or renter of each quarter section on his route, and writes down the industrial situation, as it really is in that neighborhood. He tells just what was had with wheat, cattle and hogs, describes climatic conditions, mentions Mary and the baby, and sometimes winds up with the story of a lifted mortgage and money in the bank. This personal correspondence is followed up at the head offices of the road by mailing appropriate advertising literature to the farmer's friends. Beneficial results are said to be already manifest to the railroad. When a person living back in Ohio receives a letter from his former neighbor written on a typewriter, he naturally concludes that any country which is prosperous enough to warrant a plain farmer owning his own writing machine is worth investigating.

Those who are trying to make winter butter should remember that feeding cottonseed meal has a tendency to make the butter harder, even so that it will crumble when cut, giving it a greasy appearance that many do not like. It is better in winter to substitute gluten meal or linseed meal for cottonseed as these tend toward making a soft butter. While we advise that only one quart of cottonseed meal be used with four or five of other grain, it is safe to use one quart of linseed or gluten meal to two or three of other grain.

It has the unequalled endorsement of our leading horsemen and veterinarians.

MR. O. E. DINWART, Cashier State Bank, Clayton, Minn., writes:
"One bottle cured a very bad case of blood spavin on a mare for which I have since been offered $800. I would not be without it if it cost $5.00 a bottle."
We have hundreds of such testimonials.

Price $1.50 per Package. Smaller size 50 cents. Ask your Druggist for it. If he does not keep it we will send prepaid on receipt of price. Address W. R. EDDY & CO., Whitehall, N. Y.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. L. Maloune, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. J. J. Jr., with 81 straight kills.
It used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.
Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

OCCIDENT AND STANFORD STAKES.

Colts and Fillies on Which Second and Third Payments Were Made.

Assistant Secretary H. Lowden sends us the following list of colts entered in the Occident and Stanford Stakes of 1901 and 1902 that were paid up on January 1st. In sending the list of names on which payment was made in the Occident Stake to be trotted this year one of the typewritten sheets was accidentally left out and a duplicate of another sheet sent in its place. We will have the list in time for next week's issue. We have not yet received the list of entries for the Occident Stake of 1903, to which there were, we understand, 100 entries.

SECOND PAYMENT STANFORD STAKE 1902.

A Promising Green Four Year Old.

B. O. Van Bokkelen has lately had added to his string of horses at San Jose the four year old colt Tom Smith, by McKinney 2:11½. As Mr. Van Bokkelen makes a trip East every year with a few good ones that he has picked up here for Eastern parties for whom he is always on the lookout for something extra good, those who heard that he had this colt in charge supposed a sale had been made, but such is not the case, as the colt is still the property of Prof. E. P. Heald. To the writer's mind Tom Smith was the handsomest McKinney on the circuit last year, and although he did not get a record he demonstrated his ability to beat 2:20 away off, and we were told by a reliable person that he timed the colt a mile in 2:16.

Tom Smith is a colt with plenty of bone and substance, level headed and one of the stoutest bred trotters in the books. His dam is the great broodmare Daisy S. by McDonald Chief 3583, the dam of two in the list; the second dam is Fanny Rose (also a great broodmare, dam of Columbus S. 2:17 and George Washington 2:16½) by Ethan Allen Jr. 2993, and the third dam is Jennie Lind, dam of Prince Allen 2:27.

Tom Smith is a square trotter and fast, but had to meet The Roman and Eula Mac last year and failed to get a record. He was not taught to get away fast and at the half in all of his five starts he was behind, but he trotted the last half so fast that he would be well up at the wire. The picture is from a snap shot taken at him at Vallejo in July last. We understand Mr. Van Bokkelen has secured an option on him, and if he gets the colt we do not doubt but 2:10 will be opposite Tom Smith's name before the season is over.

Average Speed on the Grand Circuit.

Are you going East this year with a string of horses to race on the Grand Circuit? If so, be pretty certain that you have the speed and stamina in your string, as it takes both to win over there. Here is an interesting lot of figures in regard to the racing last year that is worth studying by those who contemplate courting the fickle goddess on the Grand Circuit:

At Detroit there were thirty-three miles trotted; fastest heat, 2:07; slowest, 2:22; average, 2:14 79-100. The pacers went thirty-five heats; fastest, 2:05; slowest, 2:16½; average, 2:11 55-100. At Cleveland the trotters went thirty-five heats from 2:06½ to 2:19, averaging 2:12 30-100; the pacers thirty-four, from 2:02 to 2:19, an average of 2:10 7-100.

At Columbus the trotters in thirty-two heats ranged from 2:06 to 2:17, averaging 2:12 30-100; the pacers stepped around the circle thirty miles from 2:05½ to 2:16½, an average of 2:10 7-100.

Fort Erie furnished good sport also, the trotters in twenty-four heats going from 2:09½ to 2:21½, and averaging 2:16 6-100; the pacers twenty-six heats from 2:05½ to 2:26, averaging 2:12 9-100. This 2:26 heat was by a two year old with no active competition. It was a stake event with but two as starters.

At Glens Falls the trotters averaged 2:13 29-100 in twenty-five heats that ran from 2:10½ to 2:17. The pacers went from 2:06½ to 2:14½ in twenty-seven heats, an average of 2:09 85-100. Over at Readville, Mass., they trotted all the way from 2:06½ to 2:16½ in thirty-three miles averaging 2:12 18-100; and the pacers went thirty-two miles from 2:02½ to 2:14½, an average of 2:09 13-100.

At Providence the track was fast. The trotters averaged 2:12 61-100, and the heats ranged from 2:04½ to 2:14½, while the pacers averaged 2:08 58-100 in thirty one heats that ran from 2:04½ to 2:13½. At Hartford they trotted thirty-eight heats from 2:04½ to 2:19½, averaging 2:11 99-100, and paced thirty-four heats from 2:04½ to 2:14½, at an average of 2:08 58-100, just equaling Providence.

Empire City averaged well, the trotters in thirty-five heats from 2:04 to 2:26½ averaging 2:12 57-100, and the pacers in forty-four heats that were from 2:03½ to 2:14½, averaging 2:09 23-100. The 2:26½ heat was against time by The Jug. Terre Haute had The Abbot's champion mile 2:03½, and ran to 2:25½, averaging in nineteen heats 2:13 90-100; the pacers went twenty-one miles at an average of 2:10 28-100.

The Agricultural Society Bill.

The bill to enable the State Agricultural Society to enlarge and improve its grounds is now before the legislature. It should pass hands down. No good reason can be shown why the State should not preserve and improve its own property given to it and gratefully accepted by it.

The society has outgrown its present quarters—in fact, that was true ten years ago. Its grounds by the growth of the Capital City have become ill shaped, the buildings are old and decayed, and will stand no more patching whatever. Wherefore it is proposed to sell the six most southerly blocks of Agricultural Park and purchase land lying to the east of the remainder sufficient for the new park, which will consist also of the nearly two-thirds of the present park to the north.

On these new grounds suitable structures will be erected, and the whole is to be deeded to the State of California, thus placing the title in the State beyond question and free from any possible reversion to the donors of the original lands. The cost of this change is expressed in the appropriation called for, namely, $100,000, which includes the subsisting indebtedness of the Agricultural Society that must be first paid out of the appropriation. After paying the society indebtedness and purchasing the new lands, if any money is left it is to be used in improving the property and fitting it up for fair purposes generally.

It goes without saying that an appropriation will be made for the society as usual. California will not abandon that beneficent agency. It follows, therefore, that it is the part of wisdom to make the appropriation add still more to the permanent beneficence of that valuable institution.

The time has gone by when the State Fair is treated as a localism; the people fully realize its high value to the whole State, and the immeasurable benefit it has been to the Commonwealth. In the stimulation of stock and dairy interests alone it has more than repaid all the State has given it. But the State has never paid anything for the society grounds.

Of the annual appropriation 80 per cent. goes for premiums, not for races, but for actual exhibits stimulated by the Agricultural Society to be made by the people. It is, therefore, wise and beneficial in its conduct and it will be in the direct interest of the producers in California to outfit the society with proper grounds for the exhibition and test of choice stock, the growing of which the Agricultural Society has promoted in the fullest degree.

Its present grounds are wholly inadequate and the demands upon them for some years from our own and other states has been so great that much of the stock sent here for exhibit has either been necessarily refused or quartered outside, greatly to the inconvenience and injury of the exhibitors.

The grounds are so crowded that there is not space to allow the people to freely examine stock exhibits, nor can those relaxing and pleasing athletic and other exhibitions be made, which at all fairs now properly and beneficially serve to fill up those programs of entertainment which the people who attend expositions expect to witness.

The time has gone by when the California State Fair can be sneered down. It is an indispensable factor in the means employed by the State to advance its interests, to develop its resources and disseminate information concerning it. Sacramento is not asking for this benefit for the State Agricultural Society; it is not a benefit for a locality; it is not a selfish personal interest to be promoted; it is State concernment, as broad as the State, and as wide as the borders of the garments of the State. It is in State interest, moving on the same plane as the State University, or any other State institution looking to the education of the people and the development of the State.—Sacramento Record Union.

Big Stake for Pacers.

The New England Breeders' Association has decided to increase its 2:25 stake for pacers to $10,000, which is the highest stake open to the pacing brigade. That the fast pacers make attractive races is true all over the country and associations are beginning to realize this fact and trainers are pleased over the prospects. There should be more large stakes for both trotters and pacers, as nothing adds to horse values like the opportunity for them to earn large sums of money.

Just at present Direct Hal, the Hamlin's fast four year old; Beausant, the $10,000 stallion, by Bow Bolls, and Maury Pointer, the brother to Star Pointer 1:59½, seem the best in sight for this rich event, yet it is not at all certain that either of the illustrious trio will be in the field to face the starter, what with the many accidents, etc., liable to overtake a horse in the trip down the line.

Sir Alfred S., the green pacer by Diablo 2:09½, owned by William G. Laying that gave promise of being such a fast horse last year, but was injured in a car accident and failed to start, is all right again and ought to be another 2:10 performer for his sire if raced this year.

Joe Patchen and Hal Pointer at Fresno.

Jack Curry was in a reminiscent mood in New York on New Year's day and out at the speedway, where the going was so bad that the horses could not untrack themselves, he entertained a crowd of listeners with the following:

"This is pretty nearly the worst I ever saw and I do not remember a time when the going was heavier except once. That was on the Fresno, Cal., track in February, 1895. I had followed Ed Geers across the continent with a determination to beat Robert J. with Joe Patchen or die in the attempt. It started to rain when we arrived there and it kept on raining every day, until at last we saw that something would have to be done to put the track in some sort of shape, or we would never be able to pull off the race. Well, sir, we went to work and did something which I am sure never was done before by a lot of trainers and drivers. There were Ed Geers, Tom Raymond, Monroe Salisbury, Andy McDowell and myself. What do you suppose we did to try and dry out that track? Why, we drove a flock of 2300 head of sheep over it. Looks funny, don't it? It does to me, now; but it was a long way from funny then. We'd get the track in pretty fair shape during the day and at night it would rain again. For thirty days we drove the sheep, and for thirty days it rained.

We finally gave up in despair and agreed to have the race next day regardless of the condition of the track. We were very weary of drilling sheep every day. The evening before the race, Geers and myself attended a dinner party, during which Geers promised one of the women present that he would give her one of Robert J.'s shoes which he would wear next day to beat Joe Patchen. I told him he would not defeat old Joe, and he agreed to give the woman a nickel-plated shoe from the hoof of every horse in his stable if he did not. He had to make his word good, too. Well, the next afternoon was clear, but the track was in worse condition than the speedway is to-day. You could hear the horses' feet pulling out of the mud almost the same as the popping of a champagne cork, but never were faster miles made on such footing. We went away on even terms for the first heat. Patchen was on the inside, but could not get close to the pole for the mud. In fact, we had to swing out so far that Geers' wheel was on the grass at the outside edge of the track. We went to the half in 1:05, where we were just about head and head. Going home, however, Joe got a shade the better of it and won by half a length in 2:06½.

"As we came out for the next heat, Geers was asked how he came to lose. 'I didn't carry him to the half fast enough,' he said. Well, sir, he started and carried Old Joe fast enough that heat. We went down to the half in whirlwind style. You could hear chunks of mud dropping in every direction. We flashed past the half-mile pole in 1:01, but it was a trifle too much for Robert, and he made a break. Joe pattered along home, five or six lengths in the lead, in 2:12. In the third heat there was an even start and we raced head and head to within fifty feet of the wire. Robert was beating me and I saw something desperate must be done, so I raised up in my seat and for the first and only time in my life, I cut old Joe with the whip. He passed Robert, who made a break, and Joe won in 2:06½. The speedway is bad, but that track at Fresno was a terror."

Future Prospects of Trotting.

A horseman of experience, keen observation and action said the following to E. E. Cogswell, the popular Boston turf writer:

"The relations between those who campaign stables and those who hang up purses to be trotted and paced for should be more friendlier than they are. Tracks cannot live without entries, and trainers and owners rely upon tracks for reward for development.

"It costs much [time, worry and money to get a horse ready for the races.] The expense of shipping a stable over the country is too great, and men like J. Malcom Forbes, Colonel John E. Thayer, T. W. Lawson, W. R. Allen, F. H. Harriman, John H. Shults, B. F. Tracy and C. J. Hamlin, who have influence with railroad directors should get together and ask for better shipping rates. A horse properly entered in races should be shipped from point to point at one-half the regular rate, and this rate should include his harness, sulky traps and groom.

"The railroads make money out of the race meetings by carrying an extra number of passengers, and they can well afford to treat with liberality the horses which excite the community and stimulate travel.

"Track managers should put into the judges' stand none but cool-headed men of experience, who understand the rules and are honest. A great many things may happen in a race to confuse the judgment of a novice. A horse may have his chances ruined by a bad start, or he may be held in a pocket, or otherwise interfered with to prevent him from taking the heat."

"No judge can follow every individual horse in a large field and things happen which escape observation and yet influence the result. To require a driver to pump his horse in a hopeless effort to win a heat is to demand that he shall throw the race away. The impulsive, rattle-headed judge is easily swayed by the clamor of those who hold losing tickets on heats, and drivers are removed who easily are doing their best to win three heats out of five. Even cool-headed judges sometimes err.

"I have heard it stated that two of the judges were strongly in favor of removing George H. Ketcham after he had lost with Cresceus two heats to Charley Herr in the $20,000 stallion race at Readville. Had it not been for the firmness of the third judge, a substitution would have been made, and those who had backed Cresceus to win the race would have lost their money. Ketcham knows the stallion thoroughly, and can drive him better in a tight finish than a stranger.

"If you desire to put a stop to the cry of laying up heats, stop bookmaking on heats. All money wagered on a race should follow the decision of the stand as to the winners of purse divisions. If a horse is backed for a place his rank in the summary will decide it.

"The voices of track owners are all powerful in the congress of the National Trotting Association, and if these gentlemen are really for 'reform,' let them pass a rule abolishing betting on heats. The majority of drivers would strongly favor such a rule because it would remove from them a cloud or source of suspicion.

"I believe that we are entering upon a new era of prosperity for trotting tracks and should like to see every possible cause of irritation and friction eliminated. If we want to build up light harness racing steps must be promptly taken to cultivate friendly relations between trainers, owners and managers of tracks."

Sires Represented in Breeders Futurity.

In the Pacific Breeders Futurity for the produce of mares bred in 1900, there was second payment made on 241. A perusal of the list published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN of last week shows that the stallions to which these mares were bred number 69. Of these McKinney 2:11½ leads with 26 mares named that were bred to him last season. Direct 2:05½ comes next with 15 and Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ occupies third place with 12. Dictatus 2:17 and Stam B. 2:11½ tie for fourth place with 10 each, while Boodle Jr., Chas. Derby 2:20, Neernut 2:12½, and Welcome 2:10½ are represented with 9 each. Bayswater Wilkes 2:25, Diablo 2:09½, and Zombro 2:11, are each named as sires of 7 prospective foals that will be eligible to the stake, Mendocino 2:19½ is represented by six of the mares bred to him, Conifer has 5, Lynmont 2:23½, Rey Direct 2:10, Strathway 2:19, Sidney Dillon, and the three year old colt T. C. by Nutwood Wilkes are credited with 4 each, Alton (deceased), Altamont 2:26½, Boodle 2:12½, Illustris 2:29½, Monbells, Owyhee 2:11, St. Whips, Wild Nutling 2:11½, Wilkes Direct 2:22½ and Zolock 2:10½ are each represented by three mares named in the stake. The stallions that are represented by 2 mares are Boxwood, Don Marvin 2:22½, Demonio, Hambletonian Wilkes, Klatawah 2:05½, Pilot Prince 2:22½ and Steinway 2:25½, and the following have one each: Altivo 2:18½, Advertiser 2:15½, Arthur W. 2:11½, Black Jack, Billy Thornhill 2:24½, Coeur d'Alene, Dexter Prince, Diawood 2:11, Educator, Erect, Falrose 2:19, Gaff Top-sail 2:17½, Hart Boswell, I Direct 2:12½, Kinney Mac, Kentucky Baron 2:27½, Linwood W. 2:20½, Mambrino Chief Jr., Melvar 2:22, Nushagak, On Stanley, Prince Ansel 2:20½, Pacheco Wilkes, Secretary, Strangor 2:16½, Stoneway 2:23½, Stanton Wilkes, Suel Harris' McKinney colt, a Son of Sable Wilkes, Tom Smith, Tennysonian and William Harold 2:13½.

Answers to Correspondents.

Kindly publish the breeding on dam's side of Silverthreads by The Moor. S. C.

The dam of Silverthreads was called Grey Dale, and she was by American Boy Jr., a son of American Boy sire of Williamson's Belmont. The dam of Grey Dale was Grey Poll by Winfield Scott 1319, son of Edward Everett 81, he by Hambletonian 10. Grey Poll's dam was Sorrell Poll by Sir Henry, out of a daughter of Printer. Grey Dale is the dam of Longworth 2:19, sire of El Moro 2:13½.

A pacer that is expected to be a world beater and win all kinds of money for his new owner this year is Beausant, a full brother to Boreal 2:15½, sire of Boralma 2:08, and therefore by Bow Bells 2:19½, out of Rosy Morn by Alcantara. May Overton, of Lexington, owned this fast green one and recently sold him to the Titusville, Pa., oil king, Mr. J. C. McKinney. It is said the price was ten thousand dollars. Beausant has a well authenticated trial of one mile in 2:07½ last year and is a high class one without a doubt as far as speed goes. He will probably start in the Chamber of Commerce $5000 stake at Detroit this year and then we will know more about him.

Oakwood Park Stallions.

Charles Derby, with a record of 2:20 made in the sixth heat of a race in the days before the bike, a success in the stud with three 2:10 performers to his credit, eight with records better than 2:15 and four more inside of 2:20, will stand for public service this year at Oakwood Park stock farm at Danville, Contra Costa county at $50. This announcement should fill his book by March 1st, as Charles Derby is not only a sire of speed but he gets game race horses and horses with size, style and substance, and his blood lines are royal. His sire Steinway, still living, but kept as a private stallion is one of the greatest sires of early and extreme speed and his dam Katy G., has not only produced Klatawah (3) 2:05½, Chas. Derby 2:20, H. R. Covey 2:25, Sunlight 2:25 and Steiner 2:29½, but is by the mighty Electioneer, sire of 165 in the list and grand-sire of the two fastest trotting geldings in the world—The Abbot 2:03½ and Azote 2:04½. From Chas. Derby's second dam Fanny Malone two of whose daughters are producers, to his third dam Fanny Wickham, a great 20 mile trotter of the old days, that was by the thoroughbred horse imported Herald out of a mare by imported Trustee, his pedigree can be traced on the dam's side through the thoroughbred stud book for twenty-one generations. Chas. Derby is a horse well worthy of patronage and as his fee has been placed at the reasonable price of $50 this year breeders should not overlook the fact and send him some of their best mares.

At the same farm that grand race horse Owyhee 2:11 that went through the Eastern Grand Circuit two years ago and won nearly $12,000 defeating many of the best horses of that year, will also be in the stud at the same fee. Owyhee is a son of Charles Derby, out of Ida Wood, (who is also the dam of Babe Marion 2:17½) by Simmons, whose daughters produced the two greatest young horses of last year—Bonnie Direct 2:05½ the champion pacer, and Ferenno 2:10½, winner of the Kentucky Futurity and the champion three year old trotter of the year. Owyhee is a horse of good size, color and conformation and is a young horse yet, having been foaled in 1894. There have none of his get been trained as yet, in fact he has been bred to but a very few mares, but the colts and fillies by him show great promise and it has been predicted that he will be a producing sire whenever any of his get are ready to race.

Value of Colts Prospective.

The chief value of colts lies in their prospective value as money winners, and while they may ultimately become road horses of great value that does not affect the selling price until they can show their merit. It is as a prospective racing machine and money earner that the foal becomes of value, and unless he is given the chance to win he can not be said to have a value. The worth of a young trotter is dependent entirely on his earning capacity, which is in itself regulated by his engagements, and whenever a well-bred, well-formed colt or filly is left out of stakes of all kinds, one of two things is the matter. Either the colt's owner has no confidence in his capacity, or else he is ignorant of the true condition of affairs. The time has now come when judicious buyers for racing purposes will decline to pay the full value for youngsters not engaged in stakes. The entrance fee is so small that any colt worth raising is worth entering, and breeders must come to this conclusion before they can expect their offerings to fetch their real value.

For immediate use a fast colt unengaged is worth little more than a slow one, for his speed can be put to no purpose, whereas if he had been entered his value would have been increased ten times the cost of nominating. While it may be unwise for large breeders to enter extensively every colt of a year's crop, it is worse than folly to fail to enter at least a few of the best. Every colt that is worth raising should be given at least one opportunity of winning a stake. The small expenditure in the shape of an entrance fee immediately adds to his value, for a colt not worth entering is not worth buying. Owners of stallions who raise the got of such commit a grievous error in not entering their colts, for eligibility to a stake is an incentive to train, and in this way even should the colt fail to start, he is apt to be given at least moderate training, which in itself may be of great benefit to the sire and dam. A colt cannot trot without training, and what object can there be in training if the youngster has no chance of winning?—Kentucky Stock Farm.

What Classes for 1901?

The question that bothers secretaries of associations in California every year is what classes will fill best? The State is so large in area and the training tracks so widely separated that it is impossible to get in touch with but a small proportion of trainers, and thus the information as to what horses are in training is hard to get. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has started in early this year to make up a list of record horses in this State that will probably be campaigned, and if our readers will aid us a little by sending in the names of their horses that they intend to campaign, a list can be secured that will benefit both horsemen and the associations.

We give this week a list of the horses in the fastest classes which are at present in California and will probably be raced. It is not a complete list but we will keep it standing and ask our friends who see any omissions to kindly note the same and inform us that we may make the necessary corrections.

The above lists have been hurriedly made up and there are doubtless many horses with records of 2:20 or better that will be raced this year in California, whose names have been omitted. On the other hand there are horses given that will not be raced on one account or another, mares that were bred last year, etc. Will the trainers kindly send us in the names of horses that have been omitted and they know will be trained if a good circuit is organized.

Death of George West.

CHICAGO January 4.—George West known the world over as a trainer and driver of trotting horses, died at his home in this city to-day after a long illness.

For the last twelve years West has driven all the great horses owned by Frank S. Gorton, of Chicago, and has probably ridden as many miles under 2:10 behind his flyers as any driver in the country. Although he never drove east of Cleveland, his reputation as a driver is national and his rank among the great reinsmen of the country, as reckoned by the number of horses he has driven in the 2:10 class, is close to the top.

West was a pupil of Budd Doble when the latter was in his prime as a driver. He first trained and drove for Charles Schwarz, of Chicago. He has won many great races, but probably none that he took more pride in than the trotting Derby at Washington Park in 1894. The race was over a distance of two miles and was won by Monette 2:14½ with West in the sulky.

A Promising Young Trainer.

Among the young trainers and drivers of California who have been successful as trainers and drivers during the past two years is William G. Durfee, son of the veteran C. A. Durfee. Last season was his second season in the sulky and his record was a good one. He started horses in 55 races, was 11 times first, 13 times second, 9 times third and 10 times fourth, which is certainly a good showing for a young trainer. His principal winners were Charley Mac 2:17½, Osito 2:13½ and Maggie McKinney 2:17, all by his father's stallion McKinney 2:11. Mr. Durfee is located at Los Angeles and will be out again this year with a string of trotters among which will be several young McKinneys. Mr. Durfee has a cool head and brings his horses to the post in good condition to try for the money and generally gets his share of it. His horse Charley Mac was one of the best green horses out last year, and will trot much below his present record this season.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Remember there will be a $1000 stake for 2:15 pacers, and one for 2:20 trotters at the Oregon state fair next year. Get your material ready.

Tenino 2:19½, is owned by A. G. Danforth, Washington, Ill., and has a yearling foal by St. Vincent 2:13½. Tenino is a full sister to Chehalis 2:04½.

Geo. Perringor, of Pendleton, is jogging Mt. Hood, Kinney Mac, and two colts, one by Chehalis. He will try these for the Breeders' stake.

J. W. Tilden says the Vancouver, Wash., track is in fine condition. He works every week to a bike sulky over it without the least trouble.

Frank Frazier is jogging Hassalo and two Westfield colts which will probably try for the Breeders' stake. Umaholis is bred to Westfield and out in the pasture.

Cris Simpson is jogging his stable of trotters and pacers, including Alta Norte, Phil N., Santiam and Mack Mack. He has two Bonner N. B. colts, pacer and trotter, which he will try for the Breeders' stake.

Jas. Erwin of Pendleton is jogging about 15 head of horses this winter. Among them are Edison, Oveto, two Westfield colts and one Bonner N. B. colt. These colts are being tried for the Breeders' Guaranteed Stake.

L. Thompson, of Pendleton, has two handsome two year olds by Westfield that he intends entering in the $1000 stake for two year olds. He also owns a pair of Chehalis colts, three and four years old, that he intends to match up for a fancy team.

I. C. Mosher is driving Mr. J. M. Church's fine pair of Lemont mares, Estella 2:17½ and her full sister Ester, trial 2:25 at the Fair grounds this winter. This team is being conditioned to sell and they are one of the handsomest teams in the State, being so near alike that even the stable boys can scarcely tell them apart.

Special Notice.

We call the attention of our readers to the fact that since January 1, 1901, Quinn's Ointment is being put up only in one style, which will be sent to any address by mail or express, prepaid, upon receipt of $1. This valuable remedy has been on the market a number of years and thoroughly tested and endorsed by the leading breeders from Maine to California. Dr. Gerald of Laconia, a prominent breeder, says in his opinion Quinn's Ointment is the best preparation ever made for removing bunches. For curbs, splints, sprains, windpuffs and all enlargements it is highly recommended. If you cannot obtain from your druggist address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y.

One man in Chicago is said to have sold during the past three years about 30 mares, all represented as being foaled in 1892 or 1893, and all out of Delta by Mambrino Startle.

Storm King Goes to British Columbia.

A few weeks ago Mr. E. Landsberg of this city, owner of that good race horse Storm King, son of imp. Whistle Jacket by Hermit, advertised the horse for sale in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and as a result of that advertisement Storm King will be shipped this week to Mr. W. G. Taylor, a prominent citizen of Victoria, British Columbia, who will use him in the stud. Storm King will be mated this year with the following mares belonging to Mr. Taylor, and as he is a royally bred horse, was a very fast and game racer and is a good individual he should sire winners. It will be well to keep an eye on the two year olds that come down from British Columbia in 1904 as there is liable to be a second Storm King among them. It will be noticed that Mr. Taylor's mares are a royally bred lot:

Accident by Blair Athol from Ambulance (dam of nine winners) by Victorious. Accident is dam of two winners and traces to No. 19 mare in Figure System.

Avie by Uncas (by Stockwell) from Lady Luna by Lord Clifden thence to No. 13 mare. Avie was a winner and dam of a winner.

Eastern Lily by Speculum from Lily Agnes (Ormonde's dam) by Macaroni. Eastern Lily is grandam of Indian Chief, winner of French 2000 guineas.

Empress Matilda by Beauclere from Miss Muriel (dam of three winners) by Galliard from The Golden Eye (dam of three winners) by General Peel. No. 5 Family. First foal now three in England and by Petronel.

Fair Georgina by George Frederick from Dumbarnie by Cramond (Andover-Haricot) from Redlight by Rataplan from Borealis by Newminster from Blink Bonny, etc. Fair Georgina is dam of two winners.

Friskarina by Chapel Royal (son of Hermit) from Vanity by Royal George (Gt. Metropolitan) from Hornsea by Volturino, tracing to No. 3 Family. This mating would be an inbreeding to Hermit.

Larksome by Skylark (Astor Gold Cup) from Lucy Glitters (a great race mare, second to Foxhall in Cambridgehire) by Speculum. Larksome is dam of two winners. No. 20 Family.

Lectern by Beauclere from Canonical (dam of nine winners) by Cathedral from Empress by King Tom. Lectern is dam of three winners. No. 11 Family.

Loch Silver by Maegregor (sire of Brutus) from Silver Dee by Rapid Rhone from Ada by Musjid (Derby). Loch Silver was a winner. No. 4 Family.

Maximilia by Maximilian (by Macaroni) from Wild Dove (dam of two winners) by Wild Dayrell from Maud (g. d. of imp. Midlothian) by Loup Garon. Maximilia is dam of a winner.

Muscat by Hampton from Muscatel by Musket from Bonny Reel by Voltigeur from Queen Mary. Muscat is dam of two winners.

Tabby by Westbourne (Newmarket Derby and second in Cesarewitch in front of Isonomy, Parole, etc.) from Tibby by Sterling from Siluria (sister to Wenlock) by Lord Clifden.

Hard Work Good for Them.

"It is odd how blood will tell," remarked a horseman recently to a Chicago reporter. "Down at my farm I have a five year old gelding, whose dam, a daughter of Electioneer, although fast, never seemed able to go a full mile where she ought to, and when she was put in the brood mare ranks her foals had the same peculiarity. So when the one I am talking about was ready to break, I decided not to bother about trying to make a trotter of him, but just broke him to harness and let him grow up into a fine big horse. Last summer I was short of mules and concluded to work the son of Axtell and the Electioneer mare in a team. So he was hitched with two mules, worked every day like a cart horse, and I give you my word he actually wore out both those mules, and when the summer ended was as fat as a bear and felt able to tackle all the work on the place. Now I believe I had better train that fellow for speed next spring.

"Out at the Daly ranch we had a mare whose foals wore a little soft, and a couple of years ago we decided that they would not do. So the latest arrival from that mare was put right to work when he was old enough. He was driven double to wagons and carriages, and would often start out in the morning and never get home till night. Last spring I thought I would work him a little for speed and in no time at all he went a mile in 2:15 for me. He has a race record better than 2:20 right now, and is as game a thing as you ever saw. I believe there are plenty of trotting bred horses that are unable to carry their speed when trained in the ordinary way that would make good race horses if taken from the track and given a season of real hard work. It would certainly develop their muscles, and then when they went back to brushing their speed would be easy to carry."

SULKY NOTES.

Send us the names of the horses you will train this year.

What classes do you want for 1901? Send us a list of them.

Czarina 2:13½ is now in Millard Sanders' charge at Pleasanton.

The Roman 2:18½. will be specially fitted for the Transylvania.

A bluegrass circuit is being formed in Kentucky, with purses of $400 and $500.

Mamie Griffin 2:12 is prominent as a brush mare on the Buffalo speedway this winter.

Bert Webster is jogging Direct Nut, formerly called Sharkey, at the Pleasanton track.

The old California trotter Dr. Leek 2:09½, is now in John Splan's stable at Cleveland.

Billy Andrews is quoted as saying that John R. Gentry is as sound as he ever was in his life.

Ed Gaylord of Denver would like to have Johnny Blue as his trainer this year and has made him an offer.

J. M. Alviso has a filly by Diablo 2:09½, out of Ruth C. by Guide, that the Pleasanton folks think is a crack-erjack.

Village Farm has 139 brood mares with foal, and this does not look as if the Hamlins will retire from the business.

Fifteen of the 51 trotters that have brought from $20,000 to $125,000 were bred in Kentucky and nine of them in California.

Mr. Peel, wife of David H. Peel, superintendent of the trotting department of the Bitter Root farm, died suddenly on December 29th.

The mile track association at Syracuse, N. Y., will offer two $5000 stakes this year and hopes to become a member of the Grand Circuit.

The yearling filly by Directum 2:05½, out of Janie T. 2:14, by Bow Bells, is one of the best of her age at Suburban Farm, Glens Falls, N. Y.

James C. Wallace is nicely quartered at the Sweet-water track, San Diego, where he is handling a few green horses mostly his own property.

According to the returns of the French minister of agriculture, 23,958 horses, 215 donkeys and 34 mules were killed in Paris during the last official year for human food.

The year the Dare Devil 2:09, was not raced he was bred to 50 mares, and of these Village farm owns 22 fillies and 23 colts. Nearly all are black and have rare style and gait.

One of the coming 2:10 pacers at the Jewett covered track is The Heir Apparent, by Chimes, which Charles Olcott drove a half in 1:07½ recently. He was purchased by A. E. Perrin for $250 last spring.

Says Ed. Tipton: "As to hoppers, there never was but one set on Marcus Daly's ranch, and when he saw them, maybe there wasn't some strap breaking. He didn't leave enough of them to make a boy a book-strap."

There is to be an auction sale of trotting and running bred stock at Los Angeles on Tuesday next. The stock is owned by J. B. Hill and Thomas Clark will be the auctioneer. The sale will take place at the race track.

Alta McDonald says he can drive Connor 2:03½, in 2:07 or 2:08 on the trot. If he does, he will have the fastest double-gaited horse in the world. Jay Eye See now holds that distinction with a trotting record of 2:10 and pacing 2:06½.

A correspondent of Trotter and Pacer at the Quaker City writes: Andy McDowell was in town last week with C. S. Cressman and bought a fine pair of roadsters. It is said the latter will start a fine stable for McDowell in New York this year.

Belle Mead Farm reports that 21 mares have already been booked to Red Wilkes for this season, 13 of which are producing mares and five show mares. There have also been 5 mares booked to Ambulator 2:10, a good start for this early in the season.

The 2:30 list has grown so large that it is getting cumbersome and the day is not far distant when the 2:20 list will be the only one referred to in the tables of producing sires. There are probably close to 25,000 that have gained records in standard time.

Messrs. J. C. and J. P. Montgomery of Davisville, Cal., have sold their fine stallion Diawood 2:11 to a Mr. King of College City, Colusa county. The price realized for him was $1500. Diawood will be placed in the stud at Colusa county and will be a valuable addition to the standard bred stock of that section.

In a Maine paper, which reaches this office is the advertisement of a stallion by Whips, the sire of Azote 2:04½, out of Manette the dam of Arion 2:07½. Owing to his hip having been knocked down, this horse never trotted fast, and the owner now asks but $15 for his services. The Maine horse owners ought to breed to that fellow.

The death of Mrs. John Splan, wife of the famous trainer and driver, which occurred at Glenville, Ohio, last week, from heart failure, after a short illness, will be received with great regret all over the country, as she was a familiar figure at the tracks, where her husband usually received the lion's share of the grand stand's applause.

The noted horses Ferenó, Walnut Hall, Mabel, Chestnut King and Dartmore, owned by Mr. L. V. Harkness of Walnut Hall Farm, Doverall, Ky., have been taken up by trainer Ed Benyon, who will soon commence to get them in shape for next season's campaign. He also has a number of two year olds who show great promise.

C. K. G. Billings is confident that his well known road horse Franker 2:14½, can lower the two mile trotting record—4:32—now held by Greenlander, and the horse may be fitted for an attempt to do the trick next summer. Franker has always finished his miles faster than he could get away, and as he has trotted to wagon in 2:11½ his owner believes he should cover two miles in record time.

The well known New York horseman, Fred Gerken, has announced his willingness to back Mr. Scannell's champion trotter The Abbot 2:03½ against Mr. George H. Ketcham's champion stallion Cresceus 2:04, for $10,000 a side, the race to take place next summer and the horse that first wins two heats to take the purse. A race between these two champions would be well worth going many miles to see, and it is hoped Mr. Ketcham will accept the "defi."

Mr. C. A. Durfee, owner of McKinney 2:11½, is out again after a ten days' siege with the grip. He was undecided last Monday whether he would keep his stallion at San Jose for the season or take him to Pleasanton. It is a question of the best pasturage with Mr. Durfee as he never permits the mares sent to his horse to go without plenty to eat. He left for Pleasanton Tuesday and promised to telegraph us as soon as he had decided which of the two places he would select for McKinney this year.

Two of the best draft horses in the country will stand for public service at Haywards this year. One is the English shire Pride of the Prairie and the other the Percheron horse Fresno. The former was a first prize winner last year, both at the State Fair and at the Golden Gate Fair. The Percheron is one of the best individuals ever seen in California, and weighs a ton. Both these stallions will be in charge of Geo. Grey, the well known horseman and superintendent of the Meek Estate Farm.

Hon. Jesse D. Carr has placed his promising young stallion Boodle Jr. in the stud at Salinas race track and has placed his service fee at the low price of $25. James Dwain has charge of the horse. Boodle Jr. has 9 representatives in the Pacific Breeders Futurity. He is by Boodle 2:12½ dam Nina B. by Electioneer, second dam Gablian Maid, full sister to the great brood mare Lady Ellen 2:29½ by Carr's Mambrino, that is the dam of four, including Helena 2:11½, the dam of Wild Nutting 2:11½. Boodle Jr. should be a successful sire.

Clipper 2:06, has been sent to James Thompson at Pleasanton by his owner Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick and we are glad to know that this fast son of Diablo has entirely recovered from the severe attack of pinkeye from which he recently suffered. He never had a more voracious appetite or looked better than he does now and he looks to be a stronger horse than ever before. He will be jogged until the rainy season is over and trainer Thompson confidently expects Clipper will again knock a few fractions from his record in 1901.

George W. Hughes who formerly resided in California where he developed and drove several good trotters and pacers, among them Lenmar 2:16½, is now located at Marshfield, Oregon, where he will probably again take to the sulky and train a few horses. Hughes is a good careful man and has the knack of teaching speed to trotters and pacers. There are some well bred horses owned in that locality and it need not surprise any of his California friends if George comes down here next year with a web footed horse or two and wins a few purses.

Seymour Wilkes 2:08½ is still the fastest of the sons of Guy Wilkes that have race records. Fred Kohl made a record of 2:07½ at Columbus, Ohio, in 1899, but it was in a match against time. Seymour Wilkes was foaled in 1890 and is by Guy Wilkes, out of Early Bird by Playmail by Mike 3403, a son of Vermont 322; second dam Lucy by Odd Fellow; third dam by a son of Williamson's Belmont. Seymour Wilkes will make the season of 1901 at Lakeville, Cal., at $25. None of his colts have been trained but he has some grand looking sons and daughters.

C. P. Ferrell of Reno, Nevada, writes: "I see by the BREEDER of January 19th that you desire parties that will race in California this year to send name of horse and breeding. While I am not in California I am only across the line and will race there. My pacing mare Pogygy, record 2:17 holds track record at Reno 2:17, Carson City 2:18 and Sierraville, Cal., 2:18, starting 7 times, winning all in straight heats with ease. Sire, Brown Jug. Dam was sired by Quien Sabe by Whipples' Hambletonian; second dam Lady Churchill. Pedigree unknown; a very fast mare from the East."

It is usual among breeders to talk of some certain stallion as being successful as a sire of speed in the male line, and of some other as being a producer of fast ones through the female channel, but it remained for last year's record to demonstrate that one horse can be successful as both. With an addition of three new 2:30 performers in 1900, Nutwood 2:18½ has now a total of 163 in that select list, and with seventeen in 1900 that were produced by his daughters, there are now 158 standard performers that are out of Nutwood dams, and in both cases they are the largest number by any horse living or dead.

H. Raymond, a wealthy stock breeder of Butte, Montana, accompanied by Budd Doblo, the well known reinsman, were the guests of Col. J. M. Morehead at the Green Meadow stock farm, Santa Clara, one day last week. They looked over the young stock on the farm by Hambletonian Wilkes and were greatly pleased with what they saw.

Meridian 2:12½, who was a good race horse, will be campaigned again this year in all probability. A short season in the stud will be made with the son of Simmocolon and then he will be placed in training. Robert Brown, who owns Meridian, says he never looked as well in his life as he does now and he believes he can pace faster than ever with proper training.

"Uncle" Cahill, the dairyman owner of Charley Herr, will prepare his great trotting stallion to win from the start this season, says a Kentucky correspondent. In previous seasons Charley Herr has started on the circuit with not work enough to put him in first class fettle, and has been raced into condition. Charley Herr is now turned out at Westbrook Stud, but his owner will take him up within the next week and begin slow work on him. The exceptionally mild weather, if it continues, will give Cahill ample opportunity to give his charge some useful preparation work. Mr. Cahill says his horse has the speed, and that he expects to have him ready when the bells rings or his first race.

Ho Yow, the Chinese Consul-General at San Francisco, a man who speaks the English language fluently, contemplates going into the breeding of trotters on a small scale. His breeding farm will be near San Jose and already there have been negotiations begun by the Consul for the purchase of James W. Rea's fine stallion, Iran Alto 2:12½ by Palo Alto 2:08½, as a sire to head the stud. Ho Yow is a devoted horseman and if he secures a string of horses this year that he thinks fast enough may race them. In an interview this week Ho Yow said: "My idea is one of pleasure rather than profit. No Chinaman has ever done such a thing before. I shall train Chinese into the work, and make it altogether novel. I want to establish my own line, like that of other big farms. The pleasure and novelty, and not the profit, is what I consider."

The man for whom the veteran traider John E. Turner bought the filly Eriange 2:21 by Prodigal, at the recent New York sale, is Frank Ellis of Philadelphia, a man whose name was a familiar one on the turf a score of years ago. Twenty-five years ago Mr. Ellis owned Nettie 2:18, the fastest daughter of Rysdyk's Hambletonian, and Turner campaigned her successfully for him. Eriange is a two year old and she cost her owner the tidy sum of $5400. She was sired by Prodigal 2:16, out of Etta Baron by Baron Wilkes 2:18. She is eligible to next year's Kentucky Futurity, worth $10,000; the Louisville Prize, worth $10,000; the Dubuque Preparation, worth $5000, and the Kentucky Stock Farm Stake, worth $5000. As she has shown a mile in 2:16, last half in 1:06, last quarter in 31½ seconds, she should be able to win back her cost and something besides. She will be trained under the watchful eye of General Turner, and will be driven in her races by his son Frank.

Ed Lafferty went up to Geo. Fox's farm at Clements last week and brought down a three year old colt by Silver Bow 2:16 out of Grace by Buccaneer (dam of Daedalion 2:11, Creole 2:15 and Eagle 2:19½) that he will train at the Alameda track. Ed says that Mr. Fox had Silver Bow returned to him from Rancho del Paso where he was bred last year to a lot of their best mares, and the son of Robert McGregor never looked better in his life than he does right now. He will make the season of 1901 at Mr. Fox's farm and ought to be largely patronized as his get are grand looking horses and all have speed. There is not a horse standing for public service in California that has the blood of old Hambletonian 10 as close up in his dam's pedigree as Silver Bow, she being a daughter of that horse. His sire, Robert McGregor, whose appellation "hero of the homestretch," has descended by every right of inheritance to his great son, Cresceus 2:04, the champion trotting stallion of the world, had no Wilkes or Electioneer blood in his veins, neither has Silver Bow, and the latter's third dam was Eleanor Margrave one of the best thoroughbred mares of those recorded in the American Stud Book. As a stout outcross for the Wilkes mares, of which there are so many in California, Silver Bow ought to be invaluable. Mr. Fox has quite a number of colts and fillies by his horse, and Lafferty says they are a grand looking lot.

Mr. Edwin Gaylord, of Denver, Colorado, arrived in California this week and has been interviewing horsemen in relation to the big meeting to be given at Denver, which will open June 15th. Mr. Gaylord tells us that this will undoubtedly be the greatest meeting ever held in the Colorado city, as he already has assurances that a very large number of horses will be entered in both running and harness events. Since arriving in California Mr. Gaylord has visited Pleasanton, San Jose and other places, and is now in Southern California. He will return here the latter part of next week. The Denver meeting is to be given by the Overland Racing Association, a new organization of which Joseph Osnor is President, W. H. Schuckman, Secretary, and Mr. Gaylord the Vice-President and Treasurer. The association proposes giving two harness events and four running races each day, beginning June 15th and ending June 29th, and will hang up $40,000 in purses and specials. Among the early closing purses for harness horses will be one of $1000 for 2:20 class pacers and other of the same value for trotters eligible to the 2:25 class. There will also be two purses of $500 each for two year olds and two for three year olds—one for trotters, the other for pacers. To make a nomination in these races $10 must be sent at the date of closing, March 1st, and other payments later on—the entrance to be the usual five per cent. There are two good tracks at the Overland Park, the outside track being a full mile and will be used by the harness horses exclusively. The inner track for the runners is seven furlongs in length.

The Hackney Horse—His Past and Future.

[Vero Shaw in London Live Stock Journal]

As the century is drawing to a close, perhaps it may not be without interest to some of your readers if I attempt to chronicle the doings of the Hackney horse during the last eventful hundred years of the world's existence. That the breed was well established long before the commencement of the nineteenth century is, of course, a fact which is within the knowledge of anyone who has taken the trouble to make inquiries on the point; but I may premise my observations by making a statement for the benefit of the uninitiated, and this is that Hackney pedigrees can be traced back to the year 1755. Shales, affectionately known as "the original," was foaled about that year, his sire being Blaze by Flying Childers, and his dam a nameless Hackney mare. It would occupy very much more of my allotted space than I can afford to devote to it for me to attempt to enlarge upon the position of the Hackney before the above date, but there are evidences by the score of the existence and popularity of the breed, which was, in the opinion of some persons, founded on a cross of pack horse upon selected English trotting mares, the pack horse being a result of the Eastern and native mare cross. Others contend—and, possibly, correctly—that the original Hackney was bred the same way as the pack horse, and this view of the case is supported by reason of the fact that the Hackney of the past was essentially a riding horse, as the pack horse remained until he was permitted to

of a complimentary nature. Of the stallions foaled before the year 1800 whose colors were stated in the Stud Book, three were chestnuts, three bays, two browns, and two blacks, but the colors of some of the best ones, such as Shales, the original Scot Shales and Driver, two of his most famous sons, are not recorded. There are, however, proofs which show how the chestnut color has increased in this country which are supplied by the Hackney Horse Society's Stud Book, which shows that out of the 880 stallions whose names appear in the first volume, 184 are described as chestnuts or chestnut-roses; whilst in the volume for last year 161 animals out of the 333 entered, inclusive of ponies (which are seldom chestnut), were of one of these shades. In the old days, too, there was a far larger average of greys to be met with, and blacks were also comparatively common, but both these colors are now extremely rare. The question of color may, however, be deferred, though an allusion to it is unavoidable, when reference is made to the early Hackney.

The doings and descriptions of such pillars of the Hackney Stud Book as Shales the original, Fireaway (Jenkinson's) a chestnut, by the way—Scot Shales, an immensely good horse, got by Shales, and other sires whose names are household words amongst Hackney men, must also be passed over for want of space; but a pause must be made when the grey Mambrino by Engineer by Sampson appears upon the scene. This horse was foaled in 1768, and traces back through Sampson to Shales the original. Sampson, be it noted, but one horse that could approximate him in speed * * * I never saw him leave his feet." Some excellent services were rendered by Bellfounder to the American Trotter, amongst these being the success which attended the crossing his daughter, known as the Kent mare, whose dam was a grand-daughter of Messenger, with Abdallah, an American-bred son of Mambrino by Messenger, as the colt which was the result proved to be the sire of some of the best animals in the Stud Book.

Meanwhile, whilst the Hackney was improving the American Trotter, and thereby assisting in laying the foundation of the speediest harness horse upon earth, his breeders at home were using him as a means of conveyance for themselves, and oftentimes their wives as well, to market and for general purposes, the substance, speed and endurance of the Hackney enabling him to undertake serious work which no other horse was capable of performing. Then came the railway period, and with it the demand for Hackneys became reduced, as, naturally enough, if men could get about by rail they preferred this means of locomotion to riding a more or less rough-actioned animal—and all ultra-high movers must of a necessity be rough for saddle purposes. Consequently the Hackney was indulged with an experience of human ingratitude, as many friends whom he and his ancestors had served long and faithfully deserted him, though a few staunch believers in the breed stood true. Some infatuated individuals began experimenting with thoroughbred blood as an advisable cross for Hackneys, and promptly lost action and substance thereby; but meanwhile, those who held on to the old strains were, perhaps unconsciously, laying up wealth for themselves, as the day of the Hackney was very far from being closed.

It was in 1878 that it was suggested at a meeting held at Downham Market that a register for the English trotting horses should be established, and thanks to the untiring and unflagging energy of Mr. H. F. Euren, to whom the work of compilation was entrusted, and to the encouragement received from H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, Sir Walter Gilbey, the late Mr. Anthony Hamond, and many other gentlemen too numerous to mention, the Hackney Horse Society was established on a firm and lasting basis.

Since then the progress of the Hackney has been triumphant; he has vindicated his claim to be regarded as the monarch of harness horses by the support he has received from breeders of every nation that breeds animals for leather; and he still maintains his absolute pre-eminence as a distinct variety by defeating, through the instrumentality of Sir Walter Gilbey's Hedon Squire, the picked horses of every Continental breed at the great International Show recently held in Paris. In his proper place—harness—there is no horse like him; he possesses action, pace, size and looks to an extent which is combined in no other breed of horse. His detractors attempted to belittle him by imputing to him a want of stamina, but, singularly enough, a long-distance road record of America, that country of trotting horses, is held by County Member Junior, a Hackney which won prizes in the show ring here previous to his expatriation. In the past the Hackney, in addition to his good work in this country, assisted materially in the production of the American trotter; at the present time he is siring the most valuable harness horses of the day, and beats the horses of all other nations at a foreign international show under foreign judges; and for the future he must, if judiciously used, accomplish more for that most saleable of all utility animals—the high-class harness horse—than any other sire.

Proposed Driving Club at San Mateo.

Several of our local people, says the San Mateo Leader, are considering the advisability of organizing an amateur driving club for the purpose of holding a meeting occasionally at some convenient point where the merits of local horses could be demonstrated. It is proposed to hold the initial meet in the near future possibly at the Corbett track, when a program of trotting races will be pulled off. It will be strictly local, the only incentive being clean, gentlemanly sport. Among those who have thus far been spoken of as possible members, being the owners of steppers of more than ordinary speed, are the following: J. T. Jennings, E. A. Husing, Peter Casoy, Ed Foster, John Wisnom, James Wisnom, W. W. Casey, W. O. Booth, John Mitvalsky, P. F. Maloney and others. A stipulation which will be strictly observed will be that each owner shall train and drive his own horse.

Some years ago a meet was held at the Corbett track such as is proposed by the new organization, and the great success of the event is referred to even to-day.

Tempo, a good looking chestnut stallion by imp. Whistle Jacket, dam On the Lea by Onondago, is advertised for sale in our business columns to-day. Tempo won races as a two and three and five year old. He is now six.

virtually die out, there being only a single specimen of this ancient breed that is known to be alive at the present day. The introduction of thoroughbred blood, vide the breeding of Shales referred to above, was no doubt resorted to in order to add to the style and riding qualities of the old time Hackney; but breeders of this latter horse, and, in fact, all those who have studied the question—save, of course, a few irreconcilables who will not believe anything but that which they desire to believe, and to whom even ancient litera scripta appeal in vain—repudiate the suggestion that the Hackney owes his existence exclusively to the thoroughbred, and it is evident that both breeds sprang from an Eastern cross on native mares. The latter were doubtless the descendants of the old English war horse, which is so fully described by Sir Walter Gilbey in his monograph upon the subject, and it is only reasonable to infer that the thoroughbreds are descended from dams which displayed an ability to gallop, whilst the Packs and Hackneys sprang from the trotting mares. Consequently, and this is beyond all serious doubt, the thoroughbred and the Hackney were far more closely allied in blood a century ago than in the present day, as the two families began to branch off in different directions after the time of Shales, though, unfortunately for the Hackney, some breeders have been unwise enough to experiment with thoroughbred crosses in more recent times.

A reference may perhaps be interpolated here with reference to the color of the Hackney in the past, as of late years the preponderance of chestnuts has been the subject of much comment, which has not been entirely has been claimed as a thoroughbred by some, but this contention has been emphatically disproved by Lawrence, who states that he was personally acquainted with the man who had Sampson's dam under his charge, and he absolutely repudiated the idea; while Sampson was so coachy in appearance that he was laughed at when he made his first public appearance on the course at Malton. His grandson, Mambrino, the sire of Messenger (exported to America in 1788), was a horse of great substance, and has been described of "rather a military figure," and it is added of him that "he went in remarkably good trotting form." It is, however, as the sire of the expatriated Messenger, a horse whose services to the breeders of America are handsomely acknowledged even to this day, that Mambrino as a corner-stone of the American trotter is to be remembered.

Another Hackney which accomplished much in the United States was Bellfounder (Jay's), a bay, foaled in 1816, by Bellfounder (Stevens') by Pretender (Wroot's) by Fireaway (Jenkinson's) by Driver by Shales the original. Bellfounder's dam was Velocity, a Yorkshire fast-trotting mare, which beat a chestnut horse called Doubtful, the property of Mr. King, of Wymondham in a trotting match for fifty guineas, one hour race, the distance covered within that time being fifteen miles and a half. Of Bellfounder, the following extract from an American description of him may be quoted as a proof that he was calculated to improve the trotting horses of that country: "His knee action was very attractive and high, and when his groom would get upon his back and give him his head, I remember of

THE SADDLE.

Fred Archer, the noted jockey, during his career in England, had 8084 mounts and rode 2748 winners. He began in 1870 by riding two winners in fifteen mounts, while the following year he rode three winners out of forty mounts. He gradually improved, until in 1885 he rode 246 winners out of a total of 667 mounts. In 1886, when he died, he had ridden 170 winners in 512 starts. For twelve years he headed the list of winning jockeys in England, his victories including the St. Leger, six times; Derby, five times; Suburban, five times; Prince of Wales stakes, twice; One Thousand Guineas, Cesarewich and Royal Hunt cups, each twice.

William C. Whitney, ex-Secretary of the Navy, purchased 160 acres of land on the shore of Wawasee lake, near Warsaw, Ind., which will be used as winter quarters for his race horses and also as a breeding farm. Among the improvements that will be made at once will be the construction of a half mile track where Mr. Whitney's yearlings will be trained.

Jockey McJoynt, who is to ride for W. K. Vanderbilt in France, has been ordered to leave New Orleans for France at once, and will soon sail for Europe, where he will school some of the well-bred colts in track tactics preparatory to the racing season in the land of the sparkling wine.

Astor has proved himself more than a useful horse for his owner, Mr. Ellison, this winter. At the opening of the season the impression prevailed that the gelding did not amount to very much although he showed quite a hurst of speed at times. This fact probably accounts for the liberal odds which are always obtainable about him, notwithstanding that he has won quite a number of races.

Maggie Davis ran quite a different race with Coburn in the saddle on Thursday at Emeryville. On her last previous effort, with Buchanan up, her performance was most disappointing and apparently unexcusable. Buchanan seems to have particularly hard luck with even money favorites and this one made no exception to the rule.

In the last race on Thursday at Emeryville, a selling affair for three year olds and upwards, Mellah was handed round for a good thing and backed quickly from sixes to threes. After breaking in front several times she finally was sent away on even terms with the field but was quickly outrun by Sweet Caporal and was forced to be content with second place. Had the coup gone through the ring would have suffered heavily.

The race run by Articulate on Saturday at Emeryville was so pronouncedly bad as to defy criticism. Any published argument in explanation of the exhibition furnished by this horse must be founded on mere conjecture. No doubt a statement, could one be obtained, from the stable would make interesting reading.

Quite a difference between the two races run by Theory on the 18th and 19th inst. On the first occasion starting in the Our Climate handicap and ridden by O'Connor, she showed absolutely no speed and was beaten off twenty lengths in 1:13½. On the following day with Mounce up she ran six furlongs in 1:13½ and won with perfect ease. Mr. Honig expressed great dissatisfaction with O'Connor's ride and made use of some very harsh language in that connection.

The Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII., heads the list of winning owners in England for 1900. He won $147,925. He has been racing for fifteen years, in which time he has earned $493,040. In 1896 his winnings, thanks to Persimmon, amounted to $134,095. This year Diamond Jubilee, a full brother to Persimmon, is responsible for the King's premier position, and is also an addition to the "triple-crown" heroes. Besides winning the three great classic events, the King also won the Grand National steeplechase, which is the blue ribbon of cross-country events, with an Irish bred horse named Amhush. This makes a record never before accomplished by any owner. When the season opened it looked as though Lord William Beresford's American bred gelding Democrat and T. R. Dewar's Forfarshire were better horses, but Democrat went wholly wrong and Forfarshire did not train on as expected, and in addition met with an accident in the Two Thousand Guineas through the rough riding of Sloan on Disguise II. Diamond Jubilee is among the list of horses that have won £20,000 and more as two and three year olds. His total winnings up to date have been $145,925. Among the twenty-three horses which are in this class as winners, Diamond Jubilee is only beaten as a three year old by Flying Fox £37,415 and Donovan £38,438. The best judges in England think that Diamond Jubilee will be a heavy winner as a four year old, but it is unlikely that he will crowd the opulent Isinglass or the mighty Donovan from their positions at the top of the winning four year old list, for those horses have been the only ones produced in England which have won more than £50,000 in their racing careers. The late Lord William Beresford and his string of American horses finishes second in earning, while Lord Durham was third. J. A. Drake of Chicago won thirty races, amounting to $52,990. He is fifth in the winning list. James R. Keene is twelfth in the winning list with $38,400 won in five races. Richard Croker is at the bottom of the list, with a total of $15,370.

The sale of the late Lord Beresford's horses was held at Newmarket January 23d. Forty horses were sold and aggregated very close to $100,000, an average of $2500 each. Caiman fetched 2500 guineas, Jolly Tar 2200 guineas and Democrat 910 guineas. Nahlband brought 1500 guineas, Uncle Wack, gelding, 3000 guineas and Loveits 1050 guineas.

American horses are well represented in the big English handicaps, the entries for which closed on January 1st, and the weights will be announced about January 25th. In the Lincolnshire handicap, which is one mile, run on March 26th, among the entries are Caiman, Domino II., Jean Beraud and Sibola. In the Great Metropolitan stakes, two miles and a quarter, run at Epsom on April 23d. are Jolly Tar and King's Courier. In the City and Suburban, one mile and a quarter, also run at the Epsom spring meeting on April 24th, are Caiman, Jean Beraud, Jolly Tar, Kilmarnock, King's Courier and Sibola. In the Chester cup, two miles and a quarter, run over the old Roodee course on May 8th, are Caiman and Jolly Tar. It is, however, in the Kempton park Great Jubilee stakes, one mile and a quarter, run on May 11th, that the Americans are strong, W. C. Whitney having in Cap and Bells, Elkhorn, Jean Beraud, Kilmarnock and Tommy Atkins, the other entries being Caiman, Domino II., Disguise II., King's Courier, Olympian and Sibola.

The officials of the San Francisco Jockey Club are trying to arrange a four cornered race to come off during the present meeting at Tanforan, in which Sam Loates, Tod Sloan, Lester Reiff and the jockey who has ridden the most winners since the meeting opened will ride. The weights are to be assigned with great discrimination, and the intention is to have the jockeys draw for their respective mounts. In this way all will have an equal break. Such a race would prove a great drawing card.

Buchanan, on Tuesday, was set down for a week and fined $100 by Starter Dwyer for disobedience at the post.

Companion dogged it as usual in the race on Tuesday for maiden three year old fillies. This mare is one of the best bred ones in the country, her dam, Derfargilla, having been one of the fastest sprinters ever trained. She has developed a yellow streak somewhere in her makeup and quits badly in every race.

The hookmakers were out of line in the second race on Monday when they layed fifties against "Boots" Durnell's Credo. This horse has been running consistently of late, having won his two previous starts, the last one (over the hurdles) being a very impressive performance.

Lothian made his appearance as a jumper and proved himself to be a remarkably good one. Only the bad judgment (or worse) of his rider prevented him from winning. He gave the favorite, Lomc, a hard tussle and only lost by a nose.

English sporting papers are at present full of eulogistic obituary notices and reminiscences of the late Lord William Beresford. One of the most interesting stories is one concerning the three brothers, Charles, William and Marcus, who, in April, 1874, rode a steeplechase in Ireland, which was won by Lord William. The story reads: The brothers had a sweepstakes of 100 sovereigns each, play or pay, over the Williams-town course, three miles, at the Curraghmore hunt steeplechase meeting. Lord Charles rode Night-walker, a black thoroughbred horse bred by Billy Power, the sporting tenant of the course. Lord William rode Woodlark, a gray mare, and Lord Marcus a bay gelding called The Weasel; they each wore the Beresford blue, Lord Charles with the ancestral black cap; the others had white and blue caps as distinguishing emblems. No race course in Ireland, except Punchestown and Fairy House ever had more people on it than Williamstown on that memorable day. Old men and women who had never seen a race before came fifty miles to see the brothers race. Excitement rose to boiling pitch as the three brothers filed out of the enclosure and did the preliminary. Tom Waters awaited them, ready with ensign in hand to send them on their journey. The only delay was while he delivered a short, but sporting speech to these grand lads, when away they went boot to boot. The pace was a cracker from the start, but none made the running more than the other, for all three were girth to girth most of the journey, and at no time did two lengths divide them until just before the finish. Yes, every post they made a winning post, and ding-dong did they go against each other, though, of course, riding like sportsmen. Fence after fence was charged, and cleared by them locked together, and it was not before Nightwalker was beaten just before the last fence that they separated. A determined struggle between Woodlark and The Weasel then ensued, and after a desperate finish old Judge Harter gave the verdict to the former by a short head.

There is little chance for a racing bill passing in Illinois this year. This word has gone out at Springfield, and while the Governor will not formally sanction it, the statement comes so strong that unless other influences are brought to bear the bill will surely be vetoed if it ever comes up. Governor Yates declines to make any positive statement as to his intentions regarding such a bill until he has thoroughly investigated the subject. From other sources, however, it is learned that he in no way sees at first thoughts any reason for sanctioning what is termed the gambling game on the big tracks in Illinois.

Sam Hildreth proposes to confine the majority of his racing operations to Chicago during the coming summer season, and has written to Secretary Harry Kuhl to reserve him twenty-four stalls at Hawthorne.

When Sam Loates, the English jockey now in California, was asked what horse would win the Derby of 1901, he answered: "Well, I like Revenue the best. I beat him last season on Toddington, but since that colt has been amiss I do not know how it would be now. Revenue is an Irish brood horse, owned by J. J. Gubbins, who won the Derby with Galtee-More. He is by Blaiseind, a full brother to Galtee-More, and his dam, Income, is by that great horse, Isonomy, the sire of Common and Isinglass, both Derby winners. P. Lorillard has also a good colt in Exedo, by Sensation-Equity, a full brother to Democrat. But there are several other good colts in the race, and it is rather early to pick a winner.

The opening race of the current meeting at Tanforan, as originally carded, promised to be one of the prettiest and most closely contested affairs of the present racing season. At least six of the starters looking to have a royal chance. The heavy downfall of rain was, however, the cause of extensive withdrawals and all interest in the race was lost for this reason.

The Lissak handicap for three year olds and upward and guaranteed worth $1500 was won by C. Ellison's Specific in a fierce drive. Dominick out-finishing Bullman, who had the mount on Vulcan. The Lady was a length away. The Lady was pounds and pounds the best and with a half intelligent ride would have won by herself. This mare is one of the very best animals in training here and it seems a pity that her chances should be ruined by having Marty Bergen continually in the saddle. Much criticism of Mr. Ezell has been heard as to why Bergen was always employed, but the true reason is probably the fact that Bergen is interested more or less heavily in the ownership of the mare and has some voice as to how she shall be run and as to who shall ride.

The publication of the entries for all the big Eastern spring handicaps except the Metropolitan has provided food for reflection for horsemen. It is conceded that the quality of the horses engaged is better than ever before and a season of first class racing on Eastern tracks is therefore generally predicted. So far as the actual races are concerned, the number of entries does not cut much figure, and with a number of seasoned performers of known ability entered the fields will probably be as large or larger than in previous years, when many horses of indifferent caliber were entered on the off chance of their training or in the spring. Still, the falling off in the number of entries has been the subject of much discussion, and many reasons have been advanced to account for it. One is the partiality of certain owners for weight-for-age races, where previous wins entail no penalty and the prospect of the increase of races of that character next season. An instance of this is the omission of W. C. Whitney's Ballyhoo Bey and J. R. Keene's Commando from the handicaps, coupled with the fact that these crack three year olds are both entered for the Brighton Cup, a weight-for-age event. Another noticeable feature is the falling off in the number of Western entries. This is ascribed to the extra inducements held out by the Chicago clubs for owners to keep their horses in that section rather than incur the expense and risk of a long railroad journey to compete with the Eastern cracks.

Major Barak G. Thomas, Kentucky's oldest breeder of thoroughbreds and one of her most picturesque characters, is dangerously ill at his home in Lexington. He is the only horseman now living who saw the famous Wagner-Grey Eagle race at Louisville in 1839, and he has witnessed nearly every important turf event in America since then. He was for years owner of the famous Dixiana farm, which was named for the first race mare he ever owned, and has bred scores of noted performers. Among these are Domino, Correction, Ban Fox, King Fox, Himyar, Banhurg, etc. He sold King Thomas to the late Senator Hearst of California for $38,000, the highest price ever paid in this country for a yearling. Major Thomas always made it a rule to breed a limited number of colts each season, and to have them of the highest quality. As a consequence, his success was remarkable, and he would have been a very rich man to-day had he been able to refuse a helping hand to nearly every one who appealed to him. His rare old Bourbon whisky is nearly as well known as his horses. He stocked his cellars with barrels of the best in the market more than thirty years ago and that which remains is said to be the choicest and most valuable in America. He presented a bottle of it to Miss Harriet Richardson of Lexington about five years ago, and asked that she sip it as she would so much nectar. She promised. When, in 1896, she was selected by Secretary Herbert to christen the battle-ship Kentucky, she announced that the prized bottle of whisky was to be broken over the vessel's bow. Major Thomas was furious. He wrote Miss Richardson that his whisky was far too good to be wasted on any craft that ever rode the waters. Miss Bradley, daughter of Kentucky's governor, was substituted for Miss Richardson, and the whisky was not wasted.

SPOKANE, Wash.	Oct. 14-19

SOME ORGANIZED EFFORT should be made by the breeders and owners of harness horses in California this year to abolish bookmaking on harness races. This style of betting has worked a greater injury to harness racing than any other one thing, and it is the duty of those who have their money invested in the horse breeding business to do something to stop it. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN has done what it could in the past to abolish the evil, and is disposed to continue the fight, but the breeders and owners should assist and do all in their power to induce associations to bar bookmaking from harness meetings. The better class of breeders and owners are all greatly opposed to bookmaking and would like to see a return to either auctions or mutuels, with heat betting entirely abolished, and if they were to make a concerted movement towards this end it could be accomplished. The fact that bookmakers can afford to pay a large sum for the betting privilege is a great temptation to directors of district associations, who see just so much sure money in sight toward paying expenses, but there should be some effort made by all interested in the breeding and racing of harness horses to make the meetings entirely independent of these gentry. In the writer's opinion pari mutuel boxes, with tickets sold only on the result of the race would be popular with the people and profitable to the association. They should be owned and managed entirely by the association or club giving the meeting, and even though the receipts were small from them the racing would be benefitted. If a real earnest and intelligent endeavor were made to draw the public to see the contests of speed, gate receipts would be large enough to offset the loss of revenue by reason of abolishing the books. The running races from one end of the country to the other are now managed as a business instead of a high class sport, and it should be the aim of trotting horse breeders and owners to keep harness racing as free from the running methods as possible. Mutuel racing is doing a great deal in its way and is getting the best people in the country interested in fast harness horses. If the associations that give professional meetings and breeders and owners will lend their aid and aim to make the sport as clean and high class as possible, much can be accomplished for the benefit of all concerned. The first step to be taken should be the annihilation of bookmaking.

THE WINTER HANDICAP, which has a gross valuation of $6000, and is the richest stake thus far of the season, will be decided at Tanforan to-day. There is a probability that there will be fifteen starters, and all of the best jockeys now at the track will have mounts. Efforts are being made to have Tod Sloan, Lester Reiff and the English jockey Loates accept mounts. A handsome pair of gold spurs is to be presented to the winning jockey. If the weather is good, which now looks certain, a large crowd will witness the race. The probable starters are as follows: Vesuvian 122, Advance Guard 121, Eddie Jones 118, Zoroaster 118, Andrisa 115, The Lady 111, Vuleain 112, Vincitor 109, John Baker 105, The Monk 104, Montanie 106, Greenock 101, Scotch Plaid 103, Rolling Boar 102, Autumn 108.

ALTHOUGH Edward Corrigan is a long way from California, there are evidences of another race track war being declared. The two clubs have issued the edict that employees cannot hold positions at both tracks and several resignations have resulted. Badges have been taken by one club from the employees of the other, and incensed officials have thereupon returned their passports also. While there has been no actual outbreak, there is a state of armed neutrality existing that threatens to develop into war at any time. The San Mateo Supervisors, influenced, it is alleged by parties in touch with the rival club, has passed an ordinance limiting racing in San Mateo county to thirty-five days in each year, which, if enforced, will compel the San Francisco Jockey Club to close its meeting ten days before the advertised date. There are whisperings that as a result of the trouble Ingleside will be opened and racing conducted there even though no betting is permitted. There is another tale on the rounds that the Oakland track will not shut down at the close of its next two weeks' meeting but continue right along through the summer. The evening Bulletin, which seems to favor the Tanforan people, contains columns every night of war gossip, presumably from a special corps of war correspondents located at the front. By some mysterious but evident agreement, none of the other four dailies, including the big guns of the morning, dignify the alleged rupture with a line, and their readers cannot understand why such a condition of affairs as exists is thus allowed by the city editors to escape the lurid featuring that other track matters of less importance invariably receive. Meanwhile the patrons of the tracks are talking much and sensational happenings are expected at any time. There is one feature of this business that the powers that be in both clubs should realize. There are about three hundred thousand votes in this State and of that number at least two hundred and eighty thousand have no interest whatever in racing as conducted in this city and probably two hundred thousand look upon six months of it as an evil. They are not interested enough to care whether it runs or stops, but let an acrimonious war break out between the rival clubs and proceed with all the disgusting notoriety that always attend such rows, and the voting public will be aroused to action, and with the cry "a plague on both your houses" will insist on legislation that will prohibit racing entirely. There is nothing truer than "history repeats itself," and California voters as a mass differ very slightly from those in New Jersey. It is a failing of politicians and bosses to imagine that any temporary power they possess over legislative bodies is eternal and impregnable, but there has never been a time yet when the people became thoroughly aroused over a matter that they did not assert their sway and make short shrifts of anything that was obnoxious to them. From one end of this city to another a majority of the wholesale and retail merchants and business men, professional men and heads of families are beginning to express opposition to continuous racing. They are not in open opposition and will probably not be so long as the race track people "pursue the even tenor of their way," but if the Boards of Supervisors and the Legislature are appealed to by racing people to legislate on racing matters, it is a moral certainty that the people will become excited and aroused and demand that legislation be in their behalf and not in that of the racing class. When that time comes the tracks might just as well close their gates or the public will see that it is done. Old Ben Franklin said that "a mob is a very large animal with many heads but no brains," and in all probability the mass of the people, if excited would demand a racing law, as they did in New Jersey, that is entirely unreasonable. But that is a condition that would confront the magnates and the finest spun theory of inalienable rights will not prevail against it.

WE PUBLISH this week an interesting article on the Hackney horse from the pen of Mr. Vero Shaw who is recognized English authority on this breed of horses. The article appeared originally in the London Live Stock Journal. Accompanying it is a half tone engraving of the stallion Hedon Squire that captured the championship prize at the recent Paris Exposition for the best light horse of any breed, thoroughbreds excepted. This stallion is by Rufus 1343, sire of Mr. John Parrott's well known Hackney Green's Rufus, and bred like him on the dam's side as Hedon Squire's dam is by Fireaway, while the second dam of Mr. Parrott's horse is also by Fireaway.

The Directors of Agricultural District No. 40, Yolo county, are alive and energetic. After giving the best county fair held in the State last year they desire to do even better in 1901. At a meeting of the board this week a committee was appointed to go to Sacramento and ask the Legislature to increase the appropriation made to the district. On the showing made last year Yolo is certainly entitled to an increase.

Dangers of Firing Iron.

"Veritas" in Trotter and Pacer.

The chemists and self styled professors who compound counter irritants will tell you that blisters can be made to do the work of firing on bad legs and joints, but blistering has no effect what ever in producing pressure upon the parts beneath, while every practical horse man knows that Stonehenge is right, when he states that "The purpose for which the heated iron is employed is twofold; first to produce immediate counter-irritation, by which the previous inflammation is reduced; and secondly, to cause the formation of a tight compress over the part, which lasts for months. The blemish which it leaves, and the pain which it occasions both during and after the application of the irons, should cause it to be avoided when an equally useful substitute can be employed, but, unfortunately, there are many other cases where it stands without a rival, as being at once the safest and most efficient remedy which can be adopted." From firing ringbone and cauterizing cases of deep seated thrush we acquire some practical knowledge in using the irons; but, in bad cases of strained tendons where the mischief is great, a master hand must hold the firing iron to draw the lines evenly over the skin, making just the proper pressure which is required to burn to the requisite depth. Then the lines will heal without any sloughs, which result from irregular or excessive pressure.

The great three year old running horse Lieut. Gibson, who won the Kentucky Derby last spring, in 2:06½, the race being one mile and a quarter, died recently at Washington Park, Chicago, from the effects of being fired last summer, the operation having been done badly and the subsequent unscientific treatment was even worse. He was fired in both forelegs to help his bowed tendons which gave way shortly after his race in the American Derby at Washington Park. The quack who performed the operation followed it with liberal applications of vaseline to the seared legs, and this had the effect of keeping the resultant fever confined, and later it extended to the entire system of the colt. His forward legs became practically useless, and when he would try to rise on them they would give way and the handsome thoroughbred, by this time a physical wreck, would pitch forward helplessly. This continued for months, until at last outraged nature could no longer stand the strains, and Lieutenant Gibson died, fighting to the last for his life. His owner, Charles H. Smith of Chicago, refused an offer of $20,000 for him just before he began racing last spring. About the same time that Lieut. Gibson broke down, His Excellency, a colt that Mr. Smith bought for $8000, also went wrong, and was subjected to the same treatment. At the time the weather was insufferably hot in Chicago, and His Excellency, after enduring agony for a week or more from the action of the firing iron, died in his stall. Beware of the firing iron in ignorant and barbarous hands.

"I won't attempt to say whether it is sentiment or fashion, but from some cause or other there is more inquiry for long-tailed carriage horses than there was a year or two ago," remarked a prominent New York dealer. "Some of the highest priced horses we have sold this winter have been long-tailed steppers, and some of the best ones now in our coach horse department have never been docked. For a rockaway, or station wagon, or a runabout, or any other light trap I think the long tail is certainly to be preferred. It is more in keeping with the stylo of carriage like the rockaway, for one thing, and for another thing, it affords better protection to the driver in a runabout from flying gravel and dirt. I wouldn't recommend a long-tailed horse for a spider phaeton or a spicy gig, or any other sporting vehicle of that sort, but I like to see a long-tailed horse in a landau, or broughman, or a berlin coach or any heavy carriage.

It is said that when William K. Vauderbilt, Jr., starts to cross the Thirty-fourth street ferry on his automobile, the news is telephoned to Long Island, and the farmers have a scramble to get in the way of the flying machine and have their horses killed; $65 to $100 is the price paid by the young millionaire for the animals he slaughters, while their value, only for glue, is $5 or $6. It has been carefully estimated that his trips on the Island road costs him an average of nearly $60 a mile.

It had been the intention of Mr. H. K. Devereux to enter John A. McKerron in the Charter Oak and Transylvania Stakes this year, but the 2:10 record bars him in those events, and he will be used for matinee purposes only.

It is now said that Prince Alert 2:02 will not be sold at auction, but will be campaigned again next year by his owner, James Hanley of Providence, who predicts that the hobbled gelding will pace in 2:00.

The government agents of Great Britain have been instructed to purchase the cavalry remounts for the use of the troops when they return to England at the Union Stock yards in Chicago.

Game Laws and Game Law Tinkering. Proposed Legislation has not the Support of Sportsmen.

By the introduction of the Laird bill, so called, the preliminary labor, expense and preparation, in the interest of game protection, of a representative body of sportsmen and citizens of this State has been arbitrarily and without authority wasted and nullified. A reflection has been cast upon the intelligence and integrity of purpose of the gentlemen who were selected to suggest proposed necessary changes in the law by reason of their thorough acquaintance with the subject and abilities to present proper and equitable changes in the present fish and game law.

The bill introduced has not the sanction nor endorsement of the recent game convention, nor do we believe it has that of the California Game and Fish Protective Association, notwithstanding the prestige given the measure by the presence in Sacramento and zealous missionary work of the distinguished President of the association. This individual, it is claimed, is responsible for the introduction of legislation radically different from that agreed upon and for which he was one of a committee instructed and intrusted with authority to bring same before the Legislature. Why the changes have been made and why the respective committees from two organizations did not carry out instructions is not known to the large majority of those interested. This change and divergence from agreed plans has aroused the indignation and disgust of many sportsmen as well as those who were sidetracked in their efforts for a change in the game law. In consequence of this assumption of individual authority, two of the vice-presidents of the association, both gentlemen and prominent sportsmen, have resigned from the organization.

One feature of the Laird bill was thoroughly discussed during the convention last May. H. T. Payne was the principal advocate for the prohibition of the sale of game. Hon. C. M. Belshaw, Judge S. C. St. John, Senator Charles M. Shorthridge and other intelligent and discriminating members present argued the matter thoroughly. This clause is particularly obnoxious to the citizen and taxpayer, if not to the majority of sportsmen of this State. The anti-market faction was snowed under in the convention by a vote of 33 to 8. The protective association would not endorse this feature either, so far as its sentiment is known to date. Having already signally failed twice, how the apostle of game protection expects now, to force through a hostile legislature this measure is a problem beyond ordinary ken.

Other important features in game protection have been ignored: night-shooting, netting and trapping of wild ducks or other feathered game, the use of large bore guns or gun devices of four or more barrels (possibly a chance for litigation on this subject was not acceptable, for the reason that a recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court might be eventually attacked and per chance be overruled). Why the unfettered apostle of game protection has overlooked the foregoing and the several other important matters which will appear by a comparison of the two bills is a question he alone can answer and it will be a difficult task for one who has "spent his whole life in the interest of game protection" and the preservation of a "valuable food supply."

Just prior to the introduction of the Laird bill, pamphlet copies of the original proposed changes were mailed to many persons. The interior press, believing that the copies were sent in good faith, published and generally endorsed portions of the proposed bill. This looks like a pottifogging piece of chicanery intended to mislead the public.

The introduction of the Game Commission and Game Warden matter—emanating from the trio of game protectionists—is awaited with considerable curiosity. That the original committee of three may be emulating those famous philanthropists, "Quirk, Gammon and Snap," and are laying low on this subject is suspected. The joker (in italics), which is shown in subdivision O of the Laird bill, suggests one of the tentacles of the ink-fish.

The following brief history of the subject may be interesting:

Last May the Board of Fish Commissioners issued a call to representative sportsmen and also to representative citizens who were not sportsmen inviting their attendance at a convention to be held in this city, the object being to obtain their views as to necessary and proper legislation for the protection of game and fish. The individuals responsible for this movement, a committee composed of H. T. Payne, C. W. Hibbard and Dr. A. M. Barker (in the interest of game protection?) had previously requested Governor Gage to issue a call for a game convention, its membership to be composed of twenty delegates at large and two delegates, appointed by the supervisors, from each county in the State. The Governor declined to act as desired, but with a courteous recognition of the purposes for which the Fish Commission had been created, suggested that the matter be placed with the Commissioners, who were more conversant with the situation. After some demur the Governor's advice was followed and the Board of Fish Commissioners were formally requested to take charge of what has subsequently developed into an ex parte game protection scheme, which is neither of practical benefit to the taxpayer, the sportsman nor the citizen.

In pursuance to the call of the Commissioners the convention met in this city on May 24th, 25th and 26th and was attended by a representative membership of gentlemen from the length and breadth of this State, many of whom came hundreds of miles, paying their own expenses, to attend the meeting.

The officers of the convention were Hon. J. W. Hughes of Sacramento, President; A. D. Jordan, of San Diego, Vice-President and Andrew Ferguson of Fresno, Secretary.

The convention labored intelligently and earnestly for three days and two nights, carefully and thoroughly going every proposed measure submitted.

A committee of fifteen composed of: Hon. J. T. Sherwood of Marysville, Chairman; M. C. Allen of San Francisco, Dr. A. M. Barker of San Jose, Dr. W. E. Cook of Eureka, Prof. L. Loomis, Academy of Sciences, Col. G. C. Edwards of Berkeley, W. C. Kennedy of Fresno, F. G. Sanborn of Santa Clara, E. C. Tallant of Santa Barbara, E. E. Maxwell of Sacramento, Dr. I. W. Hayes of Grass Valley, W. H. Lyons of Sutter, Dr. W. Wood of Sacramento, H. T. Payne of San Francisco and John H. Schumacher of Los Angeles, prepared, after much further deliberation and careful study of the subject under discussion by the convention, the proposed bill, of which the following, amending Section 626 of the Penal Code, is a synopsis:

- 1—Wild game and fish the property of the people in their sovereign capacity.
- 2—Open season for quail, November 1 to February 1.
- 3—Open season for black brant, ducks, rail, English snipe, ibis, curlew or plover—Three consecutive months between October 1 and March 1 which may be designated by Boards of Supervisors. Should no designation be made in a county, the open season in that county to be from November 1 to February 1.
- 4—Doves and wild pigeons—Any five consecutive months which a Board of Supervisors may designate between June 1 and January 1. If no designation is made, the open season to be from August 1 to January 1.
- 5—Grouse, partridge or sage hens—September 1 to November 1, sale prohibited.
- 6—Protection to be given to all song and insectivorous birds, their nests and eggs, except English sparrows, all geese except black brant, swan, sandhill crane, blue jay, meadow lark, linnet, eagle, hawk, crow, raven and blackbird.
- 7—Mongolian pheasant, Eastern or bob white quail, Asiatic or Chinese quail—Season to be closed indefinitely.
- 8—Individual limit on bags—Ducks, quail, snipe, curlew or ibis, twenty-five birds a day; rail, twenty; doves, forty; black or sea brant, eight birds a day.
- 9—Doe, fawn, antelope, elk and mountain sheep protected indefinitely.
- 10—Deer—Bucks, open season, during any two consecutive months between July 1 and December 1. If Supervisors failed to designate, the season to be July 15 to September 15.
- 11—Gray and tree squirrels, open season, September 1 to November 1.
- 12—Traffic in deer hides prohibited.
- 13—Three deer the individual limit during the open season.
- 14—Prohibiting the running of deer in close season by hounds or other dogs at large.
- 15—Prohibiting sale and cold storage of game in close season.
- 16—Prohibiting the use of horse, bull, mule, steer, etc., or animal blind device in hunting wild game.
- 17—Night shooting of wild game prohibited.
- 18—Clause in favor of possession of game at any time, under certain conditions, for propagation or scientific purposes.
- 19—Fines for violation of law—$5 minimum, $500 maximum. Imprisonment, twenty to one hundred and fifty days. Or both fine and imprisonment.
- 20—One-half of fines imposed to go into State fund for game protection, the other half it was proposed to pay over to the informer.
- 21—Disbursal of moneys received for fines, payment of wardens, etc., by Fish and Game Commission.

Section 327 of the Penal Code, proposed amendments were as follows:

- 1—Prohibiting the use of larger than 10 bore guns and also certain devices or combinations of gun barrels by which several barrels can be discharged at once at wild game.
- 2—Trespassing by the hunter or angler prohibited, a section defining the method of posting forbidden ground.
- 3—Prohibiting common carriers carrying game out of the State.
- 4—Regulating shipment and receipt of limit number of game birds by common carriers and sportsmen.

Proposed Section 631 of the Penal Code prohibited the taking, killing or destroying by the use of any net, pound, cage, trap or set line of any kind of feathered wild game.

Under another section of the proposed law all peace officers of the State were to be made ex officio game wardens, penalties being prescribed for non-enforcement of the game law by such officers.

The fish law had but few proposed changes. The open season for trout continues as before—April 1st to November 1st. Sale of trout under one pound weight was forbidden. Steelheads may be caught in tide water only during the close season of trout in fresh water. Appointment of county game wardens by Boards of Supervisors was to be made compulsory.

A resolution was also submitted by the committee of fifteen, suggesting that a Game Committee would be beneficial and that the office of State Game Warden be created by the Legislature and the necessary appropriation made to equip the said office, etc., "and give to the game of the State a protection commensurate with its importance and value as a food supply."

The proposed bill, as accepted by the convention was left with a legislative committee consisting of Hon. J. W. Hughes of Sacramento, Chairman; A. D. Jordan of San Diego, S. C. St. John of Fresno, J. K. Orr of Oakland, H. T. Payne of San Francisco, Dr. W. E. Cook of Eureka and T. J. Sherwood of Marysville, which committee were empowered to shape the various sections of the bill so that when presented to the legislators it would be in legal form.

Upon the closing of the important labors of the game convention the California Game and Fish Protective Association was organized with a membership of some thirty odd of the seventy-four gentlemen in attendance. H. T. Payne was elected President and is responsible for the statement that "the most important feature of the three days session was the organization of the protective association."

This association at its annual meeting held in this city on December 11th by resolution, unanimously endorsed the proposed game bill. A legislative committee was appointed consisting of Hon. J. W. Hughes, Chairman; Hon. C. M. Belshaw, W. W. Van Arsdale, Dr. A. M. Barker, Hon. S. C. St. John, Fish Commissioner H. M. Koller and Geo. B. Roop, which Committee were instructed to urge the passage of the proposed game bill.

The game bill introduced by Senator Laird amends Section 626 of the Penal Code and makes radical changes from the proposed legislation, all of which is embodied into one new section, subdivided, and a violation of each count is made a misdemeanor. A synopsis of the new section submitted is as follows:

- A—Doves, open season, July 1 to February 1.
- B—Mountain quail, grouse or sage hen, open season, September 1 to November 1.
- C—Nests and eggs of wild birds mentioned in this section protected.
- D—English or Mongolian pheasants, bob white, Eastern or Chinese quail, English partridge or any imported game birds protected indefinitely.
- E—Limit on the individual bag per day: quail, partridge, snipe, curlew, ibis, twenty-five birds; doves and wild ducks, fifty; rails, twenty; black or sea brant, eight.
- F—Prohibits taking, destroying or possessing does, fawn, antelope, elk or mountain sheep.
- G—Prohibits hunting, taking, etc., or having in possession any male deer or deer meat between October 1 and August 1 following, whether procured in this State or shipped from without.
- H—Gray or any tree squirrel, open season August 1 to February 1.
- I—Traffic in deer hides prohibited.
- J—Individual limit of three deer during the open season.
- K—Prohibits the running of deer by hounds or other dogs, during close season.
- L—Prohibits purchase or sale of feathered wild game by market men, hotels, restaurants, cold storage company or other persons.
- M—Reservation for scientific purposes or taking alive for propagation.
- N—Penalties for violation, a fine of $50 to $500 or imprisonment from fifty to one hundred and fifty days—or both fine and imprisonment.
- O—Half of all fines collected to go to informer. All moneys from fines paid into the State Treasury shall be set aside and known as a game preservation fund, and other expenses connected with the preservation of game of the State.

Pacific Coast Field Trials.

[Special Report by Albert Betz.]

The eighteenth annual trials of the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club was held at North Island, Coronado Beach, beginning Monday morning, January 14, 1901, and were completed on the afternoon of Thursday, the 17th inst. Four stakes were run: The Derby, having eighteen starters, a larger number than for many years, and but once equalled in the history of the club. The All-Age, with eleven starters; the Members' Stako, with six starters, and the Champion Stake with two starters. The Derby purse was $500; fifty per cent. to the winner, thirty per cent. to second and twenty per cent. to third. The All-Age purse was $250, divided in the same manner as the Derby.

Mr. Thomas Johnson, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, who so satisfactorily filled the position of judge at the Bakersfield trials last year, was again invited by the club to officiate in the saddle at these trials. Mr. Johnson was assisted during the running of the trials by Judge C. N. Post, of Sacramento, and J. H. Schumacher, of Los Angeles. At the meeting of the club held on the 13th inst., attention was called to the fact that many parts of the trial grounds were rather densely covered with a growth of brush; in view of this condition it was deemed advisable to appoint two additional judges; the gentlemen above mentioned were then selected to act in conjunction with Judge Johnson. The decisions of the judges gave general satisfaction, the only comment heard during the trials was a questionable criticism made in regard to the placing of Maggie F., third in the Derby, over Clipper W., of whom much had been expected, in view of his performances at the Northern trials. He failed to come up to expectations, however, and his poor work in his first two heats clearly justified his being unplaced. Maggie F., while not as brilliant a worker as those taking first and second, nevertheless did some good work whenever down. Clipper was practically out of the race after his first two heats and his work in the third was not sufficient to fully redeem himself for his former bad showing. The decision awarding Maggie F. third was generally conceded to be a correct one.

The performance of Lady and Peach Blossom, winners of first and second in the Derby, respectively, in the opinion of Judge Johnson, is not often surpassed, and he believes that they will rank with any two puppies in the country. They go with great speed, range widely, hunt diligently, and have a merry way of going. Their points are snappy and positive; they are staunch and full of style. There was little difference between them, except that Lady had the better of the point work on the first day. All three of the Derby winners were sired by the justly celebrated producing sire, Ch. Count Gladstone IV., Lady and Peach Blossom being litter sisters. The work of this pair was consistent throughout the trials as was proved by their wins in the All-Age stake, although in reversed order.

By reason of the extreme heat and the unfavorable conditions but little bird work was done on the opening day of the trials. Many birds were flushed but seemed to emit no scent, the dogs being unable to locate them. The days following saw better weather conditions and as the trials progressed the work of the dogs greatly improved, and toward the latter end of the trials the performance of the dogs was all that could be desired. The trials were in all respects successful, and were attended by a large number of the club members and visiting sportsmen. Many of the guests of the Hotel del Coronado were also in daily attendance.

The trial grounds, while having a plentiful supply of birds, could be greatly improved in other respects. Heavy clumps of high brush prevent the dogs being seen to the best advantage, and also interfere with their work. Mr. E. S. Babcock, manager of the hotel has agreed, if the Club again desires to hold its trials on North Island, to remove all high brush, and also make available for trial purposes large areas of bare ground which this year could not be utilized. This would practically give double the space of ground gone over this year. Those improvements and the many other conveniences, hotel accommodations, livery facilities, etc., to say nothing of the great advantage offered by reason of the close proximity of the grounds to the hotel, would make this location for the running of field trials superior to any place in the country. Mr. Babcock spared neither time nor expense in making everyone comfortable who attended the trials and won the highest encomiums from both club members and visitors for the enjoyable resources at their command during the week of the trials.

The annual meeting of the Club was held on the evening of Tuesday, January 15th, and the following officers were re-elected: viz: W. S. Tevis, President; J. E. Terry, First Vice-President; W. W. Van Arsdale, Second Vice-President; Albert Betz, Secretary-Treasurer; Executive Committee, C. N. Post, J. M. Kilgariff, C. E. Worden, J. H. Schumacher, H. W. Keller.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one and was the largest in point of attendance that the Club has ever known. It was determined to run the next trials during the second week of January, 1902, the place of holding the trials to be decided upon later by the Executive Committee. The order of running the events will be: Members Stake, the Derby, All-Age and Champion Stakes.

In all probability, if Mr. Babcock places the grounds in condition such as to meet the approval of the Committee, the next trials will again be held at North Island. It is contemplated to have the grounds inspected by a committee sometime during next November.

The following named gentlemen were proposed for and elected to membership: E. S. Babcock, Graham E. Babcock and W. F. Newlands, Coronado, L. T. Moore, Dr. F. J. Baner, Phil H. Tyler and N. D. Nicholls, San Diego.

The following ladies and gentlemen were noted among those in attendance at the trials: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Tevis and children, Lloyd Tevis of Bakersfield; W. W. Van Arsdale and party, Mrs. and Miss Flett, Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Mountford S. Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Terry, Judge Chas. N. Post, E. C. Weinrich of Sacramento, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dunham of Stockton, W. A. Cutler of Oakland, Fish Commissioner H. W. Keller of Santa Monica, F. W. Emery of Buena Park, A. Marquiss of Burbank, Captain Jake Sedam of Denver, W. H. Dupee and Mr. Spaulding of Chicago, Mr. Blair and B. F. Gordon of New York, B. K. Benchley of Fullerton, J. B. Stoddard, the well known trainer now of Pala, San Diego county; R. M. Dodge, manager of Stockdale Kennels, Bakersfield; John E. Lucas, of Mount View Kennels, Marin county; W. B. Coutts, Kenwood, Sonoma county; Fred Coutts, Gordon Coutts; Mr. Babcock of McCloud, Siskiyou county; John Schumacher, Frank Schumacher, John Hauerwaas, Collector J. C. Klein; E. S. Babcock, Graham E. Babcock, Coronado; W. G. Newlands, L. S. Moore, Dr. F. J. Baner, Phil H. Tyler, N. D. Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Naylor, San Diego; Capt. A. C. Jones; Major Hess, U. S. A.; James M. Kilgariff, Armand DeCourtieux, Lester Kilgariff, Albert Betz, P. D. Linville, Frank Maskey, J. W. Flynn, Chas. K. Harley, H. T. Payne, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hibbard of San Francisco; Thomas Johnson, Winnipeg, Man., Mr. Dixon, J. H. Smith, J. F. Holbrook, Tony Bright, Tod Sloan, Andrew Jackson, Mr and Mrs. Walter Patton, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Daly, Jr.

THE DERBY.

The draw for the Derby was held on Sunday evening, January 13th; eighteen entries paid the starting fee, the order of running was as follows:

Tod Sloan's Pointer dog Prince with Clinton E. Worden's Pointer bitch Pearl's Jingle.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Jacqueba with Dr. C. E. Wilson's English Setter dog Clipper W.

W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter dog Count's Mark with George Wilcox's English Setter dog Stamford.

Jos. E. Terry's English Setter bitch Lady with H. S. Peach's Pointer dog Doctor Daniels.

T. J. A. Tiedeman's English Setter bitch Northern Huntress with P. D. Linville's English Setter bitch Maggie F.

Clinton E. Worden's Pointer dog Doc with R. P. Schwerin's English Setter dog Peach Stone.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Sam's Bow with Jos. Singers' English Setter dog Lemon Ears.

S. Christenson's English Setter dog Joe Cumming's Boy with Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Petronella.

W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Peach Blossom with Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba's Zep.

MONDAY, January 14th—The morning was very warm and the weather continued oppressively hot throughout the day, not a breath of air stirring made conditions for bird work poor.

Prince-Pearl's Jingle—The first brace was cast off at 8:15 A. M. Tod Sloan's Pointer dog Prince was handled by W. B. Coutts and Clinton E. Worden's Pointer bitch Pearl's Jingle was in charge of handler John E. Lucas. Very little was done in this heat. Conditions were not favorable. Jingle showed the best speed, had better range and was the most industrious. She made a point on a running bird and was backed by Prince. Prince also pointed, but nothing was found. The brace was ordered up at 8:50.

Jacqueba-Clipper W.—At 9 o'clock, the next brace, Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Jacqueba, handled by R. M. Dodge, and Dr. C. E. Wilson's English Setter Clipper W., Coutts handler, were cast off. Clipper had the best speed and style. No bird work was done by either dog. Jacqueba pointed, but no bird was found. They were ordered up at 9:35.

Count's Mark-Stamford—This pair went down at 9:45. W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter Count's Mark was handled by Mr. Babcock, of McCloud. George Wilcox's English Setter Stamford was handled by Mr. Katze. More point work was done in this heat than in either of the preceding heats. Count's Mark pointed and was steady. This point was followed by four more in rapid succession—good steady points. He was the best on birds and worked fast, but was poor on range. Stamford made one point. His range was poor and he showed but little speed. Ordered up at 10:15.

Lady-Doctor Daniels—Put down at 10:20. Joe Terry's English Setter bitch Lady, handled by Coutts, and H. E. Peach's English Setter Doctor Daniels, handled by Babcock. This was one of the best heats of the day. Lady made one point, then a covey point, and was steady. She was very fast and stylish and ranged well. She has a very cheerful and merry way of going and her bird work is snappy. Doctor Daniels made two good points, being steady. He also is fast and ranged well, but the heat was Lady's. The pair were ordered up at 10:50.

Northern Huntress-Maggie F.—This pair was cast off at 10:55. Huntress, T. J. A. Tiedeman's English Setter, handled by Lucas, and the English Setter bitch Maggie F., handled by her owner, P. D. Linville. Huntress soon pointed; no bird was found, however. Then Huntress chased a rabbit across a large field and had to be brought back. She had the best pace and range, but did no bird work and was not under good control. Maggie showed better nose, making two points, though somewhat unsteady. The brace was taken up at 11:30.

Doc-Peach Stone—At 11:35 the next brace was put down, Clinton E. Worden's Pointer dog Doc, handled by Dodge, and Babcock handling R. P. Schwerin's English Setter dog Peach Stone. This was a very poor heat. Doc pointed a rabbit. He was fast and ranged better than Peach Stone. No work, however, was done by either dog. They were ordered up at 12:05, and work was suspended for luncheon.

Bow's Son-Lemon Ears—The first brace cast off after lunch went down at 1:30. Joseph Singer's English Setter dog Lemon Ears, handled by Katze, pointed a rabbit, he made another point in heavy brush but left it. Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Bow's Son, handled by Dodge, made an indifferent point and followed with another, somewhat better. Bow's Son was much the better dog in pace and range. Both chased. The pair were taken up at 2:00 P. M.

Joe Cumming's Boy-Petronella—This pair followed at 2:05. Coutts handled S. Christenson's English Setter dog Joe Cumming's Boy, Dodge looking after Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Petronella. Both dogs ran over birds. Petronella is a very speedy and stylish goer. She stayed out best and covered her ground well. Her bird work was poor. It is but just, however, to state that she was suffering from an ulcerated throat. Cumming's Boy showed that he was a dog of fine style and action. He had but recently recovered from a severe spell of sickness. The brace was taken up at 2:35.

Peach Blossom-Cuba's Zep—This pair finished the last heat of the first series. They went down at 2:40 and were ordered up at 3:10. Both dogs were fast, stylish and had splendid range. Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba's Zep being handled by Dodge, whilst Babcock handled Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Peach Blossom. Zep came to a point then pointed again and was steady to shot. Blossom proved herself a splendid, fast going one but did no bird work during the heat. The honors of the heat fell to Zep.

SECOND SERIES.

After a consultation among the judges it was decided to give all the dogs a second trial. The dogs were run in the order following, the first brace of the second series was put down at 3:32 P. M.

Prince-Jacqueba—Under the same handlers. This was a poor heat and no work whatever was done. Prince raised birds and was steady to wing. They were taken up at 3:45, after being down thirteen minutes.

Pearl's Jingle-Clipper W.—This pair went down at 3:50. Clipper was fast and showed the best range, covering his ground in good style, but did poor work on birds. Jingle also is fast. No bird work was done. They were ordered up at 4 P. M. after ten minutes running.

Count's Mark-Lady—Down at 4:04. Lady showed the same dash and style as she did in the first heat. Lady was the first to find and point, then she made another point. She was much the best dog on bird work, being very snappy on her points. Count's Mark showed the same lack of range as he did during the morning heat, but had good style. Lady had the better of the heat. The brace was taken up at 4:21.

Stamford-Doctor Daniels—Cast off at 4:25. Nothing was done in this heat by either dog, though both had several opportunities to work. Doctor Daniels showed best during the heat in range and style, but did not equal his work of the morning. Ordered up at 4:47.

Northern Huntress-Peach Stone—This was the last brace run during the day, and was put down at 4:50. Both dogs seemed unable to locate birds though some were flushed. Peach Stone ran over birds and was inclined to chase. Huntress was speedy and ranged well but did no bird work. They were taken up at 5:10 P. M.

In the evening there was promise of better weather conditions for the following day, and this prediction was verified by a heavy fog coming up, thus insuring a cooler and more comfortable temperature.

TUESDAY, January 15.—The morning was foggy and cooler, the first pair cast off in continuation of the second series went down at 8:05 A. M.

Maggie F.-Doc—The dogs found no birds and none were flushed. Neither dog showed much speed or range. Maggie having a shade the best of the heat by working her ground more thoroughly than Doc. They were taken up at 8:20.

Bow's Son-Joe Cumming's Boy—Put down at 8:30. Both dogs behaved badly on birds. Many birds were seen but no points were secured by either dog. Cumming's Boy came in to his handler too often. Up at 8:50.

Peach Blossom-Petronella—Cast off at 8:55. The pair showed splendid going, but they were deficient on bird work. Blossom hunted well as did Petronella, though neither located birds. Ordered up at 9:15.

Cuba's Zep-Lemon Ears—This brace was put down at 9:21 to an unsatisfactory heat. Zep was the better in pace and range. No bird work by either. Lemon Ears pointed, but the bird was not found. They were taken up 9:35. This heat ended the second series.

THIRD SERIES.

Maggie F.-Lady—Down at 10:05. Maggie was the first to point and Lady honored the point. Lady then pointed twice in fine style and was steady. Lady again pointed, but no bird was found. Maggie again pointed and was a bit unsteady. Lady was the best in pace, range and style. Ordered up at 10:30.

Doctor Daniels-Bow's Son—Down at 10:35. Nothing was done by either dog, during this heat, on birds and the heat was an unsatisfactory one. Up at 11:07.

Count's Mark-Cuba's Zep—Put down at 11:13. Both dogs pointed in this heat, evidently on running birds, as none were located or flushed. Zep left the ground on which birds had been seen. Zep's range work was the best. They were taken up at 11:57.

Peach Blossom-Northern Huntress—Down at 11:58. Huntress was the first to locate and made a point on a single; she was inclined to chase. Blossom made two points in this heat and had apparently the better of it. Both are good speedy dogs and good rangers. This was the last brace down before lunch. A breeze having sprung up, prospects were good for better work during the afternoon.

Clipper W.-Petronella—Cast off at 1:30, were the first brace put down after lunch. Clipper soon after being down ran into birds and pointed, being backed by Petronella. Both were steady to shot. Clipper roared and pointed. Petronella refusing to back, went on and pointed a bird that flushed. Clipper next pointed a small covey, and was backed by Petronella. Clipper made five points in this heat, and partially redeemed himself for poor work done in former heats, though his bird work did not have the snap and vim shown by other Derby dogs. Up at 2:20.

The weather conditions were now much improved, and the afternoon's work was of splendid character.

LAST SERIES.

Maggie F.-Peach Blossom—Down at 2:25. Maggie made two fine points in this heat, Blossom backing one. Blossom also made two stylish snappy points and was steady. Again she made a good point. Maggie was a trifle unsteady to shot. The heat was an excellent exhibition of bird work. Blossom showed best range and speed. Up at 2:32.

Lady-Peach Blossom—Cast off at 2:38. This brace was down for a few minutes only. Lady soon pointed and Blossom backed. Both were steady. The range, speed and style of both was excellent and their work was of a snappy character, full of vim.

This concluded the Derby, the judges agreeing upon the winners which are noted in the summary following:

ALL-AGE STAKE.

The drawing for the All-Age Stake was held on the evening of Tuesday, January 15th. Three of the original eleven entries failed to qualify, three Derby entries, however, were named for this stake, thus making the number of starters the same as originally entered. The order of the drawing resulted as follows:

W. W. Van Arsdale's Pointer bitch Blazeaway—with—Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba of Kenwood.

A. De Courtieux's English Setter bitch Verona Cash—with—W. S. Tevis' English Setter dog Pride of Ross.

J. E. Terry's English Setter bitch Lady—with—Albert Betz' English Setter dog Merry Heart.

Frank Maskey's English Setter bitch Lady Rodschaff—with—R. B. Dyer's English Setter bitch Taoma Montez.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer dog Cuba's Zep—with—W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Peach Blossom.

Dr. C. E. Wilson's English Setter dog Clipper W. drew the bye.

WEDNESDAY, January 16th—With favorable weather conditions the first brace of the All-Age were put down at 8:27 A. M.

Blazeaway-Cuba of Kenwood—Babcock handled Blazeaway, Cuba of Kenwood in charge of Dodge. Blazeaway ran into a bird and was steady to wing. She should have pointed. Cuba pointed and was steady to shot. He later made another point, but was a bit unsteady. Blazeaway had the fault of coming in to her handler too often. The heat was Cuba's. Up at 9:09.

Verona Cash—Pride of Ross—Put down at 9:15. Nothing was done in this heat. Cash disappeared shortly after going down and Pride of Ross was permitted to run for some time, when he was recalled. Cash was not found until several hours later. This brace was again put down after lunch. Cash was handled by Lucas and Ross by Coutts.

Lady-Merry Heart—Down at 9:59. Some pretty work was done in this heat, Lady making six snappy points, Heart backing staunchly on every occasion offered. Heart pointed once and shortly after chased a rabbit. Lady had the better speed and range. Heart again pointed, though being somewhat unsteady. Up at 10:37. Merry Heart was handled by Lucas, Lady by Coutts.

Lady Rodschaff-Tacoma Montez—Cast off at 10:42. Lady ran over birds and was unsteady to wing. Later she pointed a rabbit. Again she came to a point, no bird being found. Tacoma pointed and was steady. Tacoma had the best pace and range. The bird work of both was poor. Lady was handled by her owner, Frank Maskey; Tacoma being handled by Lucas. Taken up at 11:19.

Peach Blossom-Cuba's Zep—Down at 11:23. Blossom handled by Babcock, Zep by Dodge. Blossom pointed a good find. Blossom was then out of sight in the brush for some time and was found on point. Both ranged well and had good action and speed. Zep pointed the bird running into view and after reading he flushed. Blossom pointed and Zep made a fine back. Zep again pointed and was steady to command. Blossom also made another point, which was honored by Zep. Ordered up at 12.

Pride of Ross-Verona Cash—This brace was again put down at 1:10, after lunch. Cash soon pointed, Ross backing to command. Cash pointed again, Ross refusing to back. Cash's last point was on a running bird. The bird work of Ross was poor. Cash had the best range and style. Up at 1:30.

Clipper W., a bye—Down at 1:37. The handler of Clipper, Mr. Coutts, was permitted, at his request, to run with Clipper a Pointer puppy. Clipper did no work whatever while the puppy made several good points. The latter was taken up after being down seven minutes. Clipper had many opportunities during the balance of the heat, but did no bird work. His range was poor, and he did not quarter his ground at all. He made a very poor showing. Up at 2:08.

SECOND SERIES.

Cuba of Kenwood-Lady—This was the first brace down in the second series and was cast off at 2:22. Cuba had opportunities but did no bird work. Lady made two points, one on a rabbit. Both were fast and ranged well, but Cuba was poor on bird work. The heat was Lady's. Up at 2:56.

Merry Heart-Peach Blossom—Down at 3:06. The conditions were not good, the wind having died down. Heart pointed, no bird, however, being found. Heart again pointed and was steady to shot. Blossom made two good points. Both ranged well, Blossom having the better speed, and staying qualities, Heart slacking up before the end of the heat. Up at 3:45.

Verona Cash-Cuba's Zep—This was the last heat of the day. Down at 3:36. During the heat some fine bird work was shown. Cash made three points, being a bit unsteady on the last. Zep pointed a small covey on the edge of plowed ground, and the birds were seen running. In moving along he pointed another small covey of five birds which also ran into plowed ground and were flushed. Zep made another point. Cash had been out of sight for some time and was found some distance away in the brush on point. This was a very excellent heat. Up at 4:25.

FINAL SERIES.

THURSDAY, January 17.—Good weather conditions prevailed when the first brace were cast off at 8:38 A. M. for the finals.

Lady-Peach Blossom—Blossom was the first to point. Lady pointed. Lady again made a point. Blossom next pointed and Lady backed. Blossom pointed in this heat altogether four times and Lady three times. The work was done in comparatively open ground and was a fine exhibition of bird work. Both had good speed and ranged well. Blossom showed great improvement, while Lady appeared somewhat off in form. Up at 9:06.

Cuba of Kenwood-Verona Cash—Down at 9:10. Cash pointed a small bevy in open field and was steady. Cuba seemed to be off and nothing further was done in this heat. They were taken up at 9:18, being down eight minutes.

Cuba's Zep-Merry Heart—Put down at 9:26. This proved to be the last heat of the All-Age Stake. Heart made two points, in one of which she was backed by Zep. Both were steady. Zep pointed a running bird after reading for some distance. Heart made several more points, in another of which she was nicely backed by Zep. Up at 9:36. The judges announced their decision as follows in the summary:

SUMMARY.

NORTH ISLAND, Coronado Beach, San Diego, Cal., January 16, 17, 1901—Pacific Coast Field Trial Club's eighteenth annual trials. All-Age Stake, open to all. Eleven original nominations, eleven starters including three Derby entries, three Pointers and eight Setters. Entrance $10, $10 additional to start. Purse $250. $125 to first, $75 to second, $50 to third.

Dr. C. E. Wilson's black, white and tan English Setter Clipper W. (Marie's Sport-Isabella Maid) a bye.

II.

Cuba of Kenwood with Lady. | Verona Cash with Cuba's Zep.

Merry Heart with Peach Blossom.

III.

Lady with Peach Blossom. | Cuba's Zep with Merry Heart.

Cuba of Kenwood with Verona Cash.

RESULTS.

First, Peach Blossom; second, Lady; third, divided between Cuba's Zep and Merry Heart.

MEMBERS' STAKE.

The Members' Stake was closed on the evening of January 16th with seven entries, Mr. Van Arsdale's Pointer entry Lou being, however, withdrawn on account of illness before the stake was run. The stake was run immediately upon the conclusion of the All-Age. The prizes were three elegant silver cups donated by members of the club. The entries and order of running was the following, the first brace being put down at 9:55 A. M.

Merry Heart-Vi—Albert Betz' Merry Heart, handled by owner, with Tod Sloan's Pointer bitch Vi, handled by owner. Heart was the first to point, but flushed. Vi pointed and retrieved nicely when the bird was killed. Vi made several more points and was the best on birds. Up at 10:25.

Val's Mark-Maggie F.—Down at 10:30. Maggie pointed and was steady. She then made another point. Val was not under control and soon disappeared, but was brought back. Nothing further was done by either. Maggie was the best on birds, but was not as fast as Val's Mark. The latter was handled by Henry M. Keller, and P. D. Linville handled Maggie F. Up at 11:35.

Petronella-Senator's Trinket—Down at 11:15. The former was handled by W. S. Tevis and the latter by J. W. Flynn. Neither dog was accustomed to handler, and very little work was done. Petronella, however, ranged quite well toward the end of the heat. Up at 11:32. This ended the first series.

SECOND SERIES.

Vi-Maggie F.—Down at 11:45. Vi pointed, but no bird was found. Maggie was out of sight for some little time and was found on a point, evidently having been on the bird for some time. Vi backed, but moved up and Maggie broke. Nothing more was done. Up at 12.

Merry Heart-Petronella—Down at 1:20. This was the first brace down after lunch. Heart made two points and was the best on birds. Petronella pointed. She was the fastest and had the best range. Up at 1:45.

Vi-Petronella—Down at 1:58. This was the last brace in the Members' Stake. Vi soon pointed a running bird; roared for some distance and was steady when the bird was flushed. Petronella had the better range. Up at 2:15.

At the conclusion of this heat the judges announced the winners as shown in the summary following:

SUMMARY.

NORTH ISLAND, Coronado Beach, Cal., January 17, 1901. Pacific Coast Field Trials Club. Members' Stake. Entrance $10. Trophies, silver cups. Seven original entries, six starters, three Pointers, three Setters.

I.

Albert Betz' English Setter bitch Merry Heart—with—Tod Sloan's imported white and liver Pointer bitch Vi (Wisdom-Whisper).

Henry M. Keller's (Santa Monica) black, white and tan English Setter dog Val's Mark (Valiente-Peach Mark)—with—P. D. Linville's English Setter bitch Maggie F.

Stockdale Kennels' Pointer bitch Petronella—with—J. W. Flynn's (San Francisco) liver and white Pointer dog Senator's Trinket (Senator P.—Trinket).

II.

Vi with Maggie F. | Vi with Petronella

Merry Heart with Petronella

RESULT.

First, Maggie F.; second, Vi; third, Merry Heart.

CHAMPION STAKE.

The condition of this stake is that the heats must be of two hours duration, and in deciding upon the winner the judges take into consideration not only the bird work of the dogs but also their relative conditions at the end of the heat. There were two entries, Stockdale Kennels Cuba of Kenwood and W. W. Van Arsdale's lemon and white English Setter bitch Poach Mark (Mercury-Betsy Mark).

During the first hour Peach Mark had the better of it on bird work, staunchness to shot and point, but fell away during the last hour, while Cuba seemed to improve and was much the better dog at the end of the heat. Peach Mark made nine points to Cuba's six, but the dog's work was much more snappy. Hisspeed and range excelled that of the bitch, and as endurance is one of the points upon which the decision is based, his better condition at the end of the heat gained the prize. Among the points made was a splendid one by Cuba who, while coming across a piece of plowed ground, dropped to a point, the bird being found in a clump of bushes quite a distance away.

In winning the Championship Stake, Stockdale Kennels won the cup for the second time. The cup was originally donated by Mr. W. S. Tevis and won last year by Sam's Bow. Mr. Tevis generously placed the trophy in competition again this year which it seems was destined to remain with his kennels as a token of the field trial merits of his Pointers.

Evils of the Chinese Shrimp Fishing Industry.

A bill has been submitted to the present Legislature providing with other needed changes in and additions to the laws pertaining to fish, that a close season on shrimp be made from May 1st to September 1st of each year. The shrimp fishing industry is entirely in the hands of Chinese and the amount of damage they have done in the past can readily be seen when it is known that thirty-three boats are engaged in the work—the destruction of small fish from May to October is estimated at millions of pounds. The Chinese, it is claimed, have defeated all attempted legislation in the past and possibly will attempt to do so this session. The bill should be passed and the depletion of food fishes stopped. This measure is of interest to the sportsman as well as the public. The following extracts from a report on the subject by Mr. N. B. Schofield of Stanford University will throw some light on the subject, and in a strong argument in favor of prohibitive legislation.

"The Chinese shrimp boat is of Chinese make and pattern, and is 40 feet long by 10 feet on the beam; it carries a 30-foot mast, which bears a typical Chinese sail. The crew is invariably made up of five men.

"The fishing is done by means of bag nets made in China expressly for the shrimp fishing. Each net is about 20 feet across its mouth, and narrows quickly into a narrow bag about 40 feet long. The end of the bag is open, so that the contents of the net can be easily let out by untying a string which holds the opening closed. Near the mouth of the net the mesh is large (about 2-inch), but it gradually grows smaller till in the last half of the bag the mesh is 1/2-inch.

"Each boat operates from twenty to thirty nets, which are set on the bottom with their mouths against the current. Some position is selected in the channel where the current is strong, and here a line is stretched across the current—lying on the bottom and anchored at either end and occasionally in the middle—the position of the anchors marked by buoys. The nets are set along this line, usually at low tide, and are taken up again at the next high tide; depending on the current to drift the shrimps into the nets.

"By a special contrivance the nets can be set and taken up without the anchors by which they are held in place.

"In drawing in the nets the fishermen pull up one end of the line to which the nets are attached and pass it over a pulley at the bow of the boat and reel it in by a windlass in the stern. As each net comes up to the surface at the bow of the boat, it is unfastened from the line and carried around to the side of the boat, where it is pulled up by hand and its contents dumped into the boat. The nets are taken ashore and dried, and at the next low tide a second set of nets is taken out, each boat having two sets.

"The number of shrimps caught by each boat varies greatly. At some times they catch only a couple of baskets, which weigh about 90 pounds each; at other times, when everything is favorable, they catch as high as eighty baskets. These numbers include everything caught.

"The shrimps when brought into the camp are first boiled in large open vats. Salt water is used for boiling, coarse salt being added in large quantities. After boiling about thirty minutes they are spread out on the ground to dry. After they are sufficiently dried they are swept together and rolled thoroughly with heavy cleated rollers, which break the shells away from the 'meat' of the shrimp. Then, after a process of alternate sifting and beating and picking over by hand and running through a fanning mill, the 'meat' is gotten out. For this dried shrimp meat the fishermen get 8 cents a pound in San Francisco. The shells and other impurities are saved and are made use of as a fertilizer, and with the rest of the shrimp product are sent to China.

"A few shrimps are taken at this San Rafael fishery and sent fresh each day to the San Francisco market.

"The time of setting the nets varies. Sometimes the best catch is made while the tide is running out; at others, the catch is equally good for the outgoing and incoming tide—due probably to a general movement of the shrimps, independent of the current.

"When the catch is large the men stay at the nets and pull them in every hour or two.

"The average catch per day for each boat at the San Rafael fishery during the last two weeks of July was 70 baskets, each basket weighing about 90 pounds, making in all 6,300 pounds. The average number of boats out each day was seven, making in all a daily catch of 44,100 pounds. For fifteen days this number is swelled to 661,500 pounds. One-half of this consisted of small fish, principally of the following species: Osmerus thalichthys (smolt), Engraulis mordax (California anchovy), Porichthys notatus (midshipman), Leptocottus armatus (sculpin).

"The small Osmerus thalichthys, about 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 inches long, were very abundant, making up over one-fourth of the entire catch. The estimated amount of these young smelt taken in the last fifteen days in July is 165,375 pounds, or about 15,537,500 small fish. It is more than probable that this particular smolt is the principal food of the young salmon descending the Sacramento river.

"When the nets come to the surface of the water these small smolt are dead, so that to throw them back would do no good. The only way to prevent this destruction would be to stop the fishing entirely during the time from April to October when these fish are so abundant.

"During July they caught but few flounders. These were saved and dried, along with a few sculpins, etc., which are not eaten by any one else. During May and June the catch of flounders is very much greater than at the present time."

THE FARM.

Feeding the Colt After Weaning.

There are colts and colts, as the saying goes, but the differences between the young growing horses is to a very large extent due to the management and to the feeding, chiefly, says the entertaining writer H. S. in the Drovers' Journal. Colts are born, it is true; but to a large extent they are made by care and attention, and of these the feeding is the most important. A young animal may be very justly compared with a plant. The seed may be of the best, but unless the culture is equally good the growth is stunted, and by continuance or neglect weeds are grown instead of healthy, profitable, vigorous plants. The young animal of whatever kind it may be is subject to this same natural law, and thus we see the best blood at times going back to a very low position, due to the neglect to which it is treated. It is worth while to mention this, for it is quite a common occurrence to see the avoidable deterioration of a well bred young animal due simply to this mistaken thought that blood will tell, as the saying is, and thus it is expected to stand good for itself, in spite of neglect and mistake. Blood, the truth is, represents years and generations of the best feeding, one generation inheriting the gains made by previous ones, which have been due to the most skillful feeding. So it will be a simple loss of money to pay high prices, which are only justly due for the services of a sire of high character, and then to think that inherited influence will work without sufficient feed to support it.

But this mistake is often made, and we have seen an example of it in a young animal entered in a class of pure bred stock at an agricultural fair, which had been badly neglected, and simply became a bad example of what neglect will do to the best possible bred young animal. The owner of the animal, in revenge of what he was ignorant enough to think was a fraud upon him, stood by his unfortunate colt, and bitterly abused the breeder from whom the young thing had been bought. Knowing the blood, a purchaser got the animal, and by due attention fitted it for the next year's exhibition, and secured the first premium for it as a yearling.

This instance goes to show how blood will tell in two ways. It tells when it is ill-used, and just the same it answers to just and proper education. This word means leading up, in the true literal verbal sense, and it most truly illustrates the subject under consideration, that the young colt of good blood will respond only to the best treatment, and if the sire has been educated as highly as he has, the progeny of such a horse must needs be reared on the same lines of scientific feeding.

The question of kinds of grain foods, and whether these should be fed whole or ground, is of primary importance. Oats leads the list of grains, but a change of foods is exceedingly desirable, as it not only stimulates the appetite, but the digestion and assimilation as well. And just here it will be useful to understand the difference between these words digestion and assimilation; for there is a most important difference between them.

An animal eats its food, chews and grinds it with its teeth, and makes it into a pulp by mixture with the saliva which is truly the first of the digestive and solvent fluids of an animal. The teeth crush and grind the food, and the more palatable this is the more is the flow of this fluid; thus with pleasant food the mastication in the mouth is most perfectly performed, and as the saliva is a solvent, and a chemical fluid as well, the food thus thoroughly masticated has its starch to some extent changed into sugar by it, and so the food goes into the stomach already partly digested, and this is one of the facts which should be duly considered by the feeder.

Every animal loves a change of foods. It is possible for any animal to live on a single food, but it will never improve on it. Wild animals in a state of nature never improve. They are the same always. They cannot improve; this is easily seen to be an impossible thing for them. But mankind only is an improving animal, and when civilized is constantly bettering his condition and improving everything he comes in possession of. And it goes without saying that this is the result of improved feeding, adding to the list of food substances, and as by improved feeding the stock grows slowly, every improvement is fixed by breeding, and so the process goes on. Feeding paves the foundation for training, and every gain is firmly fixed and made the basis for future gains. Thus it is our horses are constantly bettering their records in every way, and what has been accomplished, impossible to think of only a few years ago, is only a starting point for future improvement.

All our live stock has been subjected to the same influences. We have two year old cattle that weigh as much as the five year old steer did. Our cows at two years old yield more butter in a week than any average three of the stock of fifty years ago. Our lambs come to market under a year, and bring the value of two or three year old wethers of a generation back. Of course this increases the profits of the breeders and feeders, and is equally an economy to the consumers of all the products of our farm stock. The lists of foods at command almost bewilder the scientific student, not to think of how the farmers and stock feeders are at a loss this or that, as being the most effective, and thus economical, and so profitable. But at the same time education runs alongside of the train of mechanical and all other kinds of improvement, and as we gain in scientific information we apply it to practical use, and so every gain in knowledge is equivalent to such economy in work that the profits of work increases, while, thanks to the value of this knowledge, the consumer gains his share of the benefits in lessened costs of the finished product. And in regard to our live stock interests, this advantage is perceived on every hand. For with improvements in horses, there are gains made in every way in our livestock.

The bees bring more to the farmer and feeder; the cows are yielding twice the profit of some years ago, and sheep and swine, even the poultry, has its share in the general improvement; and thus the world is the better for the great advance in knowledge.

This is all a result of the modern application of the ultimate principle of economy by which the art of feeding animals has been so greatly extended and by which our choice of foods is enlarged so much, and by the extension of the knowledge of the chemistry of foods which enables the feeder to vary the bill of fare of his live stock, and to economize in the cost of feeding; and thus reduce with profit the market values of all his animal products. The writer has to excuse himself for extending the above remarks, but they are made for the purpose of exciting a due interest in this most important subject to the farmer, whose end in view is, of course, the profit he may make from the feeding of his stock. And in regard to the feeding of the young colt, we have to show how much is to be gained by the animal itself by scientific methods of feeding; how these contribute to the constant improvement of the stock, and at the same time may reduce the cost of the foods consumed.

Cattle for Beef Production.

On a given area of farming land it will be found that even under existing conditions, when the prices of beef are relatively high, a greater profit can be obtained from cattle kept for milk or for milk and meat than for meat only. But the fact remains that even on some arable farms if cattle are to be grown at all, they must be grown for meat production only. The conditions that relate to labor are such that cows cannot be milked nor can the milk be cared for in the best fashion. Some of these have relatively large areas of pastures as in the northern part of the State, and on others the pasture area is limited, although other food is grown in great abundance. Under these conditions, which breeds should be kept? Four breeds will fill the bill reasonably well. There are the Shorthorn, Hereford, Aberdeen-Angus and Galloway. Under the conditions first named, that is, when the areas of pasture are large and of cultivated land, small Galloways will probably fill the bill better than the others; especially will this be true when the animals are considerably exposed in rough weather. The dams may be of mixed breeding, the sires being Galloway. The young animals would suck their dams, and at 18 months or at 30 months would be sold for fattening on farms where the necessary foods can be grown. High grade Galloways fatten well and produce meat that is eagerly sought in good markets. On the second class of farms named, the Aberdeen-Angus would probably prove the most satisfactory, because of the excellence of the meat produced. But when grown under such conditions, the aim should be to grow meat of the best quality. The young animals should be pushed along from birth and put upon the market from 24 to 30 months. They should never be allowed to stand still in growth or to become lean in flesh. This means that they must get all the supplemental food they want, and varied in kind, and whenever they need it. The profit comes through the excellence of the meat product and the good price it brings because of high finish. Only the skilled feeder can grow such meat.—Prof. Thos. Shaw.

An Eastern creamery foreman says: "The farmers are not particular enough to send us good milk. They don't seem to understand the value of good milk, in making high priced butter and cheese. They don't seem to realize the importance of clean cows clean stables and clean milk cans. They demand that we shall make first class butter and cheese out of milk that is made foul by the filthy habits of certain of the patrons. And there we stand. We simply cannot make such goods unless we have clean milk. If we ask the patrons to unite for the sake of their own profit, and force the dirty ones to reform their course or leave, they will not do it. They seem to act as if they would rather lose a good bit of money every year than offend some of these dirty fellows who are lowering the value of the general product all the time."

Sheep Pasture.

It is an easy matter to make a pasture carry three times as many sheep as it otherwise would by dividing it and using each part for a reasonable time and changing from one to the other before one is eaten down too much. So says The Sheep Breeder. When on a large pasture, a flock will wander all over it, eating here and there and soiling the uneaten parts, and then refuse to feed longer, but spend their time in seeking some way of escape from it and generally finding one before long. Then the usefulness of the flock is gone, for once restless, sheep are always so, and a restless sheep is a bad sheep. For a 20 acre field and 100 sheep we would divide the sheep in five parts and keep the flock on each part until it is eaten pretty close, then would feed some grain feed for a few days, after which the flock should be turned on to the new ground. It would be very profitable then to run a harrow over the pastured field and sow a barrel of salt and one of ground gypsum, with a few pounds of mixed grass seed per acre, as 10 pounds of timothy, 20 pounds of orchard grass, 10 pounds of blue grass and as much of tall meadow oat grass. Then give another harrowing. The plan followed will soon make the land carry 10 sheep to the acre or 200 for the 20 all through the summer. We often read of the fine permanent pastures of England, which will fatten a 1500 pound ox to the acre in three months and then finish another and which retain their perennial verdure and freshness for centuries, and we have our fine Kentucky and other equally fine blue grass meadows on which the finest horses, cattle and sheep are reared and which have never been cut by the plow nor torn by the harrow, and these are by no means works of nature only. They are equally works of art, and what they are others may be under the same conditions.

Oleo in Hotels.

L. H. Kirkland, one of the field inspectors for the Michigan Dairy and Food Commission, says: "I have called upon 240 hotels and restaurants, taking a sample of butter from the table or lunch counter in each instance unless there were in sight signs reading thus: 'Oleomargarine or Butterine Used Here.' I found that 50 of them were using imitation butter and violating the law by neglecting to display the proper signs. In talking with the proprietors of many of these places I asked why they used an imitation or substitute instead of real butter. They immediately replied because it was much cheaper, only a few, perhaps three or four, claiming that it gave better satisfaction to their boarders. Some people may prefer to buy this oleomargarine, or butterine, as it has been called, to further their own private interests, but it is certainly an outrage for an unsuspecting public to be compelled to eat such stuff, supposing they are eating butter."

"Ask one of these proprietors why he is not willing to display the proper signs, and nine times out of ten he will tell you that it would hurt his business. I have found during my work some few who seem willing to comply with the law, yet too many of them try to use too small a sign. In some instances I have been called to the back part of the room to see a sign, about the magnitude of a postal card, very often placed behind a door, a screen or in a chimney corner."

"It is not alone in the cheap eating houses that this imitation butter is unlawfully used, but I have found it being served in some of the best hotels that I have visited. These are the places that would be hurt by a sign telling their patrons what kind of butter they were eating."

How He Makes Prize Butter.

I use good milk only, and have a rather hard time getting it. The milk is heated in the receiving vat, to about 75 degrees and finished in the little tempering vat. When it reaches 86 degrees it is run through a separator, skinning a 30 per cent cream. I use a starter and this with the hand separator cream, brings the percentage of fat down to 26 or 27 per cent, which I consider about right to secure that high, delicate flavor so well liked in our markets. My aim is to stir the cream every half hour, ripening at a temperature of from 68 to seventy degrees and as the degree of the acidity advances, the cream is gradually cooled down so that it stands at churning temperature at least 6 hours. The cream will show from 53 to 54 degrees and breaks in 40 to 45 minutes. The butter comes in granules the size of wheat grains. The buttermilk is drawn off immediately, the butter washed in just enough water to float it. The churn is given a few revolutions with engine at full speed. The water is drawn off directly, as I think it very essential to making a high flavored product not to let it soak in water. The butter is well drained, put on the table worker, salted with one oz. of fine salt to the pound of butter, worked and put in 60-lb. tubs and is ready for market.—John Metzger, Kansas.

Hogs Escaped Cholera.

The editor of Up-to-Date Farming tells how he managed his hogs when cholera appeared in the neighborhood two years ago, when 60 to 80 hogs died within 100 yards of his farm and hog yards. The hogs were kept healthy, strong and vigorous, and fed liberally so as to be kept growing every day, and they were given salt and ashes. When other hogs began dying he treated them with a formula recommended by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, made of one pound each of wood charcoal, sulphur, sulphide of antimony and sulphate of soda. All were well mixed and thoroughly pulverized, and a large tablespoonful of the mixture was given for each 200 pounds of live weight of the hogs. This was given in soft food either cornmeal, ground oats or cracked wheat, mixed with bran or middlings and wet up with hot water, and no stale swill was fed, but fresh milk from the separator was given night and morning, with middlings and a little bran added, and fresh water was given daily.

The pens, yards, sleeping places and troughs were frequently cleaned and disinfected with fresh lime in solution, at the rate of one-half pound of lime to each of water. From one to two ounces of carbolic acid should be added for a thorough job.

The survival of the fittest left us all our pigs in a healthy condition when the season was over. Not one was sick or indisposed. The shade, fresh water and disinfection saved our pigs, we verily believe. Had we neglected them, we believe that, in the survival, nothing but the hog pen and swill barrel would have been left as a souvenir of this dispensation of Providence.

Clay Roads in South Carolina.

Five years ago a farmer in Darlington county, S. C., had occasion to dig a pit near the highway, and wishing to get rid of the clay he spread it on a sand bed in the road. He builded better than he knew, as that was the beginning of improved roads in the county. The resultant improvement in the roadway was observed by the supervisor, who treated half a mile of road with clay. That was the first of the good roads in South Carolina, and it stands as firm to-day as when it was laid. During the five years that have elapsed, 750 miles of the 895 miles of road in Darlington county have been treated with clay, and one may ride a bicycle with ease over every mile of it. Formerly only light loads could with difficulty, especially during the wet season, be carried; now twice as much can with ease be carried to market. Where formerly only two bales of cotton were taken on a one horse wagon at best (the usual load being one bale), now as many as four are seen.

There are many who insist that it is not well to feed cabbage leaves to cows when making butter, because it would give an unpleasant flavor to the milk. Now, we have fed both cabbage and turnip leaves to cows when selling milk to fastidious customers without having anyone complain of the flavor, or even hint that it was not right. The Department of Agriculture has a report of a test made, which showed that there was no taint if they were fed directly after milking, which was our custom, and we also began with small lots, and increased until each cow had a bushel twice a day, much increasing the milk production. The New Zealand Department of Agriculture reports that 40 to 50 tons of cabbage per acre were grown upon their experimental farm and fed to cows with very satisfactory results. As much as 20 pounds was given to each cow night and morning, with the result that the increase of butter averaged one pound per cow. When the above amount can be grown to the acre we doubt if there is a much cheaper feed that can be grown for milch cows.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Facts About the Silo.

Twenty years' experience in the use of the silo has brought out some facts about which all are agreed.

First—That a larger amount of healthful cattle food can be preserved in the silo in better condition, at less expense of labor and hand, than by any other method known.

Second—That silage comes nearer being a perfect substitute for the succulent food of the pasture than any other food that can be had in winter.

Third—Thirty pounds a day is enough silage for an average sized Jersey cow. Larger cows will eat more.

Fourth—A cubic foot of silage from the middle of a medium-sized silo will average about forty five pounds.

Fifth—For 182 days, or half a year, an average Jersey cow will require about six tons of silage, allowing for unavoidable waste.

Sixth—The circular silo, made of good hard wood staves is cheapest and best.

Seventh—Fifteen feet in diameter and thirty feet a good depth. Such a silo will hold about 200 tons of silage, cut in half inch length.—Drainage Journal.

Creamery Business Pays.

The Colusa Herald has the following relative to a private creamery plant near that city:

"L. G. Manor is making preparations to go into the creamery business on a larger scale in the spring. He is now milking thirty-four cows and cannot near supply the demand. Each churning is contracted for before the milk is placed in the separator. It is Mr. Manor's intention to enlarge his plant and increase his herd of dairy cows to ninety or a hundred head. He has an alfalfa field of 150 acres which furnishes the finest pasturage known to the dairyman. With plenty of alfalfa and a slight mixture of bay there is never any need of purchasing coloring material to produce that golden hue in butter so dear to the heart of the housewife. Mr. Manor says there is no longer any money in wheat and he has demonstrated by practical experience that there is money in creamery butter on a small scale, he proposes to turn his attention to a greater measure to that branch of industry which he knows will pay."

A 200 to 250-lb. Hog the Best.

Hogs weighing from 200 to 250 pounds make the best pork for family use. If several hogs of a size are slaughtered at one time, the pieces will all be of one size and it will cure better. Killing hogs weighing 200 pounds and some ranging from that to 400 pounds will provide hams of several sizes and they will not all cure in the same time. Some will be too salty while others may get too little salt. I like to kill the large fat hog for lard and the greater part of him gets in the lard cask. I don't hesitate a minute to cut up a great deal of the lean meat of the heavy hogs for sausage. The shoulders of the large hog are trimmed as small as the joints will let me. All the scraps possible are trimmed from the hams, even the skin and fat taken from them and rendered and they are ready for immediate use. The nice, trim little hams are cured for later use. Smoked mutton saddles and pork sausage make the best meat I know of. Ahead of beef.—Iowa Homestead.

The average weight of the export cattle this season will probably run much below that of the past three years if we are to judge by those bought at leading market points. The British demand does not call for as heavy beefs as formerly, but the present reason for the shipment of lighter weights is that the heavier ones are not to be had. Some of the cattle taken for export are not of the best quality, though of course they are fat. With urgent orders for exportation and a scarcity of choice fat cattle buyers cannot be as exacting in their requirements as under other circumstances.

Swine Notes.

Either the sow or boar should be well matured.

For a few days after farrowing, feed the sow lightly.

Early spring pigs will make fat pigs by Christmas.

A well bred sow may be profitably kept until she is six years old.

Feed growing pigs with a view toward building bone, muscle and frame.

Pigs want water to drink, even when they are fed on slops.

Do not keep the brood sow and fattening hogs in the same pen.

Hogs should be fed so as to be ready for market when not over nine months old.

Feed growing pigs oats. They contain just the elements to make strong bodies.

Generally it is the poverty-stricken pig that is always getting where it is not wanted.

Three years ago the legislature of Nevada passed a law legalizing the indiscriminate slaughtering of the wild horses on the ranges. It is estimated since the passage of that measure upwards of six thousand horses have been destroyed as burdensome cumberers of the grazing districts. Now that the demand for range horses is in excess of the supply, the owners are bewailing the loss of a quarter of a million dollars, which at current prices the horses would have brought if rounded up. The unexpected demand comes as a salvage to the ranchmen for the closing out of the residue of the herds. J. B. Sparks, of Greenriver, Wyoming, in discussing range horses says: "I cannot say how the supply is east of Wyoming, but in this State as well as Utah, Oregon, Idaho and Washington I find fewer animals than last year. When buyers come out to the ranges, as they are doing now, they clean out about everything in sight from the ranchman, make a contract for the whole business, colts, mares and stallions, with the result that some of the smaller owners have not enough horses left to run an automobile—in other words have sold everything. They are generally stocking up again from the big ranches, but nevertheless the drain is heavy and I think is in excess of the breeding. The range grass is not extra at present, but horses are in good condition."

How to make an "evener" for a three-horse hitch: Take a bar of iron one-half inch thick and one and one-half inches wide, according to the strength desired, and about ten inches long. Make a hole in each end, nine inches apart, and put in two hooks or rings, then three inches from one end put in another ring or hook. Hitch this middle hook in plow clevis or anything which is to be worked long end up. Make a double-tree for the two outside horses about a foot longer than an ordinary double-tree—depending on the size of the inside horse. Hitch the outside horses to the double tree and to the short end of the bar and the middle horse to the long end.

It is reported that C. F. Packer, the well known rancher and stock-raiser of the vicinity of Princeton, has sold fifty head of his fine stall-fed steers, four and five years old, at ten cents per pound.—Colusa Herald.

The best and most convenient place to feel the pulse in animals is just under the edge of the jawbone at the submaxillary artery, of which the facial artery, which passes on to the side of the face is a continuation; but when the animal is masticating, the artery inside the forearm is the best place, though there is some difficulty at first in finding it; there are also the arteries of the fetlock joint. In feeling the pulse the first and second fingers should gently press the artery, with regular and remember, moderate pressure.

The final disposition of the prize steer Advance which brought $1.50 a pound at the fat stock show in Chicago, has been made so far as the meat is concerned. The hide will be mounted and exhibited at the Pan-American exhibition and later presented to the Museum of Natural History. Advance brought $2145. The highest price before that time was $750 for a bullock. Advance lost fifteen pounds in weight during the trip from Chicago to New York, but regained the loss in a very short time.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.
Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it.
Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition
Dealers, or from us.

EDDIE JONES

Winner of the Winter Handicap at Tanforan, Jan. 26. Distance one mile and a quarter. Time 2:04½, weight carried 118 pounds. Bred and owned by Burns & Waterhouse.

LAST Saturday at Tanforan Park, Eddie Jones, the brown son of Morello and Early Rose, demonstrated that his win of the Christmas Handicap was no fluke by again defeating the best horses in training at local tracks. With the solid impost of 118 pounds he ran one mile and a quarter in 2:04½, a new Coast record, and within three-quarters of a second of the world's record made by Charenton over the lightning fast Empire City track last summer. The winner propped as the gate arose, and when straightened away was lengths behind his field; he was separately time as fast as 2:03½ and with an even break would doubtless have set a new world's record for the distance. Eddie Jones was bred by Burns & Waterhouse at their Sacramento ranch and has never been a sound horse since his two year old form; he is a large, heavy horse and a gross feeder and in consequence it has been a very difficult matter to get him in shape for racing. Most of his defeats in past years may be ascribed to the fact that it has been impossible to get him into condition on account of his bad legs. This season Mr. Waterhouse has ordered him kept on the soft tracks and the result has been most gratifying, the horse having done remarkably well, and besides winning the two most important stakes at Tanforan over a distance of ground, he has succeeded in defeating such fast ones as John A. Morris and True Blue in a sprint race.

Horse Gossip From Woodland.

WOODLAND, January 29, 1901.

Our correspondent visited the track on Sunday last and found all the horses there looking fine.

Walter Mastin has Falrose 2:19, sire of Don 2:10, at the track, also Don Marvin 2:22. Both stallions will make a season in this vicinity. Mr. Marvin has a fine two year old filly by Falrose which he calls Mannie H. She has worked quarters in 32½ seconds, is a very fine looking youngster, and as you can judge by the speed shown, very promising. Another in Mastin's string is a two year old full brother to Don 2:10. This is a grand looking colt and is full of speed. The third time he was harnessed Mastin drove him a short distance at a 2:30 gait, and says he thinks he will be faster than Don.

Johnnie Norton is at the track with that game old horse Alexander Button 2:26½, sire of so many fast ones. He is looking like a colt and will make a season here at Woodland. Norton also has Gossiper Jr., a young horse by Gossiper 2:14½, dam Virginia Vasto by Vasto 2:16½. This horse is a very fine individual and it is Norton's intention to put him in training and race him. There is no doubt but he has lots of natural speed. Johnnie has another horse which he calls Smuggler. He is by Waldstein out of a mare by Odd Fellow. With four weeks' work last year Smuggler trotted a mile in 2:28, and ought to be a good prospect for the slow classes this year.

C. B. Bigelow left today for Pleasanton with Tags 2:13, by Diablo 2:09½, and a Diablo colt out of the game old race mare Lucy B. 2:17½ that is a coming cracker-jack. He also has Carrie B., a young pacing filly that is owned by Wm. Bemmerley and is very fast. The horse men of Woodland all wish "Det" the best of luck and much success.

Lou Mativa is jogging several colts which are good prospects, and is also holding the lines over Yellow Jacket 2:20½. Mativa is a good horse man and will get speed out of his charges.

S. A. Hooper, of Yountville, Napa county, will be here by the 1st with seven head of horses, among them the Electioneer stallion Alta Vola 2:15½ that was campaigned on the circuit last year.

Peter Fitzgerald, who formerly owned the pacing stallion Killarney 2:20½, has in the stud here his stallion Mickey Free by Waldstein out of a Button mare. Last spring a number of this horse's colts were shown here for a prize and they attracted the admiration of all.

Chas. Johnston has Mambrino Chief Jr., the sire of Geo. Washington 2:16½, here and also the stallion Tuberosa by Falrose. Tuberosa is a phenomenally fast horse, although comparatively untried.

Wm. Proctor, the fruit grower, is the owner of a fine looking mare that is being worked at the track. She worked a mile in 2:16 last year and will be put into condition for this year's races.

C. W. Burgess has a pacing stallion called Stanford that is a fine looking horse with a world of speed. The last time he was worked it is said he made the mile in 2:12, last half in 1:05 and last quarter in 30½ seconds. He will be trained for the races this fall.

William Murray is expected here soon with his great race horse and sire Diablo 2:09½, the sire of Clipper 2:06 and a lot more fast ones. Diablo made his record on this track in 1893 and his great performance is still talked of by the horse men of Yolo county when speed is up for discussion.

I will have something about the string of Sam Hoy at Winters in my next.

Yours,

JACK O'KEEFE.

The Livermore Horse Show.

The revival of the old-time horse show last year was a decided success, says the Livermore Herald. It attracted the best stock in the valley, which included some magnificent specimens of horseflesh. The sires were accompanied by their progeny and the display was one that won the admiration of the hundreds of horse men, some of whom came a long distance to see what the Livermore valley would be able to exhibit.

Although the horse buyers have been scouring the valley for months, gathering in the choicest animals, there are still plenty to make a creditable exhibit on Saturday, March 2d, which is the date decided upon for this year's show.

All parties owning stallions are invited to take part in this exhibition and it is suggested that they exhibit not only sires but their colts as well. No condition attaches to the exhibition as no premiums will be awarded and the show is held simply for the purpose of advertising the stock.

Parties having driving and work horses, jacks and mules are requested to bring them to Livermore and exhibit them as there is certain to be a large number of buyers present from San Francisco and other points.

The committee in charge includes the following: Andrew Block, Hans Christensen, John Martin, Jos. Martin, Sylvan Borders, N. D. Dutcher and Dave McDouald.

Matinee Racing at Los Angeles.

The third matinee of the Los Angeles Driving club at Agricultural Park last Saturday afternoon was a big success from every point of view.

A beautiful day drew a large representation of the fashionable set to both the grand stand and infield.

Combined with the ideal day was good racing under the most favorable conditions. The track was a trifle slow. It was watered Friday night in preparation for the races, and the morning rain made it soft and cuppy. The bright sun dried it out very rapidly, however, as is evidenced by the fact that General Wiles stepped the last quarter of his final heat in the sixth race in 32 seconds.

A Flattering Testimonial.

The city of Walsall, in England, is one of the greatest harness manufacturing places in the world, nearly the entire population of the place being harness makers and employed in the several big factories located there. The Walsall Chamber of Commerce sent a deputation of experts to the Paris Exposition to examine the harness shown there and report on the same. These experts were Mr. W. J. Guy and Mr. Albert Law, the latter Secretary of the body. In the report the exhibit made by Mr. John A. McKerron of this city is referred to as follows:

"In the American exhibits of harness, that by Mr. J. A. McKerron of San Francisco, California, was the best. This was made in the usual American style, very light and well finished. The same firm showed a quantity of cutting and trotting boots, which made the finest collection of boots I have ever seen. I should say that a specimen of every kind of cutting boot was there, and should recommend any buying these goods to examine their list."

Mr. McKerron has received a personal letter from Mr. Law complimenting him on the workmanship and excellence of his goods and adding that he would be pleased to place some of his catalogues in the hands of English buyers of boots and harness if they were sent him. Coming as it does from one of the leading harness experts of the world, Mr. McKerron values this letter even more than he does the handsome gold medal which was awarded his display.

Big Money at the Grand Circuit.

DETROIT, Jan. 29.—The stewards of the Grand Trotting Circuit to-day decided upon the following dates for next season's race meetings:

Detroit, July 15 to 20; Cleveland, July 22 to 27; Columbus, July 29 to August 3; Buffalo, August 5 to 10; Glens Falls, August 12 to 17; Readville, August 19 to 24; Hartford, September 2 to 6; Syracuse, September 9 to 13; Providence, September 26 to 30; Terre Haute, September 30 to October 5.

On a roll call of members the following purses and stakes were announced:

Detroit, $50,000, six stakes; Cleveland, $40,000, six stakes; Columbus, $35,000, six stakes; Buffalo, $35,000, six stakes; Glens Falls, $30,000, eight stakes; Readville, $50,000, six stakes; Providence, $40,000, six stakes; Hartford, $25,000, four stakes; Terre Haute, $30,000, six stakes.

The above are early closing events.

D. J. Campau of Detroit was re-elected president and S. W. Giles of Cleveland was again chosen secretary by the stewards.

Reynold's Messenger.

Can any one of our readers give us the pedigree of this horse? We understand he was brought to California from Kentucky in the latter 60's or early 70's, and stood in Colusa, Yolo and Sacramento counties. He is said to be of Messenger and Belmont blood, but we can find no record of the horse's breeding in any of our books. Any one knowing of the horse's pedigree will confer a favor by notifying us.

News From Palo Alto.

Superintendent Frank W. Covey, of Palo Alto Farm, made a flying visit to the city yesterday for the first time in two months. Mr. Covey is now about the busiest man in California, as he not only has the superintendence of the horse breeding department, but of the entire farm, which contains many thousand acres. About 2000 acres are put in grain and hay each year, there are vineyards and orchards and fifty tenant farmers on the place. Besides, the grounds of the Leland Stanford Jr. University are under Mr. Covey's care, and he is on the go from morning until night directing affairs and rides at least twenty miles each day in a buggy.

Mr. Covey says they have the finest looking lot of young trotters on the farm this year that has ever been seen on that great breeding ranch. There will be 48 head of two and three year olds for the Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland in May and they will be able to show speed that will open the eyes of the Eastern buyers.

The other day a two year old bay colt, by Adbell 2:23, the champion yearling, dam Rowena 2:19½, the first two year old to beat 2:20 in a race, showed a wonderful burst of speed. It had only been jogged for a month, owing to trainer Houser being ill, but Mr. Houser got up behind him in a Pleasanton cart and the young son of Adbell stepped a quarter in 36 seconds, last eighth in 17 seconds and did it handily.

Palo Alto Stock Farm has booked six mares to McKinney this year and will book four more if that stallion is kept at San Jose. A stud colt by McKinney out of the great mare Expressive 2:12½, now a yearling is one of the best looking youngsters on the farm. He ought to be a fast trotter and a sire of speed when placed in the stud.

The rains have made the feed on the Palo Alto pastures excellent and everything points to a very successful year with the horses.

At Santa Ana Track.

A letter from Santa Ana, Orange county, Cal., to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN states that the track there was never in better shape for training than it is now, and twenty or more horses are daily jogging over it. Copious rains have made fine feed in the pastures and fat horses and cattle are the rule there. Mr. Geo. W. Ford, who recently purchased the race track, has a number of youngsters by his good horse Neerut 2:12½ that will be trained this spring. Neerut served 45 mares last year and 41 of these are surely with foal. The first Neerut for 1901 came January 17th. It was a bay filly, 40 inches high, dam Alcola by Mambrino Wilkes. Mr. Ford hardly knows what to do with Toughnut this year, as this son of Neerut seems to pace or trot as the inclination takes him and goes fast at either gait, moving like a piece of oiled machinery. It is no trouble for him to show a 2:10 gait at either way of going, and he may be raced both ways and keep the talent guessing.

The Horse Situation.

A close study of the horse situation in America today discloses a startling array of facts. The difference in the census of 1892 and 1900 reveals the extraordinary fact that although the population has increased very materially, the number of horses in the United States has decreased, until there is an actual shortage in the supply of horses. In the last decade the foreign demand for horses has been enormous, and together with domestic consumption, the suitable horse is not only a scarce article, but a costly one. The transactions of the commercial world are largely dependent on the horse, and the leading society function is the annual horse show. King Horse has been elevated to a higher plane than ever, and he is the erstwhile idol of the hour. Those who loudly vaunted the advent of the horseless age have failed miserably in their prophecy. Naturally with this state of affairs existing it is but natural that the wisemen should confidently predict an era of unexampled horse prosperity, which means much to the breeder whose opportunity to reap a golden harvest is now at hand. In a great measure, however, his success is contingent upon the good quality of his brood mares, for a choice mare bred to a good sire of her class, cannot fail to be of lasting benefit to the breeder. With the proper types of brood mares selected for their breeding qualifications, and the harem presided over by a model sire, under generous treatment the resultant progeny will develop into the highest class market horse, so much sought after nowadays.—Spirit of the West.

It is reported from Lexington, Kentucky, that R. A. Fairbairn of West Fairfield, N. J., has bought of John E. Madden for $1000 each the good brood mares Alma Wilton by Wilton 2:19½, dam Alma Mater, and Sierra Madre, by Baron Wilkes 2:18. Alma Wilton is in foal to Adbell 2:23, the yearling champion.

A Wonderful Old Mare.

We recently read in a Santa Rosa exchange that Mr. John F. Mulgrew, proprietor of the well known Skaggs Hot Springs in Sonoma county, was the owner of a mare over twenty years old that had been used as a stage horse since she was a three year old and had traveled many thousands of miles over mountain roads. Thinking the mare's breeding would interest horse breeders we wrote to Mr. Mulgrew, asking for the same, and suggested that a photograph of her would also be worth reproducing in our columns. Mr. Mulgrew's reply is as follows:

SKAGGS SPRINGS, Jan 24, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Yours of the 22d inst. received. The animal referred to in a recent newspaper item is a mare known as "Old Liz." She will be 21 years old next April, was broken to harness when three years old and has worked as a stage mare for seventeen years. During the months of April and October of each year she has worked with a mate pulling an 8-passenger stage. From the first of May to the first of October of each year her place has been in the lead of a four horse team with twelve passenger wagon. She has never missed a trip during seven months in each year for seventeen years from Skaggs Springs to Geyserville and return (the round trip being eighteen miles), has never had a day's sickness, has never been lame nor was she ever touched with a whip. In color she is a dark brown, stands 15-3 and weighs about 1200 pounds. She is as free a traveler and as stylish and spirited as when a four year old. "Old Liz" was sired by Young Ottawa Chief and he by a Canadian horse known as Ottawa Chief. Her sire's dam was a dappled gray Messenger mare, weighing 1300 pounds and noted for her qualities as a roadster and a fine looking animal. The dam of "Old Liz" was a Hambletonian mare. I am sorry that I have no picture of the mare to send and it would be quite inconvenient to get one. As to the distance the mare has traveled in her regular stage work, to say nothing of extra trips (and she has made many), the aggregate would be 65,228 miles. She runs on the range from Nov. 1st to April 1st, but invariably comes to the stable during a storm for hay and grain and a good bed.

Very truly yours, J. F. MULGREW.

Blonde Wilkes 2:22 1-4.

A correspondent at Vallejo asks for the breeding and performances of Blonde Wilkes. He is by Guy Wilkes, first dam Blonde by Arthurton, second dam Old Huntress by Skenandoah, third dam by David Hill, fourth dam untraced. Blonde Wilkes is a pacer and took a record of 2:22½ at Napa, August 16, 1893, in the second heat of a race, which he won in straight heats, the time being 2:24½, 2:22½, 2:24½. He was bred by the late Wm. Corbitt, but at the time he made his record was owned, we think, by Gardner Brothers, of Napa. He was trained in 1892 and 1893. The former year he took a record of 2:34 as a trotter, but won no races except the one where he got his mark and which was a match arranged for the purpose of getting him into the 2:30 list if possible. The next year he started three times, and won one race as stated and was once second and once third. He made several seasons in the stud in Napa and Solano counties, but was afterwards gelded and used as a road horse. He started last July in a race for local roadsters at the Vallejo fair, won a heat in 2:25 and got second money.

News From Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Sam Casto has just taken up from the pasture a two year old trotter by Westfield and a Dexter Prince mare that he intends to break and enter in the two year old stake.

John Pender was down from La Fayette this week, interviewing the owners of two year olds sired by Capt. Jones, with a view of having them entered in the big two year old stake February 2d.

It is reported that a La Grand man is negotiating for the purchase of Chehalis 2:04½, and this noted pacer may be brought back to Oregon. He is being advertised for sale by his present owner J. O'Neal.

A. T. Van De Vanter has bought from E. B. Williams his fine McKinney colt, two years old, out of Alice M., by Altamont; second dam Minnie (dam of Trumont 2:21½) by Rockwood; third dam Sallie M., (dam of Altao 2:09½, and Pathmont 2:09½) by Oregon Pathfinder. This is one of the best bred colts in the State and is said to be a great individual. This gives Van de Vanter two McKinney stallions out of mares tracing direct to Oregon's greatest broodmares Tecora and Sally M.

It is reported that George Bodimer, the American trainer in Austria has been reinstated. Two years ago Bodimer won the rich Austrian Derby, but for foul driving he was expelled and his horse was disqualified in the race.

List of Eligibles.

We publish this week, with several additions, a list of trotters and pacers that are eligible to the fastest classes in California this year. We hear of many horses without records that will be trained, but we want a list of all those with records of 2:25 or better.

Chas. Marvin's Horses.

The stable of horses presented to Charles Marvin by Messrs. Miller & Sibley includes the good young stallion and sire Cecilian 2:22, as a three year old, who is sire of Endow 2:14½, winner of the Lexington Stake in 1898, and holder of the world's record for two year old geldings; Battlesign 2:13½ and several other good ones. His sire is Electioneer, dam Cecil by Gen. Ben. ton. Others presented to Mr. Marvin are Endow 2:14½ by Cecilian; Battlesign 2:13½ by Cecilian; Captor, trial 2:11, by Electric Ben; the bay colt Endear by Cecilian and Benign, a six year old by the same horse. These five are now in training and promise a great future. There are six broodmares in the lot, including Maë S. by Nutwood, Beulah West by Abdallah West, Eldred by Red Wilkes, Bon Mot by Erin, Eula Lee by Gen. George H. Thomas and Directorine by Director. The two year olds are the brown filly Furl 2:15½ by Belsire, dam Miss Royster by Red Wilkes, and a bay filly by Cecilian, dam Antella. The yearlings are two by Cecilian, out of Eldred and Effie G. (both mares by Red Wilkes), and one by Belsire, dam Miss Royster by Red Wilkes. Three weanlings are by Cecilian out of Mae S., Antella and Beulah West, and one by Belsire, dam Eldred by Red Wilkes. Mr. Marvin says that his present intention is to campaign a stable on the Grand Circuit the present year and to breed in a small way. Miller & Sibley still hold the lease on Ashland Park, and Marvin will have the use of the farm until the lease expires.

W. F. Yonug, P. D. F., Springfield, Mass.

Dear Sir:—In reply to yours of recent date, will say that in every case where I have sold Absorbine it has given perfect satisfaction. One case in particular, where a horse had a soft bunch over the pastern joint, half the size of a man's fist, which made the horse unsalable. After using many of the blistering remedies I persuaded him to try Absorbine, which not only removed the bunch, but made the horse worth fifty dollars more money, as he was a splendid horse and perfectly sound, with the exception of this bunch. I would advise anyone having a horse troubled with soft bunches of any kind to use Absorbine, as it will do all that the originator claims for it. Respectfully yours,

JOHN W. CASE,
Hartstown, Pa.

Feet Locked Together.

[Yarrum in Horse Review.]

I have never seen a photograph of a harness horse in motion that showed just the relative position of a horse's feet when he was in the act of damaging his front quarters with the heel of a hind shoe, but the evidence is indisputable that both trotters and pacers actually do hit themselves in that manner occasionally. Any trainer who has had much experience can tell of cases where horses have thrown themselves by hooking the heel of a hind shoe in a quarter boot. Doc Tanner, I believe, never uses a bell quarter boot on that account. He had a horse hook into one once and fall, and has been afraid of that style of boot ever since. My friend, C. C. Bates, of Thalberg fame, once told me that he saw, about six years ago, on an Iowa track, a trotter—I think he said his name was Roan Jack, or something like that—coming through the stretch about a 2:25 shot, when all at once he seemed to hit himself and almost fall. At the same time he came to a dead stop and stood balanced on two diagonal feet, while the other two were locked together under his body. An examination showed that he had caught one of the projecting heels off his hind shoe in under the toe of the near front shoe—in between the shoe and the foot. The two feet were locked securely together, bottom to bottom, and one of the shoes had to be removed before they could be separated. I have thought about this case a good many times and have tried to figure out how the horse could do any such contortion act when he was in motion. He certainly was not on a square trot or pace when he did it, but was probably in the act of changing from one gait to the other. In Durando's road house, at the far end of the New York Speedway, there is a horse shoe and a clipping from a newspaper, in a frame, hung on the wall. The newspaper clipping tells the story of an accident quite similar to the one just mentioned. The story is that on October 21, 1888, Mr. Durando was driving a fast horse on one of the New York drives, when the animal struck himself in front and fell heavily to the ground. When Mr. Durando looked the horse over he found that the projecting heels of the near hind shoe had penetrated the off front foot at the coronary band, passing clear through the foot to the sole. The feet were locked together and the animal was unable to move. If you can tell one that will fade either one of these stories send it in and see how it will look in type.

Occident Stake of 1901.

Twenty-six grandly bred colts and fillies were made third payment on in the Occident Stake, on January 1st. This race, the trotting classic of California, will come off on the opening day of the State Fair this year and will be one of the drawing cards of the meeting. Within the next month active work will be commenced on all these colts, in fact, some are already showing speed enough to warrant the prediction that the race will be a fast one. The list of those on which third payment was made is as follows:

Oakwood Stock Farm's b c by Chas Derby-Pippa.
W. Hogboom's b c by Chas. H. by Lynmont-Elmorene.
Alex. Brown's b f Mamie Martin by Nushagak-Francesca.
Palo Alto Stock Farm's b c Dobbell by Wildmt-Helena.
Thos. Manning's b c Commander Muckle by McKinney-Cheerful.
C. A. Owens' c h c Lee Roy by Waldstein-Zadie McGregor.
Mrs. E. W. Callendine's b f Lady Keating by Stam B.-Abbie Woodnut.
A. M. McCollum's c h f Jennie H. by Algona-Bonnie Lee.
M. M. Potter's b f Zombrella by Zombro-Fortune.
J. G. Kirkpatrick's b f Suzanna by McKinney-Flewey Flewey.
Dr. I. P. Dunn's b f by McKinney-Fontanita.
Santa Rosa Stock Farm's b f by L. W. Russell-Pansy; b c by Mc. Kinney-Bye Bye; c h f by Sidney Dillon-Lou Milton.
C. A. Durfee's blk c Mazuma by C. A. Durfee-Lady Direct.
J. C. Wilhoit's b f Lavina W. by Zombro-Concha.
J. Doran's b f Della McCarthy by McKinney-Lady C.
F. W. Barstow's b c Ueule Dewey-Canina.
Vendome Stock Farm's b f Elsie Downs by Boodle-Lynda Oak.
W. H. Lumsden's b f Fantaline by Altamont, dam by Nutwood.
Thos. Smith's b s Gallena by Mambrino Chief-Daisy S.
Dr. W. P. Book's b c Gold Coin by Zombro-Leonora.
G. Fox's b f by Silver Bow-Vesper; b c by Silver Bow-Grace.
A. G. Gurnett's b c by St. Nicholas-Lassie Jean.
R. Noble's b f Varda by Diablo-Iora.

The bicycle style of tire for carriages is going out of date, as it does not wear well, and there is a suction under the flattened tire that makes the vehicle drag. The solid rubber tire, on the contrary, has come to stay. It does not last quite as long as the steel tire, but the jolting it saves a carriage more than compensates for that in wear and tear.

SULKY NOTES.

McKinney 2:11½ will make the season at San Jose.

George Starr has thirty-five horses in training at Terre Haute.

Wm. Murray will take Diablo 2:09½ to Woodland about February 10th.

The fast four year old by Oro Wilkes 2:11, out of Mary Best 2:12½, will be raced this year.

Edenia 2:13½ by Endymion is a broodmare at Maplehurst Farm, home of Baron Wilkes.

The Michigan State Fair Association has a balance of $3543.99 from total receipts of $25,830.33 for 1900.

George Ketchum says that Cresceus 2:04 will not be in the stud this season, but will be kept for racing purposes.

Peter the Great 2:07½ will not be in the stud this year. Mr. Forbes has decided to have him trained and raced.

Mr. Forbes drove both Arion 2:07½ and Bingen 2:06½ on the snow last week and liked them both very much as snow horses.

President Johnson of the National Trotting Association, together with his family, are on a yachting cruise along the south Atlantic Coast.

There is a rumor in San Jose that the city authorities will try to purchase the agricultural park and race track and convert it into a public park.

It is said that Fred Gerken of New York, owner of Alice Barnes 2:11½, recently offered the Hamlins $10,000 for the yearling brother to The Abbot 2:03½.

The sulky which Flora Temple drew at Kalamazoo when she placed the world's record at 2:19½ in 1859, will be on exhibition at the coming Fasig-Tipton sale in New York.

The stallion McAdams, that trotted a trial in 2:14, two years ago, will be campaigned in the Forest City Farm stable this year. He is a son of Simmons, out of a McGregor mare.

The Nevada mare Peggy 2:17, who was last week included in our list of trotters that will be campaigned in 1901, was wrongfully classified. Peggy is a pacer and is in the proper column this week.

Mr. Snell states that Juke 2:07½ will not be in the stud this season. He intends to take him to the track early this year and give him a good thorough preparation for a tilt against the watch, and he may race him some.

T. W. Lawson offers a $1500 prize in cash for the best pair of high stopping harness horses exhibited at the forthcoming Horse Show in Boston. This is one of the largest prizes ever offered for competition in the show ring.

W. W. Estill, proprietor of the Elmwood Farm at Lexington, where Adbell stands, reports that he has sold more young trotting stock during the fall and winter than he ever did at private sale in the same length of time.

From reports from various parts of the State it is certain that Diablo 2:09½ will be represented by a number of new performers again this year. There are at least a dozen we have heard of lately that are showing race winning speed.

Pennsylvania met with a great loss a few days since by the death of T. A. Wilson's stallion, Director Moore by Director 2:17, dam Nancy Lee, dam of Nancy Hanks 2:04. This horse was very fast, and his breeding made him a great stock horse.

Providence, Rhode Island, and Readville, Massachusetts, both having dates on the Grand Circuit, will give $10,000 stakes for trotters and the same amount for pacers. Big stakes will make harness horses that are fast sell for big prices.

There are 2000 mares and about eighty stallions in the stud founded by Abdur Rahman, the present Amir of Afghanistan, to improve the horse stock of his domains. Most of the stallions are Arabians and Turkomans, with a few English thoroughbreds.

Investigations made by the North Dakota Experiment Station seem to establish the fact that millet hay is not good for horses, as it develops what is termed "millet disease," which assumes a rheumatic character and produces a bad effect on the kidneys.

Mr. T. J. Crowley's mare Lottie Parks 2:16½ by Cupid 2:18 is in Ed Lafferty's stable at Alameda and is looking well. She has been turned out for some time and is as round as a barrel. If nothing happens here she should trot below her mark several seconds this year.

C. A. Durfee writes to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that the great and only McKinney 2:11½ will make the season of 1901 at San Jose. Mr. Durfee has secured a splendid pasture of 60 acres that is knee deep in the best of feed. The service fee for McKinney will be $100. The advertisement will appear next week.

The four year old bay colt Syvid by Alex Button, dam Carrie Malone, having been purchased by a Chicago gentleman, has been sent to the San Jose Fair Grounds and placed in the hands of L. Van Bokkeleu for development. This is a very well bred young stallion, Carrie Malone being a full sister to Chas. Derby 2:20 and Klatawah 2:05½, her sire Steinway and dam Katie G. by Electioneer.

Delphi 2:12½, that fast pacing son of Director 2:17 that made such a good showing on the California circuit last year, will be out again this season and looks as if he might reduce his record again. His owner, C. Whitehead of Stockton, has a green pacer by Delphi called Toppy that he will also race. Toppy will be entered in all the green classes.

J. M. Barney of Dutch Flat has sent his two year old colt by Seymour Wilkes 2:08½, out of Le Grandora, to the Sacramento track to be broken and trained by "Vet" Tryon, the veteran trainer, who gave the great pacer Anaconda 2:02½, his first lessons, and who has given as many champions their first instructions in the speed course as any trainer in California.

The mare Penelope (dam of Peko 2:11½ and Pedlar 2:18½, sire of Oudray 2:16½ and four more in the list) by Mohawk Chief, dam Planetia by Planet, owned by the Walnut Grove Stock Farm, died while foaling January 29th. She was a very vigorous, strong old mare and her death is a misfortune. She was in foal to Nushagak, and the produce entered in the Breeders Futurity.

The bay stallion Portrero 2:21 by Redondo will be campaigned on the California circuit this year if there are races for his class. The owner of Portrero, Mr. W. B. Prentice of Helix, San Diego county, writes that he has an order from the East for two carloads of horses that he is unable to fill. The order is from the same parties to whom Mr. Prentice sold a carload last year.

There is a horse at Santa Rosa that makes the road drivers' brigade step some when he comes down the pike. He is by Easter Wilkes, dam Ida D. by Doncaster, son of Elmo. He is 15½ hands, and his gait is the trot, color bay with a white spot on his nose. Mr. Yandol, his owner, says he is faster than Hazel Y., the black mare by Secretary, which he sold and that got a record of 2:17.

Mr. Ed Gaylord of Denver, returned from Los Angeles last Wednesday and left for Denver the following day. He induced a half dozen trainers of Los Angeles and several at Pleasanton, San Jose and other points to promise to make entries at the Denver meeting, and the probability is that there will be a large contingent of harness horses from California there when the meeting opens June 15th.

Some of the famous horses seen almost daily on the New York speedway are: Robert J. 2:01½, Searchlight 2:03½, Azote 2:04½, Johnny Agan 2:05½, Be Sure 2:06½, Moth Miller 2:07, Daniel 2:07½, Fred W. 2:08½, Quadriga 2:08½, Hontas Crooke 2:09, Lamp Girl 2:09, Fairview 2:09½, Sphinx S. 2:09½, Louise Mae 2:09½, Page 2:09½, Clayton 2:15½, Louis Victor 2:10½, and several dozens of others with slower records.

S. Harris, of Oakland, owns a six year old gelding by Nutwood Wilkes which he uses as a business horse, driving him over the streets of Oakland every day hitched to a buggy, that is a very fast horse. He is a chestnut, standing about 16 hands high, has rather high action and is a pacer. Competent judges say that he can show a 2:10 clip. This gelding was never trained, but was used a year and a half as a livery horse.

Owners of the blood of Alcantara and David Lambert feel highly elated over the fact that Princess Naphta, the greatest winner of 1900 among the three year olds in Austria, was sired by Callisto 10748, son of Alcantara, dam Annie Page (own sister to Aristos 2:27), by Daniel Lambert. One of these days it will be settled beyond argument that the foreigners have taken some stallions that this country could ill afford to lose.

Frauk J. Gould, New York, will exhibit his trotting bred stallion Burlingham, for the $500 prize to be awarded at Boston to the owner of the best stallion of any breed suitable to get carriage horses. At present Mr. Gould has only one of the got of Burlingham to exhibit with the horse, while the conditions require two colts to be shown. He expects to obtain another youngster by Burlingham before the date of the exhibition.

A subscriber writing from Spokane, Washington, says that there is a fine opening there for some one with about $15,000 capital, to establish a race track. The old track at Spokane became so valuable that it was cut up into building lots and sold. Since then there has been no racing at Spokane, and the people are hungry for sport of this character. Many good horses are owned there and a well equipped track would be a good investment.

Geo. T. Beckers sends us an advertisement for his great young stallion Zombro 2:11, which arrived a little too late for this issue. Zombro's fee will be fifty dollars this year and he will make the season of 1901 at the Sacramento track. He is one of the best bred stallions in America and was probably the greatest three year old ever seen in this country. His produce, the oldest of which are now three year olds, are all fast and there is certain to be quite a list of performers for him at the close of the racing season, as several of them will start.

"If that little fellow is right few horses in the 2:15 class will get to the wire in front of him this year," was the remark made by a well known horseman at Alameda the other day as he looked Boydello 2:14½ over. His ankle, which was so seriously sprained at Santa Rosa last July, looks as though nothing had ever happened it, and although he has never been moved out of a jog since, there is every reason to believe that the joint has been entirely cured. Boydello is one of the handomest horses in the country and the colts by him are all of good size and have good looks and speed. As he is a grandson of Electioneer and has a cross of Dictator and one of Morgan blood on his dam's side his good looks and the power to reproduce them are accounted for. He will be in the stud for a limited season and is in Ed Lafferty's stable at Alameda.

John A. McKerron 2:10 will be allowed twenty mares before his matinee preparation begins in the spring. Eleven of them have already been booked, and they are as choice a lot of matrons as was ever sent to a stallion, consisting of Peko 2:11½, Irene Wilton 2:18½, Dimena, dam of Sunland Belle 2:08½; a filly by Actell, dam by Kentucky Prince; a filly by Shakespeare 2:21½, dam Kate Leland by Leland; Eddrea 2:29½, matinee record 2:17½, by Ellerslie Wilkes; Bifty Duck 2:25, and the Pittsburg trotting mares Rose Turner 2:13½ and Marguerite 2:14.

Alex Brown, proprietor of the Walnut Grove Stock Farm, Sacramento county, writes us that his stallions Nushagak 25,937 (by Sablo Wilkes 2:18, dam Fidelia by Director 2:17) and Prince Ansel (2) 2:20½ by Dexter Prince, dam Woodflower by Ansel, will make the season of 1901 at the Walnut Grove Farm at $30 each. Both these stallions are grand individuals and elegantly bred. Nushagak was a wonderfully fast colt, but went wrong and was never raced. Prince Ansel was one of the fastest colts ever bred at Palo Alto. These stallions will both be sires of extreme speed with ordinary opportunities.

Do not let this year's colt get into a lean and hungry condition during the winter. The colt's first winter, like the baby's first summer, is a very important period of its life. The manner of its treatment then has a lasting influence upon its development and future usefulness and value. The straw stack is a valuable aid in wintering colts, but it should not be the "whole thing;" a little grain should supplant it, and so should good clover hay, if at hand. Keep the colt growing thriftily, and teach him to have no fear of man during its first winter and the little fellow is well launched on his sea of life.

Robert I. the green pacer by Hambletonian Wilkes that was out last year but only started once, which was at Tanforan, where he made a good showing, getting third money in the race won by Tags 2:13, being second in three heats to that good mare, will be out again this year and ought to win a good share of the money. He is a very fine individual and fast. He will be entered in the green classes, and will be in Mr. I. L. Borden's string. Mr. Borden will also race N. L. B., his pacer by Diablo that took a two year old record of 2:21½ in 1899, and a three year old trotter by McKinney 2:11½, out of the dam of N. L. B.

Philip C. Byrne, of Marysville, has leased the trotting stallion Billups 2:20½ from his owner J. L. Davis, of Colusa, and will take him to Nevada county to prepare him for the 2:20 class races in California this year and with the further idea to lower his record, which it is believed can be very easily accomplished, as Billups has shown the ability to trot much faster. He will be worked at Glenbrook Park until July 1st, and afterward at the Sacramento track. Billups is by Boydell, son of Electioneer, first dam Tornado by Tilton Almont, second dam Anna B. by John Nelson. He made his record at Chico in 1897.

Geo. S. McKenzie, former Sheriff of Napa county is now located permanently in the Hawaiian Islands. He has been given the responsible position of Manager of the Volcano Stables and Transportation Company at Hilo, a corporation that does a big business in livery, drayage, etc., and has control of the race track at Hilo. Mr. McKenzie came up from the Islands last week and will remain in California a short time settling up various business matters. He says the Island horsemen are on the lookout for a horse that can beat Waldo J. 2:08. In our opinion they will have a hard time finding such a horse unless they are willing to pay a long price.

An inquiry comes from San Diego as to whether there is a stallion in this part of the State by Dictator, dam by George Wilkes. The stallion Dictator Wilkes now owned by A. W. Shippee of Stockton, is by Dictator, first dam Manola by Geo. Wilkes; second dam Lizzie Brinker (dam of three) by Drennon; third dam Luey by Million's Copperbottom; fourth dam by a son of Blackburn's Whip; fifth dam by Post Boy, son of Henry; sixth dam by Bishop's Hambletonian. Dictator Wilkes was foaled in 1888. He has sired some very handsome horses, but we believe very few have ever been worked for speed. There is a mare by him used on the road here in San Francisco that is phenomenally fast.

Dr. William Finlaw and Mr. M. J. Streening, of Santa Rosa, have purchased a full brother to Geo. W. McKinney 2:14½ and he will be kept at Rose Dale Stock Farm. This colt is said to be a very fine individual by those who have seen him and he ought to be a great sire of speed as he is bred that way. His sire, McKinney 2:11½, is the greatest sire of speed of his age in America. His dam is Lady Washington 2:35 (dam also of El Molino 2:20) by the producing sire Whipple 8957, son of Hambletonian 725, second dam Lady Mayberry (grandam of Dubec 2:17, Mista 2:28, etc.) by Chieftain 721. Lady Mayberry was a very fast pacer and the dam of State of Maine, that trotted in 2:27 as a three year old and sired Queen Ann 2:28.

Messrs. John Ott and George Roso of Pacheco, Contra Costa county, this State, have recently purchased from D. Jackson of Alvarado, the stallion Sidmoor, son of the great speed producing sire Sidney, dam Mamie Harney by Grand Moor, sire of the dams of Joe Wheeler 2:07½, Arthur W. 2:11½, John A. 2:12½, and others, grandam Sarpy maro by Echo, sire of the dam of Direct 2:05½, Rox Alto 2:07½ and other fast ones. Sidmoor is a handsome bay stallion, with great muscular development, good bone and excellent disposition, and is a horse of great endurance and gameness. He has had scarcely any opportunities in the stud but is the sire of General 2:14½, a horse that trotted some sensational races in the East two years ago, Teddy the Roan 2:17½, a 2:10 pacer sure when right, Little Miss 2:17½ and others. Sidmoor will make the season of 1901 at Pacheco and should be well patronized as he is a horse worth breeding to.

Hambletonian Wilkes 1679.

Horse breeders in California should not overlook the stallion Hambletonian Wilkes this year. The get of this horse are uniformly such good lookers, with size, substance good bone and style that colts from him always bring good prices and that is what the breeders should strive to get.

Hambletonian Wilkes is a horse of marvelous strength and substance, good bone, powerful muscles and plenty of quality. He is the only son of the great champion sire Geo. Wilkes 2:22 on this Coast, and has proved himself a sire of extreme speed and good looking, game race horses. His daughter, Phoebe Wilkes 2:08½, was one of the greatest race mares the Grand Circuit ever saw, and when she took her record at Nashville in 1894, beating Nightingale 2:08, and others, trotted her three heats in 2:08½, 2:09½ and 2:09¾. That year she started seventeen times, meeting such horses as Alix 2:03½, Azote 2:04½, and all the free for all trotters out that year, and won money in nearly every start she made. All the get of Hambletonian Wilkes that have been raced show the same bull-dog, do-or-die quality. There are a number of his get now at Green Meadow Farm which will be shown visitors at any time. The blood of George Wilkes is the most prepotent of the sires of harness horses, and breeders should not miss this opportunity, to get it through one of his best sons. Mr. R. I. Moorhead, owner of this Farm, which is located just outside the city limits of Santa Clara, tells us that Hambletonian Wilkes was bred to 21 mares last year and there will be 20 foals. The old horse is as vigorous as a four year old and looks like one. As the price for his services has been fixed at $40 his book will certainly be full very early in the season.

Colt Stakes Necessary.

The Horse Review is on the right course when it attributes the decrease in the interest in harness racing to the disappearance of the small breeder and the colt racing which was prevalent when the small breeders were plenty, and when every county fair had one or more colt stakes on its racing program. The larger number of the stables now campaigned on the mile tracks and organized and campaigned much as the big running stables are, and the tendency to pay more attention to the speculative end of the game is becoming more and more pronounced. Whenever trotting horse breeding becomes confined to the wealthy men, who breed and race on a big scale, then the trotting turf will be found to occupy a position in public esteem such as the running turf now occupies. At only two or three meetings each year do colt stakes have a place on the program. If there were more of them, there is no question but that the incentive to breed would be greater. In the futurity events for youngsters, the produce of the small breeders' mares have just as good a chance to be a winner as do the produce of the mares owned at the big establishments, and the large number of the small breeders, who make nominations in the few futurity events open to them, show how the interest in breeding would be stimulated if there were more of them. There may be room for a difference of opinion as to the advisability of training and racing all colts, but the fact remains that, when colt racing was a feature of nearly every race meeting, the interest in breeding was much more widespread than it now is, and no better remedy can be devised to do away with the complaints of the racing managers regarding small entry lists and light attendance.—Horse World,

Pleasanton Items.

[From the Times.]

Bert Webster has a promising two year old filly by Directum 2:05½.

John Blue thinks he has another Anaconda in the four year old Diablita by Diablo 2:09½.

Millard Sanders received last week a team of bays from W. J. Dingee, of San Francisco, which he is driving. He also received a very nice looking Directum colt from Judge W. E. Green, of Oakland.

George Davis has put the harness on two or three very fine baby colts by Rey Direct. They are fine looking animals.

C. L. Crellin has booked his maros Ruth C. and Ramona to W. R. Welch's horse G. W. Archer, son of Allerton.

Wm. Cecil is sampling several of the get of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ that are showing up well.

James Thompson has a promising three year old by Steinway, first dam by Allendorf, that paced a mile last year as a two year old in 2:18.

Ed Gaylord of Denver, Colo., was the guest of John Blue on Tuesday.

C. A. Durfee of San Jose was the guest of George A. Davis on Wednesday.

W. R. Welch has a grand looking two year old in his string by Allerton 2:09½, dam by Kentucky Wilkes 2:21½. This colt is the property of Mr. J. J. Shoo of Oakland and was purchased by him at the Fasig-Tipton sale in New York last November.

OAKLAND TROTTING CLUB.Organizes With Thirty Members and Will Build Half Mile Track.

For some time the harness horse owners of Oakland have been agitating the question of building a track for training and racing purposes on the made land near the Sixteenth street depot on the bay shore and on Thursday evening of this week effected an organization and the track will be in course of construction within a week.

Thirty prominent road drivers and horse owners of Oakland met on the date above mentioned and organized the Oakland Trotting Club with P. W. Bellingall as President and J. Doran Secretary. It was announced that permission had been obtained to construct a track on the made ground at the Oakland marsh close to the Southern Pacific Railway Company's station at Sixteenth street. After some discussion it was decided that a regulation half mile track, with the turns properly thrown up would answer every purpose and it was decided to begin the construction of such a track at once. It was also decided to have the track fenced, and a cooling out shed and stalls erected. A small stand for spectators will also be put up and Saturday matinee racing will be a feature there before long.

The location of the track will be between 16th and 22d streets, and a few hundred feet northeast of the railway station. A few years ago this land was a marsh, but was filled in with droppings from the bay, and Oakland has been agitating the question of making it a public park ever since, but seems no nearer accomplishing the work than when the proposition was first announced. The soil or silt is very much the same as the Alameda track, which was made in the same manner, and makes the very best of footing for a harness horse, while the foundation is damp and has a springy nature that prevents lameness and soreness from concussion. We believe the Oakland Trotting Club is wise in voting to build a half mile track. Properly made it is as good to drive on as a mile course, and though necessarily not as fast by a few seconds, can be maintained at about half the expense, which is a very important consideration with any organization. In the East some of the largest attended meetings held are at half mile rings, notably the one at Goshen, New York, near where John R. Gentry and Joe Patchen are owned and where they have received a great deal of work. Thirty or forty thousand people, it is said, were present at that track in August, 1899, when those two great pacers contested for a purse of $2000, pacing a dead heat in 2:08 the first mile.

It is probable that several members of the new club will erect stalls at the track and there is a very likely probability that some excellent racing will be seen over the course this summer.

All hail to the Oakland Trotting Club! May its membership increase and may it pursue the path it has laid out to have clean, honest, gentlemanly sport, and furnish recreation for thousands of people who while not lucky enough to own a trotter or pacer, nevertheless like to see them at speed.

A Promising Three Year Old.

"The best looking McKinney in the State" is the way a well known horse owner in this city described John Rowan's three year old Mount Shasta to the writer the other day. The dam of Mount Shasta is Hattie (the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16½) by Commodore Belmont 4:40, who also sired the dams of Iago 2:11, Galette 2:12, Dr. Spellman (3) 2:13½ and the four year old pacer Dr. Fellfare 2:10½; the second dam of Monterey is Barona by Woodford Mambrino 2:21½, sire of the dams of Kremlin 2:07½, Bonnatella 2:10, Lakewood Prince 2:13½ and others; third dam Miss Gratz by Norman 25, sire of Lula 2:15 and the dam of Norval 2:14½ that sired Countess Eve 2:09½, Flowing Tide 2:09½, Norvin G. 2:09½, and a half dozen more with records better than 2:15. The brooding of Mr. Rowan's colt, it will be seen, is rich and his blood lines full of extreme speed. He is a very fast trotter, and good judges say should get a mark of 2:15 or better this year. Mr. Rowan will breed him to seven or eight maros and then train him for the races. He is now at the Randall Stables at Emeryville, and is being jogged on the roads.

Picked Three Good Ones.

Some ten years ago, when Gen. B. F. Tracy was selling off trotters at the Marshland Farm, Al Thomas dropped off there one day and bought four or five mares, none of whom had ever done anything to make General Tracy wish to keep them. One of these mares is Atlanta, dam of Early Reaper 2:09½, one of the sensational trotters of last year; another is Pique, dam of Chain Shot 2:11½, and another is Electa, dam of Selia L. 2:24½. Few men have ever picked out from among the cast-offs of a farm such producers as Thomas did that day at Marshland.

Balancing the Hoof.

With your permission, writes D. V. Soule, of New York city, to the Blacksmith and the Wheelwright. I should like to say a few words on the subject of balancing the hoof of the horse, which I sincerely hope will be of some value to your readers.

In your journal, also several others, I have read many articles on balancing the foot of the horse, yet many of the writers give little or no information upon the subject. Many of these communications seem to be articles that are merely copied, yet the writers claim to be the authors of the information.

I have yet to see the work of any author, previous to the publication of "The Foot of the Horse," by the late David Roberge, in which it is claimed that a horse is unsound only through an unbalanced foot bone (called pedal or coffin bone), except where accident is the cause. The correspondent, therefore, that claims the only way to retain soundness is by balancing the pedal bone is, I think it safe to say, in possession of a copy of "The Foot of the Horse," and that is where he received his information.

Now, as there has been so much said about balancing the foot, let us talk about unbalancing the foot. Let us sacrifice something in order to learn. I really believe if the horseman and shoer will try the following he will receive the key to cure lameness much sooner than by trying to balance the foot. Take, for instance, a perfectly sound horse—one that has a perfect standing and true gait; measure from his hind feet at toe to forward feet at heels with a rule; note how many feet and inches he stands apart, and without cutting feet adjust shoes on forward feet with toe calks one inch in height; no heel calks. On hind feet put shoes with heels one inch in height; no toe calks. Drive your horse, and when cooled out measure his standing as you did previously, and you will find that he will stand further apart—several inches, probably a foot or more.

After this has been done shoe him again; this time raise heels on forward shoes with calks one inch in height; no toe calks. Hind feet shoe with toe calks one inch in height; no heel calks. Drive horse, then allow a day or two, and measure as before, and you will find the horse to stand much closer together than he did at first.

These two unnatural positions are called pointing. What have we done? We have caused the horse to stand apart by raising the apex of the pedal bone of the front feet; we have strained the perforans tendon, commonly called back tendon, which caused him to point forward. By raising the wings of the pedal bone of hind feet we lessen the tension of the perforans tendon and for the horse to receive an equal bearing he is obliged to point backward with his hind feet, thus standing apart several inches, which position, of course, is unnatural and is often mistaken for a sign of what is termed chest founder, which disease never has existed and never will, for it is simply an unbalanced foot bone which causes the horse to stand in such a position to ease pain.

Now that we have caused the horse to assume two unnatural positions, how easy it is when we see cases of standing too far apart to remedy such by raising he heels of the forward shoes (providing there is not enough hoof at the toe to be removed) to allow the horse to receive a perfect balance, which will again allow him to assume a natural position.

A Humane Driver.

John Reilly was a prisoner at the Desplaines street police station, Chicago, one day last week, but he did not care for that. His horse stood outside the station and was hungry and thirsty. This fact entered the prisoner's soul. He finally sent for Justice Doyle.

"I want to get out of here just five or ten minutes," said the prisoner. "I will not run away and I will go no further than to the street."

"But why do you wish to go out?" he was asked by the justice.

"I want to feed and water my horse," was the prompt reply. "The poor animal has been standing in front of the station several hours and I know he must be hungry and thirsty."

"I am pleased to note your love for your horse," replied his honor. "If all horse owners were as thoughtful for the welfare of their mute friends this world would be better and more cheerful."

And Reilly was permitted to leave the station, and after feeding and watering his horse he returned and stood trial for disorderly conduct, the case being dismissed after the evidence had been heard.

W. A. Clark, Jr., son of Senator Clark of Montana, has bought of Matt Dwyer, Brooklyn, the brown trotting gelding Will Lano 2:18½ by Milmarch 2:17½, dam by Ohio Knickerbocker. The horse was bought to drive on the road. Mr. Clark is now negotiating for a fast pair.

Dodd Dwyer's Reminiscences.

The following interesting prattle of California racing ten years ago, was written for the American Horse Breeder by Dodd Dwyer and printed in the issue of that journal of January 15th:

In your last issue I noticed that this is the time of year to have our stove races and talk over our fun of past years. I saw it stated in a late number of the Breeder that The Roman 2:18½ by McKinney 2:11½, dam Wanda 2:14½, was sold for the reported price of $5000. That item reminded me of the race I saw between his sire and dam. It was in 1892, I think. (In case I make a mistake in these ramblings please correct me. They are all from memory, having no data. The race I speak of took place in Los Angeles, Cal.) The date was October 24, 1891.—ED.] In it were Tom Keating with Frank M., Bill McGraw with Silas Skinner, William Vioget with Wanda, Charlie Durfee with McKinney and another horse I cannot remember the name of.

Those good fellows, Wm. Vioget and Tom Keating, have passed over the great divide. They left few foes and did much good while alive. The race was actually a race between north and south California. The three first represented the north, and the Aleyone king was out for the money. I had Kate Castleton 2:26½ at that time, and she was bred to McKinney. I brought a bunch of beef cattle into Los Angeles, and of course the punchers had to have a day off to see the race.

One of the Northern horses won the first heat, and McKinney won the second, notwithstanding all the Northern monkey work. The Northern horses were all stabled in one section, and when they scored down for the third heat you could see a caucus had been held, and the North had to win under any circumstances. When they entered the stretch Wanda was leading McKinney about a length. The latter was on the inside and had plenty of room to get through, but Vioget tried to pinch Durfee and he was a bad man to pinch. I know that from the fact of having to buy a new sulky. When they got to the wire the shoulder straps of Wanda's arm boots were on McKinney's sulky. Of course there was a howl as the followers of the Northern horses had about $10,000 on this event, and I think they gained their point.

In scoring for the fourth heat one of my cow punchers was down near the distance. He had a gun a yard long and casually mentioned that if any more funny work went on somebody's horse would go under the wire without a driver. McKinney won the fourth and fifth heats. I think without exception he was the best race horse I ever saw. I never saw him make a break and when he struck the stretch and Durfee went to the bat, few on this earth could head him.

That reminds me of the first race that Klamath, driven by Tom Ryan, and McKinney, driven by Durfee, ever had. Durfee had about a length the best of it at the head of the stretch and was taking things easy. Tom went after Klamath, saying: "Eat him up Cookie." "Yes," Durfee said to himself, "you eat eat up small fish but you can't swallow this stud." But Charlie loafed too long. Tom beat him to the wire by half a length.

Durfee tells some good ones on himself. He went to Sacramento (Cal.) State Fair once with a horse he wanted the society to make a special race for. The committee did not think it would pay. When Edwin Smith, the Secretary, told Charlie he could not accommodate him, Durfee got hot and swore he never would enter another horse at the State Fair. Smith politely replied, "Mr. Durfee, the State Fair was going on before you drove a trotter, and no doubt they will be open to take entries from your grandchildren." Durfee looked at him and said: "I guess it's up to me, Mr. Smith."

I lived in San Bernardino, Cal., for 14 years, and may say that it was the sportiest, hottest little town on the Coast. As poor Johnnie Goldsmith used to say, if the right horse did not win it was a common occurrence to see pieces of ears and noses lying around the judges' stand next morning. I was trying to get Ed. Lafferty to take W. Wood and Keating to take Our Dick to San Bernardino for a special race in 1892. Keating had heard the stories of the hot town. While we were making arrangements for the race I noticed that Tom had on a pair of very low shoes. I told him if he came up there he would have to wear long-legged boots, as the rattlesnakes and tarantulas were very thick. He replied, "I don't care a god darn for them if the men will only let me alone." He came all right, and was never treated better in his life, so he told me many a time.

That reminds me of something else. The night of that race Keating and William Rourke, breeder and owner of Hazel Kinney 2:09½ were driving in from the track when a scrapper named Jim Logan caught their horse's head and said he was going to ride with them. They were riding in a cart that would carry two and Billie didn't feel disposed to take in a third party. By the way, this same Billie is hot stuff. He will not take any blazer. He said to Keating, "Hold the mare a minute," and jumping out he got hold of part of the fence rail lying on the road and laid Mr. Logan out.

Keating said, "You killed him."

Billie replied, "There's more like him."

Keating was not satisfied to leave the fellow that way and tried to bring him to life. He came to all right, and on opening his eyes he asked, "Who hit me?"

Billie replied, "I did."

"What's your name?"

"My name is Rourke."

Logan got up with some blood on his countenance and in his scalp, and he said, "Mr. Rourke, you're a gentleman."

Another little incident I remember was the first time I ever met Tom Keating. It was at Sacramento, Cal., in 1889. Uncle Joe Kelly of Valentine 2:22½ fame, and myself were out on a tour, and we had the old horse and two other skates for specials, Tom wanted to have a race in Reno, Nev. He had Sensation at the time. Joe took Valentine up with some of my money and he should have won dead easy, but the high altitude threw the horse out of form, and he could not race a little bit. Keating told Joe on the way up that the climate would make a great difference in his horse, and warned him not to bet too much on Valentine. When the latter left California he could go all day in from 2:22 to 2:23, but in Reno 2:29 or 2:30 tied him up. We came out all right. Right here I must say that if there was a kingly entertainer Tom Keating was the man.

In looking over these items I may say that to some of your readers this may appear like a Keating-McKinney epistle, but I have no excuses to offer, only that I always considered Keating the greatest man and now consider McKinney the greatest horse there ever was. I bred to McKinney 2:11½ as a three year old and also as a four year old, and had the bad luck to be the only breeder whose mare missed having foals two years, in succession. The horse was not to blame, as after experience demonstrated. Who will gainsay the claim I make above when a stallion puts 15 in the 2:15 list (and was not kept for choice mares) at 13 years of age and takes a four year old record of 2:11½, and is sired by the great Aleyone, dam by Gov. Sprague?

I am sorry I cannot give you any local items at present. We have no ice yet, but will tell you about the fun we have later on. Yours truly, DODD DWYER.

Armies Must Be Mounted.

As Thomas Carlyle expressed it some years ago, "Brute force still rules the world." This Republic is no exception to the rule. We are now to have an army of 100,000 men, and a goodly number are to be cavalry. As we are now estimating the future of the horse industry on venal lines only, it is easy to see what influence the vastly destructive forces of war will have upon the immediate future of that industry. We are not here to discuss whether it is a good or a bad thing to inaugurate the twentieth century with the picturesque splendors of militarism, but we are here to discuss the economic influences of prevailing environments upon our chosen field of effort—the horse. The war in South Africa has already demonstrated the fact that all the English war experts were wrong in predicting that the present long range muskets that kill at a mile and a quarter, and the dynamite shells that carry and kill at five miles, would make cavalry practically useless in real red handed war. The Boers have had practically no army but cavalry and light artillery. The English have had largely infantry and long range heavy artillery. And the story of the war already told is that twenty thousand Boer cavalrymen have evaded and constantly harassed the English army of 200,000 men. And England has learned what she has learned at the cost of $500,000,000, and the lives of over 20,000 soldiers. The atmosphere on both sides of the Atlantic is surcharged with the military spirit. And it takes no prescient prophet to predict what this means for the war horse. And all our horses are war horses.—Western Horseman.

Mambrino King.

H. H. Cross, the noted animal painter, who painted the picture of Mambrino King for C. J. Hamlin several years ago, in speaking of the dead sire, said: "Without a doubt he was the handsomest horse in the world in his prime. I painted him as a three year old for Mr. Herr, of Lexington, Ky., and some years later for Mr. Hamlin. When I heard of King's death I was in Alaska on a hunting trip. I immediately wrote to Mr. Hamlin my regrets at so great a loss, and added that in the show ring Mambrino King was never really defeated, but sometimes cheated. I never expect to see a horse of his magnificent carriage. When posing for a picture or on exhibition at Madison Square Garden I believe that Mambrino King actually knew that he must act and look his prettiest."

HAMBURG BROUGHT $60,000.

William C. Whitney Purchases the Great Son of Hanover.

It was a cold, stormy night in New York last Wednesday evening when the sale of the Marcus Daly horses began at Madison Square Garden under the management of the Fasig-Tipton Company, with William Easton as auctioneer.

The first animal to be offered was the famous stallion Hamburg. When the stallion was brought into the ring the bidding commenced at $25,000. It was immediately raised by one bid to $40,000, then to $41,000 and next to $45,000. Here the figure stood for a moment and then advanced by easy stages to $58,000, and finally to $60,000. For that sum the horse at last was sold to William C. Whitney, being bid in by John F. Madden who formerly sold Hamburg to Mr. Daly. The principal opposing bidder was J. B. Haggin, the California horseman, owner of the famous stud at Rancho del Paso.

Hamburg, a son of Hanover and Lady Reel, was foaled in 1895 and was purchased by Mr. Daly from John Madden at the reported price of $41,000. As a two year old he won twelve out of sixteen starts, was second three times and third once. The next season he lost the Belmont stakes to Bowling Brook by a close margin, but immediately after began a phenomenal series of successes, during which he won the First Special at Gravesend, the Swift and Realization at Sheepshead Bay and the Brighton cup at Brighton Beach. He was retired as a three year old and placed in the stud.

The following horses brought $500 or over at the first night's sale, fifty-two head being disposed of and John Mackay, acting for J. B. Haggin being the largest purchaser in point of numbers:

THE SADDLE.

Joe Ripley made his reappearance on the turf last Saturday after an absence of several seasons and showed some of his old time form, running second in a race at a mile. It is to be hoped that he received no money for finishing second as he was not eligible to start, the conditions of the race being "for horses that have started and not won since September 1, 1900."

Place and show horses seem to be in hard luck at Tanforan. On two occasions last week horses which finished third were placed outside the money by the judges, and on Saturday in the race won by Dolly Westhoff the occupants of the stand were unable to separate the second, third and fourth horses, and finally decided to call it a dead heat between Grand Sachem and Dandy Jim for the place.

Curly Brown claimed Sad Sam out of a selling race last week. The horse in his first start in his new owner's colors showed great improvement, forcing Joe Frey to run six furlongs in 1:12 $\frac{3}{4}$ (a new track record) to beat him.

Bill Garrett is a pretty shifty sort of selling plater just at present. Last Monday he took up 111 pounds and ran six and a half furlongs in 1:33 $\frac{3}{4}$, cutting three seconds off the track record and winning cleverly from Gold Or and Ordnung, which both appeared to be outclassed by the winner.

The end of the litigation between Jockey Coburn and Atkins & Lottridge appears to be at hand. Mr. Lottridge stated that he had disposed of Coburn's contract to George Bennett the turfman and bookmaker. Coburn is riding in excellent form at present and should prove one of the stars on the Western tracks during the coming season.

California race goers had an opportunity to see Tod Sloan at his best last Saturday in the Winter handicap. His handling of The Lady in this race was a masterly piece of horsemanship, the like of which was never before seen on a California race course. Sloan is certainly worthy of the great reputation he has gained and enjoys the distinction of being in a class by himself.

The second race on the card at Tanforan last Monday, in which Marshal Neil went to the post on odds on favorite, was a ridiculous farce from every standpoint. Such races do no good to the sport and it is to be hoped that some action will be taken by the stewards to prevent a repetition of such an occurrence.

The entries for the stake events of the Latonia Jockey Club, which closed on January 15th, were given out last week as follows: Clipsetta, for two year old fillies, fifty-six entries. The Hareld, for two year old colts, sixty-five entries. Tebacco, for three year olds and upward, fifty-five entries. Turf Congress Handicap, forty-two entries. Derby for 1901, seventy-eight entries. Oaks for 1901, forty-eight entries. Derby for 1902, fifty-eight entries. Oaks for 1902, fifty-two entries.

The highest price ever paid for a yearling was given by W. S. Sievier at the Eaton Stud sale at Newmarket, on July 4th, and it was 10,000 guineas, or nearly $50,000, for a filly by Persimmon, winner of the Triple Crown in England, and Ornament, by Bend Or. At the coming sale of the late Mareus Daly's Bitter Root Steek Stock in New York a yearling filly bred on exactly the same lines is to be sold. She is by Persimmon, dam Field Azure by Bend Or. Field Azure has already been the mother of winners, Harp Or, Wreath Or and Admiral Dewey, all by Kilwarlin, having given good accounts of themselves. Admiral Dewey especially distinguished himself, as he won last year the Sandown Foal Stake at Sandown, the distance being one mile and a quarter. Among those he defeated was Winnifreda, winner of The Oaks and Strongbow. It will be interesting to watch and see how much this royally bred youngster will bring in America, as compared with what was given for her relative in England.

Among the heirlooms of the Reiff family years hence that will no doubt be very highly prized will be the following dispatch received by the diminutive jockey, Johnny Reiff, from King Edward VII. of England in response to a message of condolence sent him on the death of his mother, the Queen. "My Dear Little Johnny: Your tender message of sympathy to me in this, the saddest hour of affliction that I have ever known, will be one of my most cherished assurances of a brave American boy's love. I thank you. Your true friend and comrade in the old days.

EDWARD VII."

According to a Memphis dispatch, C. J. Fitzgerald, the well known starter at the metropolitan tracks, is to start at the spring meeting of the New Memphis Jockey Club. Capt. James H. Rees will be judge and Col. S. M. Apperson one of his associates.

All doubts as to whether Imp will race again or as to where she will race are set at rest by a letter received by Secretary Ralph Bayard of the Brighton Beach Association, from Dan Harness. It is as follows: "Dear Sir: Your letter of the 10th inst. is received. My friends have prevailed upon me to let Imp go out again, and I have made arrangements with Mr. Peter Wimmer to handle her the coming season. She will leave home about February 1st for New York, in company with the Wimmer horses, which are wintering in Kentucky. I am sorry, very sorry, that she is not in the Brighton Handicap and cup, now closed, of which you send me printed copies of the entries. Imp is, to all appearances, as good as she ever was, and if Mr. Wimmer gets her on edge the horses that beat her will know they have been to the races."

Mr. Broderick Cloete, the wealthy English turfman who has been spending a few weeks in this State, has purchased the contract of jockey Willio Buchanan from Barney Schreiber, the St. Louis bookmaker and horse owner. Under the terms of the contract to ride on the other side, Buchanan is to receive a salary of $8000 yearly for a term of three years with permission to accept outside mounts. Richard Marsh, who trains the horses of Mr. Cloete, also has charge of the racing stable of his Majesty King Edward VII. So it is more than probable that Buchanan may fall into the position which was at one time reported to have been assigned to Ted Slean.

One of the statisticians of the turf shows that no less than thirty-three year olds last year won $5000 or over, and that the total winnings of this bunch amounted to $321,715. By his victory in the Champion Stakes at Sheepshead Bay, Pierre Lorillard's David Garrick heads the list with $25,510. F. D. Beard's Prince of Melbourne, winner of the Realization, is second, with $22,415, and Sidney Lucas, the American Derby winner, third, with $20,759. The Lady, who is fourth, with $13,109, won twenty-two races, no filly, either in this country or England, having won that number before it is said. James McLaughlin's First Whip, with eighteen wins, heads the list of the colts in the matter of races won.

A correspondent asks the age and breeding of Wing. She is recorded in the Stud Book as a bay or brown filly by imported Dundee (son of The Rake and Flora Macdonald by Knight of the Garter), first dam Rightwing by Renown, second dam Beeswing by Ballinkee, third dam Orphan Girl by Muggins, fourth dam by Wagner, fifth dam by Stockholder.

There will be at least thirty American jockeys riding in Europe the coming season. Among those who have crossed the ocean or contemplate doing so are Lester Reiff, Johnny Reiff, Maher, Gray, Freeman, Henry, Spencer, Jed Waldo, Will Waldo, Rigby, Cash Sloan, Mergan, J. Weber, Jenkins, Eddie Jones, McJoynt and McIntyre.

The steeplechase jockey De Soto, who was suspended indefinitely at Hawthorne on August 17, 1899, for a peculiar ride on Thomas Hurn's Uncle Jim, was informed by Secretary Hopper yesterday that the suspension had been removed and his license granted last October. De Soto may ride this season for John Brenock.

Chacornac, b g, 4, by imp. Juvenal, dam imp. Lactitia, and Tommy Atkins, ch c. 3, by imp. Masetto, dam Quesal, the property of J. R. and F. P. Keene, were sent to England on Saturday, January 19th, by the steamer Marquette. They will join the balance of the Keene stable at Newmarket. Chacornac won the Futurity of 1899, but only started in one race last year, when he received an injury which laid him up the latter part of the season. Tommy Atkins was one of the two year old cracks of 1900, and both should be heard from on the English turf. Tommy Atkins is engaged in the English Derby.

Commande is entered in the American Derby. Ballyhoo Bey is also in that event, and the meeting of the three year olds at Chicago will be one of the most interesting races of the year should the stars of the past season be fit for the race. Mr. Keene has an idea, and James Rowe shares it with him, that Commande will be a good horse over a distance of ground; perhaps a better horse than Tommy Atkins. If they are correct in their notion Commande will have a splendid opportunity to show his class at the long routes when he strikes the Derby crowd.

Trainer Julius Bauer, who manages the stable of A. Featherstone, has been on a trip through Europe, and had his eyes opened while abroad. On his return to New York last week he said: "I do not think there is any antipathy among English racing men toward American trainers, horsemen or jockeys of good class. I believe that all the talk and trouble of that nature that came up last season was due to the hangers-on and 'teuts' that invaded the English tracks from this side, and represented themselves as this or that American jockey or well known horseman."

E. S. Gardner, Sr., turfman and breeder, died at his home Avendale, near Nashville, Tenn., January 26th. Mr. Gardner was proprietor of Avendale stud, at the head of which is imp. Quicklime, and was widely known to turfmen throughout the United States. The mare Ida Pickwick made the Avendale colors famous in the West; Mr. Gardner was 57 years old, and a man of wealth.

The London Sporting Times says it is not likely the King's colors will be seen on the turf during the period of mourning. His stud will probably be transferred temporarily to Marcus Beresford.

Jockey Richard Clawson, who has been ill with pulmonary trouble in the Adirondacks for some time, is reported as having taken a turn for the worse, and under the advice of his physician will soon go to Asheville or some other place in North Carolina in the hope of recuperating his health. Clawson's trouble was brought on by trying to keep down to riding weight last year.

Upon the invitation of President McKinley, Troop A, Ohio National Guard, of Cleveland, will act as his personal escort at the inauguration ceremonies in Washington, March 4th. This is the second time the troop has been honored in this manner. The troop is making preparations to secure eighty coal black horses for the occasion. Four years ago the troop's horses were the admiration of every one. J. B. Perkins, a prominent man of Cleveland, scoured the entire country to get eighty horses of the same color, all black. After the inauguration people paid fancy prices for the famous blacks, but two months later complaints were received from many purchasers that the black had commenced to wear off. A few brown horses had been painted black.

The Lady ran a remarkable race in the Winter Handicap at Tanforan last Saturday and showed herself to be a mare of high class and great speed. Mr. Ezell has received several offers for the mare and may sell her; it was reported that Burns & Waterhouse had made a tempting offer for her, with a view of starting her in the Burns Handicap. These gentlemen have been very desirous of winning this stake for a number of years past, but have never been able to get a good horse to the post fit. The Lady, on the form shown in her last race, certainly looks to be the best prospect for a winner out of those liable to start in that event.

Buchanan has at last succeeded in winning with a short priced favorite, and it is now up to Tommy Burns.

Brenhelda's race last Tuesday was a most disgraceful one and will gain no laurels for her owner or trainer. She showed no speed at any part of the route and finished outside the money in a field which she outclassed "from shoes to plates."

Cunard a green two year old colt by imp. Goldfinch-Lucaia from the string of G. B. Morris won his first start on Tuesday last, running the three furlongs in 35 $\frac{1}{2}$ seconds, which is a new track record for Tanforan Park.

The colors of D. E. White were seen at Tanforan last Tuesday after an absence of three years or so from local tracks. Mr. White uncorked a good thing in the last race, The Phœnician, ridden by Bullman, was the real goods, and was taken to the front at gate raise and every post made a winning one. Mr. White backed his horse heavily at sixes and made a large winning over his victory.

One of the best known turfmen in England, Sir George Chetwynd, an owner of thoroughbreds and a life long friend of the Prince of Wales, has been speaking of English racing matters said: "All this hue and cry about doping horses is worse than silly. Doping has been practiced on the English turf for twenty-five years. My horse, Chypre, winner of the Ascot stakes in 1875, went to the post doped. It was a lazy and unmanageable brute, and needed stimulant. Voracity the Cambridgeshire winner in 1888 proved the efficiency of dope."

A new owner to make his bow to the turf this year is William Spence, now owning the famous Maximo Gomo. He was at one time a steeplechase rider, later it is said, a valet to Jockey Clawson. He was also at one time a commissioner for Sam C. Hildreth.

Mr. Edward Cerrigan, who sailed for England a week ago last Saturday, took with him two promising young jockeys, "Jed" and "Willie" Walde, sons of the Kansas City turfman. "Jed" is 15 years old and "Willie" 13. Both boys have been riding with success during the past year, and according to Mr. Cerrigan, will make their mark among the lightweight jockeys riding in England.

The winter meeting at Chesapeake Bay Beach has been declared off, owing to an attachment for $46,000 having been secured against the improvement company. The company last fall held out great inducements to owners, and also applied to the Jockey Club for a license, which was refused. Still a meeting was announced to begin directly after the close at Bonnings, but it was postponed from time to time, until now it is declared off for the winter at least.

News comes of the death of Handball, recently sold by Col. Milton Yeung to the Cobham stud of England. He contracted pneumonia on the trip over. Handball was a chestnut colt by Hanover-Keepsake by Onondaga, was foaled in 1895, and bred by Milton Yeung at the McGrathiana stud, Lexington, Ky. His racing qualities were leased to P. J. Dwyer, and as a two year old he started twenty-three times, winning on three occasions, and being second in no less than fourteen events. His principal victories were the Expectation and the Tremont stakes at Brooklyn. As a three year old he started in twenty-one races, winning four, being second eight times, and third twice. He won a mile handicap at Morris Park, the Tidal stakes at Coney Island, carrying 122 pounds; the Jerome handicap at Morris Park, and the Bronze Hightweight handicap at Morris Park, with 126 pounds up. As a four year old he started four times, was first once and third twice, his solitary win being a selling race at Brooklyn. Last year Milton Yeung traded Handball with the Cobham stud for Sorcerer by Ormonde-Crucible. Sorcerer arrived safely in this country and is now at the McGrathiana stud farm.

The directors of the new Louisville Jockey Club have decided to add six more days to the spring meeting, making eighteen in all. This is three more days than has ever before been given the patrons of the Louisville race track, and entails an additional expense of $15,000 for purses, none of which will be less than $400. The Derby will be run on April 29th. There were no changes in the officers of the Jockey Club.

Breeders should avail themselves of the opportunity offered this year to breed a few mares to Mr. Ed. Corrigan's two grandly bred stallions, Riley and imported Artillery. Riley is a son of the great Longfellow, was himself a stake winner and is a sire of stake winners. Imported Artillery is a son of the great Australian sire Musket, and left many winners in Australia and already has a number here. The stallions will be bred to a few outside mares at terms that will be made known by addressing Mr. J. J. Green, manager of Mr. Corrigan's Monument Ranch, Sacramento, Cal. It is Mr. Corrigan's intention to breed his imported stallion Brantome by St. Simon, to about half the mares on the Monument ranch this season, the other half to be divided between Riley and imported Artillery. The great success the St. Simon-Musket cross is meeting with in England, America and Australia, has led Mr. Corrigan to try a union of these two crosses on his own farm. He will therefore save his Artillery fillies to breed to Brantome in 1893.

LARGER PURSES will be offered on the Grand Circuit this year than for many seasons past. The purses already announced provide for nearly half a million dollars, and the horse that goes through the circuit, starting at Detroit and is able to finish inside the money with any regularity, can earn a large sum for his owner. Readville will renew the $10,000 Massachusetts for 2:13 trotters, and Providence has raised the value of the Roger Williams to the same amount. Both Readville and Providence will give $10,000 for pacers. The M. & M. and Chamber of Commerce at Detroit will give the horses of both gaits chances to win large sums at the opening of the circuit, and all down the line stakes of $1000 to $20,000 will be offered this year. We are not of those who believe that all the California bred horses should be kept at home to race for the small purses which our local associations can afford to offer. California, considering its population, gives more and larger purses for trotters and pacers than any State in the Union, but we cannot compete with the Grand Circuit, which consists of ten meetings divided between seven of the most densely populated States. We say, therefore, to our owners and trainers who have high class horses and can afford the trip, to enter on the Grand Circuit and may you win money for yourselves and fame for your horses and State. Horses that can trot four or five heats in 2:12 or better may earn large sums in the East. If they are not up to that point of speed and endurance they have no business monkeying with the Grand Circuit buzz saw. We believe California will have a very good harness circuit this year—ten weeks or more of purses ranging from $500 to $1000. There will probably be not very many of the latter, but as many as the association can possibly afford. Many horses have been taken East in the past with the idea of making a tour of the big meetings, but after arrival the owners found that the only way to earn expenses was to race for small purses on the half-mile rings at the country fairs. We often hear horsemen refer to the old days when $1000 purses were the rule here, but it must be remembered that those were the days of ten per cent. entrance and when the annual race meet of one week was about the only amusement the people of the country districts had. There was more money in circulation then, farmers were getting rich selling wheat at 2 cents a pound, while now they are going broke trying to make a living with the cereal at 70 cents a hundred. But matters are improving. The farmers are finding that well bred horses, cattle, sheep and hogs can be produced and sold at a profit and the day of the big wheat farm is passing. California is better off this year than she was last, and progress is the word in almost every line. The district associations that give fairs and race meetings this year will doubtless give as large purses as they can possibly afford, and horsemen will find that horses that can win here can earn a pretty fair sum. Horse values are going up and a well-mannered horse that is fast or stylish can be sold for a fair price. So we say, train your horses this year. There will be plenty of racing here at home, and if you develop a real crackerjack there is big money for him in the East.

SOME OF THE Western associations are talking of giving free-for-all stallion races for big money, in imitation of the one which was so successful at Readville last season. In looking over the material for sensational events in 1901, it looks as though a free-for-all class, open to mares, stallions and geldings would be better than one exclusively for entire horses. Of course, the great danger in such an event would be the possibility that The Abbot would either frighten out the others or would so far outclass them in the public mind as to detract from the interest in the race. In an event open to stallions only, however, Cresceus looms over the others as much or more than does The Abbot over the whole lot. Then again there is little new material in sight for a stallion race, while an open event would doubtless bring out Lord Derby 2:07, Georgena 2:07½, Boralma 2:08 and others which last year showed free-for-all speed. There are a great many horsemen who think it would be a mistake to leave out Boralma, as they believe Mr. Lawson's gelding to be the coming trotter.

THE BELSHAW BILL, which provides that pool-selling and bookmaking are unlawful unless conducted in the buildings or on the grounds where actual contests are held, has been turned down by the Committee on Corporations to which it was referred. The committee, by a vote of 7 to 1, recommended that it do not pass. Senators R. Porter Ashe and Frank W. Leavitt, who are connected with racing, both spoke in opposition to the measure. They contended that, however desirable anti-poolroom legislation might be, it ought to emanate only from the local legislative body. The trouble with this contention is that small suburban towns can be colonized by a lot of voters from near by large cities and poolrooms thereby foisted on communities that do not desire them. Take Sausalito as an example. The actual residents and property owners of that pretty little town do not desire the poolrooms, but the "water front" controls the elections by voters who have no interest in the town except to work in or about the poolrooms.

A QUARTETTE of three-year-old colts that are considered by the race goers here in California to be a very high class lot, will race at a mile to-day at Tanforan for $1400, of which sum the San Francisco Jockey Club gives $1000 and the owners put up $100 each. Articulate, Brutal, Canmore and Rolling Boer are the colts that will make up this notable bunch of blue bloods and each will have his admirers and backers. Tod Sloan will probably ride Articulate, O'Conner will be up on Brutal, Mounce will guide Canmore, and Nash Turner if he can make the weight will pilot Rolling Boer. The race will be weight for age, seven pounds below the scale. The fact that these four colts are considered to be the best of their age now racing on this coast adds great interest to the event, especially as all four will go East to race this year where they will have to meet the best in America. The race will draw a tremendous crowd to Tanforan if the weather is fair.

A STALLION SHOW will be held again this year at the town of Livermore and the date is set for next month as will be seen from a news item published on another page and taken from the Herald of that progressive town. The show last year was a great success and all want it repeated. No prizes are given at this show, but stallion owners take their horses there with a few of their colts to let the people see what sort of animals are in the stud in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. Last year a number of good sales resulted. We suggest to the horsemen of other cities that they emulate the example of the Livermore people. It will not cost a twenty dollar piece for expenses and will attract many people to the town.

Among the stallions that will be at service at Woodland this year (and that town threatens to be the horse centre of California before long) will be Tuberosa, a six year old son of Falrose 2:19, sire of Don 2:10. Tuberosa is a good sized, handsome stallion that is considered by all who have seen him in his work to be pretty close to a two-minute horse. He has started in but one race and that was at Dixon last year in a local trot. It was in the midst of the stud season and Tuberosa had no preparation for the contest, but he trotted the last half mile of one heat, timed by several reliable parties, in 1:07½ and an eighth of this half was in 15 seconds. Horsemen who saw it say it was one of the most remarkable exhibitions of speed ever seen on a race track. Mr. Nason, of Dixon, issued a challenge to match a two year old full sister of Tuberosa against any two year old in the State for $1000 a side and had no takers. Tuberosa is 16 hands high and weighs 1140 pounds. He is a bay with black points and a magnificent specimen of the American trotting breed. He is in charge of Charles Johnson at Woodland.

Horse Items From Marysville.

On January 25th I made a visit to Mr. William Hogoboom's place at Marysville and spent an exceedingly pleasant day among his horses. On his return home from the circuit last year all the horses campaigned were turned out and since that time have not been in harness.

Eula Mac 2:17½, the little McKinney mare that has gone through the stakes in her two and three year old form and has never met defeat, has filled out into a good sized mare. She, together with the others to be raced this year, will commence jogging the 1st of February. William is confident that Eula will be ready money in her class this year and I think it will be less surprising to read of her going in 2:10 than a great many that are touted as sure to do so as I was told that she trotted a half in 1:04 at Santa Rosa at the Breeders meeting and I saw her step to the half in the second heat of the Occident Stake in Sacramento in 1:05½ and that's speed enough for any one's three year old. Then we all know that the McKinney's improve with age.

He has a brown three year old colt Chas. H. by Lynmont 2:23½ dam Elmoreno that is entered in the three year old stakes for this year that is as fine a looking colt as there is in the State and I think is the best bet of the season that he will be there to score up for the word as Lynmont has a trick of putting a set of wear and tear legs under his colts that stand the necessary drilling to trot young. Mr. H. says that all the colts that he has trained and raced as two and three year olds by Lynmont, not one has broken down and this fellow trotted a mile last June in 2:36 and quarters too fast to write about, after which he was turned out.

I was next shown a bay filly by Lynmont dam by Waldstein that will be raced in the green classes. These three together with two or three that he will handle for other parties will make up Mr. Hogoboom's racing string in 1901.

Daimont, looking big and strong, is being used by Mrs. H. for a driving horse and she says will not be raced this season. I was shown a number of fine looking colts with good trotting action by Lynmont that will be heard from in the future, also their sire Lynmont who at the age of fourteen looks what he is, one of the handsomest big stallions in the State and Mr. H. says he can take him out any day and breeze through the stretch in 34 seconds.

The subject of organizing an Amateur Driving Club is at the present time being discussed among the amateur drivers in Sacramento and there is little doubt but that such a club will be organized in the near future and matinee races held regularly through the spring and early summer and should prove an excellent thing for horse interests here. THE ROADITE.

A Highly Successful Fair.

We found the following item in a recent issue of that newsy journal the Chicago Horse Review:

Secretary W. K. Mohr has forwarded the auditor's report for 1900, which clearly proves the popularity of the great Allentown, Pa., fair. The fair receipts last year amounted to $33,077.61, and the expenditures were $19,401.31, showing a net profit of $14,576. There are few fair associations charging but 25 cents admission fee that can show such large profits. The floating indebtedness is but $11,000, and the total cost of the grounds and buildings almost $112,000. The semi-centennial anniversary of the society will be celebrated next September with more than ordinary splendor. The financial exhibit shows what enterprise and wise management will do for a fair association. Allentown has always been fortunate in this regard without exception.

Interested in what sort of a racing program was offered by an association that could show a profit of $14,000 on a four days' meeting at a half-mile track in a city of 35,000 population, we turned to the issue of October 2, 1900, of the Horse Review, and found the program to be as follows: 2:50 trot $300, 2:33 pace $200, 2:25 trot $500, 2:20 trot $500, 2:19 pace $500, 2:15 trot $600, 2:34 trot $500, free-for-all pace $1000, 2:17 pace $1000, 2:15 pace $600, free-for-all trot $800, 2:24 pace $500, and on the big day Joe Patchen went against time and won in 2:05½, for a sum not stated. The fastest time in any race was 2:09½ in the free-for-pace, and in the free-for-all trot, 2:14½ was the best mile. Allentown is in the centre of a dense population, railroad facilities are good and fares low, and yet four days' racing with twelve races was the extent of the program. It is evident that the Allentown folks know how to nurse a good thing. Many associations in other localities where the conditions are the same would try to string the meeting out to two weeks or more and the result would be that the harness racing would lose its position as a sport, degenerate into a gambling scheme and soon be in ill repute. There is a lesson in the report of Allentown fair that will do to study.

One of the best entered three year old trotters in this country is Neville Graddy by Ondale, son of Onward, dam Gracie N. by Crittendon. He is eligible to start in $51,500 worth of stakes.

KENNEL.

Hunting With the Hounds and Running With the Hare.

A communication from "New Hand" which was published last Saturday by a weekly contemporary, we suggest, might reasonably have been signed "Old Hand." There is a smitch of familiar innuendo pervading it that is not misleading.

Therein the writer, who claims to be prompted by perusing the daily newspaper reports of the recent field trials at North Island, puts several interrogatories as to why Verona Cash was not placed. Continuing he argues, unlogically, a statement that the dog should have been placed.

The daily respaper reports of the trials were in several respects (and this was one instance) highly unsatisfactory and not warranted by the performances of the dogs. Verona Cash in her first heat became lost, she was hunted for fifteen minutes by Lucas on horseback. This undoubtedly militated against her, a dog should follow the handler and work with the gun. A reversal of this does not count in the dog's favor. Cash undoubtedly did good work and is a high class Setter, but the other dogs down in the second and final heats did, it has been decided and conceded, better work, which is fully shown in the report of the trials appearing in last week's issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

In reference to this dog another statement appears (again with familiar car-marks) in the weekly publication referred to as follows: "There was some rather clever work done by the little bitch which might have won her a place without disturbing the feelings of any. It was learned that Judge Johnson, in one or two instances, yielded to the desires of the gentlemen appointed to assist him and the division of third in the All-Age may have been due to such stress." The gentleman who temporarily and ably filled the editorial chair last week answered "New Hand" that he "knew nothing personally" of the matter and further, that "the judge, Thomas Johnson, has proved himself a good, fair and competent man." That some dissatisfaction has been engendered by the press reports of the trials is very evident. But little, if any, exceptions were taken to the decisions by the great majority of those who were present at the trials. We will instance the attempts made to show where Clipper W. was ill-used, not directly, but by intimation. Clipper W. was not judged by what he did in the Northwest, but by his performances at Coronado. Northern Huntress was another dog whose owner was commiserated with. Huntress, who had probably never seen a rabbit, did a little chasing for fifteen minutes that was pardonable, but did not help her any. The handlers of both these dogs, we are reliably informed, admitted their defeat.

Another instance was the Call's report of the heat between the Pointer Vi and Maggie F., in which it was stated that "a serious error" was made and "the decision of the judges was extremely unpopular." The same writer does not reiterate this statement in his own weekly publication. He mentions the heat with six conventional lines! Mr. Sloan has expressed his satisfaction with the result and believes, on his own observation, his dog to have been fairly beaten.

There seems to be an attempt to carry water on both shoulders by praising the winners and placating some of the losers—particularly the owners who were not present; by a style of condolence that is apt to arouse an unwarranted suspicion. It is a peculiar truth that owners of fine animals, of dogs as well as horses, are prone to be susceptible to a condition which Iago worked on when he said:

"O, you are well tuned now!
But I'll set down the pegs that makes this music,
As honest as I am." (Aside)

Another gratuitous "hot air" embrocation (in the weekly) is the account of the heat between Tacoma and Lady Rodschaff in which the latter dog is made to appear severely disabled by cactus thorns, and then further on "it was thought by some to be a mistake to leave out of the second series Lady Rodschaff whose work had been consistent and who had shown herself staunch on points." As a matter of fact the bitch was simply not in form and was unplaced for that reason.

Out of the litter of eight puppies whelped by Phil Wand's English Setter bitch Flora W. (Luke—Victor's Belle) to W. J. Baughn's Count Danstone (Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Dan's Lady) five are yet living and doing splendidly. Mr. Wand still has two dogs and a bitch. John Tate has a dog and W. J. Mentz has a dog puppy recently purchased from W. E. Chute, a hitch puppy belonging to Mr. Chute died of distemper several weeks ago. The latter gentleman has been singularly unfortunate in losing some very promising young Setters, among which we note three puppies by Uncle B.—Dolly Y. and a bitch puppy by Marie's Sport—Dolly Y. The latter died just prior to being entered in the last Derby.

The negotiations between the San Francisco Kennel Club and Mr. C. H. Mason have fallen through and the selection of a judge or judges for the May show is still undecided. We should not be surprised if Mr. J. J. Lynn of Port Huron, Mich., or Mr. James Cole of Kansas City, or both of these gentlemen should be engaged.

Mr. Geo. Raper will judge at the Moscow (Russia) Dog Show. Before going to the land of the Borzois he will attend the Westminster Kennel Club Show. He will leave England for New York on February 6th.

The Spanish Bulldog.

I am happy to take an opportunity of exhibiting the interest I take in Bulldog subjects by bringing to your readers' notice a most valuable discovery made by my old friend Mr. John Proctor, of Antwerp. He and I have for many years had the honor to appear in the character of English judges at the Paris Dog Show. No feature in this delightful exhibition has more interested for us as Britons than the classes which remind us of our national breed, the Bulldog. It is my belief that the Bulldog is but one member of the important family of the Molossus, which is recognizable by the truncated muzzle. I do not claim any originality for this opinion, but I do admire myself for having the courage to brave the wrath of the home fancy by saying so. We have no generic name for this family, but in France they are called Dognes, whence we get our own word dog, but we have corrupted the meaning of it. The heads of the group are the Spanish Bulldog, the dogue de Bordeaux, and the little toy oddities of Paris, bred and reared by Lutetian bootmakers, and lastly, the English Bulldog. It is clear to me as an unprejudiced cynologist, and entirely unaffected by what previous authorities have said on the subject, that the original home of the breed was Spain, where the dog was "made" for a special mission. The fair name of Spain always was, and still is, associated with sport in which the bull plays the leading role. The Spaniard fashioned a dog to suit this sport, with a firm strong body, stout legs, a short neck of powerful muscle, a big head with a wide mouth and prominent upturned underjaw, so that the dog could still breathe while retaining his grip, and the weight would tire out the bull which was unable to fling off the dog. From Spain dogs of this kind migrated to France; it is only a short excursion to Bordeaux, where the services of the dog were in demand as fighting dogs and for dog and donkey contests. Then they traveled up to Paris which has always had an eye for the artistic, so they bantamized the breed to the modern Toy Bulldog.

From France the breed came over to England, and with several other imported varieties, took their place among what modern writers describe as the indigenous breeds of Great Britain. This is a theory carefully thought out to suit those who maintain that the Bulldog is a British product. Personally, I believe that the only breeds indigenous to the British Isles are the Irish and Scottish Terriers.

In English history there is no mention of the Bulldog before the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and I find it quite easy to assume that at a period when the relations between England and Spain were exceedingly strained, and Britannia's sea-dogs were plundering the Spanish coast and worrying their galleons, that among the loot were these doughty dogs. Certain it is that the sport of these animals would take the Virgin Queen's masculine fancy. It is unfortunate that though due credit has been accorded to the gallant knight who about the same time imported the potato, it is still unknown to England whether it was a Drake or a Frobisher, or which enterprising captain it was, who placed his country under a far greater obligation by bringing over from the enemy the animal which has become our national dog. To approach a little closer the main object of this communication. When the late Mr. Frank Adeock many years ago stirred the Bulldog fancy to its depths by the introduction of the Spanish Bulldogs Toro and others, the English fancy turned upon him, and when he courageously put his dogs on the show bench he was told they were "inventions," no pure breed at all, but the result of a freakish experiment with Mastiffs, Bulldogs and perhaps other varieties. The unbelief and prejudice were so strong, and the literary onslaughts so violent, that nobody for years after attached any value to Mr. Adeock's claims, which were simply that his importations were—Bulldogs. A long time after I had the good fortune to encounter, in the Paris show, a magnificent class of dogs called the Dogues de Bordeaux; smaller than a Mastiff but more hulky, brown-red in color, mostly Dudleys, with Bulldog skulls, but the heads larger and more wrinkled; and to my mind these animals were plainly the Spanish Bulldog, or its first cousin. I boomed the variety in the Stock-Keeper, whose readers had never seen nor heard of them before, and the enterprising Messrs. Sam Woodiwiss and H. E. Brooke subsequently imported a few fine specimens and showed them here. Our English fanciers just dropped short of heaving a brick at them, but those who had eyes to see, and were willing to see, recognized that they were in the presence of the ancestors of the English Bulldog. We English are unwilling to be taught anything about animals, and when I imported Toy Bulldogs from Paris my countrymen glanced askance at them until I found the dwarfs an English ancestor or two. As a matter of fact, I think the French Toys owe little or nothing to English descent, but I propitiated my critics. A French friend assured me that these dogs were called Boule-dogs from the round shape of the head, and that their owners did not know the word "bull" nor its meaning. Well, to return, I am quite satisfied that the Bulldog owes its origin to Spain. Mr. Adeock's importations date only some ten or fifteen years back, but if I can show that the Bulldog existed in Spain in the early part of the seventeenth century it will, I suppose, support my contentions. When Mr. Proctor and I were in Paris last year my friend had the good fortune to obtain a most valuable piece of evidence on this point. He found an old bronze plaque. Everybody must admit that this is the head of a cropped Bulldog—Spanish, Bordeaux or English is immaterial. It is a Bulldog. The description above the head reads: Dogue De Burgos, Espagne.

Burgos is the principal town of the province of Old Castile, in Spain, and was noted for the breeding of dogs used in the arena. The date is 1625, and the name of the artist "Cazalla." The appearance of the plaque indicates its age, and everything points to the probability of its being genuine. Anyhow, I give all the particulars, so that whoever cares to make inquiries. Mr. Proctor purchased the medallion in Paris from Mons. A. Provandier, a well known breeder of Toy Bulldogs, who relates that he bought it one Sunday in the Paris Dog Market from a trainer of dogs who visited the market. This man stated that he had it from a bric-a-brac dealer in the Paris Gingerbread Fair, at which time there are always two or three thousand dealers in art ironwork and all sorts of such things, standing by their booths on the roadside. Mr. Proctor took his find to a connoisseur, who pronounced it authentic, and it was then that I decided, with the owner's kind consent, to publish it in England for the benefit of the English Bulldog fancy, who cannot fail to recognize its historic value and to acknowledge the light it throws upon a question which so violently agitated the kennel world when Mr. Adeock brought it forward. I am indeed happy in this wise to be able to hand down Mr. Proctor's name and my own to an appreciative Bulldog posterity.—George R. Krehl, honorary member of the Bulldog Club, in Stock-Keeper.

Doings in Dogdom.

At the English Bulldog election of judges Mr. Sam Woodiwiss topped the poll with 72 votes, and among the rejected was Mr. C. G. Hopton.

Crufts great international show, which takes place in Agricultural Hall, Islington, every February, is this year fixed for February 13th and two following days.

Mr. Wm. Halley, of Sacramento, under date of the 21st inst. writes: "I have sold a Fox Terrier puppy through my 'ad' in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and would like you to note the sale in your Kennel Registry announcements."

The judges at the R. I. Kennel Club will be Mrs. E. O. Giles for Beagles and Foxhounds; Mr. J. Gibbs, Whippets; Mr. Brickley, Boston Terriers; Mr. Geo. Lovell, Pointers and Setters; W. C. Codman, Black and Tans and Pomeranians; Mr. Henry Jarrett, Cocker Spaniels; Mr. H. W. Lacy, all other breeds.

Mr. A. P. Vredenhurgh, secretary of the American Kennel Club, reports that the year just closed was the most successful in the history of the club. Paid registrations in 1900 were 4550 and associate members registrations 330, making a grand total of 4883, against 4044 paid and 274 associate members' registration; a total of 4318 in 1899, showing a gain of 565 registrations for the year.

"Receipts for the month ending December 31, 1900, amounted to $2,533.41, against $2,192.73 for the corresponding month in 1899; a gain for the month of $340.68.

The English Champion Bromley Cribb (58,604) has joined the canine majority. This celebrated Bulldog was taken out on the ice and heaving wet and chilled through falling into the water and not being dried off properly, a cold set in which brought on pneumonia and that, aided by indigestion of the stomach, settled Mr. Croker's four figured Bulldog—it would also settle almost anything else, too. Cribb had the reputation of being a good sire and promised to rank high in the stud. With many he was preferred, aside from his foreface, to Rodney Stone, his kennel mate. For shoulder and body formation Cribb was a model. He was somewhat deficient in layback and muzzle formation, but withal had an expression of intelligence and character that is rarely seen in the breed. He was the English crack until dark brindle Rodney Stone lowered his colors. He was by Royal Duke out of G. Irvine's Maid of Perth and was whelped August 1, 1896. When Mr. Richard Croker, Jr., purchased these two dogs last summer, he took from England the two choicest specimens of the national breed.

James J. Corbett, the pugilist and saloonkeeper, lost a Bull Terrier about a week ago. While one of his friends was in a restaurant at Thirty-sixth street and Broadway he saw the dog with an under-sized man who sat at a table. He ran over to Corbett's saloon and told him about it. Corbett hustled to the restaurant and claimed the dog. The man refused to give up, saying it was his. There was a scuffle, each man trying to get a grip on the Terrier, which showed a preference for Corbett's company. A policeman was called in by the restaurant people and he took everybody to the Tenderloin Station. On the way Corbett picked up several friends and his wife, all of whom were prepared to swear that the dog was Corbett's.

The matter was explained to Capt. Thomas. He decided that all the evidence was in favor of Corbett, who got the dog.

The American Fox Terrier report mailed December 29th indicates that the club paid out in specials $219.50, an increase of $27 over the previous year. The number of members are fifty-eight, Mr. C. L. F. Robinson being elected since the previous report. The winners of specials and stakes are embodied and cover the shows held at Kansas City, Toronto, Danbury, Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

There are nine entries in the 1901 Stud Dog Stakes, two hundred and seventy-five entries in the Yankee Stakes and in this stake for next year the entries already amount to ninety-eight entries. The Fifteenth Grand Produce Stakes and the Stud Dog Stakes will be competed for at New York. And at Boston the Grand Challenge Cup and the Yankee Stakes will be decided.

Mr. Louis M. Rutherford of New York, a prominent society and club man and also an enthusiastic patron of sports, recently passed away at Davos Platz, Switzerland. Mr. Rutherford was the senior partner in the widely known L. & W. Rutherford Fox Terrier Kennels. This sprightly breed being his special canine love. Mr. Rutherford bonched his first Fox Terrier exhibit at the Westminster Kennel Club show in 1879. His brother, Winthrop Rutherford, followed suit the following year, the brothers showed dogs individually until 1881 when the well known and successful partnership was formed which has now been broken by the inevitable. The loss to the Fox Terrier fraternity and to breeders and exhibitors by Mr. Rutherford's call to the beyond is felt keenly. We quote Turf, Field and Farm as follows, showing some of the work of the Rutherfords in reference to benefitting the breed of Fox Terriers:

Among the early importations of Fox Terriers made by the Rutherford brothers were Nailer, by Buff-Activity; Bowstring, by Old Turk, Champion Royal, from Mr. Burbidge's kennel; Belgrave Primrose, bred by Mr. Luke Turner; Splauger, by Dickon-Sutton Veda; that lovely little bitch champion Diana, by Tackler-Belgrave Viola; Danee, by Brokenhurst Spice-Polonaise; Dusky II. and Resume, the latter by the champion of champions, Result. Later they imported Raffle, by Brokenhurst Rally-Harmony; First Flight, by New Forest-Retire; Warren Safeguard, by Venio-Eggesford Sapphire, and Warren Cautious, by Charlton Verdick-Refuge, the last two imported in utero. Their latest importation that has been seen in public is Claudian, by Champion D'Orsay-Clytha Starlight. The Rutherfords, unlike most of our breeders, have not sought the highest priced dogs nor those with the biggest records as winners of prizes, but have bought purely on blood lines with an eye to the improvement of the breed, and by a judicious selection from time to time from the various strains of winning blood obtainable in England they have been eminently successful.

Geo. S. Mott, superintendent of the Westminster Kennel Club, lost recently a Pointer puppy from what he thought might be poison. He had an autopsy performed and the "vet" said that the cause of death was appendicitis. We had heard of several cases of inverted intestine causing death, but appendicitis was a novelty in dog diseases so we consulted Dr. French, the well-known canine specialist, regarding it. Dr. French says:

Appendicitis, or inflammation of the vermiform appendix, is a well-known surgical lesion and is frequently found in dogs, though, owing to the absence of subjective symptoms, difficult to diagnose, many cases being treated for enteritis, the exact cause of death being revealed by the autopsy.

Catarrhal and ulcerative inflammation of the mucous membrane of the appendix without mechanical injury has been frequently observed and is possibly due to the action of a micro-organism.

A frequent cause of appendicitis is the presence of fecal concretions and foreign bodies, as grape-seed, fruit-stones, straw or bone. The foreign body first produces a catarrhal inflammation, and later ulceration and frequently escapes with the inflammatory product through the perforation into abscess or abdominal cavity. The gravest form is when the whole appendix becomes gangrenous or if the perforation communicates with the free peritoneal cavity, giving rise to a diffuse septic peritonitis speedily resulting in death. In favorable recoveries the inflammation does not terminate in suppuration, but gradually disappears.

The symptoms are swelling, rigidity of abdominal wall on right side, localized pain and other symptoms suggestive of circumscribed peritonitis in the ileocecal region. Vomiting and constipation are often present, making a differential diagnosis between an inflammatory lesion in this region and intestinal obstruction difficult, though the absence of a rise of temperature would point to the latter condition.

The mortality in human beings is about one to seven. The usual treatment in early stages is to give a saline aperient, supplemented by enemata and external fomentations, then tincture of opium to relieve pain and keep the inflamed parts quiet. If this is objected, subcutaneous injections of morphia should be administered. If the inflammation does not yield to this treatment, laparotomy and removal of the appendix should be at once resorted to, the strictest antiseptic precautions being observed.—Turf, Field and Farm.

Origin of the Trolling Spoon.

During the last half century a revolution has been brought about in the piscatorial art, through the invention and continued development of the trolling spoon. This device, in its varied forms, is so common to-day that no successful sportsman would engage in a general campaign against the aquatic species without being well equipped with spoon tackle. Yet less than fifty years ago no patent had been taken out on any kind of a spoon bait, nor had the idea of such a bait originated, save by the man who was destined to bring it before the world, and, by devoting his life to the study of the art of luring the finny tribe and the perfection of his invention, to become famous in every clime. Perhaps not less interesting than the development of the trolling bait is the life and personality of its inventor, the late Julio T. Buel. To Mr. Buel alone belongs the distinction of having discovered the value of bright, shining metal as a means of luring fish to the fatal hook, and of making such a practical application of his discovery that he felt justified in taking out a patent, the first of its kind covering such a device.

Julio Thompson Buel was born in West Poughkeepsie, Vermont, October 12, 1806. During his boyhood the family moved to Castleton, Vt., and the young lad was free to wander "by the brook and in the glade" along streams that contained the finest specimens of "speckled beauties." He also frequented the beautiful Lake Bomoseen, whose waters are wonderfully transparent. Young Buel was early interested in angling and devoted much time to the sport. Before reaching the age of 15, he was recognized by the local Vermonters as a most expert fly fisherman. About this time he discovered the principles of the now famous bait. While on the bank of a trout stream one day he threw some bright pebbles into the water and observed that the trout dashed up to them. After repeating the performance he concluded that a more shining mark would be a greater attraction. Accordingly he secured several pieces of bright tin and threw them into the water, succeeding in causing still greater excitement and activity among the fish.

His next step was to solder a hook on a piece of tin, bent so that the bait would revolve. By drawing this rude bait through the water the ingenious youth snagged a large bunch of fish. A year or two later, when 18 years of age, while eating his luncheon on the bank of Lake Bomoseen, he accidentally dropped a spoon into the water. He was impressed by the gyrating movement of the spoon as it sank to the bottom, and not less so by the appearance of a large fish that struck the sinking spoon. In this incident lies the origin of the "spoon bait." Our inventive juvenile fisherman promptly secured an old brass table-spoon, and polishing the convex side of the bowl, until it shone like the traditional New England milk pan, he soldered a hook on the small end, and to a portion of the handle he tied the line. It was with this tackle that he made his first trolling trip on Lake Bomoseen.

Buel promptly satisfied himself as to the merits of his contrivance, but people generally were disposed to look upon it with the greatest ridicule. One, Wilkinson, laughed heartily at the idea of getting a fish with a spoon, but when young Buel landed a big pickerel, Wilkinson threw himself on the ground and rolled over in astonishment, uttering many forcible ejaculations expressive of his surprise and pleasure. The result of spoon fishing in the lake astonished the natives, who at once adopted the use of the tackle, and after 40 years many were still using the original design, refusing to believe that Buel's first spoon could be improved upon. Mr. Buel, himself, was far more discriminating. He continually experimented with baits, making them in various forms, seeking to secure the strongest construction and the most effective design and action. He purchased only the most expensive piano string steel wire, and ordered bright, polished steel treble hooks, in preference to those having black japanned covering, as the latter might conceal a flaw in the metal. While he continued to develop the "spinning bait" and the "fly spoon," he was also intently studying the habits and tendencies of various kinds of fish. He had been known to lie almost breathless on the shore for a long time, watching the movements of the water population. He became able to detect the faulty action of a spoon at once, from that which attracted and snared the game. Every piece of material entering into the construction of the spoons, and every detail in the work of putting them together was carefully considered. No material was too good or too expensive for the bait. Mr. Buel obtained fine silver for the artificial lures, the color being nearest to that of the fish's belly. Rolled plate was selected in preference to electro-plate because of its greater durability.

Mr. Buel was over 30 years of age when he moved to Whitehall, N. Y., and engaged in the business of a furrier. He had found even greater advantages for studying the character and habits of fish than in Vermont. Whitehall is immediately at the head of Lake Champlain, and but six miles distant is Lake George with water as transparent as glass. Mr. Buel spent a great deal of time experimenting at Lake George, as he could there watch the motion of his spoons as they were drawn through the water. He frequently took long trips into the heart of the Adirondack wilderness to test his baits upon the various fish to be found in the more secluded streams and lakes. Lake George was a rich field for large trout, while in Lake Champlain were breeding the muskallonge, bass and pike. The aim of the inventor was to devise a spoon for each species of fish that would work in each particular case to a nicety. He was fastidious almost to a fault.

It is a singular fact that while sportsmen were enthusiastic in their commendation of the baits, and often in meeting Mr. Buel on his trips, importuned him to engage in their manufacture on a liberal scale, that he did not seem at all disposed to push the matter as a business. He appeared to be more pleased to work with the baits as a pastime. Possibly he had not brought them to a degree of perfection that satisfied him. It was not until 1852 that he took out his first patent, though he obtained a dozen, more or less, in after years. He used to say that he had no intention of making the spoons as a business, but their reputation and the general demand for them became such that he was actually forced to establish a small plant in a two-story brick building on Broad street. He went into the spoon manufacturing business in 1848. The number of men employed was six, and this included Mr. Buel's brother, Harvey W. Buel, who was much interested in the apparatus and became expert in its manufacture. Orders were received from all parts of the United States, and other dealers purchasing direct from the factory, shipped the baits to all countries in the world.

While there are a great variety of the baits, the principal ones are the "spinning bait," and the "fly spoon." The former consists of an arrow-shaped copper plate soldered to an air chamber or "belly," the latter being long, narrow and oval, tapering to a point at each end. The air chamber is silver plated. The rear ends of the copper plate, known as "wings" are turned to resemble a propeller. A small tube extends through the air chamber providing for a large wire, on which the wings, or belly, revolve. The three hooks (if a single set) are attached to the wire mentioned and are stationary. A swivel connects the other end of the wire with the trolling line. The spinners are made in eight sizes, varying from about one inch to four inches in length. Bright feathers are attached to the hook. The fly spoon, which is a spoon proper, is oval and kidney shaped. The spoon is simply fastened on the hook wire with a ring, at a proper interval above the points, and revolves around the hooks when drawn through the water. There are many forms of these spoons with special contrivances, some being two-bladed, others having double set of hooks, etc., but all embrace the general principles described.

Mr. Buel's establishment produced the bulk of all trolling baits that delighted the hearts of sportsmen for many years, but the demand became greater than the house could supply, and the proprietor refused to put in more machinery or to increase his force. As he became advanced in years he felt less interest in prosecuting this work, and the old shop grew dingy. He died in 1886, having reached 80 years.

Mr. Buel was a fine looking gentleman with strong characteristics, who had a very happy faculty as an entertainer. He had an inexhaustible fund of stories concerning his experiences in fishing, and unlike some fish stories, many of his were true. He was recognized as authority by the fishermen of his section of the country. He was familiarly known as "the Judge," and it was the delight of his friends to assemble in the old shop and hear him relate his adventures and discuss his favorite topic while seated on an empty dry goods box, known as "the seat of honor." Mr. Buel was of a good family, and was held in the highest confidence and esteem by all who knew him. He held the office of deputy collector of U. S. Customs for the district of Champlain for several years, and filled other local offices. Alexander W. Buel, a brother of Julio T., was a distinguished statesman of Detroit, Mich., and was a member of Congress when Mr. Buel took out his first patent in 1852. The inventor was related to the family of the late Commodore T. W. Phillips, and also the family of Gen. Grant.

The indications for steelhead fishing at Point Royes to-morrow are said to be first class. The Paper Mill is in good condition and the water clear for spoon fishing. The tide water spots below the railroad bridge, where the fish have favorite feeding places, will be prospected by a number of rod wielders.

Last Sunday the attendance of anglers was a reminder of the old days at the Point when the fishing was a thing of joy to the angler. Notwithstanding the efforts of the many fishermen present the fish caught were but few. No indications of their presence in the water was shown by jumping fish nor did the tell tale "swirl" and blirt of the tail delight the investigating angler as he kept his weather eye open looking for fish signs. Among the Waltonians Sunday were James Watt, who hooked three small fish at the "rock," A. E. Lovett, Chas. Kowell, W. H. Ashcroft, Chas. Breid-son, Andy Logaspe, A. B. Finch, G. Luttrell, F. Carroll, H. Battu, Paddy Doogan, Dooley and some friends, Louis Rondeau, J. B. and C. R. Kenniff, Del Cooper, John Gallagher, who caught an eight and a half pound spent fish last week, O. W. Jackson and Ron McMillan.

There is now quite a run of salmon grilse on and the fish are caught daily at Lombard street wharf—one weighing three and a half pounds was hooked on Friday. A number of fish were caught in the water east of the wharf. Generally the fishermen have fished on an incoming tide and would put out their rods from the wharf side nearest the incoming current. The belief among the frequenters of the dock was that all attempts to catch fish on the opposite side would be futile, the impression, judging from results this week, seems now to be erroneous.

At Sausalito, off the Buffalo hotel wharf, trolley fishermen have been surprised during the week to find grilse caught on their stationary fishing contrivances. A few grilse, it is reported, have also been caught at Lime Point.

The San Francisco Fly-Casting Club members will have their annual banquet at the California Hotel this evening at 6:30 P. M. An unusually attractive program embracing vocal and instrumental music, addresses, etc., will be offered for the evening's entertainment.

THE FARM.

Agricultural Products at the Pan-American.

About one-half of the population of America live in the rural districts. As the majority of these are engaged in farming of a general or special character, their influence on a great Exposition is apparent. Agriculture, like all lines of business, is being divided up and parcelled out into specialties. Soil and climate are the two great factors which determine the special line of production of a farm or community. Business enterprise exerts a great influence in determining the degree of success in any direction. Transportation often decides the kind of crop in spite of all other influences; but the good sense and business qualifications of the individual farmer determines the amount of profit.

No matter what the division may be, the visitor to the Pan-American Exposition may find his special line singled out with up to date methods of cultivation, shipping, marketing and other essential features accentuated. Our own methods in many cases will be contrasted with those of countries of North or South America as well as compared, theoretically at least with other countries.

To realize what competition in business means, and the painstaking care that is exercised in regard to following out minute details, the exportation of eggs from Denmark to Great Britain offers an illustration. A system of co-operation is adopted, deposits established along the lines of railway and an agent stationed at each point who has the right to refuse or accept any eggs offered by the producer. Each egg is required to be marked with a rubber stamp giving the name or mark by which it may be traced if not fresh. No eggs are received if more than four days old and a severe penalty is inflicted if this rule is disregarded. When received the eggs are at once assorted as to size and shipped to Great Britain where they bring the highest price because of the uniform character and general excellence of the product. To make sure that everything is right, they are inspected again upon their arrival. This is done in a darkened cellar, where the egg is made to pass before a strong light and one showing the slightest cloud is reported to the person sending it. This system has resulted in increasing the trade in eggs from Denmark from 1,279,031 great hundreds in 1895 to 2,266,031 great hundreds in 1899. As Great Britain imports about 16,000,000 great hundreds (1,920,000,000) eggs, little Denmark must furnish about one-seventh of the whole supply.

France is sending poultry to Great Britain in especially constructed cars as far as the channel. The chickens are sent alive and fattened on the way, being so arranged that one attendant may look after several cars. The same system is employed in shipping "petit poussin" from Belgium to Paris. These partridge-like broilers arrive in such good condition the restaurant men are willing to pay 48 cents each for them. The experiment is being tried of sending this class of poultry all the way from Russia to England in this manner.

As in the selling product of the poultry yard, so it will be seen in each department connected with the farm. The Exposition is systematically divided into sections. A visit to many sections will sometimes be necessary to follow a production from start to finish, but guide books, maps, etc. will be issued and the effort will be well rewarded.

To Make Wire Cuts Heal.

Barbed wire cuts frequently occur on horses where barbed wire fence is. A writer in an exchange gives his treatment. He says: Allow me to give the treatment in use here and found effectual in cases where the cut was on the breast of horses, the opening being six inches wide and two or three inches deep. These cases healed without any stitching, or leaving an unnatural enlargement, in a short time. Another cure where a horse got his foreleg over a wire and back of the knee haggled to the bone for six inches. This got well without lameness or any enlargement, only a small scar. Another young stallion had the back of his front pastern cut, and was treated with liniments without healing, and an unnatural growth would show and was trimmed with a knife without healing, and when the treatment below was given it healed up in a short time. Wash the cut daily with warm water and castile soap to cleanse parts. Then spray or dampen the injury with a weak solution of carbolic acid, then dust on fresh air slacked lime. There does not appear any need of covering or bandaging the cut, as this will keep off the flies or any unnatural growth.

Fully one-half of the chicks that die in the early spring time are victims of the vermin pest. If the premises are not renovated and the vermin exterminated in the fall it will be next to impossible to raise chicks in such quarters in the spring.

The Cowboys of the Olden Times.

In the beginning, the live stock men ruled the world and they have had a good deal to say as to how things should go ever since writes C. C. Goodwin in Field and Farm. The first book ever written tells of the horse trainers of Troy, and old Homer often turns aside from his great theme to give the pedigree of a horse. While Ajax, Ulysses, Achilles and the others were famous fighters among the Greeks, to Diomed was singled out the glory of possessing more skill in handling horses, and ever since the race that has possessed the best horses has been the world's ruling people. In the old days, the standard of value was live stock, and when men began to coin money, each coin represented the value of some animal.

Thus, the shekel of the Jews meant a lamb and the pecus of the Romans meant an ox. When it was said that a man had not a shekel, it meant he had no sheep, and when in Rome a man was called impecunious, it meant he had no cattle. That man Sisyphus, who founded Corinth, was the most famous live stock breeder of the age. According to all accounts, he did a great business. He had better branding irons, longer riatas and more accomplished vaqueros than any of his neighbors. He got to that country early; he located the valley in which Corinth was afterwards built. He may have had a summer ranch on the mountains. He took up all the springs and he was doing a smashing business until once, when he had bought in all the fat cattle on the near ranges, the gods caught him trying to bribe their oracles to threaten the people with a mighty famine in order to frighten them into laying in their corned beef at increased prices. He had trouble then.

You remember his sentence—that he was to roll a huge boulder up a steep grade in Erebus, but he was promised that if he would once roll it over the divide, he should be given a ranch in Elysian fields—a great range where no sheepmen would ever intrude, where the springs would be unfailing and where the bunch-grass would be richer than it was in Nevada in '60. At last accounts he was still rolling the boulder. That Bible story of how Jacob worked his father-in-law, old Laban, by promising that he would take all the spotted and speckled and striped cattle, giving Laban the cattle of fixed colors was of direct interest to stockmen.

The story of his peeling the hazel and poplar trees and bushes, thus showing streaks of white and brown and green, to have its influence upon the females at certain periods can be taken for what it is worth. My own belief is that Jacob knew a thing or two about stock and knew that the native breeds were all of fixed colors, even as the Devons, Galloways, the Pembrokes and Kylos are to-day; that by some means Jacob had succeeded in introducing some imported males and knew that the next year's calves would be of mixed colors and so took that plan to secure the best animals and to get even with old Laban for making him do chores for fourteen years for his daughter Rachel, when the original contract was that he should have her after seven years.

The following resolution adopted at the National Live Stock Convention last week speaks for itself: "Whereas, The policy of the American government for the past thirty years or more has been to protect home manufacturers and home grown products, and to purify the manufactured article, and, whereas, recent statistical facts disclose the paradox that the present production of woolen and worsted finished fabrics by the manufacturers of wool in the United States is the largest in a period of twenty years and that the consumption of raw wool is smaller at present than at any time during the same period and believing that the cause for this condition arises in a large measure from an extensive use of cotton and shoddy in what is put as so-called woolen goods; therefore be it resolved, by the National Live Stock Association, in convention assembled at Salt Lake City, that we conceive it to be our duty to call the attention of our representatives in Congress to these facts, and ask them to provide and enact such legislation as will prevent deceit and fraud in marketing the manufactured articles as wholly of wool, when in fact the same is made largely from cotton and shoddy, as the case may be, and to provide suitable penalties for violations of the provisions of such an act."

Water supply from flowing wells is called artesian, from the town of Artois, France, where such sinkings were made in the middle ages, but the discovery that water might be so obtained dates back to the older civilization of Egypt, in Asia Minor to a period to historical times and to ancient times in China, Persia, Algeria, Lombardy and the Sahara.

The hen is the housewife's best friend. It is to the hen that most farmers' wives must look for their pending money and where the farmer does his part in providing comfortable quarters nine times out of ten the wife is better provided with spending money than the master of the premises.

Big Sale of Holsteins.

Several months ago the sale of the Oakland Dairy Ranch in San Joaquin county was reported. As stated heretofore the purchasers intend to make the dairy one of the very best to be found anywhere. The following from the Fresno Democrat is of interest in this connection:

Probably the largest sale of registered Holstein cattle that has ever taken place in the United States has been made at the famous Minnewawa farm, where 100 head of full bloods have been sold consisting of 40 cows, and the remainder calves and young stock, including three fine bulls. This fine herd consists of about 280 head, and he sale of these choice full bloods will consist of some of the finest stock in the herd.

No prices are named for publication, but, suffice it to say, only long prices could induce the sellers to part with such a large number of fancy breed dairy stock. It is not the purpose of this noted breeding farm to discontinue the breeding of the cattle, but after the cold weather in the East other stock will be supplied here to fill the place of those sold. The purchaser was Charles D. Pierce, a wealthy gentleman of San Francisco, who will take them to his farm on the San Joaquin river four miles from Stockton, where he has fitted up new barns and houses and will make his place one of the finest in California.

He proposes making butter for fancy trade in San Francisco, and after looking over all the herds in California chose the Minnewawa, because its stock suited him best and appealed to his pride and business judgment as being the animals suited to his wants.

The sale was made through Fulton G. Berry of this city and R. H. Cameron of San Francisco. The stock will remain at the Minnewawa farm until about the middle of February and until Mr. Pierce has completed his commodious barns on the alfalfa farm near Stockton.

Why I Patronize the Creamery.

Because it benefits me financially, makes farm dairying a mere chore to be attended night and morning, one that almost all members of the family can take part in. Because the creamery pays about 3 cents a pound more for butter than the merchants pay, and I get the cash at the end of every month, and it makes me a right nice little pension if I do have to milk the old cow to make it. Then again the creamery helps me to make from $20 to $30 per cow more than to keep her a year to raise a calf from. Then again it is considerably ahead of the old way of making butter and taking it to town and begging the merchant to take your butter and give you groceries for it. When I patronize the creamery, I have the cash to go and buy the groceries with and a good many other things, and if you keep good cows enough you can soon pay the mortgage off or buy an addition to the farm.

These are a few reasons why I patronize the creamery. I have the record of my last year's business with the creamery, the proceeds from 11 cows. I delivered to the creamery, 38,975 pounds of milk, in which were 1545 pounds of butter fat, for which I received $285.60. Skim milk returned, 23,385 pounds, which at 15 cents per hundred, was $35.10. Nine calves, at $25 per head is $225. The total income from 11 cows then is $545.70. —I. B. Brown in Kansas Farmer.

The success of turkey raising depends largely on the selection of the breeding stock. Never use young birds if it can be avoided. If necessary to breed from young hens use a two year old gobble. If a young tom is kept, mate it with two year old hens or older. Never in-breed. A new male each season from a reliable breeder will pay many times the cost in stronger poult. Aim to have the poult hatch as near June 1st as possible. Early poult in this climate are not especially desirable. June hatches should make fine birds by Thanksgiving and Christmas. The hen usually lays from eighteen to twenty-four eggs before wanting to sit, but younger hens sometimes lay double this number. On the whole, turkey mothers are the best, but oftentimes it is best to hatch and rear the first litters with common hens. Eight or nine eggs will be sufficient for a good sized hen. A turkey will cover fifteen to eighteen.

Some interesting facts and figures regarding the manufacture and sale of filled cheese are given in the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue which has just been published. It shows a gradual but steady falling off in the traffic in these imitation goods. The cheese trade of the country was seriously threatened prior to the passage of the law in June, 1896, defining cheese, imposing a tax upon and regulating the manufacture, sale, importation and exportation of filled cheese. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, there was produced and tax paid on 1,574,979 pounds of filled cheese, which shows a decreased production as compared with the previous year of 113,671 pounds or nearly seven per cent. Of this amount only 22,473 pounds were consumed at home, the remainder going for export and branded imitation cheese. The tax is refunded on all stock shipped out of the country.

Frequent inquiries come to us for some good remedy for worms in horses. The following is recommended: Give calomel, three drachms; tartar emetic, three drachms; mix and divide into three powders. Give one powder each night, for three nights in succession, in a bran mash. Forty eight hours after giving last powder give raw linseed oil, one quart, and turpentine two ounces; mix and give as a drench, and at once dose. Repeat in a week or 10 days if necessary.

Pointers for the "Small Farmer."

In concluding a description of Briarcliff Farms, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., owned by Mr. W. W. Law, the Country Gentleman says;

Here are some of the things to which Mr. Law gives sedulous and unremitting attention: He selects his service bulls with the utmost care, both individually and in regard to their pedigrees; he watches the health of his cattle as if they were his children; he requires absolute gentleness in every movement that is made with them, and perfect quiet in the stables; he keeps everything clean to the smallest detail, milkpails always covered, cows' udders and milkers' hands washed, milk repeatedly strained; he knows exactly what every cow does and disposes promptly of the poorer kind; he keeps accounts to a penny, and withal he considers the esthetic side of the business and permits no ugly blot on the landscape.

Cannot the smallest and poorest farmer do exactly the same? Does his poverty in any manner compel him to permit noise or dirt or harshness about his stables or dairy? or leaving a milkpail uncovered? or carelessness in selecting service bulls? or ignorance of the production of each cow? or the neglect to keep a cash account? or leaving the dooryard untidy and repulsive? Weigh these questions, Mr. Small Farmer, we pray you, and compare the principles on which you are conducting your business with those regarded as fundamental at Briarcliff. If they are practically the same—that is to say, if you are just as careful up to the limit of your ability to make the best of everything on the place, as Mr. Law's employees have to be—you may perhaps find little to learn from their methods. If you are not thus careful it may be profitable for you to reflect that you are indulging yourself in easy-going practices which millionaire farmers think they cannot afford! Lay that proposition to heart now, and be wise.

Strippings as a Tonic.

Dr. B. J. Kendall, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., says:

"The last quart of the milking before it has parted with any of the animal heat is the most valuable thing known to build up a person who is thin and emaciated with disease."

This opinion is shared by many of the best physicians throughout the entire land, who prescribe Jersey strippings as being richer and specifically more effective as a tonic than any other milk. Thousands of cases might be cited of the most wonderful effects of this milk tonic. Where it is not practicable to get strippings warm from the cow, they may be saved separate and warmed to blood heat before drinking. Begin with half a pint night and morning and increase as the case calls for it. Some persons take as much as a half gallon a day with excellent results. This rich milk tonic is especially valuable for feeble children and for infants. In feeding infants it is of more importance to use it from the cow so as to avoid any chance of souring. For infants more care too, is needed in regulating the quantity and times of feeding.—Jersey Bulletin.

To Make Durable Whitewash.

Take a half bushel of unslaked lime, slake it with boiling water, cover during the process to keep in steam, strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer and add to it a peck of salt, previously dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stirred in while hot, half a pound Spanish whiting, and one pound of glue, previously dissolved by soaking in cold water and then hanging over the fire in a small pot hung in a larger one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir well and let it stand a few days covered from dirt. It should be applied hot, for which purpose it can be kept in a portable furnace. A pint of this mixture will cover about one square yard.

Some of the departments of the United States Government make and use this whitewash, and it is cheap, durable and effective. Lighthouses are covered with it, and the east end of the White House at Washington is coated with this preparation.

It is good for use on poultry houses, fences and other outbuildings where a cheap, durable paint is needed. Add a little carbolic acid when using inside the poultry house. — Farmers' Advocate.

Scarcity of Old Steers.

In times when any industry is prosperous, there are always croakers who predict overproduction overstocked markets and consequent lower prices, and who throw such like cold-water dashes on men of more hopeful temperament and view. Revival of the cattle industry, with good prices for breeding stock and with farmers desirous of owning better bulls for grading up their herds, make these croakers ominously shake their heads and predict "slumps" in the cattle market. But let such philosophize on the following from the Denver Record-Stockman:

"The scarcity of old steers in the market of this country, so noticeable a year ago, continues, and this is one feature that shows conclusively that the country is keeping the cattle supply close up. Fully 90 per cent. of the steers offered on this market are not over two years of age. The bulk of the offerings are yearlings."

Such reports to the thinking stockman are evidences that overproduction of cattle is not a thing of the near future, when is added to this the fact that ranges are every year becoming more restricted and that our best beef cattle, which the market is demanding, will be fed in small lots and on the farm rather than on the ranges.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

Is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLI-TITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: It is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.

Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. L. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Galy Jr., with 51 straight kills.
It used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

"The Regal McKinney at the Top."

Mr. Winfield James, one of the leading statisticians of the country who compiles many interesting comparative tables for the horse journals, recently published an article in the Kentucky Stock Farm in which he gave a list of the leading sires of 2:15 speed. When Mr. James speaks of 2:15 speed he does not include all the pacers in the 2:15 list, but only those with records of 2:10 or better, holding that 2:15 speed at the trot is fully as meritorious as 2:10 speed at the pace. Mr. James claims that the best evidence of a sire's ability as a producer, is the proportion of his get that have extreme speed, and on this basis he says "the regal McKinney is at the top," and gives the following table to prove it. Now, for a fact, just fifty per cent. of the get of this great son of Aleyone that have taken records are in the 2:15 list, but Mr. James' table omits all pacers slower than 2:10, and even then McKinney is ten per cent. ahead of any other sire in America. The table is as follows, and contains the names of all sires of 2:15 performers that have 30 standard representatives:

Rank	Horse's Names	Proportion in 2:15	Age	Total in 2:30	No. in 2:15	Average Speed

This is a wonderful showing for a comparatively young horse, and it is no wonder that the leading breeders of America are turning their eyes toward him and it need not surprise anyone if McKinney goes East at the close of the present season at a price that will be more than has been paid for a California stallion in many years. The Palo Alto Stock Farm will breed twelve high class mares to him this year, and Mr. Durfee stated to the writer last Tuesday that a dozen more will fill McKinney's book, as he has been booking mares since October.

"Good wine needs no bush," but we cannot refrain at this time from calling attention to a few of the remarkable things about McKinney and his breeding. He was a champion race horse himself. He won 25 out of 28 races, and was the champion four year old of his time with a record of 2:12½ and did not lose a race that year although he raced through the entire circuit. Two years later, in 1893, he made another champion record when he won at Stockton the fastest eight heat race ever trotted up to that time, and in that race took his record of 2:11½. In the stud he has been the champion sire of 2:15 performers of his age ever since his colts and fillies began to race and he now has fifteen of them, headed by Coney 2:02½, one of the fastest pacers the world has ever seen, there being but six horses that have ever beaten his mark and these are Star Pointer 1:59½, John R. Gentry 2:00½, Joe Patchen 2:01½, Robert J. 2:01½, Prince Alert 2:02 and Anaconda 2:02½. As a race horse McKinney was invincible and as a sire he is equally so.

His breeding is so rich in blood that has proven its speed potency that his greatness as a sire is not to be wondered at. His sire is Aleyone 2:27, for his opportunities the greatest of the sons of Geo. Wilkes, as he had but ten years of life. Aleyone's dam Alma Mater, probably the greatest of all broodmares, was by Mambrino Patchen, one of the leading sires of producing dauns, and her dam Estella, a thoroughbred mare whose blood lines are royal even among thoroughbreds of highest breeding.

The dam of McKinney, Rosa Sprague, would be great had she only given birth to this great son, but while several of her foals died before they were raced several showed great speed and one, Sampson, trotted a public trial in 2:14. Rosa Sprague left a daughter, however, in Hetty Case whose daughter Fereno proved the potency of the blood by winning the two year old division of the Kentucky Futurity in 1899, taking a record of 2:17, and winning the three year old division of the same stake last year, reducing her mark to 2:10½ and closing the season the champion three year old trotter of the year. Gov. Sprague 444, the sire of Rosa Sprague, was a wonderful sire. The Year Book of 1899 shows that 38 of his get took records in 2:30 or better, and that 23 of his sons had sired 83 standard performers and 32 of his daughters produced 43 in the list. As Gov. Sprague's entire list of foals is said to be less than 200, this is a marvelous showing. The second dam of McKinney was a full sister to Gen. Geo. H. Thomas, the sire of six in 2:30, and sire of the dams of Billy Andrews 2:06½, Walnut Boy 2:11½, Dyersburg 2:11½, St. Andre 2:13½ and a great many more fast ones. McKinney's third dam was by Mambrino Chief II, one of the greatest progenitors of speed America has produced; his fourth dam by the imported thoroughbred Napoleon; his fifth dam by the thoroughbred horse Tempest that was a grandson of imp. Diomed, winner of the first English Derby.

There are so many horses with fast records closely related to McKinney that a list of those in the first, second and third generations would fill a page. Aleyone, his sire, has eleven 2:15 performers, the fastest being Martha Wilkes 2:08, and is the grandsire of Coney 2:02½, Searchlight 2:03½, Wm. Mac 2:05½ and fifty more with records of 2:15 or better. Alma Mater, his paternal grandam, produced 8 standard performers, and has 46 grandsons and granddaughters with records from 2:02½ to 2:15.

But aside from his speed, his race horse qualities and his power to reproduce both, McKinney has a grand individuality. A magnificent, intelligent head, perfect neck, massive shoulders, a back that is remarkably short, large muscular quarters and feet and legs like iron. He is a king, every inch of him, and there is not a stallion owner in California that will dispute his title.

Mr. Durfee, as announced in our last issue, now has McKinney at the San Jose track, where he will remain until further notice. The service fee will be $100 for the season.

Memphis to be a Horse Center.

A despatch from Chicago under date of February 2d, says: Memphis is to be made a great racing and training center for harness horses through a plan already launched by C. K. G. Billings, the gas magnate of Chicago, and Frank Jones of the Tennessee metropolis. Within the next few months a track, grand stand, stables and a club-house will be erected and stako events rivaling in value those of any other prominent racing association will be announced for a meeting to be given next fall, immediately following the races at Lexington, Ky. Land for the racing plant has already been purchased. Billings and Jones are now in New York to engage Seth Griffin to take charge of the building of the race course.

Murray Howe, associate editor of the Horse Review, has been engaged to act as secretary for the new racing organization. He began his work to-day and will shortly make announcement of the stakes which will be given at the inaugural meeting. It is the intention of Billings and Jones to spare no expense in the building of the track. They propose to make it an ideal club, with racing for sport the only object. The grounds are located within twelve minutes ride of Memphis. This will be partially surrounded by a park and a golf course will be laid out on the track. Part of the plan is to establish a club which can be enjoyed by Northern enthusiasts during the winter months.

Jones, who is much interested in harness racing and harness horses, besides having extensive property holdings at Memphis, is the originator of the project. He believes that Memphis can easily draw the best horses from the great meeting at Lexington, which has heretofore marked the end of the trotting and pacing season. He found a ready supporter of his plan in Billings, and the two have carried on the greater part of the arrangements within the last month.

One of the big points involved in the project is the establishment of winter training quarters for harness horses. There is at present no available place for trainers who do not care to cross the mountains to California. Memphis has long been a great winter training ground for thoroughbreds, and could as well be used by harness horsemen, in the opinion of Jones.

In the purpose of holding the great race meeting late in the fall it is understood that there will be no idea of conflicting with the plans of any other racing organization of importance in the country. The Lexington meet is always noted for its sensational performances and Jones believes the Memphis track will eclipse Lexington in this regard.

Heretofore all of the Grand Circuit races at Columbus have been three in five events. It is said that the association proposes giving a number of two in three races this season.

Horse News from the South.

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 20, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Probably most of your readers have read or heard of Colton, Cal. Its the first place in the State where the two great Transcontinental railroads cross. The citizens of that place claim it is the head of navigation on the Santa Ana river, as they have never known any of the deep water steamers to go north of there. The Colton Chronicle, the brightest and most newsy weekly in the State, notifies the denizens of the place when the weekly fog horn is to be blown. Colton is justly celebrated for its fine oranges; for the quantity and purity of its water; for the beauty and number of its widows; for the number of its passenger trains; for the number and breeding of its fine horses. Mr. S. B. Wright owns Alta Rena 2:27 at three years, trial at five of 2:12; H. A. Smith owns a fine filly by Zombro 2:11, dam Alta Rena 2:27. Mr. E. D. Roberts owns Colton Maid 2:17 and two very promising fillies by Zolock 2:10½ from her. Mr. Van Leven drives a very fine Bob Mason horse that can show a mile in 2:27.

There are a good many finely bred mares from Maximillion here. Zombro has some three year olds, Conn 2:15 has several, Happy Prince many. McKinney, Inca, Sacramento, Adjutant, Tenbrock, Del Sur, Woolsey, Judd Wilkes, Christmas and many other very well known and prominent stallions in Southern California have left a broodmare foundation that is simply splendid for any horse to build up a reputation on as a sire.

Your correspondent while making his rounds among the breeders of San Bernardino county called at the breeding farm of Mr. M. A. Murphy of Colton, there one can find some of the best bred animals in Southern Cal., Mr. Murphy having other business to absorb the major portion of his time yet he devotes some time to breeding and developing his light harness horses. Among his brood mares he has Sarah Benton by Albion and Nellie Bly by Woolsey dam Bessie by Inca. These mares have produced Ellen Madison 2:12½ and Harry Madison a green horse, though he has always shown as much speed as any campaigner in the State. Among his other brood mares that he prizes very highly are May Day by Woolcouch son of Woolsey, and Alaska by Woolsey both out of Sarah Benton. Both these mares have shown extreme speed, but were retired to the harem without records.

In his paddocks we find the beautiful jet black stallion Lord Kitchner by Zombro out of Sarah Benton. This is a grand looker as well as grandly bred. He was worked last spring and was showing very well having worked miles in 2:19 when he was taken sick with epizootic and was thrown out of training at the end of six weeks work. Lord Kitchner stands fully 16 hands and weighs 1200 lbs., of large bone and muscle and of very high finish. In the adjoining paddock romping was a filly of the same age who was also unfortunate in getting the same disease at the same time. This filly trotted quarters in 36 seconds and those interested in her had great expectations of her. She is also by Zombro 2:11 out of Nellie Bly. These two Mr. Murphy intends to train and race the coming season. In the larger paddock we find a band of seven weanlings by Monterey 2:09½ and Zombro 2:11 and looking them over carefully the writer never saw a more promising lot of weanlings. It would be hard for the connoisseur to make a choice out of the lot. All are candidates for the Horse Review and Kentucky Futurity. Mr. Murphy always has light harness horses for sale. All standard bred as he keeps nothing else.

ALCANTELLUM.

Readville May Give Another $20,000 Race.

During the past week 1 gathered from parties that should know the New England Breeder's Association, that it is only a question what class the directors decide upon for a $20,000 race next fall, says the turf editor E. E. Cogswell, in the Boston Traveler.

The size of the purse is just as good as settled, but some of the directors are in favor of making it a free for all to trot instead of repeating the open stallion event of last season. They argue that such a class will not only bring together the stallions Crescens 2:04, Peter the Great 2:07½, Charley Herr 2:07, Grattan Boy 2:08, etc., but will be greatly improved by adding such noted trotters to the event as The Abbot 2:03½, Lord Derby 2:07, Borakma 2:08, and others of similar reputation.

In case such a race is agreed upon when the directors meet, the stallions will in all likelihood be looked after by a suitable purse for the entire horses eligible to the 2:10 class. This would give to Harry Devereux an opportunity to start his much discussed horse, John A. McKorron, in a stake event of value, which he so much desired, when the board of review, by giving his horse a record of 2:10 placed him outside the two classic events, the Massachusetts and the Transylvania stakes.

Oregon Items.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

W. F. Watson of this city sold his mare Alma K. by Bonnie Boy, dam Jenny Lapham, to Mr. Smiley of Blaine, Wash.

L. Zimmerman says his horse McBriar 2:14 is wintering well and will make some of them march down the line a pretty merry trip to beat him this year.

W. F. Watson has sent his Lemont-Deadsbot mare Nancy K. to California with John Sawyer, where she will be educated at the diagonal gate. She is one of the handsomest looking mares that ever left this State.

L. C. McCormack is breaking his McKinney two year old E. O. Mc., a full brother to Harry McC. He is a larger and better colt than Harry was at the same age. He is entered in the colt stake at the Oregon State Fair.

The Dalles Driving Association has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Robert Mays, Sr.; Vice-President, E. C. Pease; Treasurer, T. J. Seufert; Secretary, Judd Fish. The grading of the speed track has all been completed, save a small portion, which will be finished as soon as the weather permits. The grounds comprise 21 acres. They will be completely fenced in as soon as possible, and the association will make a determined effort to have the district fair held here next fall.

John Sawyer left this week for Pleasanton, Cal., with Van De Vanter's stock farm stable of horses, where he will condition them for this season's racing. He took with him Helen J. 2:18; Pathmark, (p) 2:17; Altah, green trotter by Altao, out of Minnie (dam of Trumont 2:21); Kinmont, green trotter by McKinney, out of Bulab, full sister to Chehalis 2:04; a three year old trotting gelding by Freddy C., son of Direct; a three year old trotting filly by Guycesco, son of Guy Wilkes; a two year old colt by McKinney, out of Alice Mann, full sister to Trumont 2:21. This last named colt is a late purchase and is one of the best looking McKinneys in this neck of the woods. He is unbroken yet, but will be entered in the $1000 colt stake.

Instead of having 80 to 100 head of horses in training at Irvington and the horse men spending their money in this city, the number has dwindled down to about 20 head, the least number that has wintered on the track since it was built. Horse men, stable keepers and road drivers should give this matter at least a sober thought. The breeding industry in this State is on the verge of a boom, horses of all kinds are going to be scarce and hard to get, especially is this true of speedy roadsters. This class of horses cannot be picked up on the farm like the ordinary work horse, but he must have had some education on the track in order to have the desired speed that will be demanded by future road drivers. How are we to get this class of horses, if we do not keep up and encourage our training stables? It is not every horse that is trained that proves to be a profitable race horse, though he may develop into a valuable roadster, and it is through these channels we get our very best and most desirable road horses. Close up the race track a few years and we will be content to sit behind the three minute trotter or pacer, instead of the exhilarating enjoyment of brushing a 2:10 clip along our beautiful (nit) driveways on a summer evening.

Pleasanton Track Notes.

[From The Times.]

"Det" Bigelow arrived here from Woodland on Wednesday, January 30th, with Tags 2:13, and two very fine green ones. Mr. Bigelow met with a serious accident at the Oakland mole on his way here. While making up the train in which the car containing his horses was, the cars came together with a terrible jolt. The door of the car was open and Mr. Bigelow was looking out. The jar caused the door to close suddenly, striking Bigelow in the head, splitting his ear and otherwise injuring him. One of the horses also had his head slightly cut.

Monroe Salisbury, who formerly owned the Pleasanton race track and sold out to go to Nome to try his fortunes, was in town looking up old friends Wednesday. He is located in San Francisco now.

Johnny Blue has in training two two year olds by Direct Prince which he likes.

A good Directum colt is one of the features of Millard Sanders' string.

Lou Carrillo has some promising young pacers in training owned by W. A. Shippee, of Stockton. The colts are for sale.

Chas. L. Griffith has booked his mare Ginger to W. R. Welch's horse G. W. Archer.

S. K. Trefry has a couple of young Direct colts that act as though they would turn out all right.

A new arrival at the track this week is J. R. Sawyer, of Portland, Ore., who arrived Friday with eight head which he will put in training.

J. C. Stubbs, general freight traffic manager of the S. P. Co., accompanied by his wife and Mr. Ottinger of San Francisco, were the guests of James Thompson Friday.

Boydello 2:14 3-4.

One of the most promising young stallions that will be in the stud in California this year, is Boydello, a grandson of the mighty Electioneer, another of whose grandsons, The Abbot 2:03, is the world's champion trotter. Boydello is by Boydel 5391, a producing son of the dead hero of Palo Alto. Boydel's dam was Sontag Dixie (dam of Pasonte 2:13 and five more in 2:30). As Boydel was by the greatest sire of trotters that ever lived and his dam one of the greatest producing mares in the stud book, Boydello's blood lines on the sire's side are beyond criticism. The dam of Boydello was a producing mare with a record, Florence C. 2:30, by Durango Chief 2:14, sire of six in the list, and he a son of Durango 1:15, sire of eighteen standard trotters, seven producing sons and fifteen producing daughters. The second dam of Boydello was by Prince Dictator, a son of the great Dictator, sire of Director 2:17, he the sire of Directum 2:05 and Direct 2:05, the latter the sire of Directly 2:03. The third dam of Boydello was a Morgan mare and there are three crosses of this valuable Morgan blood in his pedigree.

Boydello was campaigned but one year, in 1897. He started out a green four year old in C. A. Winship's string that he took East from Los Angeles that year. His first start was at Denver, where he won a four heat race, getting a record of 2:22. A few days later he won another race in three straight heats. From Denver he went to Peoria, Illinois, and on July 6th, won a five heat race, his position in the summary being 2-2-1-1-1 and in this race he got his record of 2:14 in the fourth heat. At Detroit, he had fifth position in the summary of the M. & M. of that year won by Rilma, and where the heats were trotted around 2:12. Grand Baron, The Abbot, Oratorio, Mosul and others were in that race. He was beaten a length in Columbus that year in 2:09 and at Halton, Kansas, and at St. Joseph, Mo., won his races in straight heats. Wherever he started he showed that he had speed and the gameness to carry it through as many heats as any horse. Last year he was brought to California by his owner, Mr. T. W. Pemberton, of Phoenix, Arizona, and started in one race at Santa Rosa. In the race were Daimont, Claudius, Bonsilone and Hobo. The first heat Boydello had a bad start and finished fourth, the mile being in 2:10. In the second heat he was a close second in 2:12 and seemed to be the freshest horse in the race, but when pulled up after the beat twisted an ankle when being turned around and did not start again during the season. That a record of 2:10 or better is certain for this horse all good judges will admit, provided no further accident happens him and his ankle gives him no further trouble.

Boydello will be trained and raced again this year, but his owner desires to breed him to a few mares of approved breeding and consequently has placed the service fee at the low price of $25. Ed Lafferty, the well known trainer, has Boydello in his care at — Sherman street, Alameda, and any further particulars can be had from him. There are few horses as well bred as Boydello standing for a fee of $25 in California to-day, to say nothing of his individuality and race horse qualities.

Our Jack 2:13 1-4 Was a Shoe Puller.

James Sullivan, the well known California roinsman, who has been living in San Francisco this winter, dropped into our sanctum one day this week and in the course of "hoss" conversation, Yarrum's story, published last week, of horses getting their feet locked together came up. "I never had that experience with a horse, but when I had Our Jack 2:13 he yanked off many a shoe from his off fore foot before I found how to prevent it. He would only do this when jogging—at speed he never touched his feet together. When going slow, however, he would strike the point of the heel of his front shoe in such a manner as to take it off slick and clean and I never knew him to break his hoof in the least doing it. He would tear a shoe off every day and sometimes two a day, until I buckled a heel strap around that foot so that the hind foot could not catch against the heel point and never had any trouble with him thereafter. He was one of the handsomest looking horses I ever handled and could put on more style than a dancing master and I am not surprised that he is a popular horse on the New York speedway."

Princess Dorby may be raced this season. It will be remembered that she was purchased last year at the Cleveland sale by Mr. Bronk of New York for $4100. She is a full sister to Dorby Princess 2:08 and showed Millard Sanders a mile in less than 2:15 and quarters in 31 1/2 seconds at Pleasanton before she was shipped East. She also showed a very fast half at the Cleveland track just prior to the sale, but went wrong after Mr. Bronk purchased her.

Adding to the District.

[Woodland Democrat.]

The committee appointed by the directors of the Fortieth Agricultural Association to interview Senator Cutter and Assemblyman Chiles with a view of securing an increased appropriation returned from Sacramento last Monday evening much encouraged with the success with which they met. They not only interested our two representatives in the Legislature, but they agreed upon a line of action that will no doubt secure the active co-operation of the business men and commercial organization of Sacramento and the senator and assemblymen of that county.

Senator Cutter explained to the committee that any attempt to increase the appropriation for the district as it now stands would result in an attempt to make a raise all along the line, and that would insure the defeat of the whole appropriation for the various districts. The committee at once conceded the force of his argument. Then Secretary Thomas suggested his original plan of so amending the law as to include Yolo and Sacramento in a district. This suggestion met with favor, and with the approval of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce and Sacramento county's senator and assemblymen, Senator Cutter and Assemblyman Chiles have each introduced a bill amending the law. The bill is not liable to meet with any serious opposition. If it is enacted Governor Gage will certainly approve it, and he knows from actual observation that the Yolo county fair last year was better than any other district fair in the State.

Our representatives are not likely to encounter much opposition in their efforts to secure an increase in the appropriation. The population of the new district will be almost as large as the Alameda and Los Angeles districts, and their claim will be reasonable and just. Yolo county alone gave a better district fair than San Jose, Oakland and Los Angeles. A fair given by Yolo and Sacramento counties combined will be second in importance to the State Fair, and there is no reason why the appropriation in aid of the district should not be as large as the appropriation for any other district in the State.

But our senator and assemblyman are entitled to the enthusiastic support and earnest co-operation of every resident of Yolo county. Everybody concedes that the last district fair, from a business point of view, was a good investment. The appropriation was insufficient and the premiums necessarily so small that many exhibitors lost money even after being awarded the first prizes, but the fair aroused extraordinary interest and the result will be a material improvement of the stock and other industrial interests of the county, and a magnificent display of farm and orchard products next fall.

The Heaviest Winners of 1900.

We have been asked the question, What trotting horse was the greatest purse winner out last year, says the Horse Review. The answer is Cresceus 2:04. We are not, however, able to give the exact amount that he won. In three races—the 2:08 class at Cleveland and the free for all stallion races at Columbus and Roadville—his winnings were $13,250. He took part in two races during the season, specials at Pittsburg and Chicago, against Tommy Britton. At the former place the attendance was heavy; at the latter it was not. A reasonable estimate, however, would place his winnings in these events at from $1500 to $2000. At Sprague and Hartford, where he trotted against time he started for a stated premium, in each instance of $1,000. How much of the percentage of the gate received for his exhibitions at Cleveland and Toledo cannot be estimated. At Terro Haute he probably won nothing. His known winnings in purse events were, therefore $15,250, and it is possible that his gross earnings for the season approximated $30,000. No other trotter came near this. Boralma 2:08, won $10,900. Cresceus and Boralma are the only two trotters of 1900 whose winnings are expressed in five figures.

Among the pacers the veteran Connor 2:09 made the most profitable campaign, but four figures indicate his earnings. They were $9875 and it is too bad that he didn't manage to pick up the extra $125 that would have raised the sum to $1,000. It is interesting to note that Connor started in fourteen races, Boralma in six and Cresceus in but five. Cresceus, however, won a $20,000 race and a $5000 one; Boralma won one of $10,000 (the Massachusetts) and one of $5000 (the Transylvania); Connor's richest prizes were the $5000 Noponsot, at Roadville, and the $3,000 Tennesseot at Lexington.

SULKY NOTES.

The Knockers' Club.

[Written for the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

Come all ye chronic kickers and join the Knockers Club—

Get your hammers out.

We'll prove that every "good one" is nothing but a "dub"—

Get your hammers out.

If you are a dyspeptic or have been to knocking school

And always aim to recognize your neighbor as a fool

We'll take you into membership and let you ride the mule.

Get your hammers out.

You'll have to swear that every horse is known to be unsound.

Get your hammers out.

That not a prospect good or fair can hereabouts be found.

Get your hammers out.

You'll have to take a solemn oath to always knock a sale

No matter whom the parties, or conditions that prevail,

Unless you get a "divy" on the spot and without fail.

Get your hammers out.

When'er you hear a person speak in praise of any horse

Get your hammers out.

Begin to knock his legs and feet from poor to bad and worse,

Get your hammers out.

Don't fail to claim, and demonstrate, with energetic knocks,

That he's never beaten anything but slow and rusty clocks,

And that his forty-seventh dam had quite suspicious hooks.

Get your hammers out.

In summer when the racing starts at first tap of the bell

Get your hammers out.

Call the drivers all a band of thieves and knock the judge as well,

Get your hammers out.

Don't fail to call in question the length of every track,

At each and everything you see just take a vicious whack,

And remember that a knocker always hits things in the back.

Get your hammers out.

But when you've run your earthly race and in your coffin lie,

Leave your hammer out.

Some friend may look upon your face and heave a little sigh,

But leave your hammer out.

For nearly all the mourners will want to use the tool

With which of every Pegasus you've tried to make a mule,

And they'll nail the cover down so tight, in Hades you'll feel cool,

So leave your hammer out.

The correct number of entries in the Occident stake is 98.

Village Farm will not race the green pacer Direct Hal this year.

Brice McNeill 2:19½ has lost his tail and is now a high stepper down at Burlingame.

How Yow, the Chinese Consul General, will breed a mare to McKinney 2:11½ this year.

When John Dickerson begins training for Gen. Tracy he will commence work on some very promising young trotters by Advertiser and Adbell.

Que Allen 2:08 2-5, the holder of the European record, has been permanently retired to the stud at Austria. His service fee is about $200.

"Petaluma is ripe for a harness meeting," said a resident of that city the other day, "and the butter-and-eggs town will be on the circuit in 1901."

The grandly bred Electioneer stallion Eugoneer, the property of J. B. Iverson of Salinas, has been leased to a party at Newman, Stanislaus county, where he will make the season of 1901.

If you want a good young Pereheron stallion consult our advertising columns. The stallion Native Son, there offered for sale, is an excellent individual and is offered at a very reasonable figure.

The get of the French trotting sire Fuchsia won about $100,000 on European tracks last year. This is far more than the get of any American trotting sire won in this country during the same period.

Robert E. Bonner has decided to discontinue the breeding of trotters at Bonner farm, and has consigned Highland Baron, Baron Review and all the broodmares and young stock to the Fasig-Tipton sale.

Alcona 730, one of the grandest specimens of horseflesh ever seen in the show ring, is now 24 years old. He was gelded several years ago and, we understand, is still used as a road horse by a resident of Alameda county.

"Yet" Kent, the trainer and driver, has a good billet at the Los Angeles track, training the stable of Mr. Potter of the Van Nuy's Hotel. He writes that his health is good and that he has some fine prospects in his string.

Spirit of the West, published at Des Moines, Iowa, has issued a very handsome 20th century edition of 42 pages profusely illustrated and very generously filled with advertising. It is a credit to the publishers and compilers.

The dam of You Bet 2:12½, is given in the Year Book Vol. 14 as untraced. The dam of this pacer is the Palo Alto bred mare Florence Clay by Clay 4779, second dam Florence Anderson, thoroughbred daughter of Enquirer.

C. E. Morrison, of Oakland has just received an addition to his string in a green five year old by St. Nicholas, out of the dam of Lady B. 2:32½. He is a typical Sidney in appearance and a rugged horse with plenty of nervous energy.

Eight hundred and fifty horses have been booked for export on the steamships Minnehaha and Mesaba, which are to leave New York this week. Both vessels are full, and the agents have notified shippers that no more horses can be accepted.

We have received a supply of the celebrated Wilson stallion service books, which are indispensable to the stallion owner. They are neatly bound in leather and can be carried in the pocket. The price is one dollar. Send a dollar bill or a money order and get one.

Harry Wilkes 2:13½, the fastest of the get of Geo. Wilkes, and a veteran trotter, whose whereabouts were unknown to most horsemen, has turned up in the hands of A. M. Weaver, of Milford, N. J., who is driving him on the road. Harry Wilkes is now twenty-five years of age.

Send in your stallion advertisements right away if you intend placing your horse before the public this year. Every good horse deserves to have his breeding, service fee and location made known to horse breeders. The cheapest and best way to do this in California is through the columns of this journal.

Secretary Ed Bell of the Napa Agricultural Society was in this city this week. He says the directors of that association and the people of Napa are anxious to have another fair this year. If the track can be put in proper shape some fast miles ought to be shown, as it is proposed to have the race program consist entirely of harness races.

Hon. Grove L. Johnson, the well known Sacramento attorney and member of the Legislature, has been re-appointed a Director of the State Agricultural Society by Governor Gage, his term having expired. Mr. Johnson during the time he has been on the board has been an earnest and energetic worker for successful fairs and is a valuable member.

Secretary Horace Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association has officially announced the dates of the annual meeting at Lexington as Oct. 8th to October 18th, in accordance with the custom followed since 1870 of commencing the meeting on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in October. The program of stakes and purses will exceed $80,000.

Sam Gamble, who was up at Danville recently, tells us he went to Oakwood Park Stock Farm and saw Charles Derby 2:20 and Owyhee 2:11. Two finer looking stallions he says he never saw and both are in the very pink of condition for the season of 1901. Chas. Derby he considers, in the way he is muscled and built, is nearer like the great George Wilkes 2:22 than any horse he ever saw.

According to a new rule of the American Shetland Pony Club, children under fifteen years of age must hereafter drive when ponies are shown in harness in the ring. The Shetland is essentially a children's pony, and it is deemed proper that he should be handled by the youngsters at the horse shows. Whether the ruling of the Shetland Pony Club will be recognized and enforced at the horse shows is a matter of uncertainty.

Washington McKinney, the stallion recently purchased by Rose Dale Stock Farm at Santa Rosa, has arrived at his new home and will be placed in the stud there this year. He is a beauty, a black horse 15.3½ hands, weighs 1140 pounds and is five years old. He is very speedy and if trained will take a low record. He ought to make a great cross for mares by Daly 2:15, of which there are a number of good ones on this well known farm.

We received a pleasant call this week from Mr. Lew Thorne, of Wabash, Indiana, who owns the stallion Shadeward 2:59½, a son of Shadeland Onward. Mr. Thorne is representing the American Clay Working Company on the Pacific Coast at present and having signed a five-year contract with that corporation has no time to devote to his horses; in fact, he expects to make very few trips back to his home State during that time. Shadeward is therefore for sale. He has no record but is very fast at the pace.

The last foal of the celebrated speed producer, Alma Mater, is the six year old brown mare Alma Wilton, sired by Wilton 2:19½, as her name indicates. By many competent judges Alma Mater is considered the greatest of all brood mares, and it is a certainty that no other mare has had two sons that have succeeded so eminently in siring speed as Aleyoue and Alcantara. Alma Wilton is sure with foal by Abdell 2:23, the world's champion yearling trotter. She is undoubtedly the most valuable young brood mare in America.

The first foal to arrive at Green Meadow Stock Farm this year is a fine bay colt sired by Hambletonian Wilkes, dam Dollie Gollin by A. W. Richmond. Mr. R. I. Moorhead, proprietor of this farm, writes us that he claims the name of Gollin Wilkes for the colt. We suggest that he reconsider this and give the colt a name that will be acceptable for registration. The blanks of the American Trotting Register Association contain this statement: "We will accept no more 'Hambletonians,' nor 'Mambrinos' nor 'Wilkes' nor 'Pilots' etc., in any form."

Hans Freilsson has a couple of geldings (full brothers) in his charge out at his place on 20th Avenue that are likely candidates for fast records. The older is a three year old of speedy conformation and though never yet worked for speed can show a 2:30 gait. He will be able to beat 2:20 this year if raced as he is a pure gaited trotter, with level head and a desire to show his speed. The brother, a two year old, is a little more blocky built, but of the wear and tear order and always understands what speed at the trot means and seems to enjoy trying to show it. These very promising young geldings are owned by Chas. A. Hug Esq. of this city and were sired by Mr. A. B. Spreckels stallion Cupid 2:18, their dam being Mr. Hug's well known mare Charivari 2:20½ by Sterling 6223.

The pacing mares Lolita 2:12½ by Sidney and Emma M. 2:12½ by Cecilian Prince have been matched by their owners, Mr. A. H. Miller and Mr. S. H. Knox, both of Buffalo, for $5000 a side, the race to be paced at Cleveland during the Grand Circuit meeting in that city next summer. Messrs. Miller and Knox are thorough sportsmen and it can be safely said that no hard feelings will result no matter how the match results.

Mr. Harry Goodall, of this city, who a few weeks ago purchased from Oakwood Park Stock Farm the four year old colt Rajah by Chas. Derby, and has been driving him on the park roads, where he failed to find anything that could head him, has sent the horse to James Thompson at Pleasanton. Rajah worked a mile in 2:13 for the late T. E. Keating last year as a three year old and is one of the most promising pacers in the State.

Look at Zombro's advertisement in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and those of you who have never seen this magnificent horse can judge what a grand individual he is from the engraving, which does not flatter him in the least. An account of his races, together with some comments on his splendid breeding will appear in this paper next week. Zombro is the grandest son of McKinney and is showing that he can sire good looks, size and speed. Several of his get will start in the races this year, and they are a very promising lot. Zombro will make the season at Sacramento at $50. His owner, Mr. Geo. T. Beckers, has him in charge.

W. G. Durfee is working sixteen trotters and pacers at the Los Angeles track, and has pretty well made up his mind to tackle the Grand Circuit this year, beginning at Detroit. He has two trotters that he is particularly sweet on, one a green five year old by McKinney 2:11½, out of the Palo Alto bred mare Satire by Benefit 5327, second dam the thoroughbred mare Satanella by Leveller, a grandson of Lexington. Mr. Durfee thinks he has a 2:10 trotter in this fellow. The stallion Dr. Book 2:13½ is another of the horses in his string that he is confident will trot very fast, barring accidents and confidently believes a record of 2:06 is within his reach.

Millard Sanders was down from Pleasanton this week and reports everything in good shape at the horse centre. He has Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Janico 2:13½ and Czarina 2:13½ and will have in a few days Venus II. 2:11½. This mare is reported to be in fine shape and will be raced again this year. Mr. Sanders has a two year old colt in his string that is by Directum 2:05½ out of a mare by Director 2:17, that he says is nearer a counterpart of his sire than any young horse he ever saw. He is a handsome black fellow and a trotter. The colt is the property of Judge Green of Oakland and is entered in several of the big stakes over East, those at Hartford and Lexington in particular, to be trotted this year and next.

Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ will have a number of choice mares booked to him this year again. Dr. Boucher, of San Jose, has already booked Miss Logan 2:06½ to Mr. Carter's great young horse and P. W. Hodges will send Hazel Kinney 2:09½ by McKinney and Atherino 2:16½ by Patron to him. Nutwood Wilkes at twelve years of age has four 2:15 trotters to his credit, few horses at that age having ever produced as many. He will make the season of 1901 at $50 and the season will begin February 15th. Some of the leading Kentucky breeders have tried to induce Mr. Carter to send Nutwood Wilkes to the blue grass country this season and offered him all sorts of guarantees and inducements, but so many California owners importuned him to let horse remain here another year that he has acceded to their demands.

James Sutherland, who is superintending the Pleasanton race track, has it in fine condition and horses can be worked at speed over it from now on. Mr. Sutherland is training a stable of horses, assisted by Fred Chadbourne, who gives promise of being a trainer of no mean ability. Among the horses in the Sutherland string is a three year old filly by McKinney, belonging to Dr. Dunn of Oakland, that is a good one. She worked quarters in 38 seconds as a two year old. A full brother of Rey Direct 2:10, that is a square trotter and showed a mile in 2:18 last year, is also in Mr. Sutherland's charge. He should be a good one in the green class this year. Mr. S. has a Direct filly out of Queenie that promises to be good and a black mare by Direct, owned by W. B. de Lopez, that is a square trotter with speed enough to be a money winner. He has also a half dozen colts, among them some by James Madison, that are showing up very well. Horses are arriving every day and by the first of March, speed and rail birds will be as thick as bees in a clover patch.

Capt. W. Ford Thomas of this city, who has charge of the Custom House business for the firm of John D. Spreckels & Bros., has been confined to his home for the past five weeks with a serious illness. The Captain is able to be up again, however, and will soon be out attending to business, but has decided to dispose of a number of his horses of which he has nearly a dozen head in care of Hans Freilsson out on 20th Avenue and Point Lobos Road. Among others is a dark chestnut mare, five years old, by Secretary, out of a full sister to Nellie R. 2:17½. This mare is as handsome as a picture, is a high stepper and can be driven by a child. She is absolutely sound and a beauty. A gray pacing gelding by Secretary is just nicely broken and is a very promising young horse. He has race-winning speed and as he goes without straps or boots should be a good prospect for some one. There is also a pair of carriage horses that are not only of good size, gentle and handsome, but sound as a new dollar and afraid of nothing. As the Captain wants to sell these horses he has put the prices down low, and we advise anyone wanting something good and choice, at a low figure, to get on a Sutro line car, get off at 20th Avenue, walk one block south and look these horses over at Hans Freilsson's place on the Point Lobos road.

Occident Stake 0 903.

Assistant Secretary Harry Lowden of the California State Agricultural Society sends the following list of entries for the Occident State of 1903 on which first payment of $10 each was made January 1st this year. It will be seen that a total of 98 entries were made, so that the stake already has $980 to its credit.

To any one who has closely watched her actions at the post and in the paddock, The Lady seems to have been most appropriately named.

Speed and Conformation in Demand.

Ten years ago, when the breeding interest was at its height, the stallions whose services were in the greatest demand were those that had established great reputations as sires, and in many instances these reputations were founded on long rolls of honor, as they were called. Younger, and, consequently, less famous stallions found little patronage, and no matter how richly bred or how highly formed or brilliant as race horses they might be, they were forced by public opinion to await their turn, and those that had sired 2:30 performers in great numbers, no matter how close to the 2:30 line the records might be, were the idols of the breeders. Many a royally bred young horse of real merit wasted several years of his life simply because the breeders were not far-seeing enough to take advantage of the opportunity of getting trotters from a trotter.

Now all has changed, and to-day many sires of the past decade are relegated to the rear, while the fast, young and highly formed trotting race horses have taken their place. A man can breed to one of these, even though untried as a sire, with more assurance of getting speed than he could from many of the so-called great sires of ten years ago.

It is not strange that this should be the case, for by the laws of nature, of heredity and progress the well bred young stallions of to-day that are good individuals and were themselves race horses, should and will beget a better class of trotters than their shorter bred and frequently less well formed ancestors, especially if the latter had no speed or action. Ten years ago when stud fees were so high, stallions commanded figures that amazed the breeding world, and many of these same horses are to-day doing duty at less than one-tenth of the fee charged during the zenith of their fame. This fact does not alone show how much in decadence the breeding industry has been, but it also shows that after all, these sires that were so loudly praised were not really great; that there are to-day fifty young stallions that are better qualified to get trotters.

A long roll of 2:30 performers means little in this enlightened age, unless it contains the names of some that by their brilliant deeds have shown the ability of their sires to beget true race horses. A stallion can be the sire of twenty with records from 2:20 to 2:30 and unless his list comprises many colt trotters he will be completely overlooked. A few high-class trotters that have won their right to be called first-class are worth to a sire more than fifty with records slower than 2:20. The latter show their sire's ability to get some speed, but not enough to make him worthy of the name of a great sire.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

Won Heats Better Than 2:12.

The stallions on the Grand Circuit that last season won heats in better than 2:12 are as follows: Ace (p) by Delmarch, best mile 2:10; Bonnie Direct (p) by Direct, 2:05; Cobbitt (p) by Online, 2:11; Charley Herr (t) by Alfred G., 2:07; Cresceus (t) by Robert McGregor, 2:04; to wagon; Charlie Hayt (p) by Allerton, 2:07; Dare Devil (t) by Mambrino King, 2:09; Deveras (p) by Direct, 2:11; Frank Bogash (p) by Atlantic King, 2:03; Fred S. Wedgewood (p) by Fred S. Wilkes, 2:09; Grattan Boy (t) by Grattan, 2:08; Gentry's Treasure (p) by John R. Gentry, 2:10; Greenbrino (t) by Woodbrino, 2:11; Island Wilkes Jr. (p) by Island Wilkes, 2:08; Onward Silver (t) by Onward, 2:11; Solon Grattan, formerly Brandt (t) by Grattan, 2:11; Sidney Pointer (p) by Star Pointer, 2:08; Searchlight (p) by Dark Night, 2:06; Stacker Taylor (p) by Captain Cook, 2:09; Tho Admiral (p) by Be Sure, 2:07; Pilatus (t) by Onward, 2:09; Courier Journal (p) by Wilkes Boy, 2:06; York Boy by Wilkes Boy, 2:09.

Aelse 2:10; Ambulator 2:10; Billy Andrews 2:06; Chehalis 2:04; Dan Q. 2:07; Exploit 2:08; Eyelot 2:06; Hail Cloud 2:07; Kingmond 2:09; Kelvyn 2:11; Lord Vincent 2:08; Riley B. 2:10; Searchlight 2:03; Sphinx S. 2:09; Tommy Britton 2:06; Valpa 2:09; Will Leyburn 2:09; William Wallace Scribner 2:06; Pilatus 2:09; and Bob Fitzsimmons 2:07; the big winners down the 1899 Grand Circuit, failed to earn their oats last season. Their earnings collectively only amounted to $6980, an average of $332 each.—Philadelphia Record.

As a result of the crowding and jostling in vogue at Tanforan, two horses met with accidents on Tuesday. Ordnung was cut down in his race and injured so badly that it will probably be at least two months before he can race again. Tyr was also cut down and on examination it was found that the back tendon was completely severed, the injury being so serious that the horse was afterwards destroyed. Tyr was a brown colt by Kingston-Miss Dixie and was purchased by Carruthers & Shields last summer in Chicago for $2500. He proved a very useful performer in their colors and his loss is quite a serious one.

Horse in Living Pictures.

"My beautiful, my beautiful, that standest meekly by," sang Mrs. Hemans, apostrophizing an imaginary Arab steed, says the London Express. At the London Pavilion just now they have an Arab steed which "standeth meekly by" every evening, while his mistress strikes attitudes (in appropriate costume) on his back. In fact, so meekly does he stand by that it is difficult to believe that he is a real flesh-and-blood animal and not a dummy, cunningly contrived. His name is Loky, and he assists his mistress, Madame Sidi Nirvana, in presenting a series of tableaux vivants. Sometimes the lady appears as Joan of Arc, then as Mazeppa, anon as the Empress Maria Theresa, and then again as the "Lady Hawking," after Koppay's celebrated painting. In each pose horse as well as rider remain perfectly immobile—a marvelous exhibition of animal training, which is due to the patience and skill of M. Ernest Durmont.

Mr. Frank Glenister saw this turn about two months ago, while traveling on the Continent in search of novelties, and promptly secured it for England. Loky is the only horse that has been trained to pose perfectly motionless in living pictures, and the handsome horse and his handsome rider certainly made a striking picture. Loky is a pure white Arab of the highest intelligence, about three years old and stands 15 hands.

On the Snow at Reno.

RENO (Nev.), February 3, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—After reading the BREEDER of February 2d, and thanking you for the breeding of Wing, I thought I would tell you of a day's sport in Reno. About nine inches of snow fell here last night and to-day the streets were crowded with single and double cutters and, in fact, every and anything that would slide over the snow was in use. The merry jingle of sleigh bells and the bright, warm sunshine made it an ideal day for sleighing. I shod Peggy with 4 oz. sharp shoes and she would glide over the snow with such grace and willingness, that it was such a pleasure to sit behind her and let her step occasionally better than a '20 clip down the main street.

Wishing you were here to enjoy a sleigh ride behind a mare shod with sharp heel and toe and without boots and straps, I remain very respectfully,

C. P. FERREL.

The jumping game is still made a prominent feature of the weekly sport at Tanforan Park, notwithstanding the element of danger and other more objectionable features connected with it. Last Saturday's steeplechase was a farcical affair, although had Koenig stayed on his feet, the outcome might have had serious results which would have called for the intervention of the Stewards. Every jockey in the race seemed to be riding to waiting orders; Worthington, on May Boy, going so far as to slip off his horse after clearing the last hurdle. The hurdle race on Monday was run on the same lines as the steeplechase, nobody seeming to try to beat Poriwig. T. McHugh showed so palpably that he was not trying, that the judges ordered him to accept no more mounts at the meeting.

Michael Murphy, the Pennsylvania oil man, is making good his promise to establish a stock farm at Monmouth. When he purchased the Clason property in New Jersey, he gave it out that he would make a training and breeding establishment of it, and he is quietly going about that purpose. His purchase of Tammany was something of a surprise to those who did not know of the intention of the Philadelphia man to go in as a breeder.

The Alexandra Park handicap run for on Wednesday was won by Astor, with Burns in the saddle. Janice, the crack three year old filly which ran in Green B. Morris' colors, made a strong bid for the money but could not get up. The filly was endeavoring to concede twenty-seven pounds to the winner, a task which was beyond her, especially in the slushy condition of the track.

A new rule has been promulgated by the San Francisco Jockey Club which will prove a very popular one to the horsemen. In future all names collected by the association from the excess bidding up of horses in selling races will be retained until the end of the week when it will be offered as a special purse to be run for at the close of the meeting.

Clarence Mackay is the real purchaser of the three year old colt Frankfort, the full brother of Hamburg, sold at the late Marcus Daly's sale of thoroughbreds at Madison Square Garden for $10,100. At the time of the sale Lord Clonmel was given out as the man who had bought the colt.

The last race the late George West drove was in the Walnut Hall cup at Lexington, which he won with Chain Shot 2:11.

The Marcus Daly Sale.

Following is a complete record of the sale of the Bitter Root Farm consignment to the great sale held in New York on the evenings of January 30th and 31, 1901, the closing out sale of all the thoroughbreds owned by the late Marcus Daly:

Another Pioneer Gone.

James F. Bybee, well known all over the Pacific Coast as the king of the Oregon turf, died Thursday, January 24th, at his daughter's home at Sellwood, Multnomah county, Oregon. He was born near Winchester, Clark county, Kentucky, in 1818, and came to Oregon in 1847. He settled on Sauvie's island and built a fine home on his 640 acres. In 1848 Mr. Bybee went to California, where he made a fortune. He then began to invest in thoroughbred horses. He soon became known in racing circles, and two of the racers he trained for John F. Miller of Salem were the famous Ryostraw and Allstraw. His son Robert inherited his father's love for horses. He died several years ago. He also became well known in racing circles in Oregon with his horses Misty Morn, Daily Oregonian and Raindrop, and the stallions Oregon and St. Paul. In 1873 Mr. Bybee sold the Sauvie's island home, and took his horses to Crab creek, Wash., and ran a stock ranch until about 1880. Subsequently he traveled a good deal, until about two years ago, when he was stricken with kidney trouble. He made his home in Sellwood with his daughter, Mrs. Mary Lockhart, where he resided for two years. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Lockhart of Sellwood, Mrs. Lillie Rich of Salt Lake City and Mrs. Inogene Carahar of Seattle, who were all with him during his last sickness. Mr. Bybee was also well known in southern Oregon, being a cousin of Wm. Bybee.—Jacksonville Times.

THE SADDLE.

There is altogether too much rough riding indulged in at Tanforan, and some action should be taken to abolish it. Henry seems to be the principal offender and also seems to enjoy immunity from any penalty for his conduct. The day that Edna Brown was beaten by Maresa, there can be no question but that Henry pulled his mount in front of Edna Brown and spoiled her chances, yet nothing in the way of fine or suspension was inflicted. Burns also, on his own confession, was an offender in the sweepstakes, on which occasion he shifted his course on Canmore in the stretch, pulling out toward Articulate and forcing that horse to shorten his stride to avoid a collision; but for this interference Articulate would unquestionably have won. The numbers, however, were allowed to remain hung up as the horses finished and Burns may consider himself very lucky to escape a heavy fine or indefinite suspension for his questionable tactics.

Burns & Waterhouse have purchased Favonious from S. C. Hildreth for a price which was not made public. Favonious was one of the best handicap horses racing at New York last summer and should prove a most useful member of the Burns & Waterhouse stable.

Montanic has proved himself to be a disappointment in every race in which he has started this winter; and it is said that Prince Poniatowski intends to have him schooled for the jumping game.

The Eclipse Stakes, at one mile and six furlongs proved on easy thing for Advance Guard with the light impost of 105 lbs. He paid no attention to the strong gale that was blowing down the stretch, and won as he pleased. The Bobby succeeded in getting the place just as easily after making the pace through-out; Greenock was an indifferent third.

The sweepstakes, with $1000 added by the management of Tanforan Park, for Canmore, Articulate, Rolling Boer and Brutal, was run off last Saturday, and the question of supremacy still remains undecided, although Canmore succeeded in winning the stake. These colts have met on several different occasions and from the results of the various races it does not appear that they are able to beat one another. The first time that Rolling Boer and Canmore met, Rolling Boer conceded fifteen pounds to Jennings' colt and beat him handily. On another day Brutal came from behind Canmore and Rolling Boer and beat them both at even weights. Rolling Boer has beaten Articulate, and on Saturday Articulate beat him, running second to Canmore. There is still a question as to which is the best of the outfit, but there is no question but that the whole lot are absolutely without form and hardly rank above the selling plater class.

Horsemen who will race at Bennings in April and at Morris Park in May and October should not fail to enter in the stakes offered by the Westchester Racing Association to close at midnight next Tuesday. See advertisement in this issue. Entry blanks can be had at this office.

Some absurd articles have appeared in the daily papers to the effect that a conspiracy exists among the jockeys riding here at present to prevent Tod Sloan from winning a race. While it is perfectly evident that they are, without exception, jealous of Sloan, and always rejoice when he rides a loser, the idea that any concerted action has been taken by the jockeys is not to be entertained for a moment. Sloan, as a race rider, towers head and shoulders over all the boys riding on the local tracks, and is able to hold his own against them in any department of the racing game. And while rough riding is not to be countenanced on any first-class track, should it come to that, Sloan can give them points in this matter as well as any other. The best evidence of this can be obtained from those who witnessed Sloan's rides on Ballyhoo Bey and other horses last summer at New York.

No English horse has won the Grand prize of Paris in fifteen years, and though English entries are numerous for this year, the class is not such as to justify anticipations of a break in the record.

The Maryland Steeplechase Association, through its racing secretary, Col. Robert Hough, has applied to the Baltimore County Circuit Court for permission to hold race meetings at the old Pimlico track, both in the spring and in the fall. The club held a meeting for three days last November, and it was so successful that they are anxious to have another one. The officers in the association are identified with all the leading hunt clubs, as William P. Riggs is the President and Charles E. McLane, Treasurer, while the Stewards are F. H. M. Birchhead, S. S. Howland, President of the Washington Jockey Club, and William M. Manly. Other members of the association are H. Carroll Brown, I. M. Parr, Jr., T. Dedford, Jr., T. Dudley Riggs and Charles E. Rieman.

L. V. Bell and Trainer James McCormack have entered into partnership for 1901, and will train and run Dr. Eichberg, Half Time, Philae, Cbeesemite, Sweet Tooth, Lone Fisherman, Misor, Somerset, Mischievous and a two year old by St. Andrew-Cuisino. Every one will wish them success.

Speaking of the two year olds at Montgomery Park, Memphis, John Fay, of Louisville, a shrewd turfman, says: "I have been to many winter quarters, but never before have I seen such a grand looking lot of two year olds. At first I was inclined to disbelieve what I had heard of the doings of the youngsters here, but I have now seen with my own eyes, and as far as my bunch are concerned they are not to be compared with the grand lookers at Montgomery Park, where almost every stable seems to have two year old stake material in their barns. Why, Schorr's two year olds look like four year olds."

The Board of Directors of the organized Saratoga Racing Association held a business meeting January 29th, and made a number of changes in the list of officials governing the affairs of the association. By resolution the Board of Directors, which originally consisted of five members, was increased to thirteen by the election of Perry Belmont, J. H. Alexander, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., John G. Follansbee, W. W. Worden, Philip J. Dwyer, J. H. Bradford and John G. Hecksher. Andrew Miller, who originally was elected as secretary and treasurer, offered his resignation as secretary, while agreeing to continue filling the office as treasurer, and the meeting elected Harry K. Knapp to the vacant secretaryship. William W. Whitney, F. R. Hitchcock, H. K. Knapp, Andrew R. Miller and R. T. Wilson, Jr., were elected to serve as an executive committee. No announcement has been made as yet as to the stake program for the coming summer races, though a member of the Board of Governors said that all the well known stakes, except those that were of a purely advertising character, would be renewed.

In the mile race for three year old fillies at Tanforan last Friday, Jockey Miller on Bab attempted to squeeze through a small opening on the first turn and the filly crossed her feet and fell with him. Miller sustained a fracture of his collar bone and will be kept out of the saddle for some time. Bab did not get up for some minutes and at first it was thought she was dead, but an examination by a veterinary proved that the only injury to the filly was a broken nose.

The two year olds which have faced the starter, so far this season, are the best lot which have made their debut in California for some years. One of the fastest yet seen is a chestnut colt by imp. Friar Tuck from Queen Kapiolani, which made his first start last Friday and made the field opposed to him look very cheap, running away from them at the start and winning in a common canter.

The Queen's County Jockey Club has announced a list of eight stakes for the spring meeting at the Aqueduct track, all to close on Monday, February 18th. The chief fixture opened is a renewal of the Carter handicap, about seven furlongs, for three year olds and upwards, with $1200 added, the weights to be announced on March 14th. The other stakes are the Flushing handicap, and Rockaway stakes for three year olds and upward; the Arvene, seven furlongs, for three year olds, and the Canarsie, Rose and Ozone, four and a half furlongs each, and Woodhaven, five furlongs, for two year olds.

There are already over 150 two year olds at Montgomery Park, and as a whole a finer looking lot of youngsters never wintered there. Perhaps the hand-somest colt on the track belongs to W. M. Wallace. He is a strapping big colt by imp. Wagner-Flying Duchess by Hindoo. Bell's Commoner, b c, 2, by The Commoner-Battle Belle, a half brother to Eddie Burke, is another of Mr. Wallace's fine looking youngsters, while The Commoner-Elletta filly, a half sister to Havoc, has shown considerable speed, and is a trim, raey looking filly. Mr. Wallace also has a colt by The Commoner-Becky Sharp, named The Sharper, and another by the same sire out of Levissa that are likely looking colts.

Westchester Stakes close next Tuesday at midnight.

A gentleman who recently visited Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm says that no breeding farm in California is kept in any better shape than is this model place on the Napa river. Superintendent Geo. Berry is an indefatigable worker, and on the go from morning until night, seeing that nothing escapes proper care and attention. The stock is all looking well and foals are beginning to arrive. Cavel Rodriguez, formerly of Salinas, now has care of the brood-mares on the Napa farm, having forsaken the sulky for a time. Jack Dinue took the mares Annie Buckingham and Pique from the farm to Milpitas last week. They will be bred to Mr. Boots' stallion Brutus. Mr. Spreckels will send Headflower, imp. Candid and Glitter to Rancho del Paso where they will be mated with imp. Watercress, imp. St. Andrew and imp. Bas-setlaw respectively.

Among the trials of yearlings at the old Kentucky Association headquarters there is one reported of a McGrathiana bred chestnut filly by Hanover, out of imp. Aquila by Sterling. She was bought December 4th, was bitten, broken and galloped, and on the nineteenth day she wore a saddle, is said to have covered a quarter in 0:24½ on a track that was not fast. This filly is said to have been the result of artificial impregnation.

A welcome addition to the thoroughbred ranks of America is the stallion Laurium, a bay horse foaled in '93 by Rightaway-Infanta Paz by Pero Gomez (the famous St. Leger winner), second dam Hilarity by King Tom out of Nightingale by Mountain Deer. He has been bought in Ireland by Dr. A. W. McAlester, of Columbia, Mo.

The English racing critics still devote much attention to the action taken by the Jockey Club in regard to Tod Sloan. The following excerpt from Truth bears out the oft expressed view, that the noted jockey will be eligible to take charge of Mr. Gardner's horses provided he does not apply for a license. "A great deal of trash has been printed about Sloan lately and it appears to be thought that he is practically ruled off the turf. This is a complete mistake. A riding license will be refused to Sloan if he applies for one, but there is nothing to prevent his returning to England in the spring and taking charge of the stud of Mr. F. Gardner if he is disposed to do so. Sloan's betting operations had long been notorious, and as there had been no interference with his irregularities during three seasons he may have thought that he was dispensed from obedience to the rules by which jockeys are supposed to be governed, and especially considering the insane fuss which was raised about him, both by many of the sporting papers and by some of his aristocratic patrons, for during the first two years of Sloan's employment in England he was never mentioned except in terms of extravagant laudation."

WESTCHESTER RACES.

Added Money Increases the Metropolitan Handicap--Entries to the Nursery.

The regular blank conditions for the races of the Westchester Racing Association's spring and autumn meetings, entries for which close next Tuesday, have been sent out by Secretary Crickmore and can be had at this office. In the Metropolitan Handicap for three year olds and upward, which is the first big handicap of the year to be run in the East, he calls attention to the fact that the added money has been raised from $5000 to $6000. In keeping with the rules passed by both the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association and the Jockey Club, that each association must have weight for age races, attention is called that the St. Nicolas is made a weight for age hurdle race. He also announces that the Woodlawn Vase, which was first run for at Louisville in 1861, will be added to the Morris Park weight for age race under conditions to be announced in August. He also gives out the following list of entries made to the Nursery Handicap; $2500 added, for two year olds, which closed on August 15, 1900.

August Belmont's Masterman, Anak, Friction, Rose-plume and Fidenia colts; S. S. Brown's Ambulance colt Merden colt, Semaphore colt, Julia W. colt; John Ealy's Lydia colt, Julius Fleischmann's Serene colt, Spinaway colt, Reina Victoria colt, Villette colt, the Heroine colt and Hifight colt; Goughacre's stables and Thistledown colt, Pilgrimage filly, Lady Stamford filly, White Squall colt and Miss Glennon colt, W. Hendrie's Scotland Pet and Ten Below Zero; Green B. Morris' Ealsara colt, Sweet Home colt; M. Murphy's Bowden Lass colt, Red and Blue colt, Alabama colt, Duchess colt, Yum Yum colt and Wanton colt, Mrs. R. Roche's Lombre, J. W. Schorr's Peninah colt, Orebid colt and White Veil colt.

The attention of owners and trainers is called to the fact that there is a fine of $50 imposed for two year olds which are not named by March 1st.

The Futurity of 1903 has received 1049 entries. Among the new stallions represented are Hamburg Ogden, Isidor and Tammany. Old Ben Holiday, the former long distance champion, and gallant Sir Walter are also on the list.

James R. Keene's famous colt, Tommy Atkins, died in England last Saturday where he had been shipped to take part in the races this year. To a New York reporter Mr. Keene said: "I do not know exactly when Tommy Atkins died or from what disease, for I have not been advised from the other side as to the particulars of the colt's death." Mr. Keene took the loss of the colt, from whose performances in England he expected so much, very philosophically. It could be seen, however, that he felt the loss of the horse more than he cared to show. Tommy Atkins was one of the best two year olds on the American turf last season and second only to Commando in the stable of James R. and F. P. Keene. He was by imp. Masetto, out of Quesal by Himyar. He was shipped to England recently with Cbacornae, winner of the Futurity in 1899, and other horses. He caught cold on the trip over, according to advices from England, and died after being landed. Tommy Atkins was purchased as a yearling for $4500. The colt gave such grand promise that his many good engagements in this country were cancelled and he was elected by the Messrs. Keene to race in England this year instead. He was eligible for most of the classic turf events in England and France this season, including the Gold Cup, the Cambridge-shire, the Czarwiteh and the Grand Prix. As a two year old Tommy Atkins ran nine races and only once was out of the money. There was considerable hard feeling engendered over the running of the Flatbush stakes, which was Tommy Aitkin's last race, when he was beaten by Ballyhoo Bey by a head after being interfered with in the stretch.

THERE IS every prospect of a good circuit of harness racing in California this year if the appropriation for the district fairs is made by the Legislature, and thus far no opposition has manifested itself in that direction. A majority of the districts in the central portion of the State are partial to a program of harness racing with the running feature omitted. As a rule nearly all the running horses of any class go east during the summer, or race only at the State Fair, and those that make the round of the district fairs are a band of skates that must have conditions made especially for them. They are more trouble and expense to the associations than they are worth, and are attended by a band of ruled off trainers and out-lawed jockeys that lend anything but dignity to the sport. The six or seven months of continuous racing held here during the winter months, with the two weeks furnished by the State Fair and the two weeks at Los Angeles, provides amply for the runners, and the district associations in California will be wise if they recognize this fact and make up their programs with harness racing exclusively. Montana will have sixty days of running this summer, which will leave nothing of any class in the thoroughbred line in this State. The harness horse is the popular horse with the general public and is the animal of pleasure, recreation and usefulness. The runners have become mere gambling machines, and it is not the province, or it should not be, of district associations to make any provision for them. If the agricultural associations of California will arrange good programs of harness racing this year, and provide liberal premiums for exhibits of cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry and all farm products, they can not only make their fairs interesting and instructive but profitable as well.

A GOOD LIKENESS of the four year old paeing colt Beauseant by Bow Bells 2:19½, dam Rosy Morn by Aleantara, recently purchased of May Overton, of Nashville, Tenn., by J. C. McKinney, Terrace Stock Farm, Titusville, Pa., is shown on our front page this week. Beauseant is a full brother to Boreal 2:15½, sire of Boralma 2:08, and has an authenticated trial of 2:07½ as a three year old in 1900. The best judges do not hesitate to declare that Beauseant is the best individual ever bred in Tennessee.

WATCH THE RESULT of this mating. Carrie Blackwood, the daughter of Blue Bull 75, that is the dam of Atlantic King 2:09½, Major Centlivre 2:10½, Mary Centlivre 2:12, Carrie Strathmore 2:17½ and the dam of Captain Ranke 2:21½, has been bred to Cresceus 2:04. By all the laws of heredity the produce should be fast as the proverbial bullet.

THOSE WHO RACE AT NEW YORK will be interested in the advertisement of the stakes to be run at Morris Park in May and October and the handicaps to be run at Bunnings in April this year. A detailed account of these stakes will be found in our advertising columns, and entry blanks with full particulars can be had at this office upon application. These stakes will close on Tuesday next, February 12. At the spring meeting the two year olds have the Gaiety, for fillies with $1000 added, over the last four and a half furlongs of the Eclipse Course; the Bouquet, with $1000 added, selling stake, over the last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course; and the Laureate, with $1200 added, over the last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course. For three year olds there is the Larchmont, with $1000 added, over the last seven furlongs of the Withers mile; the Baychester, with $1000 added, over the Withers mile; the Van Nest, with $1000 added, over the last six and a half furlongs of the Withers mile, and the Poecantico, with $1200 added, a mile and a sixteenth, over the hill. For three year olds and upwards there is the Metropolitan, with $6000 added, over the Withers mile; the Harlem, with $1000 added, over the Withers mile; the Tobogan, with $1000 added, over the Eclipse Course; the New Rochelle, with $1000 added, over the last seven furlongs of the Withers mile. The Spring Serial Handicaps for three year olds and upwards, are the Crotona, with $1000 added, over the last six furlongs of the Withers mile; the Claremont, with $1000 added, over the last six and a half furlongs of the Withers mile, and the Van Courtland, with $1000 added, over the last seven furlongs of the Withers mile. There is also the new Jockey Club Weight for Age Race, with $1500 added, over a mile and a furlong on the Withers course; the Amateur Cup, selling, $1000 added, over the Withers mile; the St. Nicholas Weight for Age Hurdle Handicap, $600 added, mile and a half; the Knickerbocker Hurdle Handicap, $600 added, a mile and three-quarters; the New York Steeplechase, with $750 added, about two miles, and the International Steeplechase Handicap, with $1000 added, over a two mile and a half course. All of these spring meeting events close Tuesday, February 12, 1901. For the autumn meeting the two year olds have the Nursery Handicap, with $2500 added, over the Eclipse course; the Champagne, with $2500 added, over the last seven furlongs of the Withers mile, and the White Plains Handicap, with $2000 added, over the Eclipse course. For three year olds there is the Jerome Handicap, with $1500 added, a mile and a quarter over the hill. For three years old and upward is the Municipal Handicap, with $2500 added, a mile and a quarter over the hill, and the new Morris Park Weight for Age Race, with $3000 added, two miles and a quarter over the Withers course. These events for the autumn meeting close February 12, 1901, the supplementary entry closing August 15, 1901.

THE BREEDING SEASON has begun and there is every reason to believe that more mares will be bred in California this year than for many seasons past. Every owner should make up his mind to mate his mares with the very best stallions he can afford to pay the service fee for. The day is past when the foal sired by a scrub stallion will bring any money unless it is a freak. It sometimes happens of course that the progeny of a scrub will hark back to an ancestor of worth and be a good individual, but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred a scrub will produce after his kind. The best plan is not to breed a scrub mare at all but if you must do it, pick out the best horse you can find to mate her with, that the progeny may have a chance to amount to something more than its dam. Breeders who will look over our advertising pages will see there advertised a number of well bred stallions and thus far there is not one named hut we can conscientiously recommend as a horse worth breeding good mares to. California, fortunately, is pretty well supplied with grandly bred stallions of all breeds, and though there are many plug cross road stallions in service, owners are not compelled to patronize them for want of something better to breed to. If you want to secure the services of a good horse consult our columns.

A DISTRICT FAIR can be made a splendid advertisement of the resources of the district wherein it is held, if the directors but work to that end. A county not a hundred miles from San Francisco last week appropriated a thousand dollars for a "write up" in a San Francisco publication that probably circulates ten thousand copies. It may be money well spent, and we hope it is, but the same amount judiciously expended in helping a district fair would do the county ten times the amount of actual good.

COLT STAKES for two and three year olds bred and owned in the district should be a feature of our county fairs this year. They will not only encourage the breeding and training of better horses, but will be most interesting features of the fair programs.

THE SLOW CLASSES for trotters and pacers will fill well in California this season if fair purses are offered. A 2:15 class for trotters should draw a good list of entries and the 2:20, 2:25 and 2:30 classes should fill to overflowing—that is, the entries will probably be numerous enough to pay the purses. While quite a number of the leading trainers are talking of going East, it is very plainly evident that unless one has a string of horses good enough to take through the Grand Circuit, he can do better at home here in California. Outside the Grand Circuit purses range from $200 to $500 over on the other side of the Rocky Mountains and it is more profitable to stay here than to pay big freight bills to reach a place where the purses are no larger and the opportunities not so good. Thirty-two horses won from $1000 to $2725 on the California circuit last year, and it is a pretty safe bet that this is as good a showing as the same number of horses from any State will make on the Grand Circuit this season. Good purses for the slow classes will not only draw big lists of entries in this State this year, but they will enable the horsemen to make a little money.

A YEAR AGO, says the Horse World, the coming of better conditions was evident, but even the most buoyant hardly dared prophesy so great a change as has occurred. Never has there been a greater demand for racing material and breeding stock than has characterized the year just about to close. Breeders who have been conducting their operations on contracted lines have branched out by adding to their studs, and horsemen who have heretofore confined their racing to one or two horses have enlarged their campaigning stables. Stallions in public service have been well patronized; owners of race horses have had no trouble in racing them for liberal purses, and breeders who have sent the product of their studs to the sales ring have secured exceedingly satisfactory prices. Speedway sport has advanced rapidly in the big cities during the year, and it promises to become one of the principal elements in establishing the value of fast trotters and pacers. This form of sport has already robbed the turf of several of its best performers, and has thus assisted in creating a demand for the same sort.

Raymond writes as follows in the Buffalo Horse World: The proposition of a Kentucky man to back Charley Herr 2:07 in a three cornered match against The Abbot 2:03½ and Cresceus 2:04, the stakes to be $10,000 a corner, is causing a lot of talk and it is interesting to note that more than one good judge thinks the Kentucky stallion would be as good as second in such a race. The New York man who represents the backer of Charley Herr is reported to have referred to that horse's chances in the proposed race as follows: "The Abbot and Cresceus would have to trot two heats close to 2:05, I believe, and with Kelly warming little Charley nicely back in third place, why, I reckon he would just about eat 'em up along toward the fourth or fifth heats." That sounds all right, but unless Kelly drove a different race than he has ever driven Charley Herr, it would be that horse and The Abbot that would be doing the fighting in the first two heats, with Cresceus waiting until the third heat to make his bid. In all the races Kelly has driven Charley Herr, he has always driven the game stallion to win every heat. He did that in the stallion race at Readville last fall, and he did it in the Transylvania in the fall of 1899. Such a race as the one suggested would be worth witnessing at any rate, but I do not believe it will ever be arranged, for I do not think the owner of The Abbot would care to start him against the two stallions, although he may be perfectly willing to start him against either one single-handed.

Three hundred Kentucky horses will soon be shipped to South Africa for the British army's use. The contract has been awarded to Thomas Murphy, of Glasgow, Ky., and is the first ever given directly to a Kentucky horse dealer by the British Government. Murphy has begun purchasing, and he believes that he will soon secure the number desired. Murphy has been furnishing horses for the United State army both in Cuba and the Philippines.

The beneficial influence of matinee racing on the sport of harness racing is readily acknowledged by those in a position to observe and judge of its effects. Here is what the Boston Herald has to say: "Matinee racing has been one of the best things that ever happened for the breeder of the light harness horses, and its beneficial effects will be reflected on the race track."

Countess Eve 2:09½, now owned by the Austrians, will be sent to Russia to compete in some of their long distance races.

Wild Pigeons.

The abundance of wild pigeons at present in many sections of the State is regarded as phenomenal. Immense flocks are reported as infesting the agricultural districts where the birds have entirely destroyed newly planted fields of grain, and in some instances the farmers have been compelled to replant their fields, as the birds come down in thousands and devour the seed before it can be harrowed into the ground. The pigeons have furnished great sport for sportsmen in many localities, who are after the pests in large numbers.

In some farming districts they have proved so great a nuisance that on many ranches poisoned wheat has been laid for them.

In the vicinity of Gilroy the pigeons have been feeding on manzanita blossoms, the result of this diet causes the bird's crop to swell out like a balloon, creating a peculiar appearance and from the actions of those affected in that manner, rather making Mr. Pigeon feel very uncomfortable.

In the vicinity of Sacramento the birds are reported to be resorting to their old roosting grounds on the Rancho del Paso in millions.

Their favorite food is acorns. It is not of much use to hunt the wild pigeon during the early part of the day as they are very wild and wary, although some sportsmen claim they will light to stools, circling round and pitching in like a flock of ducks.

These wild pigeons of California are new about the only ones left in the United States, which congregate in large flocks. Not many years ago the birds swarmed over the Western and Middle States, but the market hunters and everybody else hunted and killed them year after year so incessantly that the birds finally disappeared and it was for a long time supposed they were exterminated. It seemed impossible to destroy birds so thick that when on their flights they actually shut out the sunlight, but nothing is impossible for the class of men who kill game for the dollars they can make out of it and for many years the Eastern wild, or passenger pigeon was regarded as a thing of the past. Recently the secret of their disappearance from wanted haunts has been disclosed and the birds have been re-located in the fastnesses of the Peruvian Andes where they are said to be found in the same countless myriads as was the case when they used to visit Eastern localities.

The California wild pigeons are, however, safe from extinction. They stay in the fastnesses of the Sierra Nevadas, and come into the foothills and valleys only when heavy snow storms cover up the berries on which they feed and hunger drives them down into the acorn belt.

These wild pigeons are larger than those that used to be found in the East, and ornithologists have advanced the theory that they sprang from the domestic bluerocks brought from England years and years ago by the Hudson Bay Company and distributed among its Pacific Coast stations. They are said to be identical with the English bluerocks.

While feeding on acorns the flesh of the birds becomes bitter. As soon as they are shot the contents of their craws should be removed, the birds are also improved by parboiling. This bitterness removed the wild pigeon becomes an excellent table bird.

Local sportsmen can get a pigeon shoot in the vicinity of Livermore, Pleasanton, Suncel or Pinole where they are reported to be in great numbers. The San Bruno hills and the hill district back of the cemeteries have furnished some good bags. They have also been located in plenty near Point San Pedro.

Santa Clara Game Law.

Recent changes in the county game laws by the Santa Clara board of supervisors are noted below.

The repeal of the local game ordinances by the board of supervisors and the substitution of new ordinances was for the purpose largely of correcting a defect in the former ordinances. As these ordinances do not go into effect until fifteen days after their passage, the open season for quail was extended this year until February 5th. The essential features of the new ordinances are as follows:

"SECTION 1.—It shall be unlawful for any person to take, catch, kill or capture or in any manner destroy or have in his or her possession, within the limits of this county, any mountain or valley quail between the first day of February and the first day of November of each year.

"Sec. 2.—It shall be unlawful for any person within the limits of this county to kill or take more than twenty quail or wild duck in any one day, or to have in his or her possession more than twenty quail killed or taken by one person in one day, or more than twenty wild ducks, killed or taken within the limits of this county in any one day by any one person.

The following ordinance in regard to quail in the light of a recent decision of the Supreme Court is, we believe, not worth the paper it is written upon.

"SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons from and after this ordinance is passed and in force and effect to take, kill or transport any species of quail for the purpose and with the intent of marketing the same.

"Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any wholesale or retail dealer from and after the time this ordinance is passed and in force and effect to buy or sell quail for the purpose of trade.

"Sec. 3. It shall be unlawful for any common carrier from and after the time this ordinance is passed and in force and effect to accept for transportation or to transport any quail delivered to said common carrier for the purpose of shipping the same to market."

Punishment for violation of the provisions of the first ordinance is a fine of from $20 to $500, or imprisonment from one to six months, or both; and for violation of the second ordinance a fine not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days, or both.

The State law holds in the case of wild ducks, the open season for which runs to March 1st.

Change in a Quail Law.

The board of supervisors of Monterey county has repealed special game ordinance No. 292, which provided that the close season for quail should begin February 1st. Hence it is lawful to kill quail in that county throughout this month as the general or state law prevails, which permits quail shooting until March 1st.

At the Traps.

The following program is announced for the open to all bluerock shoot Washington's Birthday, February 22, 1901, at Ingleside, commencing at 10 A. M.

Event No. 1.—10 birds. Jack rabbit system. Entrance, $1.25. (Every bird broken pays back 10 cts. Balance of pool divided among high guns.)

Event No. 2.—12 birds. Entrance, $1. 3 moneys. Class shooting.

Event No. 3.—Freeze out. Entrance 50 cts.

Event No. 4.—10 birds. Entrance 25 cts. Jack rabbit system revised. (Each bird missed costs 10 cts. extra, money thus collected will be divided among high guns.)

Event No. 5. 20 birds. Handicap in distance. Entrance $1. For merchandise prizes as follows: 1st class, $5; 2d class, $3; 3d class, $3; 4th class, $2.50; 5th class, $1.50, in cash or order for merchandise.

Event No. 6.—10 birds. Entrance 75 cts. High guns to win.

Other events will be arranged on the grounds if time will permit.

Entries for the second annual Grand American Handicap at targets close July 22d.

At a recent meeting of the San Francisco Trap Shooting Association the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Edward Donohoe, President; A. M. Shields and Phil B. Bekeart, Vice-Presidents; A. M. Shields, Secretary; Clarence A. Haight, Treasurer. Executive Committee, Dr. S. E. Knowles, C. A. Haight and Herbert Kullman.

The Executive Committee will assume the active management of the Ingleside trap shooting grounds and arrange the trap program for the year, announcement of which will be duly made.

The grounds will be placed in first class condition for the season of 1901. Notable among the several contemplated improvements will be a new arrangement of the live bird traps. These traps will be operated by an underground method, which is now in practical operation on many Eastern grounds and known as the "Fulford system." This will mean a great saving in time, both in filling the traps and retrieving.

The California Wing Club will probably open the live bird season at Ingleside on the first Sunday in March. Other meetings at inanimate targets and live birds will possibly be arranged for the San Francisco Gun Club, Olympic Gun Club and Union Gun Club. The rumor has been current that the Lincoln Gun Club propose to use their grounds at Alameda junction this year.

The Empire Gun Club will open their trap season on the club grounds at Alameda point on Sunday, March 10th, with a merchandise shoot, open-te-all.

The program for the Grand American Handicap will be ready on the 20th inst., and may be obtained by addressing Manager Elmer E. Shaner, 122 Diamond Market, Pittsburg, Pa.

The Grand American scheduled for Wednesday, April 3rd, will have a guaranteed value of $1500, divided into three moneys—$600 to first, $500 to second and $400 to third, with a silver trophy for the winner. The shoot will be a sweepstakes of $25 entrance each, and all money in excess of the guaranteed value of the stakes will be divided into additional moneys under the rules that have been in force for the event in former years. This distribution will be to the high guns.

The one important change in the great live bird shoot will be in the method of handicapping. In former tournaments the handicap was by distance solely, from 25 to 31 yards rise. This year the handicap will be from 25 to 33 yards rise, with the addition of allowances to short mark men, misses to count as kills for those at the shortest distances, misses as kills and misses as "no bird" for shooters just back of these, and misses as "no birds" for the gunners at intermediate marks, the straight handicap by distance ruling only for the back mark men under the scale adopted by the Interstate Park Association a few weeks ago.

The complete list to date of the Interstate Association's trap shooting tournaments is as follows: Ninth Annual Grand American Handicap at live birds and second Grand American at targets, commence April 1st and June 23d respectively, at Interstate Park, Queens, L. I.; June 19-21, target tournament at Cleveland under auspices of the Cleveland Gun Club; May 8-10, target tournament at Memphis, Tenn., under auspices of Memphis Gun Club; July 1-2, target tournament at Sherbrooke, P. Q., Can., under auspices of Sherbrooke Gun Club; target tournament at Providence, R. I., under auspices of the Rhode Island Gun Club. All these shoots will be under the supervision of Manager Elmer E. Shaner.

Cartridge and Shell.

K. L. Hart a Tucson sportsman and prominent dealer in sporting goods will visit this city in a few weeks. Mr. Hart is quite an expert at the traps.

What is reported by the Asian as a record bag of ducks was made in Kashmir towards the end of last month. Six guns in the Hokarsar and two in the Mer gund valleys killed and gathered five hundred and sixty-four ducks in the day. Shooting began at 10 A. M. and was continued till 5 P. M. with an hour's interval for tiffin. This enormous bag consisted chiefly of gadwall, teal and mallard with a few pintails, white eyes and odds and ends.

The Emperor William is credited with having bagged during the year 2,750 pheasants and 146 deer. This record was a better showing than the royal sportsman made the year previous. In Europe, it seems, the man who makes the biggest killing is the greatest sportsman. The two sports of hunting and angling—the latter indulged in away from the seaboard, are the sports of the rich and the favored. Game of all kinds in Continental countries is protected most rigorously. The unlucky wight who is caught poaching pays dearly for his temerity. On the preserves, in most districts, the game is nearly as tame as the domestic animals and easily slaughtered.

To many readers the following prosaic item from the Red Bluff News will bring memories of an almost forgotten and arduous vocation, but one that was an absorbing romance to many during the days of their youth: Two trappers, with two boats, one a punt and the other a large, flat-bottomed scow, for their traps, camping outfit, etc., reached here from up river on Thursday. They started out from Anderson and will continue down the river, stopping whenever they find signs of fur-bearing animals. They say otter and beaver are scarce so far, but have trapped many skunks, which fur at present brings very good prices in the market.

All hawks are not destroyers of wild game, many of them are of great benefit, they catch and kill much field vermin, gophers and mice, as well as grasshoppers and other insects. Speaking of hawks, one of the men at the Museum of Natural History in Washington tells a story of how one was fooled at the State Museum at Raleigh, N. C., a few weeks ago. One of the curators there was mounting a number of partridges that had recently been presented to the institution. One of the stuffed partridges was on the sill of a window near where the curator was at work. A hawk flying by saw the bird and pounced down on it, falling with it into the room where the men were at work on the specimens. An assistant of the curator as promptly pounced on the hawk, and after a very short battle had captured a very fine specimen of what is known as Cooper's hawk. The bird was dispatched and has been added to the other specimens in the museum.

This particular kind of hawk is the deadly enemy of the valley quail. The "chicken" hawk, so called, is another depredating raptor. Few, comparatively of those who have an opportunity to shoot a hawk, know the difference between the good and bad varieties, and as the species has an unsavory reputation the useful members of the hawk family are sacrificed to the general belief that hawks, like some Indians, are only good when they are dead.

With the Hunters.

Shooting wild geese by moonlight was a diversion indulged in by four hunters in the following manner last week on one of the burnt tule sections of the upper Suisun marsh. The place selected for operations was a spot three or four acres in area which had recently been burnt off, this being the time of the year when fire is put to the tules, and immense tracts can now, daily and nightly, be seen in flames. The burnt patch was the resort at night of thousands of geese which huddled together on the open ground. The hunters visited the patch before the immense flocks came in for the night and laid newspapers over the ground in many places. When the wary geese commenced to flock in, one string after the other, the birds at once discovered the white and strange objects lying on the ground. The purpose of the newspapers was shortly evident as the geese instead of taking permanent flight would circle round and come back again over the spot, suspicious but still curious enough to fly back within range of the hunters' guns. The scheme worked only to a certain degree, while a fair number of geese were brought down the greater number of the birds would persist in keeping out of reach of the guns.

Black or sea brant can still be found about the turbulent waters of Tomales bay, principally at the northern end of this arm of the ocean. On Saturday Fred Sanborn, Mr. Stone Jr., and Al Wilson were out goose hunting in boats but the weather and tide were not in their favor. Sunday morning the shoot was continued in stormy weather, but seven birds were secured. Sunday afternoon Wilson and the Christianson brothers, a trio of the most expert sea brant hunters on the Coast, went after the geese and raised the score to seventeen. Monday morning the hunters put off from their camp in the boats and got enough birds to make the bag for five men, in four shooting trips, run up to twenty-eight geese. Results as barren as hero stated are the general rule, not the exception, and proves the utter uselessness as a game protection feature, of a bag limit of eight geese.

Duck hunters have been handicapped by adverse weather conditions. But few results were obtained on Sunday at the resorts on the Suisun, Sonoma or Petaluma marshes. At Mt. Eden several bags of spoonbills were shot in the morning. Joe Bickerstaff brought in fifty, Mike McDonnell and "Nick" dropped thirty each, and G. Cook and a shooting companion had several dozen. Lee Larzalere, John Burfield and another shooter came in on the Sunday train from Alvarado with over 100 birds. There was a bright moon Saturday night! At the "bridges" one hunter is said to have bagged a big string of canvasback. Three cars full of hunters came in on the 6:15 train Sunday night.

Growing Popularity of the Dog as a Fancy.

The rise of the dog in America, from the gutter to the show bench, is one of the natural results of the growing popularity of sports and pastimes during the past quarter of a century. The cult of the dog has been brought to a degree of perfection undreamed of in the early 70's, when a few venturesome Eastern sportsmen who owned "bird dogs," decided to hold a dog show. The first bench show of which any record can be found, was given by the Illinois State Sportsman's Association at Chicago, June 4, 1874. Twenty-one entries comprised of English, Irish, Gordon and Laverack Setters, Irish Spaniels and Pointers were judged by John Davidson of Monroe, Mich., Hon. L. B. Crocker of Mendota, Ill., and H. N. Sherman of Beloit, Wis. On June 22, 1874, a dog show was held at Oswego, N. J., in connection with the sixteenth annual meeting of the New York State Sportsmen's Association. There was but three entries and the entrance money was returned to the two exhibitors on the report of the bench show committee "as there was no competition."

In October, 1874, another show was held at Mineola, Long Island, and consisted mainly of Setters and Pointers. Another show was held at Springfield soon after, but it was not until the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, in 1876, that general interest was excited in the possibilities of the dog cult. A more miscellaneous collection of dogs was brought together, which served to show the insufficiency of quality which existed in that day.

This show was merely an incident of a world's fair, and it was not until the Westminster Kennel Club was formed in New York, with club quarters at Babylon, L. I., that the system of dog shows which has brought about the present popularity of our friend the dog, was instituted with the show held in New York in 1877. Under the auspices of this kennel club, the oldest in the country, dog shows have been held annually in New York, and the advancement of kennel interests throughout the United States may be said to date from the year named.

The first dog show held in this city was in November, 1877, at the Mechanics' Pavilion, under the management of Messrs. Pond, Andoe and Lock, three theatrical managers who came to this Coast to run a musical festival. This venture was generally condemned by reason of mismanagement and it utterly failed of its object.

Other shows were given in different Eastern cities until the interest in dogs became so general that an association of clubs was formed at Philadelphia, in 1885, under the name of the American Kennel Club. Headquarters were established in New York and a system of rules and regulations were evolved to protect dog owners and clubs giving shows, which in its powers, is on all fours with the National Trotting Association and kindred governing bodies. A Stud Book was instituted, in which, during the past fifteen years, nearly 60,000 dogs have been registered, and no less than twenty-seven shows were held in 1900 under American Kennel Club rules.

The old Massachusetts Kennel Club, which later became the New England Kennel Club, is the next oldest kennel club in the country, and through its annual shows has done no little toward educating the public to a better appreciation of the dog.

The outline of the birth of the dog show system in the United States paves the way for a general consideration of an animal, which vies with the horse in being considered man's best friend, and the importance of the influences which work for its interests.

The first breeds which commanded intelligent consideration enough to lift them out of the category of "just dog," were Pointers and Setters, more particularly the latter. The old savage instinct borne in the average Anglo-Saxon to go out and kill something demanded a dog that would aid him to find it first. Therefore, naturally, for some years the Setter and Pointer interests were supreme at our shows, but gradually the importation of good blood in these breeds from England, aroused the ambition, as dog shows became more numerous, of owners of other dogs known as non-sporting, in order to improve their dogs in the same way, until gradually the Pointer and Setter were forced into the background, and field trials having been instituted, they found in these a more congenial atmosphere than the hurly-burly of a modern dog show.

The inauguration of field trials while, undoubtedly to some extent, improving the field qualities of Pointers and Setters, resulted in an inattention to bench show form, which has, sad to say, caused a marked deterioration in the good looks of the general average of these dogs, compared to dogs which filled the show benches in the '80's. The something like contempt for dog shows and the bigoted ignorance of many field dog owners, especially in the Southern and Western States, have contributed no little to this unfortunate condition, unfortunate because there is no earthly reason why a good field dog should not be a good bench show dog, for the original standard was made to suit both.

Among other breeds, commencing with Mastiffs, the outlook for the latter is not encouraging. During the eighties and before the St. Bernard became the popular big dog, the Mastiff filled out show benches numerous. There were then ten breeders to one now and several shows have been held of late years in the East where scarcely an entry has been benched. The general opinion seems to prevail that the craze for short wrinkled heads, more on the bull dog order, is responsible for the decline of popular admiration. The craze for these abnormal heads at the expense of other points resulted in a line of cowed-necked cripples, which naturally disgusted dog lovers who could not understand the intricacies of scientific show breeding. Other breeds have suffered from the same inattention to uniformity.

The specimens of the breed as shown here and at other bench exhibits on the Coast for the past decade, have, with but few exception, not been of an encouraging standard. Ingleside Crown Prince was one of the best dogs shown here years ago. Ch. California Cube, owned by W. E. Meek of Haywards, is a dog having the nearest approach to the typical Mastiff head that has been seen at the local dog shows for several years—he however is somewhat lacking in body and stature to come up to the full standard. Speaking of this Mastiff an amusing statement appeared a week ago in a morning daily of this city, when it was announced that he "has sired no less than thirty puppies within the past month, of which eleven were out of James L. Flood's Myra and ten out of J. P. Norman's Hebe Montez." This is rather a startling example of canine energy, abnormally rapid in conditions of prepotency and fecundity. Brilliance of reportorial prophesy is merged with free advertising in a comical manner.

Happily, reason is prevailing, and through the constant efforts of a few well known breeders, the Mt. Vernon farm, for instance, also Boston and Baltimore kennels, activity and good legs are being once more combined with good head formation.

Among all large breeds the St. Bernard has been most popular during the past twenty years. At one time St. Bernards, or, as they are sometimes irreverently termed, the "saintly breed," made up the largest entries at our shows, but now they must, at a New York show, for instance, divide the laurels with Fox Terriers, Sporting Spaniels and Boston Terriers.

Some ten years ago the St. Bernard suffered from the craze for heads and size and markings, at the expense of activity and good legs and feet. Wiser counsels prevailed and such splendidly headed cripples like old Champion Marvel would not now be tolerated in the first ranks. Uniformity has been recognized and deformed legs are knocked hard in the ring.

The Great Dane, although laboring under an absurd prejudice in some sections, on account of the terrors suggested by those uncouth monsters which are won't to travel with the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe, is coming rapidly forward into general popularity. The Great Dane would become general as a country house dog in Massachusetts were it not for the absurd blue law which prohibits its possession in this State. The similar law in that State which affected Bloodhounds was repealed some years ago, and it is a pity action was not taken on behalf of the Great Dane. This dog is considered by all who know it, to be one of the best-natured of the big dogs, and its handsome, active, clean-cut personality, faithfulness and courage, make it peculiarly fitted for the home guardian.

Greyhounds do not attract much interest on the bench. Their place is on the coursing field, and since the inauguration of coursing in this State the breeding of Greyhounds for this purpose has become a most important pursuit, and thousands upon thousands of dollars are invested in them.

Borzoi or Russian Wolfhounds, the handsomest of the Greyhound family, graceful, long haired animals, with not the best of dispositions, cannot be said to have made much headway.

Nowfoundlands, that grand old breed, also suffer, but from an unfair reputation for treachery and uncertain temper, brought about in most part by the reputation of the average black curly dog of the street, which always gets into print as a Newfoundland. The real Newfoundland is a benevolently inclined dog and has been immortalized in Landseer's great painting, "A Distinguished Member of the Humane Family." In England the breed is almost a national one.

Foxhounds we have always with us in the country districts, and no keener sportsmen are to be found in the world than the fox hunters, who, as a rule, must pursue their sport under pretty rough conditions of weather and country. We see little of the Foxhound on the bench, owners generally paying little attention to anything but speed and nose.

And now we come to the army of Terriers. Of all these the sprightly and prettily marked Fox Terrier is the most popular, judging by the entries at the shows. The smooth coated variety is most numerous, although during the last seven years the wire haired Fox Terrier has come well to the front, and at important shows has only a few less representatives than the smooth.

Bull Terriers, perhaps, come next in popular estimation. Some prominent men have taken up the breed of "white 'uns," and a large entry is now assured at almost all shows.

Perhaps no breed has come more quickly to the front than the Irish Terrier—a very favorite breed around Boston and New York. It is the favorite Terrier around Boston. The best are owned, it has been claimed, in that section of the country. E. Courtney Ford, of this city, and Mrs. Bradley-Dyne, of Sydney, B. C., have some of the best specimens on this Coast.

Scottish Terriers are also becoming a popular breed, for while nothing gamier lives for all sorts of small "varmints," they are also very cute house companions. The best in the country hail from Boston.

The different breeds of Toy Spaniels and pet dogs, particularly Pomeranians and Blenheim, are all on the boom, the last two years having seen a big jump in their favor and many good ones have been imported from England and the East.

Bench Show Notes.

The interest among the local fancy and other intending exhibitors of dogs at the coming show of the San Francisco Kennel Club in May increases as the weeks go by and dogdom is daily agog with this, that and the other rumor about the judge selected and a thousand and one details. The bench show committee has had several executive sessions and some preliminary matters have been already arranged.

The only decisive information to date concerning the prospective judges considered is that neither Mr. Mason nor Mr. Raper will be in the ring. Mr. Raper has other engagements which would prevent his visit to this city; the negotiations with Mr. Mason have been closed on purely business lines. The committee has been in communication with a list of eligibles, but nothing definite has yet been evolved. This is not to be wondered at, considering that time, distance and contingent circumstances prevent, to a great extent, an announcement thus early of the judge or judges engaged.

The statement which appeared, exclusively, in a morning daily a week ago to the effect that the position of manager had been conferred upon H. D. Laidlaw, and that J. C. Langenderfer would officiate as superintendent, also that John Bradshaw had been suggested for judge of Greyhounds and that Mr. Bert Weyman had been slated for ring steward seems to have been in part premature, although given out positively. We are informed by the Secretary that applications from the gentlemen named are now on file but have not yet been finally acted upon.

In view of the executive abilities shown by the Secretary in the past it seems somewhat in the nature of ill advised judgment to allow matter, which should be generally distributed to the daily and weekly press, to be given exclusively to one publication. The small amount of space compensation and the individual advertising acquired is not of an importance, as contrasted with the benefit to be derived for the kennel club and the fancy generally, to warrant a continuance of the same distinction which was entirely too conspicuous last year in connection with the bench show.

In justice to the Secretary-Treasurer we will state that he has positively disclaimed the authorship of the "kennel barkings" above referred to.

A new section, of interest to dog owners and club members, was added to the club constitution at a meeting held Wednesday evening and it is as follows:

"It shall be a part of the functions of this Club to take such measures as will lead to the detection and punishment of persons who shall steal, poison or otherwise injure dogs, the property of a member of this club.

"A special committee shall be appointed to take such action as may be necessary under this rule."

Pacific Coast Field Trial Notes.

The criticisms on the recent trials at Coronado which appeared in the columns of a weekly contemporary last Saturday seem to be founded on a studied effort to belittle facts and create an unwarranted suspicion as to the ability or motives of the judges. The previous communication from "New Hand" is answered by "Trailer" and is a peculiar document to come from one who was not present, but is only a reader of the reports of the trials, which by the way were all written for the daily and weekly press by two correspondents. One of which is the owner of the weekly of this city here referred to, and the other reporter is the editor of the weekly's kennel department. The proprietor prepared the field trial matter for one morning daily, which it is said had to be re-edited and revised to make it presentable to the reader, and the kennel editor is accredited with sending telegraphic reports to the other two morning dailies. In the light of these conditions it is also claimed that the latter journalist also prepared the reports of the trials which appeared simultaneously in the American Field and The Sportsman's Review last week.

The kennel editor of the weekly shows great appreciation of his own superior field trial intelligence when he writes: "It is not to be expected that the decision of the judges will at all times give entire satisfaction, either to the owners or to those of the spectators who have from long experience qualified themselves to form an intelligent opinion. But when decisions are rendered which are not approved by any one on the field competent to form an opinion, it becomes a serious matter to the welfare of the club."

Taking the dogs into the second series of the Derby was not a mistake, the second trial was given on the equitable ground that a young dog is often bothered, frightened or non-plussed the first time down and does not show what is in him. The results of the Derby showed this to have been a wise move. Judges as a rule are generally more lenient with a puppy than with the older and more experienced dogs.

The great majority of the gentlemen who were present at the trials, whom we have met and interviewed, unreservedly state, the decisions met with general satisfaction and the only discordant element manifest at the trials was the rancorous difference of opinion expressed by the individual who is the self-constituted oracle of dogdom for the Pacific Coast.

Doings in Dogdom.

Entries for the Westminster Kennel Show closed on Monday last.

It is reported that Tacoma will not have a bench show this year.

Mr. Thomas Johnson was in attendance at the United States field trials at Grand Junction, Tenn.

The Canadian Fox Terrier Club will hold their fourth annual bench show at Toronto on March 21st, 22d, 23rd.

The San Mateo Hunt Club has placed a contract with contractors McCracken & Andersen for the construction of new kennels for the hounds and a dwelling for the keepers. The structures will be located at Burlingame, and the work of construction will begin at once. The improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $1500.

A beautifully marked young Fox Terrier by Scorchers out of Lillian Sage shows a fine type conformation, splendid bone and a surprisingly good coat. In head and ears he is more than promising. He has a taking style and shows much character. Fanciers who have seen him say that he is a rattling good puppy. Mr. Foster has entered him in the Produce Stake of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club.

Mr. Clinton E. Worden has recently purchased from James Watson of Hackensack, N. J., a handsome sable and white Collie dog about one year old. He is by Ch. Old Hall Admiral out of Red Hill Nellie. He has been called Red Hills Commodore (No. 55,000). He is said by good judges of the breed to be an excellent specimen in every respect. This, we believe, is a new departure for Mr. Worden, who also has some excellent Pointers and several Bull Terriers.

Mr. Thomas S. Griffith, a prominent business man of Spokane, who is a lover of good horses and dogs, has recently indulged his fancy for dogs by purchasing a pair of well bred Bloodhound puppies from the Rockwood Kennels of Lexington, Ky. He has purchased from a Scotch fancier the Collie, Lenz Prince, who is credited with a record of winning forty-five firsts at shows in Scotland. This dog is now on the way to Mr. Griffiths and will shortly be seen by Spokane fanciers.

Adjourned Meeting of the Fly-Casters.---Stow Lake Contests.

Notices were mailed Thursday by Secretary Horace Smythe announcing: The adjourned annual meeting of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club will be held on Tuesday, February 12, 1901, at 8 o'clock P. M. at the California Hotel dining hall (same room as used at annual dinner), the Executive Committee concluding that the room in Mills building was not suitable.

Reports of officers and Committees will be presented. Amendments to by-laws will be proposed. Election of officers will take place. Rules governing contests for 1901 and plan of same will be adopted.

Other business presented by the Executive Committee will also come up for hearing and determination. It is surmised that the meeting will bring a large number of members together.

The following schedule of fly-casting contests, to be held at Stow lake this season, has been announced:

CONTESTS, 1901	SATURDAY, 2:30 P. M.	SUNDAY, 10 A. M.
1	Feb. 16	Feb. 17

17	Sept. 29	Sept. 30

Salt water anglers are getting good catches of rock fish at the various fishing places along the Marin shores. Silver smelt are still very plentiful in the estuary and Oakland creek.

Some splendid specimens of striped bass were seen in the market this week; a number of the fish weighing over twenty pounds were netted in the "cut off" near Dutton's Landing.

The Anglers' Annual Banquet.

The members of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club and their guests assembled around the oak on Tuesday evening the occasion being the annual dinner of the Club. Over three score jolly anglers devoted themselves to the good things bountifully served on the flower bedecked and ingeniously decorated tables, meanwhile indulging in quip and repartee typical to the sportsman the world over.

After the coffee and cigars W. D. Mansfield directed a short entertainment replete with good things. Orchestral and solo instrumental selections interspersed the rendition of several clever dialect skits by R. W. Tully and Milton W. Schwartz, two versatile University of California boys. Mr. Schwartz, in response to an encore, proved himself an adept in whistling.

Judge Hunt, ever fertile in congenial resources, at the request of the Chairman, submitted to the club an impromptu report which evoked a hearty laugh by reason of its whimsical oddities and mathematical surprises—the paper is here given in full:

JAKE RAUER,
Grand Rep. of Club's Creditors.
SHERIFF JOHN LACKMAN,
Grand Keeper of Club's Archives.

The large attendance at the dinner was a notable one, the function was entirely social, all business features being postponed until the meeting to be held in the same dining hall of the California Hotel on next Tuesday evening.

Much credit is due to Mr. A. B. Finch to whose rare judgment and skill was due the artistic decorations and tasteful ensemble of the banquet hall.

The first fly-casting contests for this season will be held at Stow Lake on Saturday, the 16th inst, at 2:30 P. M. At 10 o'clock Sunday morning the members will indulge in the initial Sunday casting contest.

Among those present at the dinner were Fish Commissioner Alex T. Vogelsang, Judge John Hunt, Jr., Judge James M. Sewell, Walter D. Mansfield, Horace Smyth, Herman F. Muller, Fred Surryhne, M. J. Geary, J. X. De Witt, F. E. Daverkosen, E. T. Allen, H. E. Skinner, James Watt, C. G. Young, A. Muller, C. Klein, E. H. Horton, Fred Johnson, E. L. Sanford, John Siebe, Joseph Peltier, W. A. L. Miller, Charles H. Kewell, J. S. Turner, F. H. Reed, M. C. Allen, J. Butler, L. Butler, J. B. Konniff, C. R. Kenniff, J. F. Babcock, H. H. Briggs, Geo. Walker, W. A. Cooper, Colonel G. C. Edwards, Dr. W. E. Brooks, T. W. Brotherton, A. M. Blade, W. Dassenville, W. Hinze, H. Battu, C. C. Stratton, E. A. Mocker, W. H. Kierulff, R. W. Tully, M. R. Schwartz, C. M. Walker, A. S. Carman, Charles Huyck, Clark Wise, P. W. Watson, G. F. Klink, O. F. Ray, A. E. Lovett, R. Isenbruck, J. Bernhard, E. A. Everett and A. B. Finch.

Andy Logaspe hooked a spent fish weighing eleven and a half pounds at Point Reyes on Sunday. Geo. Walker's dog Monk pointed a half dozen fish, the largest about twelve inches in length, which Mr. Walker looked and placed in his creel.

Tarpon and Tuna.

The respective merits of these two fish are given some attention by Mr. F. Gray Griswold, a noted Eastern angler, who writes as follows in the New York Sun:

It is not easy to compare the two kinds of fishing, nor to say which fish is more game, the tarpon or the tuna, for they act very differently. It is safe to say that they are imbued with quite different ideas when first hooked. The tarpon has no fear of boat or fisherman; his only idea is to shake the hook loose, and to do this he jumps out of the water and will do so several times if you fight him hard. The harder you fight him the more he jumps and the quicker he comes to gaff. I have never had a tarpon take more than 250 feet of line, and that in a tideway. I have heard of fish that have taken more, but am only telling of my own experience. The tuna, on the contrary, is off in a wild rush the moment he feels the hook, and I have had 650 feet of line taken from me before I could stop my fish. He then dwells, perhaps sounds, then runs again, perhaps twice, then sounds as a rule. From that time on it is a question of "pumping" your fish up to the boat if you wish to kill the fish and not to allow him to commit suicide by towing you about. With proper tackle either fish should be killed and gaffed within thirty minutes, barring accidents. If you are fortunate enough to hook your tuna in the upper jaw and hold him hard during his first run, he comes to the surface practically drowned, and if you are quick it takes but a few minutes to bring him to gaff.

The method of fishing for a tuna is to troll from a power launch or from a rowboat astern of such a launch; with a flying fish for bait. The tuna follows the bait, strikes at the head and turns as he strikes, so that he is generally hooked in the corner of the mouth and makes his run with his mouth closed. To kill him in such cases you must tire him out. The water is very deep off Catalina—hundreds of feet deep. When your fish sounds, if you wait a few moments he will discover that the pressure of the water is more comfortable nearer the surface. The great depth of water is an advantage as well as a discomfort to the fish.

I proved to my own satisfaction years since that every tarpoon should be brought to gaff within thirty minutes, and went to Catalina Island to see if the same could be done with the tuna, with the following result:

1900—June 5th, tuna, 150 pounds, 2 hours 20 minutes; June 6th, tuna, 130 pounds, 1 hour 17 minutes; June 8th, tuna, 102 pounds, 19 minutes; June 9th, tuna, 123 pounds, 19 minutes, tuna, 104 pounds, 45 minutes; June 10th, tuna, 118 pounds, 27 minutes, tuna, 88 pounds, 20 minutes, tuna, 100 pounds, 17 minutes; June 11, tuna, 99 pounds, 15 minutes, tuna, 108 pounds, 14 minutes, tuna, 62 pounds; 8 minutes; tuna, 109 pounds, 9 minutes, tuna, 118 pounds, 20 minutes. Total, thirteen fish, 1411 pounds.

I fought my first fish with a rod that had a flaw in it, and the reel was spread by the second fish, yet I averaged about thirty minutes on the thirteen, and five of them I killed in one day in six hours' fishing. I used a stout rod, a Vom Hofe Star reel, holding 800 feet of No. 22 Hall line, and a Van Vleck tarpon troling hook with swivel and piano wire snood.

The leaping tuna do not jump after being hooked, but do when chasing schools or flying fish, hence the epithet.

Now, to answer the question, Which is the more game—the fish that stands and fights, the tarpon; or the tuna, the fish that runs away, then holds on and fights to the last moment? I say the tarpon. Yet there is no sea fishing sensation equal to the first grand run of a hooked tuna, and he is a harder fish to kill than the tarpon. Try it! The season is from June 1st to July 15th.

Striped bass anglers have commented on the provision in the proposed fish bill, introduced this session, which provides for a close season during the month of June. This particular month was decided upon partly for the reason that but few salmon are then running. Any month earlier or later closed for the bass would not be in close season for salmon. The net fishermen could, and possibly would, while seining for salmon catch many striped bass. In selecting the month of June this complication was avoided.

The "white house pool" at Point Reyes was apparently full of steelheads last Sunday, the fish were seen jumping and swirling as many as fifty different times. Whether they were fresh fish or spent was not ascertained as none of them were caught by any of the fishermen at the Point.

The growth of salmon is thus tersely described by Genio C. Scott: "The fingerling becomes the parr, the parr develops scales to cover the bars on its sides and becomes a smolt; goes to sea and returns a grilse, then returns to sea and comes back a salmon."

A report from Point Reyes this week is to the effect that at the "fill" just below "railroad" point, a number of striped bass have been caught with minnows recently. Some of the fish were said to weigh six pounds.

Among the tossers of salmon roe and spoon casters at the Paper Mill tide waters last Sunday were Paddy Dugan, Jas. Carroll, Andy Legaspe, Geo. Walker, Jas. Price. During the day slight showers of rain fell at intervals.

"Doc" Watt is a wise angler. He is credited with taking a prospecting trip as far as Santa Rosa on Sunday last and no doubt acquired much information regarding possibilities for rod and line this season.

THE FARM.

Sheep Help the Land.

Somewhat or other sheep have always been associated with fertility of the soil. They are regarded as good fertilizers, and we think it proper to give them a great deal of credit for it. At any rate farms never get poorer when they are pastured by sheep, but they do increase in richness until it becomes practically impossible to raise oats on such lands.

Sheep are close croppers and will eat grass, weeds and the foliage of trees, and will convert and distribute such portions of what they consume as is not needed for the nourishment of the body over the land again. They graze nearly all the time, eat plenty of grass, if they have it to eat, and are constantly engaged in converting feed into mutton, wool and fertility. It has been said of the sheep that "its hoof is golden," and it has been said of the sheep that it has no taste, and for that reason will thrive as well on weeds and browse as it will on grass. We are not prepared to indorse all of this. Sheep seem to be not very fastidious as regards herbage and will usually eat almost anything green. That they will do as well on weeds as grass, we are not prepared to acknowledge. A sheep will eat nothing putrid and no animal matter at all. Garbage has no charms for them.

Other kinds of stock beside sheep will convert grass into fertility, but none will more satisfactorily distribute it over the fields. Cattle will eat but little else but grass. Sheep will eat of both grass and weeds. In proportion to size, a sheep will consume as much grass as any other domestic animal, perhaps a little more. As a grain-consumer it does not come up to some other kinds of domestic animals. It will convert some grain and plenty of hay into fertility in the winter, which can be distributed in the same manner, if properly managed, as in summer. Fertility is always present where there are sheep. Keep sheep and the farm will become but little poorer, if enough of them are kept. Sheep are rent-payers and can be turned into mortgage-payers if one so desires. While enriching the land they are enriching their owners.—Iowa Homestead.

Stockmen Elated.

The excellent prospect which apparently stretches before agriculturists this season, induced by timely rains coming at short intervals, have inspired stockmen with such confidence that thousands of head of stock have been imported from Texas and Arizona. The extensive stock raisers of the Simi report a bright outlook. The hills and valleys of the country are clothed knee deep in verdure. Charles Donlon, of Donlon Bros., in company with Sheriff Charlebois, has just returned from a trip through Southern Arizona and the State of Sonora, in Mexico, where they secured bargains in cattle. As a result of their venture, they brought back 900 head of cattle, with 1000 contracted for and being rounded up for shipment here. Donlon returns in a few days to oversee his purchases, and bring them in safety to the ranges in Ventura county.—Ventura Independent.

Driving Off Coyotes.

Coyotes are more numerous in Tulare county probably than in any other section of the San Joaquin valley. The Register says that they are gobbling up pigs, lambs and chickens by the wholesale. The stockmen are doing everything in their power to destroy and drive away the pests, but as yet there has only been one measure that has been fairly successful and that is the firing off of cannon firecrackers about the corrals of the animals just at nightfall. This drives the coyotes away and they do not venture to return for a day or two. This is practiced by many farmers in that section.

Stock Notes.

[Jacksonville Democrat.]

The stock raisers are much pleased with the generous amount of snow on the mountains and in the valley sections, as it will be a needed help in starting more grass on the ranges, so that good feed may be afforded during next summer. Although the snow is very deep in some localities, it will melt rapidly during the summer months to keep the grass growing and afford considerable water also. During ordinary seasons the ranges become very dry and barren in many localities.

Henry Schumger of Sacramento has been in Butte Creek Valley and Shasta Valley lately, purchasing beef cattle for the San Francisco and Sacramento markets. He secured three carloads from Hank Meiss of Butte Creek, which were shipped from Montague, and will send more below later on.

Lassen Mail: Two weeks ago G. E. De Forrest, shipped a car load of hogs to San Francisco. At Amedee, before being placed on the cars, the hogs were taken to the scales and weighed. There were seventy-five of them. Only sixty of them were shipped. Fifteen, in some unaccountable manner, were left in the weighing room and remained there for a period of eight days without food or water. Mr. DeForrest was notified and went to Amedee to get the hogs. He says that the animals looked but little worse for their experience of eight days without food or water.

Cedarville Record: William Mulling has recently been buying and selling quite a number of cattle, and yesterday he purchased eighty head from D. E. Hill. The cattle have always been reputed to be first class, and as good cattle are in demand, it is probable that Mr. Mulling will dispose of them when the right buyer comes along.

Lakeview Rustler: S. D. Coulter and Cordell Thurston left here last Thursday for Warner Valley to buy cattle. They returned Saturday, neither having made any purchases. Mr. Thurston found a few of his strays there, but did not bring them back owing to the deep snow.

Etna Advance: The stock raisers have good reason to feel jubilant in this valley at the advanced prices of beef cattle. Several of our stockmen have lately sold their beef and are transferring them to the railroad this week.

Why Bacon is High.

As to the reason for the fact that bacon now costs more than most any meat in the market wholesale handlers supply an explanation. The increased cost is due to the fact that the various governments that now have exceptionally large armies in the field take all that sort of meat the packers have in the way of surplus. They also absorb much of the regular supply. So the price is kept away beyond what it normally would be. Bacon is the staple food of the soldier in the field. Packers have standing orders from the United States, British and German governments for all the bacon they can spare. So, taking the scarcity of both commodities, it is easy to see why there is a scarcity of the general breakfast dish in boarding houses and an increase in the price for the dish on the bills of fare.—New York Times.

Pneumonia Killing Hogs.

Hundreds of hogs are dying every week up and down the river from the effects of pneumonia. Many farmers have been doctoring them for hog cholera, but from Dr. Pannerman, who is recognized all over the county as being one of our best veterinary surgeons, we learn that the real cause of the great loss is pneumonia brought on by the hogs not being properly housed. The doctor says that too many of our farmers think that all that is needed for hogs is plenty to eat and a mud-hole to wallow in, but during the winter, especially when we have so much damp, foggy weather, hogs, as well as all stock running out, should have proper shelter. It will be noticed that very few hogs have died where proper shelter has been provided.

J. W. Browning of Grand Island is probably the heaviest loser, having already lost about four hundred head. Many cattle in the county have also died recently of the dreaded disease, black-leg. Seven or eight head on the late C. P. Wilson place have died. S. H. Hines, Mr. Kilgore and Dave George have also lost several. This is a dreadful disease and there is absolutely no cure for it after it once has a good start, but wherever Dr. Pannerman has vaccinated the sound animals no further loss has been sustained.—Colusa Sun.

Value of Crop Rotation.

Hon. C. L. Smith, of Minnesota, addressing the dairymen, emphasized the value of crop rotation.

"One strong argument in favor of live stock is found in the provision it makes for a rotation of crops, and this is always an important factor in maintaining fertility. The growing of a single crop of any kind on the same ground year after year will of necessity exhaust or seriously impair those elements of fertility that enter most largely into that particular plant. As an illustration, wheat uses up the nitrogen in the soil, but clover increases it. Diversity of crops leads naturally to an increase in live stock in some form, which increases the volume of barnyard manure. This, properly used in crop rotation, will increase the fertility of the land so that the number of tons of roots or forage crops will grow larger instead of smaller, as is the case with a single crop system.

"Diversity of crops is a check against the scourges of weed and insect pests. The changes in cultivation and in the seasons of plowing destroy weeds and insects more effectually than any form of single crop, always seeded and harvested at the same time of the year.

"It is a much safer system of farming, as climatic conditions unfavorable for one crop are often propitious for another, and with a variety of crops some one is usually productive and profitable."

One of the most remarkable instances of productiveness known is that of the famous Jersey cow Adelaide of St. Lambert; she weighed when tested 1002 pounds and in 31 days she produced 200 1/4 pounds of milk or more than twice her own weight. She made 21 pounds 5 1/2 oz. of butter in seven days and 82 3/4 pounds of milk in one day, 917 1/2 pounds in two weeks or about 65 1/2 pounds per day for that time. There may have been larger records, but that is large enough for a Jersey.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLI-TITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.
Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. I. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 51 straight kills.
He used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Peggy 2:17—On the Snow at Reno, Nevada.

Driven by her owner, C. P. Farrel.

To Be Mated With McKinney.

PALO ALTO, February 11, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Palo Alto Stock Farm recognizing the grand results that have been produced through crossing the blood of Electioneer and Geo. Wilkes, and also recognizing the superiority of the great sire McKinney 2:11½, of the Wilkes family, as a producer of extremespeed and race horses, has booked to him twelve mares, eleven being daughters and granddaughters of Electioneer, the twelfth a daughter of his half sister, the champion of her time as a three and four year old, Elaine 2:20. Seldom have twelve mares, so noted, been sent from any stock farm to a stallion standing for public service as the lot to be sent from Palo Alto to McKinney, the great son of Alcyone. The list comprises:

HELENA 2:11½ by Electioneer, dam Lady Ellen 2:29½ (dam of four) by Mambrino 1789. Helena is dam of Wild Nutling (p) 2:11½ and Hyita, second in 2:15½, in 1900, her first two foals. Helena has a yearling by McKinney, a brown colt.

EXPRESSIVE (3) 2:12½ by Electioneer, dam the thoroughbred mare Esther (dam of four) by Express. Expressive has a yearling brown colt by McKinney named Alta Vista engaged in stakes amounting to $46,000.

CORAL 2:18½ by Electioneer, dam Columbine by A. W. Richmond. Coral is full sister to Anteco 2:16½, J. C. Simpson 2:18½, Antevolo 2:19½ and Anteros. Coral is now carrying a foal by McKinney.

BELL BIRD, yearling record 2:26, two year old 2:22, by Electioneer dam the great Beautiful Bells, by The Moor. Bell Bird held the world's yearling record 2:26, and race record 2:18½. She is a full sister to Linda Rose (1) 2:36½, (3) 2:19½, world's records when made; St. Bel (4) 2:24½; Chimes sire of The Abbot 2:03½, world's champion record, and Fantasy 2:08½, world's record for three year olds; Bell Boy (3) 2:19½, Palo Alto Belle (3) 2:22½, Bow Bells 2:19½, Bellflower (4) 2:12½, and Belsire 2:21½. Half sister to Adbell (1) 2:23, world's record for yearlings and Rosemond dam of Mont Rose (3) 2:18, Sweet Rose (1) 2:25½ and Infact 2:26½.

PALITA (2) 2:26, by Palo Alto 2:08½, dam Elsie (dam of Rio Alto (3) 2:16½, Novelist (2) 2:27, Mary Osborne (3) 2:28½ and Falvini 2:30 by Piedmont 2:17½.

PALATINA (2) 2:23, (3) 2:18, by Palo Alto 2:08½ dam Elaine 2:20, (dam of Iran Alto 2:12½, Norlaine (1) 2:31½, and Anselma 2:29½ by Messenger Duroc.

ELDEN (3) 2:19½, by Nephew, dam Eleanor by Electioneer.

CRESSIDA (3) 2:18½ by Palo Alto 2:08½, dam Clarabel (dam of Clifton Bell 2:24½ and Idealia 2:30) by Abdallah Star.

SWEET ROSE (1) 2:25½ by Electioneer, dam Rosemont (dam of Mont Rose (3) 2:18 and Infact 2:26½) by Piedmont 2:17½, granddam Beautiful Bells.

ATHENA 2:15½ by Electioneer, dam Ashby (dam of Aria (3) 2:16½ by General Benton.

ELSIE by General Benton, dam of Elaine 2:20 by Messenger Duroc. Elsie is the dam of Palita (2) 2:16, Rio Alto (3) 2:16½, Novelist (2) 2:27, Mary Osborne (1) 2:37, (3) 2:28½ and Salvini 2:30.

AVENADA, ch m by Dexter Princee, dam Avena (2) 2:19½ by Palo Alto 2:08½.

Yours truly,
F. W. COVEY.

Revenue from Racing.

The annual report of the racing associations of New York State to the Comptroller reveals an unprecedented degree of prosperity to the running tracks. The seven tracks in the State which are occupied by the gallopers, report aggregately the sum of $1,973,368.80 as gross receipts for the season of 1900, on which the tax amounted to $98,688.44, the latter sum going as a subsidy to the agricultural societies of the State. The Coney Island Jockey Club reported $494,895, as the receipts of thirty days racing last year. The Brooklyn Jockey is a close second with $474,887.80. The other tracks show proportionate results, even the two weeks' meeting at Empire City Park, with its inadequate transportation facilities, yielding $71,430. Of course the returns from the trotting tracks do not show any such stupendous figures as these, but they swell the total amount of the subsidy to the fairs to $101,313.95. The itemized reports of the associations are not submitted by the Comptroller, but it is well understood that the item of gate receipts constitutes the largest portion of the revenue to the running tracks. By a little dextrous manipulation the fees from the bookmakers, of whom there are more than half a hundred at each track who pay nearly $75 each per day, are made to appear as gate receipts, and this gives a most surprising result to that source of revenue, which, however, without the above explanation, would be somewhat misleading. The trotting tracks realize comparatively little from pool selling, and some of them even less from actual gate receipts, their greatest source of income being entrance fees, which are wholly paid back to the owners in purses.

A Denver Breeding Farm.

A correspondent of the Chicago Horse Review recently visited and wrote as follows of what is destined to be one of the greatest nurseries for the production of the light harness horse in this western country, near Denver, Colo., owned by Messrs. W. W. & M. B. Porter. Mr. W. W. Porter, by whom that great pacer W. W. P. 2:05½ was brought out and for whom he was named, and his son, Mr. Miller B. Porter, both business men of Denver, like many other horse lovers of wealth, looked to the breeding of trotters as a diversion. They consequently seven years ago purchased a farm (called a ranch in this country) of 1700 acres, situated most beautifully on a plateau in the foothills of the Rocky mountains, about eighteen miles from Denver. A number of fine barns and stables were erected and a good half-mile track. After a diligent and studious search throughout the East and West, Messrs. Porter finally selected for their premier stallion that grand young horse Saraway by Steinway, out of Katie G. by Electioneer. He is full brother to Charles Derby and Klatawah, who holds the three year old world's pacing record of 2:05½. He is a grand individual, and with only four years in the stud has already to his credit W. C. Stratton (3) 2:22½, Helen Mar (3) 2:29½, Lord Gilbert (2) 2:30½, and six with trials better than 2:20 as three year olds. Slipaway, with a trial quarter in 31 seconds this year as a three year old, and a yearling pacing filly, broken only three weeks, I timed an eighth in 20 seconds over the 1 stock farm. Several two year olds at the farm I timed an eighth in 18½ to 19½ seconds. Out of seven yearlings and two year olds not nearly bridewise, there is not one but what can show right at a 2:20 gait under the watch. There has been gathered for Saraway's harem a grand galaxy of brood mares, some of which are Betsy Cotton 2:16½, by Jay Bird, dam Flora Pilot, by Mambrino Patchen; Marvinne by Pilot Medium, dam by Chichester, he by Luxon 2:11½; Mollie Wilkes by Red Wilkes, dam Mollie Patchen, by Wild Wagoner; Nannie V. (dam of Nannie W. 2:22½), by Venture, dam Nannie Thorn (dam of Thornless 2:15½), by Hamlet; Stella Magnet 2:24½, by Magnet; Miss Wilkes, by Superior 2:17½, dam Reta Wilkes, by Guy Wilkes; Orient by Kentucky Volunteer, dam Miss West, by Egbert, etc., etc. The time is not far distant when the produce of this farm shall be known the whole country over and will get their share in the large stakes "down the line." I am a Pennsylvanian sojourning here, and when I saw this farm and colts I thought it might be of interest to your readers to know that the State that gave W. W. P. 2:05½, Carbonato, 2, 2:09, and Success 2:10½ to the Grand Circuit contingency will, in a short time, be farther famed by the get of Saraway.

Oregon News.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

J. D. McKinnon, of La Grande, shipped three carloads of Oregon horses to Arkansas this week.

Mary A. 2:30 by Altamont has foaled a fine bay colt by McKinney January 27th at the fair ground.

Chet Bidwell shipped two carloads of horses to Kansas City, Mo., from Union last week.

The Vancouver, B. C., Jockey Club has leased the Hasting track near Vancouver and will greatly improve the same for their season's racing.

The Idaho Inter-Mountain Fair, Boise, have announced three $1000 purses for their race meeting this fall, one for 2:15 pacers, one for 2:20 trotters and one for runners. Full program will be announced soon.

The Breeders' Guaranteed stake of $1000 for foals of 1899 to be raced for this fall at the Oregon State Fair has closed with 49 entries. McKinney leads with eight of his colts entered and wins one division of the Rural Spirit prize, $25. Del Norte is a close second with six of his get entered. Cris Simpson, of Pendleton, wins another division of the Rural Spirit prize, $25, for making the largest number of entries. The stake as a success and will do much to encourage the breeding of horses in the Pacific Northwest.

Draft Horses Bring Good Prices.

The draft horse industry is certainly in a healthy condition, and the breeder of this type of animal can depend upon good profits for years to come. A number of notable sales have been made on the Chicago market during the past three months. Six matched Clydesdale geldings sold for $3000; a pair of geldings (of same breed) sold for $700; many individual sales running from $200 to $350. Of Percherons, a pair of geldings sold last week for $700; a second pair brought $675; eighteen head averaged $250, and seventeen head averaged $233.

Richard Clawson, the well-known jockey, who has been sick for a long time, caused by excessive reducing in weight at the New Orleans track last winter, returned to New York last week with his wife, who was the daughter of James McLaughlin, the former jockey. Clawson does not seem to have improved much by his stay in the mountains. He has gone to Aiken, South Carolina, in the hopes that the southern climate may benefit him.

Horse Gossip From Yolo.

WOODLAND, Feb. 12, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your correspondent visited Sam Hoy and his horses at Winters last Sunday and found the popular owner and his string all in the best of condition. Sam is jogging them every day on his own track which is as good as any to be found in California for training purposes.

Bayswater Wilkes, the good looking son of Sablo Wilkes and Fannie Bayswater is in the stud and a lot of fine mares have already been booked to the sire of Kelly Briggs 2:10½. The colts and fillies by him are a splendid looking lot.

Kelly Briggs 2:10½, is in excellent shape and Mr. Hoy thinks he will surely get a record of 2:05 under favorable conditions this year. No gamer pacer ever went down the line.

There is a green colt by Bayswater Wilkes, that Sam worked miles in 2:30 last year and looks and acts as though he will be a good one in the green trotting classes this year.

McNally 2:15 by McKinney, is looking as good as when on the circuit last year. There is another McKinney that Sam worked a mile in 2:24 as a two year old and considers as promising a filly as there is in that section of the State. If there is a good circuit arranged in California this year Mr. Hoy will have a number of horses to enter.

Kelly Briggs, the well known young farmer of this place, has sent his mare Pearl Sinclair to William Hoggboom of Marysville to be trained. She has paced halves in 1:10 as a two year old and Kelly thinks she ought to pace a mile in 2:10 or better this year. She is by Hanford Medium out of the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½. Geo. Morris has a two year old out of the same mare which he will have trained this season.

WOODLAND TRACK NOTES.

S. A. Hooper arrived at the track last week from Napa county with nine head, among them Alta Vela 2:15½ and two fast McKinney colts.

C. Harrington sold his handsome mare by Falrose 2:19 to Mr. H. Coil of this city recently and the latter is driving her on the road. She is a fine looking animal.

James McNeil has a two year old filly by Alex Button out of a mare by Electioneer that is very fast.

Lou Mativa has seven head at present, as follows: Yellow Jacket 2:20½; a three year old pacing filly by Gold Rose out of Pattie P.; a two year old by Falrose, dam by Geo. Washington; a two year old filly by a son of Gold Rose; a three year old gelding by Alex Button, dam by Electioneer. All these horses are very promising.

John Norton has booked thirty mares to old Alex Button, and twenty-five to his handsome young horse Gossiper Jr. He has a colt by the last named horse that is a fine looker and a good advertisement for his sire.

McL. Keefer is driving Bessie Rankin 2:16½ on the road. Hitched to his rubber tired buggy she makes a fine appearance and is a great brusher.

JACK O'KEEFE.

What a Veteran Says.

A man who has given practical demonstration of his ability to conduct a meeting successfully and without partiality to any particular set of horse owners, says in the course of an interesting letter: "I am firmly of the opinion that as soon as the majority of societies commence treating horsemen equally, i. e., not extending more favors to some than to others and at the same time have it understood that when they start for the money, they must go on their merit and in each and every case make an effort to win what they can, then and not until then will this continual talk about professional judges, etc., cease. I haven't any more confidence in a professional starter or judge than I ought to have and my opinion is based entirely on observation made at many times and many places where, what would be called, professional judges were in charge. There are any number of improvements that can be suggested in the management of judges' stands. Many of them would seem of minor importance to the average person, but in the aggregate, if imposed, would make every stand better and freer from criticism. I am opposed to the liberty judges take of talking about what did and did not occur in the stand during the course of a race. During a contest, I do not deem it wise or necessary to call a driver into the stand if the judges are satisfied he is not driving to win. It only tends to create unnecessary talk if the judges afterwards allow the driver to continue. Why call him to the stand and ask if he is driving to win? I never yet heard of a fish peddler crying, 'Poor fish for sale.' Judges, too, should be more observing of the details of a race. Plenty of cases can be cited where important facts have been overlooked, which, if noticed and properly handled, might have made material changes in the result.—Chicago Horseman.

Geo. W. Berry the Superintendent of A. B. Sbreckels' Napa Stock Farm was at Oakland on Monday. He reports the birth of eight January foals, two of them being the get of Libertine.

A Trainer's Opinion of Two in Three.

John Kervick, a Massachusetts trainer, recently gave the following ideas on the three-in-five system to a newspaper representative.

"Everything connected with the racing game with exception of the races has seen wonderful improvement and advancement in the past ten years. Tracks, sulkies, harnesses, boots, everything, I might say, is better than it ever was before. But we horsemen go out and race three heats in five, a style and system that is 100 years behind the times.

"There has been a dispute and controversy for several seasons regarding the proper length for a trotting or pacing race to harness. Arguments have been advanced by both sides, and occasionally a few two heats in three races are undertaken by some enterprising association. For the most part, the old three heats in five system remains in vogue and there is little indication of a change in that respect the coming season.

"I am in favor of shortening up races," said Kervick, "from the standpoint of the spectators and from the standpoint of a practical horseman, although I am well aware that there are many horsemen and trainers who do not want a change and say the racing system is good enough as it is. As the racing is conducted, a good deal of criticism and fault finding is directed against the associations. It is all well enough for the horsemen and the associations to say the owners pay for the purses and they must first be consulted. That sounds very well, but it is an established fact that trotting to be successful must draw crowds. Race meetings would soon be given up if the rule was big fields and small crowds.

"At best horse racing is long drawn out. It requires more time than any other form of sport, and there are some necessary evils that tend to delay the sport. It is often 7:30 or 8 o'clock before people who go to Grand Circuit meetings get back to the city on race days, and even at Greendale track in the summer, it is usually 7 o'clock, and frequently later, before the day's sport is over. Patrons do not like to see the fun so long in finishing.

"Make the contests shorter and you will popularize horse racing. At running race meetings the money is divided after one heat. Six or seven of these races in the course of the afternoon constitute a day's sport, and everybody goes away early, thoroughly satisfied with the fun. I am not in favor of making all the horse races merely mile dashes, but I do believe that by getting most of the classes down to a two in three basis bigger crowds would be drawn out and the gate receipts proportionately increased.

"A long, drawn-out race does not appeal to many of the spectators in the grand stand, and it certainly isn't satisfactory to the owners represented in the race, unless perhaps to the winner, who is only able to beat the others when they are tired and worn out after having gone four or five good heats. The statement has been frequently made by some horsemen opposed to any change in the rules that as soon as the two-in-three system was adopted, a generation of 'quitters' would be bred. The sucker horse, these men declare, would have his day, and the noble animal that made his record in the 'sixth heat of a winning race' would no longer exist. Now I am of the opinion that if some other man comes out and beats me twice in the afternoon it is pretty fair evidence that for that day at least the other man has the faster horse when both are fresh and anxious to race.

"I believe a good sharp mile and repeat is what the spectators want to see. My idea is to lengthen out the program by giving more races a day, four class events and perhaps a single mile dash, and cut down each race to best two heats in three. Nine times out of ten by such an arrangement, the association would be the gainer. By a two-in-three heat system a horse could be raced more than once a week without fear of injury, and all necessary would be a little thoughtfulness on the part of the association in the arrangement of the program, so that horses might be raced twice a week.

"A good sharp mile and repeat never injures a horse that is in good condition, nor manifestly uses up all of his available speed. It is after the field has been four or five heats that extra miles begin to count. After that it becomes hard work for a horse to race, he grows leg weary and tired, his courage is broken, he may not try to do as well as he might. He requires several days' rest in which to recuperate before starting in another race.

"The only logical objection that can be raised to shortening races is that it is often true that in a big field a good horse draws so poor a position that it requires two heats at least for him to work up through so as to be in a position to tackle the leader. That objection can be easily overcome by limiting the size of fields. It is not necessary to start ten or twelve horses in one race; make the limit number six, or in the most cases eight horses for a race. The entrance fee can be decreased somewhat and the value of the purse diminished also, for the earning capacity of the horse will even then be increased if he has a chance to win two races in a week without running the risk of hurting himself, where before he could be raced only once a week.

"Much of the objection against shortening the number of heats is raised solely because of its novelty. There is a class of horsemen, always was and probably always will be, that believes unqualifiedly in the perfection of the present and is unwilling to admit there is room for possible improvement. We all remember when the first pneumatic tired sulky appeared at the Worcester track. The judges didn't know whether to allow the horse so hooked to race with the others, and one horse was actually sent to the stable and made to change sulkies because his sulky was not of the old-fashioned, high wheel variety then in vogue. Some breeders, progressive along other lines, the Hamlins, for example, shake their heads when it is suggested to change the number of heats after which the purse money shall be divided.

"Personally, I am thoroughly of the opinion that in three years the three-heat-in-five race will be as scarce as is the high wheeled sulky to-day. Frank J. Kenny, ex-Secretary of the Louisville Trotting Association, is one of the staunchest friends of the two-heat-in-three system. When he was managing a circuit in Montana in 1896 and 1897, for Ed. A. Tipton, he adopted the two-heat-in-three system altogether and declares it has no equal.

"In extolling the virtues of shorter races and more of them, I forgot to add that the laying up of heats, one of the most objectionable features to horse racing, would be partially if not completely eradicated by making two winning heats entitle a horse to first money. When they have only two heats to go instead of three, very few drivers will be willing to take chances and lay up a heat, knowing that the winner of the first heat will need only another heat to win first money and the race.

"I do not believe in drawing a dividing line. It has been suggested that horses with marks better than 2:10, also all colt trotters up to four years old, race on the two-in-three plan, while aged horses and those with slower marks go the three-in-five race. Two good, sharp, fast heats, on a hot summer afternoon is enough for any horse. If it was universally followed there would be more interest in horse racing, and so many good horses would not be knocked out for no apparent reason."

Gen. Lafayette's Carriage.

An elaborate carriage, built by order of Congress for the use of General Lafayette, when he paid his last visit to the United States in 1824, is now owned by Studebaker Brothers, of South Bend, Ind., and is still in a good state of preservation. This carriage represents the highest development in the carriage builders art at that time, and is a most interesting relic. It is a barouche, seating four passengers inside and two on the dicky seat, which is built in the body of the carriage.

The body is narrow and is set up very high, the floor being at least three feet from the ground. The queer, leather covered steel springs which support it are shaped like fishhooks and appear to be a compromise between the whip springs of the eighteenth century and the C spring, which came into use a little more than a hundred years ago. The footboard curves like the dash of a cutter. At the rear is a baggage rack, which at that time was considered an indispensable adjunct to all private equipages of this class.

Over the back seat there is a hood with wooden ribs and a rear curtain, but no side curtains. The body is profusely ornamented in silver scroll work. The doors open toward the front wheels, letting down three curious folding steps by which the high body of the carriage is reached from the ground. The rear wheels are nearly twice as high as the front ones. On the hubs is this inscription:—John Ourlet, coachmaker No. 30 Gay street, Baltimore. Studebaker Brothers exhibited this carriage and their famous Lincoln carriage at the Paris Exposition.

Horse Rescued Horse.

The following story is vouchsafed by the Independent State, a West Virginia exchange: A blind horse wandered into the mill pond at Mountain Grove, and, getting beyond his depth, swam around in a circle trying to find a way out. His distress attracted a horse which belonged to Postmaster Charles Z. Hovener to the water's edge, which tried to direct the blind horse to the shore by neighing repeatedly. Failing in this he plunged into the water of Back creek, swam out to the unfortunate animal, seized its foretop and towed the quadruped to terra firma, amid the cheers of upward of one hundred people who had become spectators. The circus people have made Mr. Hovener some fabulous offers for his horse, but he has refused to sell.

Trotting in Ireland.

Any one who has ever been "on the other side" knows that it would be practically an impossibility to find a genuine Irishman who did not have a sporting streak in him somewhere, and pretty nearly all of them have a decided predilection for racing, says an exchange. For centuries past the ownership of the fastest horse on the road has been the coveted title, and when the first regular Americanized trotting meeting was held in Europe, it did not take the natives of the Emerald Isle long to catch on to the game. Some of the residents of Dublin and vicinity formulated the Ashtown Sporting and Athletic Club for the purpose of promoting sports of all classes, not the least of which was trotting, and the club obtained grounds and buildings suitable for their purpose. A track was constructed which, while not quite so fast as our tracks in this country, was fast enough to make the sport really good, and it takes a pretty good kind of a horse to win there now.

Like the Austrian Trotting Association the handicapping system is in vogue at the Irish tracks, and no matter what the record of an American trotter is on this side, he is rated there according to what he shows at their meetings. The first time a horse that has been imported from "the States," starts at the Dublin track, he is handicapped somewhat on his American record standing, several seconds being allowed for the "flying start," as they call our system of scoring, and a 2:20 horse will be placed maybe fifty yards ahead of a 2:30 horse that has shown himself to be really good at their tracks; but if the 2:20 horse wins he is put back ten or fifteen yards the next start, and each successive win places him still further back, until he finally lands on the scratch mark.

This system of handicapping makes good racing, and as all the events are dashes there is a continuous change in the rating of the various starters. At least one day each week there is a trotting meeting, and some times two days in a week, so that there is plenty of opportunity to start a horse, and furthermore racing is carried on throughout the entire year. There is no laying up for the winter, and a postponement on account of rain is a very rare occurrence; a little drizzle is not even noticed and it takes a pretty good down-pour to dampen the Irishman's ardor for sport enough to send him under cover. The purses there are of variable calibre, sometimes about $60, sometimes $100 and occasionally quite a bit more, but the entrance fee is the same all the time. $5 to start and that's the limit. Generally there are three moneys, but the second and third are only about enough to save the entrance, the winner of the race getting the big end of the purse. There is plenty of speculation and a lot of money can be taken up by the man who can spring "an unknown" on the crowd and win with it. Like at many English tracks a great deal of betting is done "on honor" and the losers settle after the race is over every time. To Welch would mean social ostracism from the tracks and probably in addition some very rough handling by the crowd.

The races are at various distances, often as much as two and a half to three miles, and all the starts are actually standing starts. Of course, in the case of a very nervous or fidgety horse it is allowable to keep moving around a bit, but very little of that is done as the starting signal is liable to be given with the moving horse turned around the wrong way. No penalty is inflicted for a break or two unless it is a gaining run, or there are too many breaks in the mile, and pacers and trotters all go together; in fact, they don't consider the pacer as a different gaited horse from the trotter at all; the system of handicapping by distance equalizes the difference of gait. All the American racing appliances are used there, sulkies, boots, weights and even occasionally hobbles. The shoeing is not as good as we have here, and much difficulty is experienced in getting shoes made light enough, the average blacksmith being inclined to put on too much quantity and not enough quality. Regulations regarding driving clothes, etc., are strict, and everyone has his own recognized color, just as they have on running tracks. The driving is remarkably free from any attempts at crooked work or anything that could be called foul driving, and any man trying to do that kind of work would quickly find himself barred from the grounds. Nearly all owners drive their own horses, and but very little professional training and driving is done. Although there is no recognized circuit in Ireland, there are several tracks at which trotting is held, but as a day's racing or more is held every week throughout the year at the tracks, there is no necessity to ship away in search of new engagements, so the expense item is small and the size of the purses proportionately larger in profit.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

Fifty years of success prove these troches the simplest and best remedy for Coughs, Hoarseness, Bronchial and Lung Troubles.

In boxes—never sold in bulk.

SULKY NOTES.

A California circuit is certain.

Betonica 2:10½ will be trained once more.

McKinney's book is very near filled already.

There are one hundred horses n training at Pleasanton.

A draft stallion is offered for sale in our advertising columns.

Charley Doble will train a public stable at Syracuse, New York.

Dr. Leek 2:09½, is being trained at the Cleveland, O., track by John Splan.

Coney 2:02½ sold for $4100 and was purchased by B. O. Shank, of Cleveland.

The pacer Thorndine 2:11½, stands 17½ hands high and weighs 1400 pounds.

Ottinger 2:09½ has been showing up splendidly on the snow at Philadelphia.

The Primate is the name given to the weanling brother to The Abbot 2:03½.

Prince Alert will be trained again this season with a view of lowering his record.

About seventy-five trotters and pacers are being worked at the Alameda track.

C. J. Hamlin considers Dare Devil 2:09 the greatest stallion ever owned at Village Farm.

Director Joe by Director 2:17, out of the dam of Joe Patchen 2:01½, is said to be very speedy.

A yearling filly by Chimes, out of the dam of Peter the Great, has been sent to P. V. Johnson to train.

Rey Direct 2:10 puts his likeness on all his progeny. He will be bred to some highly bred mares this season.

The Hawaiian horsemen are still looking for a pacer to beat Waldo J. They are having a hard time of it.

Stam B. 2:11½, will make the season of 1901 at Sacramento at $25. His book should be filled in a week at this figure.

Mules are getting scarce and many farmers will want to breed to a good jack this year. One is advertised for sale in this issue.

Will Welch, who is training Decorah 2:22½ at Pleasanton, has shifted her to the pacer and she acts as if she might go very fast at that gait.

The stewards of the Grand Circuit by a series of resolutions request the National Trotting association to recind their ruling in the McKerron case.

Baltimore will be an important factor in the turf world this season. About $30,000 will be hung up in purses in that city, $14,000 of which will be devoted to stakes.

Among the mares at the Forbes farm that are in foal to Peter the Great 2:07½ are Nancy Hanks 2:04, Vina Bell 2:15½ and Maggie Sultan 2:30, dam of Nico 2:08½.

Anaconda 2:02½ is now owned by E. B. Rice, of Boston. His bid of $6500 secured the great California pacer at the Fasig-Tipton sale in New York last Wednesday.

The treasurer's report of the Michigan State Fair showed a clear balance of $3500. This is a great showing, inasmuch as five years ago the association was heavily in debt.

There has been too much rain this winter for any fast work with the harness horses up to this time. By the first of March they will be sent along some if the weather permits.

Ed Benyon has a green gelding at Walnut Hall Farm that recently showed him a quarter on the trot in 33 seconds. This gelding is by Moko. He has several other likely ones by Allie Wilkes.

No breeder should overlook the fact that Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ is at service for $50. This is one of the greatest young sires in America, and as a sire of early and extreme speed he has few equals.

John Flynn, who raced Captain Jack 2:09½ successfully a couple of years ago, and drove Jupe to a race record of 2:10½ as a four-year-old, has engaged to train for Charles Weiland, of New York, a former resident of San Francisco.

Bert Webster is giving three two year olds their first lessons at Pleasanton. Two are by Steinway and one by-Diablo. Bonnie Direct 2:05½ is growing handsomer every day and is admired by every person who looks him over.

An owner of a stallion that enjoyed something of a State reputation several years ago was mentioning the fact to a circle of acquaintances that he still owned the horse, but that he was so poorly patronized as to be unprofitable. "Why," exclaimed one of the listeners, "I thought that horse was dead years ago, as I have not seen him advertised for a long time."

John Blue has in his string at Pleasanton a gelding by Oro Wilkes that is over 16 hands high and quite a fast trotter. Blue's horses are all in good shape and some are very promising.

Are you going to Denver? Six of the early closing events for this great meeting are advertised in our columns today. Two of them are for $1000 each and the other four are for colts. The first payment on these purses is only $10.

I Direct 2:12½ will be in the stud at Alameda. He is one of the best bred horses in America and his dam is the dam of three in the list, and the dam of another that has sired six with standard records. I Direct's advertisement will appear next week.

The following American bred stallions standing in Europe command service fees as follows: Athanio 2:10, $225; Que Allen 2:09½, $200; E. L. Robinson 2:17½, $100; Wilburn M. 2:27, European record 2:14½, $100; Caid 2:07½, $150; Prince Warwick, $25, and Robert E. Lee 2:18½, $25.

Gayton 2:08½ will go to Europe. He only brought $4000 at the Fasig-Tipton sale, one hundred dollars less than was paid for the gelding Coney. Carl Peatnak was the highest bidder and will ship Gayton to Vienna. He ought to race well there and we believe will make a successful sire.

"Farmer" Bunch is on a tour of the State with the Chinese Consul, Ho Yow, looking for broodmares and racing prospects. Bunch will have quite a string for the California circuit this year. They say at San Jose that his jacket will be of yellow silk with a silk embroidered dragon on the back.

The estate of the late T. E. Keating has been appraised at $10,206. The largest item in the inventory is cash amounting to $6112. Various sums are due from different parties and the remainder of the inventory comprises racing sulkies, harness, etc. These by the terms of the will were left to John Blue.

The stallion Geo. W. Archer, son of Allerton, will be pretty well patronized this season by California breeders. His owner, Wm. Welch of Pleasanton, has already booked a number of well bred mares. The horse is a fine individual and greatly admired by those who have seen him since he arrived in the State.

Diablo 2:09½ at $40 for the season should draw patronage from every county within shipping distance of Woodland. His breeding cannot be excelled, his individuality is superb, he was never beaten in a race, his record is below 2:10, and he has six representatives in the 2:15 list, headed by Clipper 2:06. If you want the very best value for your money breed to Diablo this year.

Old Onward 2:25½, the greatest sire of trotting speed in Kentucky, is still in service at Patchen Wilkes farm though being used strictly as a private stallion. The greatest producing son of his mighty sire he has to his credit 153 standard performers, fifty-eight of which have records of 2:20 or better, twenty-four in 2:15 or better, and six with marks better than 2:10. He is still vigorous and healthy, and sires a number of good colts each year.

The advertisement of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ is printed in our business columns today. An extended article on his breeding and performances on the track and in the stud is in preparation and will be published in our next issue. No stallion in America has any greater license to reach the very top of the list as a sire of speed than Nutwood Wilkes, who at 12 years of age has already four trotters in the 2:15 list, two of them holding world's records.

The management of Charter Oak Park is the first to announce its stakes for the coming season. The first in the list is an eleven thousand dollar Futurity. This race will be decided at the Grand Circuit meeting of 1901, when the nominations will be three year olds. Five stakes are open for the Grand Circuit meeting next September. The Charter Oak Stake of $10,000 is for the 2:18 trotting class, and four of $2500 each are for the 2:17 and 2:30 trotting classes and the 2:14 and 2:30 pacing classes.

John Kelly, who has trained in New York for many years, and who drove Directum 2:05½ and several others to champion records, has decided to open a public stable at Louisville, Ky. At the head of the stable will be Charley Herr 2:07, who, driven by Kelly last autumn, nearly beat the champion, Cresceus, for the $20,000 stallion race at Boston, taking the first and second heats, while in the third he was only defeated by a short head. Kelly will also have the McLaren string from Quebec and several good green ones owned in Kentucky.

Breeders should not fail to note the fact that the great speed producing stallion Chas. Derby 2:20, sire of three 2:10 performers, is in the stud this season at Oakwood Park Stock Farm, at Danville, Contra Costa county, at the low fee of $50. Chas. Derby is one of the best bred stallions in America, and gets size and good looks as well as extreme speed. His son Owyhee 2:11½, one of the greatest winners of 1899 on the Eastern Grand Circuit, is also in the stud at the same place and at the same fee. He is a very promising young sire and will get speed, gameness, size and good looks.

C. A. Durfee had a stroke of bad luck last week that very near put him to bed. His black three year old Mazuma by McKinney, out of a full sister to Belle W. 2:16 by Director, died last Thursday and Mr. Durfee is inconsolable. He paid $800 for the colt a few weeks ago, and had paid up on him for the Occident and Stanford stakes for this year. Mazuma looked and acted so much like McKinney at the same age that Durfee just fell in love with him and every horseman will know how a man feels when a horse he loves lies down and dies. The cause of death was an impaction of the bowels.

Superintendent Converse, of the live stock division of the Pan-American Exposition, has planned to accommodate more than 1000 horses in the exhibit of American bred animals. The breeds that will be recognized are: Standardbred, thoroughbred, French coach, French trotters, Cleveland bay, Oldenburg, etc., Belgian, Hackney, Morgan, Arab, Percheron, Clydesdales, English shire, French draft, Suffolk Punch, Shetland ponies, jacks and jennets.

Monterey 2:09½ will make the season of 1901, at the Land's End Stock Farm, Milpitas, Cal., at $50. Those who contemplate sending their mares to a high class stallion this year should read the advertisement of Monterey which appears in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, as it tells the whole story of his great breeding in a small space. Monterey is a grand individual, a horse with as much speed as any trotter that ever lived and has that bold, strong, high action of both knees and hocks that the majority of breeders hold is necessary in a great sire of speed. An extended article on Monterey and his blood lines will appear next week.

The indications point to the coming season as certain to be sensational in one respect among the trotters, if in no other, and that is in the number and high quality of the three year olds which will be raced. There will be at least five big stakes for three year olds to be decided this year, and the colt or filly that can win either one of them will be a very profitable youngster to his or her breeder. These five events are: The Kentucky Futurity, value $10,000; the Louisville Prize, value $10,000; the Dubuque Preparation, value $5000; the Kentucky Stock Farm, value $5000, and the Horse Review, value $5000. Here is a total of $35,000 for three year old trotters, and the youngster that can win first money in two of the events will go into winter quarters one of the biggest money-winning trotters of the season.

The breeders of Contra Costa county have the opportunity to secure the services of that handsome stallion Sidmore this year at the reasonable fee of $25. Sidmore is by the great Sidney and his dam Mamie Harney is by the Grand Moor that sired the dams of Joe Wheeler 2:07½; Arthur W. 2:11½, John A. 2:12½ and other fast ones. The second dam of Sidmore was by Echo, sire of the dams of Direct 2:05½, Rex Alto 2:07½, Loupe 2:09½ and many more. Sidmore has the same blood in his veins, through The Moor, that produced Beautiful Bells, dam of Chimes, sire of The Abbot, champion trotter of the world. He is a very handsome horse, with great muscular development, the best of feet and legs and has with the most limited opportunities sired General 2:14½, Teddy the Roan 2:17½, Little Miss 2:17½ and others. He is now owned by Messrs. John Ott and George Rose of Pacheco, and will make the season of 1901 at that town.

The Pan American Exposition to be held in Buffalo this year can be visited by horsemen who race at the big meeting to be given over the Fort Erie track by the Buffalo Driving Club. Secretary John B. Sage has prepared a list of stakes for the Grand Circuit meeting of the club that assures to Buffalo one of the best trotting meetings of recent years. The program calls for $18,000 in stakes and is a guarantee that every leading stable in the country will be in attendance at the August meeting, which will be held over the Fort Erie track, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. Two of the stakes, one each for pacers and trotters, call for $5000 each and this will bring out every crack harness horse eligible and make the meeting one worthy of the year and the equal of any in the country. The list of stakes to be offered is as follows: Pan American stake, 2:25 class, pacing, $5000; Electric City stake, 2:25 class, trotting, $5000; Queen City stake, 2:19 class, trotting, $2000; Niagara River stake, 2:14 class, trotting, $2000; Iroquois Hotel stake, 2:09 class, pacing, $2000; Empire State stake, 2:14 class, pacing, $2000.

The Supreme Court of Iowa has handed down a decision in the case of Lucas vs. the B. C. R. & N. Railway Company which will be of general interest to railroad companies and horsemen. A judgment has been entered against the company for $2500 for injuries to the pacing stallion Larry Ginter 2:15½, while being shipped from Iowa City to Cedar Rapids. When the freight bill was made out it was made out for "an ordinary horse," and at a lower rate than would have been charged if it had been known by the railroad agent that he was billing such an animal. The railroad company claimed fraud in procuring this lower freight rate by misrepresentations and insisted that the limit of liability of $100 on the horse should not have been exceeded. But the court held that the procurement of the billing of the animal as indicated was not a bar to collection of the higher rate by the company, hence the fraud was no bar to the payment of a higher damage when injury was done. The Supreme Court held against the railroad company and in accordance with this view.

Col. George Wilkes Simmons is reported to be seriously ill at his home, near Lexington, Ky. It is said that when the trotting horse was first introduced to Kentucky it received the favorable support of the church people because the gambling element stuck to the thoroughbred. Thus, trotting breeders seemed to think it no harm to breed and race the trotter, but at the same time they would scorn to witness a contest between runners. It is related that John M. Clay, the youngest son of the great Commoner, who was for a long time a very successful breeder and patron of the running turf, meeting a minister of the Christian faith, asked him if there would be "any impropriety in my joining the church and still retaining my racing and breeding business." The minister replied that he would have to give up his turf pursuits. Mr. Clay then gave his now famous answer: "I know a number of your good brethren who are breeders and owners of trotting horses, and whenever you preach on the difference between trotting to hell and running to hell I'd like to come and hear you."—Spirit of the Times:

Zombro---Heir Apparent to the Throne.

There has long been a controversy among horsemen as to whether Electioneer or Geo. Wilkes was the greatest son of Hambleton 10 and it will take time to settle the dispute. As a sire of extreme speed and of sons that beget it, the former leads, but as the progenitor of a family of race winners "Bill Simmons' pony" has the claim to the championship.

During the past few years all turf writers have agreed, however, that Alecyone 2:27 is without doubt the greatest son of Geo. Wilkes, and there are none to dispute the assertion that McKinney 2:11½ is the greatest son of Alecyone. Thus far it is a line of kings, with the crown resting on the head of the son of Rosa Sprague, who, at 13 years of age has thirty standard performers, with fifty per cent. of them in the 2:15 list, and three representatives with records below 2:10. McKinney is the reigning King of the Geo. Wilkes family, and to which of his sons will the crown descend? Without doubt to Zombro 2:11.

This grandly-bred young stallion was probably the greatest three year old trotter this country ever produced, and although his record of 2:13 at that age has been beaten by other three year olds, no colt ever raced with more consistency or showed greater racing qualities than he.

Portland, Or., July 3—Zombro 7-1-1-1. Time, 2:22½, 2:20½, 2:21, 2:21. July 4—Zombro 1-1-1-1. Time, 2:22, 2:22½, 2:23.

Sacramento, P. C. T. H. B. A., July 20—Prince Ira 1-1-1, Zombro 2-2-3. Time, 2:21, 2:21, 2:21. July 24—Stam B. 1-3-1-1, Zombro 10-1-4-2. Time, 2:21, 2:19, 2:18½, 2:17½.

Vallejo, Aug. 6—Boodle 1-1-1, Zombro 7-5-9. Time, 2:19, 2:17½, 2:17. Aug. 10—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:20, 2:20, 2:17½.

Napa, Aug. 14—Zombro 3-2-1-1-1, Stam B. 1-1-2-2-2. Time, 2:19½, 2:16, 2:16½, 2:15½, 2:15½.

Woodland, Aug. 28—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:16½, 2:16½, 2:14½. Aug. 31—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:13, 2:14½, 2:14½.

Sacramento, State Fair, Sept. 9—Iago 1-1-1, Zombro 2-3-2. Time 2:11, 2:12½, 2:13½. Zombro beaten a head in first heat; a wonderful performance for a three year old against an aged campaigner.

Stockton, Sept. 21—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:16½, 2:15½, 2:17.

San Beunaventura, Oct. 8—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:25½, 2:25, 2:28.

Santa Ana, Oct. 17—Zombro 11-1-1. Time, 2:15, 2:14½, 2:16½. Oct. 19—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:21½, 2:15, 2:19.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23.—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:13, 2:15½, 2:14. Oct. 30—Zombro 1-1-1. Time, 2:13, 2:13½, 2:14½. C. A. Durfee, his driver, says he could have driven him better than 2:10 in this race had it been necessary. Nov. 1—Zombro 1-1-1, Time, 2:17½, 2:17, 2:15.

This is his three year old record, and it will be seen that he started in seventeen races, winning thirteen first moneys. He got second money in three races, in which the winners were Iago 2:11, Boodle 2:12½ and Stam B. 2:11. He was unplaced but once. In his memorable campaign he met all the best aged horses on the circuit including McZeus 2:13, Neernut 2:12½, Jasper Ayers 2:09, Ethel Downs 2:10 and many others.

The next year Zombro was taken to Oregon, where he made a season in the stud and though not in condition was started in two races, one at Vancouver, Washington, where he won the free for all trot and the other at Butte, Montana, where he was beaten but got fourth money, the time 2:15½ in two heats being very fast considering the track.

In his five year old form he again campaigned in California and had to meet the free for all trotters in his races. At Marysville he defeated Jasper Ayers 2:09 and Ethel Downs 2:10, the time being 2:11½, 2:12, 2:12. At Chico in that race that is still talked of when long drawn out contests are up for discussion, he trotted the second and fourth heats in 2:11½ and 2:11 respectively, was beaten a head in the third heat, won by Jasper Ayers in 2:11½, also beaten a head in the fifth heat won by Mamie Griffin in 2:12½ and was second in the seventh and last heat and got second money. This race was won by Mamie Griffin, and behind Zombro in the summary were Jasper Ayers 2:09, Ethel Downs 2:10, Helena 2:11 and Margaret Worth 2:15. The day was very hot, the thermometer registering over 100 degrees. Mamie Griffin was 5-4-4 in the first three heats, while Zombro was contender for every heat in the race but the first.

Zombro's breeding is in keeping with his race record. His dam, Whisper, is a daughter of Almont Lightning 1023, a son of Almont, and a daughter of Mambrino Pilot, second dam May Berry is by Kentucky Clay 198, by Cassius M. Clay Jr. 22, out of the dam of Lady Thorne; third dam by Edwin Forrest 49, seven of whose sons and twelve of whose daughters are producers of standard speed.

A great race horse and grandly bred, Zombro is also one of the best individuals of California stallions. He is a rich brown in color, wonderfully intelligent, strongly muscled, with good bone, excellent legs and feet and a conformation that cannot be found fault with.

As a sire he is destined to be equally great. His get that are three years old are being trained for the first time this year and are showing wonderful speed. They are invariably bays, browns or blacks, with good looks to spare and strongly built, rugged colts.

At $50 for the season Zombro is within the reach of every breeder in California. No mistake can be made in mating mares with him, and just so sure as he lives and his get are trained and developed he will be one of the great sires of extreme speed and race winners. His owner, Geo. T. Beckers, has already booked a large number of mares to him, and his book will soon be full. Zombro will make the season of 1901 at the Sacramento race track.

The Dam of You Bet 2:12 1-2.

Last week we published an item stating that the dam of You Bet 2:12½ was Florence Clay, a Palo Alto bred mare. The information was furnished us by Mr. C. A. Durfee, who had obtained it from the Palo Alto Stock Farm. A letter received this week from Mr. E. C. Truesdell, of Los Angeles, owner of the dam of You Bet, states that the breeding as given by us is an error. The letter is as follows:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 12, 1901.
BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—In your issue of Feb. 9th, you make the statement that the dam of You Bet 2:12½ is Florence Clay. At the Palo Alto Stock Farm's sale Jan. 30, 1894, Los Angeles, they sold a mare named Gift to Mr. Murdock and by him was bred to McKinney and the colt passed to Wm. Durfee. That colt was You Bet 2:12½. Gift passed to Dr. Sanborn and from Dr. Sanborn to myself. I wrote to Palo Alto and got her breeding as sired by Alban 5332 dam Miss Gift by Wildidle. Her brand is J. 136 on off side of neck. The mare Florence Clay was sold at this sale but does not answer the description of the dam of You Bet 2:12½.

Yours very truly,

E. C. TRUESDELL,
133 W. 25th St., Los Angeles.

As the brand is certain identification of the mare, Superintendent Covey can straighten the matter out in short order. Mr. Durfee has been anxious to get the breeding of all the mares that have produced speed from mating with McKinney, and when at Palo Alto last week was given the breeding of You Bet's dam as we published it last week. The brand, however, should settle the matter and when that and the description is given there need be no doubt as to the breeding of any mare bred at Palo Alto.

Conflict in Names.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—In your issue of the B. & S., under date of February 2d, I observe that Mr. John Blue claims or rather calls a four year old sired by Diablo by the name of Diablita. You will doubtless recollect that I have a mare sired by the same horse to which I gave the name of Diablita. My mare was foaled May 18, 1896, and consequently will be five years old May 18th next. You are also aware that she was entered in the races at both Tanforan and Salinas during last year. She paced in the 2:30 class on Monday, October 2 (I think it was), winning fourth money. She also paced in two races at Salinas, winning money in each, but obtained no mark. Excuse me for particularizing so much in this matter, but I wished you to understand the situation, also to refresh your memory in regard to those events. Now, after making you this statement, with part of which you are personally cognizant, I desire to ascertain your opinion as to which mare is entitled to the name Diablita, that of Mr. Blue or mine. Your answer to this will confer a favor on

Yours truly,

WM. VANDERHURST.

That Mr. Vanderhurst is entitled to the name of Diablita for his mare there can be no question, but the naming of a harness horse is not governed by any rules unless it is desired to register the same. No horse will be registered by the Register Association by the same name that another has been already registered, but the rules of harness racing do not bar names. Three mares by the name of Princess and three others called Nelly B. took standard records in 1899, while the Daisies and Maids and Queens are numerous every year.

The three year old trotter who has the engagements this year will be able to win more money than was ever earned by a trotter of his age, provided he can win all his races, as there will be decided during the season the Kentucky Futurity, in which first money will be $7300; the Louisville Prize, first money $5000; the Dubuque Preparation, first money $5000; the Kentucky Stock Farm, first money $2500, and the Horse Review Stake, first money $3000.

Stam B. 2:11 1-4 by Stamboul 2:07 1-4.

There is no reason why the California owner of a good mare should not breed her this year when he can send her to such a grand young stallion as Stam B. 2:11 for the ridiculously low fee of $25. Messrs. Tuttle Brothers, who own this handsome stallion, desire that he should be mated with a large number of good mares that he may have an opportunity to be placed as soon as possible in the list of producing sires, and feeling confident that a very large proportion of his get will trot fast if trained they have made the fee low in order that his patronage may be certain and large. What horseman in California does not remember Stam B. and his racing career. He was a wonderful young horse and proved his speed and gameness in many a hard fought battle. He was never beaten by any horse during his career (except Ottinger 2:09½) but he turned the tables and beat him in return. He met all the crackerjacks of his year on the California turf and defeated them at one time or another. He was never outside the money in his life and won ten races, was six times second, and five times third, starting in twenty-one races in all. His winnings were $7500, a snug sum for any horse to win in California that had no stake entries.

The breeding of Stam B. is so exceptionally good that it is no wonder he was a great race horse and is a grand individual in every way. His sire, the great Stamboul, whom he greatly resembles, but is a handsomer horse, was the sensational stallion of his day and held the world's record, 2:07½, for years. In the stud Stamboul has been a wonderful success in spite of many adverse circumstances. A prize show ring horse himself, he has sired many prize winners, and although but a small percentage of his get have been trained and raced he already has 43 standard performers, every one a trotter, and five of them are in the 2:15 list, viz: Stamboulette 2:10½, Ellert 2:11, Stam B. 2:11½, Elsie S. 2:11½ and Bonsilene 2:14½. Each and every one of these fast performers is a handsome individual, good looks, style and size being strong characteristics of the Stamboul family. The dam of Stam B. is a producing daughter of Happy Medium and has a record of 2:20. She not only produced Stam B., but has a son that is a sire of standard speed.

Happy Medium, sire of the peerless Nancy Hanks 2:04 and 93 more in 2:30, has 57 producing sons, 55 producing daughters and is one of the greatest sons of Hambletonian 10. Argenta, second dam of Stam B., is by Almont Lightning, sire of the dam of Stam B.'s great racing rival Zombro 2:11, and of Almont Princeps 2:15 and many others. The third dam is by the great Mambrino Patchen and fourth dam by Mambrino Chief, founder of one of the greatest branches of the trotting family.

With such breeding as this, and with his magnificent individuality and splendid racing record, what more could be asked as requirements for a young stallion.

Stam B. is a sure foal getter and those of his get that are old enough and are trained this year will prove his worth as a sire of speed. As a sire to mate the best mares to we could not recommend a more promising young horse than Tuttle Brothers stallion. He is as near perfection as any young horse we know and at the low fee of $25 for the season there is an inducement which breeders should not overlook. Stam B.'s book should be full within a week or so after this announcement, and we advise those who wish to secure the services of this horse to write to Tuttle Bros., Rocklin, immediately, as it may be too late if there is any delay. Mark these words, a son or daughter of Stam B. will within the next two years make such a low record and show such race horse qualities that there will be a wish to breed him at a much higher fee than the very low one that has been fixed for his services this year.

Nutwood Leads.

Nutwood 2:18½ leads all other stallions living or dead in the number of 2:10 performers out of his daughters. The list up to date is as follows:

TROTTERS.

Arion.....2:07½ Fred Kohl.....2:07½ Ethel Downs...2:10

PACERS.

Eyclet (p.).....2:06½ Sunland Belle (p)....2:08½
Bellwood (t. p.).....2:07½ Nydia Wilkes (p)....2:09½

At the sale of Marcus Daly's thoroughbreds at Madison Square Garden there were four mares offered that were not placed in the ring. This was due to the fact that they were heavy in foal. J. B. Haggin bought one of them, imp. Borriedalo, for $4000. Since then she has dropped a colt to Hamburg at Morris Park. Mr. Haggin also got the mare The Task for $4600. She dropped a filly a few days before the sale. John Madden bought the mare imp. British Blue Blood for $1050 and the mare Greenwich for $1000. Imp. British Blue Blood was in foal to The Pepper. Both foaled when they got to Madden's farm outside of Lexington. The one by imp. British Blue Blood is a filly, while Greenwich has a colt by Bathampton.

THE SADDLE.

TURN IN THE TIDE.

England Now Seeking Thoroughbred Blood in America.

In recent years there has been a growing demand from across the water for American-bred racing stock. This demand has been particularly noticeable in harness horses, large numbers of which have gone to Australia and thereabouts. More recently still there has been a demand on the part of our English cousins for American thoroughbreds, and the more advanced of the British breeders are now after the animals that present the strongest of their own old blood lines. It has taken the Englishmen a long time to realize that they have a competitor in the production of thoroughbreds, but now that it is understood and investigation reveals that many of the best lines in this country run back to their own stout and ancient lines, the English are after available sires for their big breeding establishments.

After more than a century there seems to be a strong turn in the tide of race horse trading, writes P. P. Pomeroy in the Inter-Ocean. From a time antedating the American revolution, English sires were imported to this country. Among the first to bring over a thoroughbred stallion for breeding purposes was old General Johnson of Virginia, and since that early day the importations of have gradually increased. The experience of Richard Teu Broeck, the first American to take a string of thoroughbreds to England to race, was not calculated to give the horse racing and horse-breeding fraternity of the tight little island a higher regard for the American species of animal than they had before. But the experiments of Pierre Lorillard and the Keenes left the impression, perhaps reluctantly conceded, that there were race horses bred in other countries than England that could compete with their own, and were just as royal in their blood lines. And the events subsequent thereto have added to the impression until it became a certainty that has resulted in a study of American lines and a search for available material.

Anyone who has had occasion to go to the American Stud Book must have been impressed with the number of foreign horses that have been brought into this country as sires, particularly from Britain. Of course, a great deal of this importation is due to the great growth of the breeding industry, farms of this kind being stretched from the eastern coast to the monster ranches of the Pacific, and from Montana on the north to the big ranches of Texas. Even in Colorado there is a great breeding farm, with two Arabians at its head, started as an experiment in the belief that a fine and hardy type of thoroughbreds could be developed in that high altitude. The larger of the American stock farms have made drafts on all sections of the world for stallions, but long before these institutions began and the breeding industry had begun to flourish in this country, England was looked upon as the better quarter in which to pick up thoroughbred sires. For some time the number of the running horses bred here has exceeded that of these in England, almost as two to one, but it is only in the more recent years that the American quality of thoroughbred has come to be considered of sufficient value to be worth securing for breeding purposes. This, too, in the face of the oft-repeated assertion that in the desire for speed the American horse is deteriorating in point of endurance, becoming a mere sprinter, with legs so delicate that they could not stand anything beyond the dash race.

Time was when the old racing programs used to contain the word "imp." in giving the sire of a starter, but the numbers grew so rapidly that now this distinction is done away with, as well as for the reason that the average race-goer doesn't care a rap whether a horse is imported or not; and the average horseman, either, for he can go to the records if he cares to know about the breeding of any animal.

For the most part the horses that were brought over in the earlier days were old or considered of secondary value. Diomed, the early Derby winner, was 19 years old when he crossed the Atlantic in 1796, and it was not until about 1840 that the purchasers from this side began to look for the best that could be secured. Major Barak G. Thomas of Lexington, Ky., is reputed to have been among the first to suggest the purchase of Priam, bought for the then enormous price of $30,000. Although Emancipation and Chateau Margaux had preceded Priam by several years, the latter was considered the greatest horse imported up to that time, and the English turf followers considered his lost a great one.

Next in importance, perhaps, to Priam was Glencoe by Sultan, who sired in England Pocahontas, famous as the dam of Stockwell, Ratanplan and King Tom. The American pedigree book is full of lines running back to his sire, and it is this blood that is sought by the English breeders, as well as that of Hanover and Lexington and Leamington. Hanover was by Hindoo, out of Bourbon Belle, by imp. Bonnie Scotland. Lexington was by Boston, out of Alice Carneal, by imp. Sarpedon, and Boston was a son of Timoleen, a son of Sir Archy, a son of Diomed, the Derby winner of 1780, which was imported to America sixteen years after he annexed the great English classic to his credit. It is this blood that the English breeders are talking about as the best to secure in this country, which is enhanced by the fact that Iroquois, the American winner of the English Derby, was a grandson of a mare sired by Boston. It is also found in a number of good American horses that have performed on the English race courses.

Others that are not overlooked by such English purchasers as the Cobham Stud are the classic winners Saltram, Spread Eagle, Sir Harry, Archduke, Lapdog, St. Giles, St. Blaise ($100,000) and Ormonde, the "horse of the century." As the St. Legor winners that were brought over are Phenomenon, Spadille, Barfoot, Rowton, Margrave, Maugo, Don Juan, Knight of St. George and Rayon d'Or, there is plenty of material for the English seekers after blood lines that run back into their own families. Not all of these have been the success that has been expected of them as sires—notably Ormonde—some of the others less notable that have been imported showing equally well as sires. Among these may be mentioned Florist, Fly-by-Night, Scythian, Mortemer (bred in France), Eclipse by Orlando, The Sailor Prince, Australian Glencagle, Phaeton, Sir Modred, St. Andrew, Prince Charlie, Watercress, Goldfinder, Bassetlaw, Preston Pans, Kismet, The Ill-Used, Cavalier, Midlothian, Star Ruby, Darebin, Goldfinch, Artillery by Musket, Mr. Pickwick, Knight of the Thistle, Candlemas, Crighton, Juvenal, Likely, Satellite, Stromboli, Lord Esterling, Foul Shot and Golden Garter, the latter bred by her majesty the late Queen of England.

So the Englishmen have plenty of their own blood lines to run back to in their search of American material to re-enforce their breeding farms. Not all of those that have been brought over to this side have proved the great sires that their pedigrees or performances warranted the importers in expecting, and, in fact, some of those which cost the most and from which the most has been expected have proved disappointing. How much of this is due to the niching of lines may never be known, the problem of breeding being one in which nearly every individual has a different opinion.

In one instance the value of a sire was discovered by accident, and accidents of breeding have developed some wonderful facts. When Florist came into the possession of Hiram Scoggin it was with no thought of making him the head of that gentleman's Kentucky breeding farm. But by chance Mr. Scoggin discovered that he had a horse that was too valuable to be put to the purpose for which he had been bought. And so Florist begot, among others, the speedy mare Flora Louise and Dunois, which many believe would have won the Futurity but for the kick at the post from Ornament that affected him more or less throughout his racing career.

SADDLE NOTES.

The predicted race track war is on in this city and racing is held every day except Sundays at the Oakland track and at Tanforan. The daily papers, each of which now employ two special writers—one for each track—have discussed the situation pro and con and thoroughly threshed all the straw that is obtainable. The actual cause of the trouble is probably known only to the principals and all the stories published are hore say. The fight will injure both jockey clubs and can do the horsemen no good, except temporarily. Jockeys are reaping a harvest and printers and advertising firms have had their revenues increased. Outside the racing world, however, the "war" has not caused a ripple of excitement anywhere. One thing is certain: San Francisco race goers are not numerous enough to support two tracks, in fact they could not support one. The money received from the bookmakers is the main factor. The trouble between the two clubs is to be deplored and it is to be hoped that it will not continue long. There never has been a race track war in the history of this country but has worked on injury to all immediately concerned and has brought unwarranted attacks and condemnation on the sport of racing.

Tod Sloan rode his first winner of the season last Monday at Tanforan. He had the mount on Joe Frey in a mile event, a handicap for three year olds and upwards. Sloan took his mount to the front at gate raise and held the lead throughout although it required all his skill to land Joe Frey a winner from the fast coming Advance Guard. The win was a very popular one and Sloan received quite an ovation as he rode back to the judges stand to weigh out.

A great field promises to start in the Burns handicap to be decided to-day at the track across the bay. The following horses are still eligible: Beau Ormonde, Advance Guard, Waring, Yellowtail, Florizar, Specific, Greenock, Handicapper, The Monk, Bathos, Mortgogo, Rio Shannon, Eddie Jones, Favonius, The Fretter, St. Simonian, Sea Lion, Gauntlet, Morinel and Scotch Plaid.

Following are the entries for the San Francisco handicap, $10,000 added, to be run at Tanforan Park to-day, February 16, 1901, at one and a quarter miles: Advance Guard, Vesuvian, Vulcain, Waring, Andrisa, The Lady, Gonfalon, St. Simonian, Autumn, Joe Frey, Owensboro, Canmore, Handicapper, Imperious, Greenock, Vain, Star Chamber, Beau Ormonde, Brutal, Lavator, MacGyle, Florizar, Pacific.

The racing career of Peep O'Day by Ayrshire-Sundown is ended. J. A. McCormack has sold him to A. Albright, owner of the Eaton Stud at Eatontown, N. J., and he will be placed at the head of that establishment.

Several horses have changed hands during the past week. Charley Ellison has purchased Montanic from the Burlingame Stock Farm; and after having refused several good offers for his colt, Billy Cahill last Friday sold Rolling Boer to Sam Hildreth. By the terms of the sale Mr. Cahill received $7500 in cash and an additional $1000 should the colt win the California Derby.

Bullman is the leading rider at Oakland while Tommy Burns is landing a large percentage of his mounts in first place at Tanforan.

Burns & Waterhouse now have a half brother to their great horse Eddie Jones. Early Rose has foaled a colt sired by Col. Wheeler at their Sacramento county breeding establishment.

It is timely to remind owners and trainers that all two year olds must be named by March 1st, or a fine of $50 will be imposed by The Jockey Club for subsequent registration.

On January 28th the directors of the Delmar Jockey Club now building a track at St. Louis, met in that city and elected the following officers: President, R. S. Gardner; Vice-Presidents, L. F. Pretorius, A. A. Busch; Secretary-Treasurer, J. F. Martin. While no definite announcement is made as to a program for the coming season it is generally known that the plans of the organization, as far as they have gone, are on a broad and liberal scale. The officers declare that if the Turf Congress cannot be maintained on the old basis and a fight between the two factions should come they will cast their fortunes with the Southern tracks which Chicagoans are endeavoring to drop from the new Western Jockey Club.

Speculation on the Kentucky Derby has commenced and the opinion of many good judges has been endorsed by the odds offered at Louisville. These make Garry Herrman and Alard Scheck favorites at 4 to 1 each, Silver Dale comes in at 8 to 1, Joe Frey is 15 to 1, The Puritan 20 to 1, Ampere, Driscoll, Demurrer and The Commander at 25 to 1 each, and the rest range up to Prior at 300 to 1.

Regarding his purchase of Hamburg last week, Mr. W. C. Whitney said he bought the horse on his own judgment because he was a very high class and an individual type of the American thoroughbred. "Through Hamburg," he said, "I get the blood of three champions of their year—Hamburg himself, Hanover and Hindoo. Then we have the strain of Virgil, Glencoe and a host of other grand race horses. On the female side there is long list of famous matrons, including the great Dance family, Hamburg's dam being Lady Reel, a half sister to the great Domino. These are enough reasons why I should have purchased Hamburg. I have not formed any definite idea of his future. That will entail considerable study of blood lines, for I believe that a great type of such as Hamburg should receive the purest of strains on the female side."

Charley Boots appeared in a new role at Tanforan Tuesday. Some time ago Edgardo was claimed out of a selling race and after Edgardo won on Tuesday Mr. Boots bid him up $200 above his entered price but did not get the horse back.

A large crowd was in attendance at Tanforan last Saturday to see the California Oaks run off. The event carried with it a gross valuation of $4050, of which amount $3200 first money was taken by Janice, starting in the colors of Green B. Morris. Janice had 117 lbs. in the saddle with Jockey Bullman at the helm. Maresa attempted to make a runaway race of it and led until the saddling paddock was reached; here Janice managed to get up and won by a length in a fierce drive. Edna Brown finished third six lengths away.

Tod Sloan, on Saturday, purchased both The Lady and Crodo, and won enough money on the jumper to pay for both of his purchases. Crodo ran a remarkably good race, shouldering the heavy impost of 170 lbs. and making the running throughout. He stood a long, hard drive and won by half a length from J. O. C., to whom he was conceding forty-five pounds. The Lady was not so fortunate, being forced to content herself with third place in her race.

F. O. Hanlon, assistant secretary of the Jockey Club, desires to call the attention of owners of two year olds to the following rule of racing, relative to claiming names for horses: Rule 39—A name must be claimed through the registry office of the Jockey Club for each and every horse on or before the first day of March of its two-year-old year. In case a horse is not named prior to March 1st of its two old year, he may be duly named upon payment of a fine of $50, if name is claimed and allowed at least two days before date of starting. No name that has been employed during the previous five years, either at the stud or on the turf, shall be duplicated, nor can a name be claimed for any horse not registered as a foal. No horse will be allowed to start unless duly registered and named.

The visiting and local turf writers at New Orleans on February 4th organized the "Turf Writers' Association of America." Frank Bryan, of New York, was elected chairman, while Hugh E. Keogh, of Chicago, was elected secretary and D. T. Murray, also of Chicago, treasurer. One of the main objects of the association is to add some dignity to that of a turf critic, which at the present time is lost by the unlimited issuance of press badges to other than reputable and recognized turf critics. The men who report the races have for years stood sponsor for the acts of others, who by some hook or crook have been able to secure press badges. It is the intention of the association to remedy this evil and to bring the responsibilities to the proper source. Racing scribes all through the West will be asked to lend their aid by uniting in the effort to wipe out the evils that have developed through a lack of organization.

At the sale of W. B. Sink's horses Captain Hackett secured Formero for $1750, and "Frisco" Lind paid $835 for Isalene. Rio Chico sold for $465.

Yellowtail made his first appearance this season on Monday at Emeryville. Pitted against a good field of sprinters he went to the post an even money favorite but did not show much of his old time speed and was beaten out by Frank Bell and Rollick.

Jockey Bullman rode a fine race on Jerid the opening day at Emeryville defeating such good sprinters as Maggie Dairo and February. Jerid wanted to stop, but Bullman persisted so vigorously with him that he managed to last out to the wire.

A dispatch from Lexington says that M. F. Dwyer, of Brooklyn, has bought of James B. Clay a black yearling by Handspring, dam Mendroit, and a black filly by Handspring, dam Nor Mantle, for $25,000 and $1500 respectively.

The match race between Canmore and Articulate, which was carded for last Wednesday at Tanforan, did not come off. The conditions of the race called for a fast track and Mr. Jennings declined to start his colt in the sticky going. Mr. Schorr offered to start Joe Frey in Canmore's place and his offer was accepted by the management and the event placed fourth on the card. The battle for supremacy was one of the most hotly contested and exciting affairs ever seen on a local track, the most blasé race-goers shouting themselves hoarse as the two colts raced head and head through the backstretch. At the start Burns outbroke Sloan and gained a slight advantage which he held throughout the first quarter, which was run slowly; after the turn into the backstretch was made Sloan moved up on even terms with the leader and a mighty shout arose from the backers of the favorite; Joe Frey, however, showed as much speed as Articulate and after racing him to a standstill finally won, with something to spare, by three parts of a length. Sloan rode a most vigorous finish on Articulate, but the colt was outclassed by his opponent. The mile was run in 1:42, a good performance in the sticky going.

The stable of Eastin & Larabie was shipped from Lexington, Ky., on February 4th, to Sheephead Ray, where it will be taken in charge by P. Wimmer. In the lot is Kinley Mack, Sharpshooter, High Order, Flying Torpedo, Julia Hanover and five two year olds.

Among the interested spectators at the Bitter Root sale at New York was "Bob" Irving, about the oldest living American jockey. When it is remembered that he rode Sue Washington and other racers of her day around Charleston, Savannah, etc., in the "fifties" it can readily be understood that he is no "spring chicken."

The American Derby, $20,000, one mile and a half, which will be run at Washington Park, Chicago, June 22d, attracted entries from some of the strongest stables of the East. Mr. Keene, for instance, has nominated Commando, Conroy and Outlander, and Mr. Whitney has named four, among them Ballyhoo Bey. With racing firmly re-established at Chicago, Eastern horsemen will frequently contend for the rich prizes of that section, and the exchange of courtesies will help the breeding interest. The American Derby closed with ninety-three entries and the race promises to prove one of the sensational events of the season.

The Belmont Handicap at Oakland was won by Frank Bell, who, after making the pace throughout, managed to stand off Loving Cup in a fierce drive and won by a head. Lennep, poorly handled by Stuart, finished third and was probably the best.

The first declarations out of the great spring handicaps, though not due until February 20th, have been received. John F. Schorr, the Memphis brewer and turfman, is the owner responsible for them, he having declined the weights allotted to his horses in the Brighton Handicap, and declared F. W. Brode, four years old, handicapped at 103 pounds; Alard Schcek, three years old, 103 pounds, and Silverdale, three years old, 98 pounds. As the horses were left in their other engagements at Brighton Beach, it seems that Mr. Schorr was dissatisfied with the weights put on his horses in the handicap. F. W. Brode is the only one of the three entered in the Suburban, for which his impost is the same as that declined for the Brighton.

Lady Meux, who races in England under the name of "Mr. Theobalds," has commenced an action to recover possession of her horse Volodyovski, which she leased to the late Lord William Beresford, and to restrain the latter's executrix, Lily, formerly Duchess of Marlborough, from dealing with the horse in any way. Volodyovski is the favorite for the Derby next June. The ground for the action taken to recover possession of the horse is that under the Jockey Club rules the lessor and lessee become partners, and as the death of a partner ends the partnership the executrix of Lord William Beresford has no assignable interest in the horse. When the case was first talked of about three weeks ago the opinion prevailed in England that if the partnership is proved the horse will revert to "Mr. Theobalds."

The Lexington track is to be opened in the spring for a ten-day meeting by Owner Charles Green of St. Louis. The meeting was announced by Mr. Green, the owner of the track last week. There has been no meeting at the historic course for several years. Lexington has been dropped from the Turf Congress list because of failure to have racing for several years, and the meeting will be independent of that body.

A dispatch from London, dated February 9th, says: It is more than probable that Tod Sloan, after he gets a hearing before the stewards of the Jockey Club, will have a license granted to him to ride this year. Sloan's ability as a jockey is unquestioned by all, and the English turf would be sorry to lose the services of such an artist. Sloan's offenses, though they were directly against the laws of the Jockey Club, were of the sort that might be condoned. There was never any suspicion of fraud attached to him, and there is no doubt that he tried his best to win whenever he could. In the race for which he is held most to blame, the acceptance of a present from Gardner, if he won on Codoman there was nothing to impeach his honesty. He tried his best to win, ran second, and did not get the present. Sloan will have a fair hearing before the stewards, and he has many influential and politically potent friends here willing to lend him a helping hand. By the death of Lord William Beresford he lost a man who had the greatest admiration for his riding and who, though he fell out with him, would have helped him in any way he could. There are others, and though King Edward is not likely to interfere with the racing at present, Sloan has ridden for him and won, and the King, undoubtedly bearing out his character as Prince of Wales, never goes back on his friends. As a matter of fact, those close to the throne insist that King Edward will demand that an unconditional license be accorded the American rider. As regards the King's racing, it is believed that he will practically decide to lease the royal stud now in training for 1901. It is suggested that it is possible that the Duke of Devonshire, who has not many horses in training just now, will take the entire lot over, but nothing is known for certain. As to whether the King will continue to race after 1901, nothing can be stated definitely. Queen Anne, George IV. and William IV. all raced, and it is believed that King Edward VII. will probably continue to do so. Sporting circles are interested in the King's colors. At present they are a purple waistcoat, scarlet sleeves trimmed with gold, and a black cap, which were the orders of George IV. when he was Prince of Wales. When he became King he changed them to a crimson body, gold lace, purple sleeves and a black cap.

Keep Your Stables Clean.

Horses and other animals are subject to influenza or grip, which is now causing so much suffering among humanity. The bacillus sets up a peculiar form of irritation in the upper air passages and this often terminates in various complications under three heads, which are the thoracic form, or that of the cavity of the chest, the abdominal form or that of the digestive organs and the rheumatic form. There is great and general prostration from the attack at the onset, with inflammation of the membrane lining the nostrils and respiratory organs. Preparations to ward off attack should begin by strict attention to sanitation, washing out the floors, flushing the drains, whitewashing the walls, scouring the woodwork, washing windows and fumigating the stables in a thorough manner with chloride gas or the fumes of burning sulphur. Feed the horses liberally, but at night give a bran and flaxseed meal mash with two or four ounces of glauber salts in it two or three times a week, and in the drinking water dissolve a tablespoonful of sulphite of soda in each stable bucket of water.

Traditional Origin of Polo.

A great many hundred years ago an oriental prince was in a very bad condition. His liver was too big, his muscles were too small, his heart acted badly. He was bilious, downcast and ready to give up the ghost. The doctors could do nothing for him. But along came a doctor from foreign parts who agreed to cure him. He said: "I have wonderful drugs which can only be absorbed through the pores of the palm of the hand. These drugs I have enclosed in the handle of this instrument which you see." Thereupon he showed the prince the original polo mallet with leather wrapped around the handle. The prince, as easily deceived as most princes, consented to try the new remedy. It was explained to him that he must get warm in order that his hand might absorb the health-giving drugs. He raced about on a little pony as directed all day long for many days and at last was a perfectly healthy prince. The wise doctor never told him that there were no drugs in the handle of the mallet and that he had invented the scheme to make him take exercise. His couriers were compelled of course to exercise with him. Thus the game of polo became fashionable and survives to our day.

Colic, the Gripes.

The causes for this complaint are various: viz—improper feeding, sudden changes of diet, exhaustion from overwork, drinking cold water when overheated, constipation, worms, bots and ulcers of the stomach, this has all been set down as frequently leading to the complaint. Treatment—the safest and quickest treatment of colic is first to neutralize the gases generated from undigested food by drenching the animal with a mixture of Manhattan food, Red Ball brand and lukewarm water; this will counteract the acidity of the stomach and neutralize the gases, the next is to obtain a free action of the bowels and bladder. All the above trouble can be prevented, however, by feeding Manhattan Food Red Ball Brand mixed with their regular feed. We have many testimonials from leading horsemen in our possession who will testify to the above.

The Road Horse.

We are often asked to define just exactly what is meant by the term "road horse." In reply to one of these questions it was stated some time ago that nowadays a road horse to merit the title must have extreme speed and the more of it the better. An Ohio subscriber now wants to know what sort of speed a road horse should have and what name is accorded to good looking, reasonably fast trotters and pacers that sell for prices ranging from $250 or a little less upward. It is hard to say just how much speed a horse must have nowadays to be entitled to the rank of a real roadster, but a recital of the names of celebrities seen almost every day on the New York Speedway will go far toward showing the kind of horse that is now dignified by that descriptive title. Of course only a few of the new York cracks can be named in this connection, but the following will suffice: Robert J. 2:01½, Searchlight 2:03½, Azote 2:04½, Johnny Agan 2:05½, Be Sure 2:06½, Moth Miller 2:07, Daric 2:07½, Fred W. 2:08½, Quadriga 2:08½, Hontas Crooke 2:09, Lamp Girl 2:09, Fairview 2:09½, Sphinx S. 2:09½, Louise Mac 2:09½, Page 2:09½, and a great many more with records just a fraction or so slower than 2:10. It is plain that it is no earthly use turning in with that sort of a procession unless the driver has very great speed in front of his pneumatic wagon. From these facts the seeker after knowledge may figure out for himself how much speed a horse must have to be entitled to rank as a roadster. In reply to his other question, the slower horse is usually termed a buggy horse or pleasure horse. In some parts of the country he is termed a business horse, but that is largely a local appellation and does not generally apply to such animals throughout the country. As a rule the term "business horse" is applied to the animal that pulls a light weight delivery wagon and does other and similar work without laying any claim to speed or high quality. The buggy or pleasure horse must have at least a medium of speed and with him as with the roadster the more the better. If he can pull a three-quarter-seat buggy at a 2:40 clip he will do all right. Even if he cannot do all that but is withal handsome, large and sound he will find dozens of purchasers at a price highly remunerative to the man who places him right and fit on the market. But he will never more rank as a road horse.—Breeders Gazette.

Still Going to Africa.

More than 2000 horses have been purchased by Major Powell and his associates of the British army in the vicinity of St. Louis and Kansas City in the last three weeks. Major Powell is now in St. Louis to complete purchases made recently at the East St. Louis stock yards. The horses bought all go to South Africa. They are to be utilized in the artillery regiments. Because of this they are larger than the cavalry horses which have been shipped from Texas points. The Missouri and Kansas horses are well adapted for artillery service after they once become immuned to the climate of South Africa. They are shipped as rapidly as possible to New Orleans and from there transported to South Africa. Several vessels of the English government make regular trips from New Orleans to Port Elizabeth and Cape Colony.

A Trip From Kansas.

Capt. I. F. Sperry of Minneapolis, Kansas, writes January 23rd as follows: "For a number of years I have used Quinn's Ointment with perfect success, removing curbs, splints and boils. I always recommend Quinn's Ointment. Horsemen who desire a remedy which has been used for years by the leading breeders from Maine to California will try Quinn's Ointment. For curbs, splint, spavins, windpuffs and all enlargements it has no equal. If you cannot obtain at your druggist, regular size will be sent by mail or express prepaid, upon receipt of $1. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y."

THE RACE WAR which is now on in this vicinity is not furnishing as much excitement as it was expected would result. Both tracks are being fairly well patronized, Tanforan getting a slightly larger attendance and having more books than Oakland. Outside the columns of the daily papers, which contain accounts of two meetings each day, there is nothing to attract the attention of the general public to the fact that a race war is in progress. What the final result can be no person can tell. Should the bookmakers on one track sustain a few days of successive losses, they will move to the other, and it is the same with the public. People who gamble are invariably superstitious and friendship ceases when bad luck is encountered. Why the newspapers or the public should rush in and take sides in the fight is no more apparent to the level-headed looker-on than it would be if a couple of merchants should begin selling goods below cost in an effort to drive one another out of business. The officials of both clubs know their own business and have a perfect right to run it as they see fit, provided they infringe upon no law or the rights of anyone. There are people, however, and among them turf writers and journalists who claim the right to dictate to every person or corporation just how they should manage their affairs, and finding their advice unheeded generally appeal to the Legislature or local legislative bodies to pass measures that will compel people to do as they desire. Some of these writers are particularly bitter because their services have been dispensed with by the race track managers and their salaries cut off as useless or worse expenditures. The California Jockey Club and the San Francisco Jockey Club are managed by men who have large sums of money invested and who certainly realize that their interests are in jeopardy as long as a war is carried on. If they choose to run in opposition to one another it will be a question as to whose sack is the longest and best able to stand the losses that will invariably follow. If the fight progresses as quietly as it has started, there will be no occasion for any alarm on the part of the public. If it should degenerate into a brawl, it will mean the end of winter racing in California.

AN ORDINANCE has been introduced in the Board of Supervisors permitting racing and betting thereon for thirty-five days in this county in each year. There would be no harm in amending it so as to permit the same number of days for harness racing. If the dates are all taken up by the runners, harness racing will be crowded out and as there is a probability that some of the great crackerjacks of the harness turf may come to California next fall, provision should be made for dates.

WE HAVE RECEIVED from the Westchester Racing Association a photograph of that classic turf trophy, the old Woodlawn vase, which, after serving as a prize in many a spirited race without the original conditions having been quite fulfilled, has been purchased by the Westchester Racing Association and it will be added to the Morris Park Autumn, weight for age race, at two and one-quarter miles. The first closing of entries was on February 12th, the second on August 15th, when the conditions under which the vase is to be run for will be announced. The history of the Woodlawn vase includes the last period of racing in the South "befo' the wah," its revival in Kentucky after the conflict and the "palmy days" of the sport at Sheepshead Bay and Jerome Park. The trophy was made for R. A. Alexander of Woodburn, Ky., in 1860, who presented it to the Woodlawn Association of Louisville, to be run for at four miles, and to be won three times before becoming the property of the winner. Captain T. G. Moore, with Mollie Jackson and Idlewild, scored two wins in 1861, the first races held for the cup. The war forced a suspension of racing at Louisville until 1866, when the trophy was raced for again, generally resulting in "walkovers" for Mr. Alexander, although General Abe Buford, had a win with Harry of the West. The Louisville Jockey Club then bought the vase, and it was added to the Great American Stallion Stakes of 1878 and won by Bramble for the Dwyer brothers. It has since been held in the North, and in succeeding years has been added to several races to be won by the same horse. In 1883, at Sheepshead Bay, in the Great Long Island Stakes, at two-mile heats, Frederick Gebbard won it with Eole, but the Dwyers won it back in 1884 and 1885 with the successive wins of Miss Woodford. It was last raced for at Jerome Park on October 4, 1894, the last day's racing at that famous resort, when F. M. Dwyer won the vase with Banquet, beating Sir Excess, who had won it for J. W. Rogers two weeks earlier. A few weeks ago Mr. Dwyer sold the vase, one of the most handsome specimens of the silversmith's art made in this country, to the Westchester Racing Association.

DENVER'S MEETING will open June 15th this year and close on the 29th of the same month, thus giving two weeks of racing. There will be two races each day, and the purses will range from $500 to $1000. In our advertising columns to-day will be found the conditions for six of the early closing events, two of which are for $1000 each, one for 2:25 trotters, the other for pacers of the 2:20 class. The remaining four are races for colts. The nominations to these purses will close March 1st, and it only costs $10 to nominate. The Overland Racing Association, which will give the Denver meeting, is a new organization, and perfectly reliable in every way. Mr. Edwin Gaylord, the vice-president and treasurer, is well known to horsemen as the champion amateur reinsman of America, he having driven Coney to a wagon record of 2:03 in New York last season. Mr. Gaylord was in California last month and secured promises from many of the harness horse trainers that they would attend the Denver meeting and many good horses will go from here. Those going East to campaign should certainly stop at Denver, as it furnishes an opportunity to win some good purses and rest the horses on the long journey.

EVERY FARMER IN CALIFORNIA who owns a standard bred mare that is a good individual, or that possesses speed at the trot or pace even though she is not standard bred, should mate her this year with the best stallion for whose services he can afford to pay, and enter the produce in as many rich stakes as possible. Even though the stake entries are not made, the investment will be profitable if the colt or filly resultant has ordinary good luck and grows to be an averaged sized horse. Stake engagements will add materially to its value, however, and if the youngster is trained and shows speed a big price may be secured. There are advertised in our columns this week as grand a lot of trotting bred stallions as can be found in any State in the Union, and we advise our readers to look them over and select one to breed to.

JAKE HOLTMAN, who arrived in California Wednesday evening last and assumed the position as starter at the California Jockey Club's Oakland track on Thursday, started off well with almost a perfect start for every race. He was heartily applauded by two spectators until his reception amounted to an ovation. His control over the jockeys seemed to be absolute.

THE Senate Finance Committee has agreed to make a report on the State Agricultural Society bill, to the effect that $45,000 be appropriated to pay the indebtedness of the society, provided a deed be made to the State for the property, which now stands in the name of the Directors.

Memphis to the Front.

Since harness racing languished and then came to a full stop at Cumberland Park, Nashville, the last southern outpost of the first rank on the trotting map has been Lexington. An attempt to resuscitate the sport at Nashville was made in 1899, but it failed and it is now seven years since the trotters and pacers have pushed on further south after the grand meeting of the Kentucky Breeders. At last, however, there is a "new town on the map" and when the plans for making it a trotting center have been perfected and realized—as they surely will be—it will take its place among those of the first rank.

Memphis, Tenn., is the city now to be reckoned with. It will at once be suggested that the harness racers are practically unknown there and that it is a famous thoroughbred racing point. But there are many arguments to be advanced showing that this will be a benefit, rather than a drawback. This is the opinion of the projectors of the new enterprise, and as they are among the wealthiest and most influential of Memphis' representative business men they have every reason for being conceded correctness of judgment. A large tract of land has already been purchased, which is but twelve minutes ride by trolley from the heart of the city, and here they will build as fine and fast a regulation mile track as skill can construct; grand stands, judges stands, stables and all necessary buildings will be erected on a grand scale, and the whole property transformed into a park which will be unsurpassed by any of the great trotting plants in the whole country. The finances back of the project are such as to assure the carrying out of the most ambitious schemes and the inaugural meeting will be held in October immediately after that at Lexington and will have a program of Grand Circuit calibre. As an indication to horsemen of what this grand enterprise is to be we may announce that ground for the new track will be broken within the next few days and that the secretary and manager will be Mr. Murray Howe, so widely and favorably known through his work for the Review during the past decade. Mr. Howe claims the dates of Oct. 21-26 for his inaugural meeting.—(Chicago Horse Review.)

A Clash at St. Louis.

News comes from St. Louis that the new Delmar track there will not affiliate with the Western Jockey Club nor recognize its powers. In fact the new St. Louis organization will defy the new governing body. Here is what Capt. C. A. Tilles of the Delmar track says concerning their plans:

"We propose to go ahead and rush the work of building our new track. We expect to be ready to race early in May, and if the Fair Association (St. Louis) refuses to divide dates with us we will open our track and endeavor to give the racing public the best racing ever seen west of New York. Big money will capture the best horses. That will be our policy in case of a clash with either of the local tracks.

"Unless something turns up to make us change our minds we do not intend to pay any attention to the new Western Jockey Club. We propose to run our business affairs without any interference from Chicago, Memphis, Cincinnati or New Orleans.

"We think we can operate our track as Oakland, of San Francisco, has been run ever since it came into existence. Oakland never has belonged to the Turf Congress or any other self governing body, although it has always respected every other track's rulings in case of fraud. We intend to do the same thing.

It is a well known fact that the maddest horse will come to a standstill almost instantaneously if deprived of the use of his eyes, a fact made use of by cowboys on the plains who will whip off his coat and throw it over the head of a runaway. A Frenchman, M. Ranglaret, has made use of this knowledge and has turned it to good account in the construction of a simple arrangement by means of which the horse's eyes may at will be covered, so as to shut out the light. It is called a blinder brake, and consists of double blinders. The inside ones, which can be readily fastened on the ordinary blinder, is made of very pliable leather and controlled by a cord, the end of which is accessible to the driver and experiments show that the device is very effective.

We frequently read of colts and fillies trotting a quarter in thirty-eight seconds, or even faster, the first time they hitched to a bike. There exists no valid reason for doubting the statements, but it so happens that a majority of our fastest trotters have been schooled for several months, and in some instances part of two seasons, before they could trot a quarter in that time.

The New England breeders have decided to hold a meeting at Readville the first week in July, and have further decided to bar hoppers and hang up a $10,000 purse for the 2:25 pacers at their Grand Circuit meeting.

Jim Crow.

Oh, say, Jim Crow,
 Why is it you always go
 With a gloomy coat of black
 The year long on your back?
 Why don't you change its hue,
 At least for a day or two,
 To red or green or blue?
 And why do you always wear
 Such a sober, sombre air,
 As glum as the face of Care?
 I wait for your reply,
 And into the peaceful pause
 There comes your curious, croaking cry—
 "Oh, because! 'cause! 'cause!"

Oh, say, Jim Crow,
 Why, when the farmers sow,
 And the corn springs up in the row,
 And the days that once were brief
 Grow long, and laugh into leaf,
 Do you play the rascally thief?
 I can see by the look in your eye—
 Wary and wise and sly—
 That you know the code in vogue;
 Why will you then, oh, why
 Persist in the path of the rogue?
 I harken for your reply,
 And into the empty pause
 There rings your graceless, grating cry—
 "Oh, because! 'cause! 'cause!"

And say, Jim Crow,
 With all of the lore you know—
 Lore of the wood and field,
 Lore of the clouds, and the clear
 Depths of the atmosphere,
 To our duller ken concealed—
 Why is it you ever speak
 With a mingled squawk and a squeak?
 You, with your talents all,
 And your knowledge of this and that,
 Why must you sing like a quail,
 And talk like a perfect "flat?"
 I listen for your reply,
 But in the lapse and the pause
 All I hear is your impudent cry—
 "Oh, because! 'cause! 'cause!"

To License the Gun.

The Senate and Assembly Committees on Fish and Game met in general session on the afternoon of the 11th inst. Several bills introduced by individual members were considered, but were deemed impracticable, and it was finally decided to report a bill imposing a license upon every person carrying a shotgun during the hunting season. The license will be fixed at $1 each and the proceeds will be used to carry out the provisions of the law. The tax will not apply to Indians nor to minors.

It was stated at the meeting that the visitation of Easterners during the hunting season is as much as 15,000 annually. This is a palpable exaggeration and in keeping with many other absurd statements and fanatical assertions emanating from the "apostles of game protection." These arguments cannot do any good in influencing necessary legislation but may do considerable harm.

The imposition of the tax is an acceptable measure to every sportsman and, it is believed, will eliminate the pot hunters. Particularly that class of detestable beings who shoot and kill every kind of bird, large and small, that they can get within range of. Notable among the violators of both the ethics of sport and of all humane considerations is a class of ignorant and brutal foreigners that this tax would effectually teach that our laws are made to be respected.

The fund received for this proposed tax is to be devoted to the expenses of maintaining a proposed Game Commission. The Commissioners are to be appointed by the Governor and will serve without fee or salary.

In view of the difficulty of procuring appropriations of sufficient amount to carry out all of the work the Fish Commission find actually necessary and also to meet the expenses of fish and game protection requested by sportsmen at large, and to provide a fund for future game protection, it is not unreasonable to ask financial support in the shape of a nominal tax from a source which is most interested and which will be benefitted by it.

Chairman Tyrrell of the Senate committee and Chairman Higby of the Assembly committee were delegated to confer with the Governor and other officials as to the constitutionality of the proposed measure. The law is modeled in part after the Maine law.

Wild pigeons are reported to be frequenting the grain fields near Centerville, Alameda county, in countless numbers. The pigeons have descended upon the regions in numbers such as never before known. They are voracious and as they pick out the young grain it is feared that they will do a great deal of damage. Such flocks have never before been known, and the shooting of them has become more serious work than sport. The farmers are worried. In the crops of two birds killed 1350 kernels of barley were counted. As much as a cupful of the grain was taken from the crop of one bird. When many thousands of pigeons are eating at that rate, the damage is very serious.

English or Mongolian pheasants will be protected at all seasons in Inyo county until January 1, 1903.

At the Traps.

The opening affair at the Ingleside live bird traps will probably be the season's initial shoot of the California Wing Club. For this occasion the management of the Grounds propose to have in readiness the set of underground traps recently purchased and which is now in course of preparation for the use of shooters this season. This system is the invention and design of E. D. Fulford, the veteran trap shot, who spent a long period and considerable money in perfecting what has now been found by practical experience to have more advantages than any other device used for this purpose by trap shooting clubs.

A description of this system, which is in vogue on the grounds of the Interstate Association, Queens, L. I. where the Grand American Handicap tournament will be held next April, will readily convey to our readers the utility and progressiveness of this move by the San Francisco Trap Shooting Association. On the Ingleside grounds there will be but one set of five traps used and the following will apply in giving an idea as to their working.

Each set of five traps is worked by a single lever, which, with a short travel, opens and closes a trap and if necessary, starts the birds after it is released, so that the bird is always under control until it actually takes wing. There is no communication between the puller and trapper, so that no collusion is possible. Every pull of the lever sets spinning a collar on the shaft, its stopping point regulates the number of the next trap to be pulled, and no one can tell what that will be, for the mechanism is within a steel box, inaccessible without the use of tools. The sides of the trap are counter-balanced and but little power is required to throw them open and shut. All the rods and levers are of steel and work somewhat on the same plan as those of railroad signals. The main pulling rod runs through a covered box from the pulling house to the trapping pit, the connections being made inside the latter. The pit is 7 feet deep and 14 feet long, curved in a segment of a circle, 33 yards from the shooters' platform. In this pit are the pigeons and the trappers, who serve the traps from below, while behind No. 3 trap and outside No. 1 and No. 5 are underground spaces for the boys who gather the birds, each space covered with a strong wire screen. The screens are under the control of the puller and allow the gatherer's exit only at the proper time, a signal telling which of the three lads is to start after a bird, while at the same time the mechanism releases him for his work. Not a thing is visible above the field to the shooter at the score but the five traps. The dead birds when retrieved are placed underground and none are seen by the shooters or spectators, a method which commends itself as doing away with the one disagreeable feature of pigeon shooting.

The saving of time in filling the traps and retrieving dead birds is a feature that is quite important when, for instance, a ten or fifteen bird race is on with twenty or more shooters up.

The Union Gun Club will hold seven inanimate target shoots at Ingleside during the coming season. Three live bird meetings will take place on March 31st, June 30th and September 29th respectively.

A meeting of the club will be held on next Wednesday evening for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and arranging the program of monthly shoots.

Scelp Tube Gun Barrels.

A correspondent in the American Field takes exception to the phrase "not the cheap 'scelp' tubes that the American gun makers use" and admits his inability to find a definition of the word "scelp" in his proper refutation of the "slur on American gun makers."

Whilst sojourning in Pennsylvania some years ago, the writer, one day near Reading, visited a scelp-mill. This institution is an important factor in the iron manufacturing East. The output of a scelp-mill is seen in thousands of bundles of flat strips of iron, various in thickness, wide and length. These strips are sent to pipe mills and then made up into iron pipe of different sizes. The strips are placed in furnaces and properly heated, they are then forced through an aperture (in a plate or mould) of the diameter of the pipe desired. A moulding ball on the end of a rod meets the heated strip, the two lateral edges of which in the process are welded together by being run over and turned onto the socket rod. The rod portion of the tool is on the inside of the red-hot tube, which is run off on a series of rollers. There are two methods in practice for the welding of these tubes, one is called a "butt weld"—the edges of the scelp strip are of equal conformation when they meet for welding, being simply stuck together as it were. The other style, the "lap weld," is produced by beveling the edges of the strip, so that when they are forced together in welding the pipe the beveled edges lap and form a stronger seam than the butt weld. The ordinary gas and water pipes in use in dwellings are thus made.

SNIFE IN THE SOUTH.

Reckless Slaughter Driving Out all the Game Birds.

Louisiana has a law of recent enactment which in local verbiage bids the market hunter to get off the world. It calls him a pot hunter, and inhibits, under heavy penalty, his use of gun, trap or snare in the taking of game in or out of season. It does not seem to have affected the market hunter much. Generally he has refused to be bound by it. It is difficult, indeed, to persuade a Southerner, whether he has land or not, that any being has an exclusive right to shoot birds. Attempts to preserve certain tracts of land have all been failures. It is possible for a man who has title to fifty or a hundred acres to guard it from armed invasion because of its smallness, but when it comes to preserving thousands of acres in a body it cannot be done except at a cost almost equal to the value of the land. Signs reading, "No shooting here!" "No shooting on these premises!" "All shooters will be vigorously prosecuted!" are regarded by the market hunters as good things to empty a gun against, and most of them are full of holes made by shot ranging in size from blue whistlers to No. 10. One day two months ago there were shipped from Horton to a restaurant keeper at Shreveport five dozen woodcock, fifty teal ducks and ten dozen of Wilson's snipe, or jacksnipe as they are called in that section, all killed by two men in three days' shooting in the Lake Bistineau country.

The ducks on this lake have become wary from much hunting. The man who gets them must work hard and far out from the shores or the customary blinds. Procuring woodcock means an infinity of labor in a close malaria brake, composed in part of canes, thirty feet high, and thick enough to touch each other. The sport requires muscle, patience, endurance, and a remarkably quick eye, the birds flushing close by and rising straight in the air until they clear the growth then plunging to earth again. For the fifth part of a second the woodcock hangs outlined against the sky. Perhaps a heavy clump of Spanish moss screens it from the perspiring gunman below. Perhaps a limb of cypress intervenes. Perhaps only twigs are there to deflect the pellets. Perhaps once in a hundred times, there may be no obstruction whatever. At any rate, in that portion of time, almost too small for a split-second watch to register, the shooter must catch his bird and put it out of the flying class. Otherwise he will hear his shot patter harmlessly against the vegetation.

Along the shores of Bistineau in the season the most remunerative sport to be obtained is from jacksnipe. To get jacksnipe upon the surrounding marshes of Lake Bistineau, one leaves Horton with three other good fellows, a heavy farm wagon, which contains a tent, some blankets, cooking utensils, bacon, cornmeal, a great amount of ground coffee, and impedimenta of like character. The wagon will be drawn slowly but surely by two large opinionated mules, and they will be driven by a negro man in his forties, so black that his face makes a spot on the midnight. The hunters will walk the fourteen miles to the snipe grounds and do it merrily enough, always ahead of the mules. When the end of the alleged road is neared and it becomes necessary to leave it so that camp may be made as close to the lake as possible, the way will lie through the woods of cypress, oak, ash trees and hickories. In many places vines as thick through as a man's thigh will have leaped from trunk to trunk, weaving an impenetrable barrier, or some giant will have fallen recently, fresh dirt still clinging to its roots; or a shallow trough, hard in appearance, but really competent to bog a saddle blanket, will lie across the route.

The Northern sportsman in the party, guest of three planters of wealth, and standing intent upon showing him "th' fines' snipe-groun 'n th' worl', suh; bar none, suh," will watch the unloading of the wagon with an interest accentuated by hunger. He will have heard much of Southern hospitality and recondite dishes that tune the taste and soothe the nerves. He will see dragged into daylight from under the tent which covered them the most crass, crude and rude layout of grub that ever his educated palate was forced to content itself with. Each of these men, in his own home, would be glad to entertain him for a month or a year, and would introduce him into enough recondite dishes to last him a lifetime, but now they are out for hunting, and they believe, as their grandfathers believed, that in the field a man's gun or rod must be the mainstay of his provender. The Northerner will find them to be keen sportsmen and good shots, and so long as he is with them "his money won't be no good," but once the tent is pitched, the trench dug around three sides of it to carry off the rain, the fire built, and the inevitable coffee drunk, he will be forced to look out for himself. In other words, while he will shoot with one of his hosts and be welcome to the services of the retriever, he will help himself to his food, draw his own coffee, and, gustatorily, conduct himself as if all the veneer of civilization had been rubbed off, and he was once more a prehistoric savage, chasing his meat with flint-headed arrows.

He will find that in the morning his three planter friends will get out of bed and into their rough, stained garments as fast as they can, make a rapid break for the fire, grab the first thing to eat their fingers will close on, pour themselves a liberal libation of coffee, gulp it down, unloose the dogs, and lie away. If he fails to do likewise he may get nothing to eat, and he certainly will get no shooting. It is a case of devil take the hindmost. All of the day will be spent in unrelenting pursuit of the birds. Miles will be covered and large bags made. After supper, eaten in the same God-helps-him-who-helps-himself fashion, pipes are produced, and the story of the chase told and retold.

Songs will be in order, chaff, anecdotes more or less Rabelaisian, and even practical jokes. This will be kept up until 1 o'clock of the morning, or possibly until 2. It seems to be the motto of these people that in camp any man may sleep who can.

They do this sort of work wholly on coffee. It is a rare thing to find a party of North Louisianians with whisky in bottles or jugs. They are singularly temperate. A party recently camped on Bistineau contained seven teetotalers and one who took three toddies a day, a habit of twenty years' standing. The others regarded him as a good man and a good shot, but they spoke in whispers of his unfortunate addiction to alcohol and the grip it seemed to have on him. Time was when the Louisiana planter regarded himself as seriously lacking unless he were at least a two-bottle man, but the present generation seems to have eschewed intoxicants.

If not the greatest snipe grounds in the world, the nearby marshes furnish shooting for more months in the year probably than grounds to be found elsewhere. The jacks arrive reasonably early. They are down in most cases by October and they make Bistineau their winter home, not leaving for the North until the middle of April. The chances are that some of the birds go further south in December and January and are replaced by others working their way down from the colder regions. Experience in this region demonstrates that there is no such thing as a universal flight of jacks in any direction. The rail is a bird which gets up in millions and goes toward its destination in a night or two, but the migration of the jack is spread out over a comparatively large lapse of time. It breeds from Southern Illinois to a point far beyond the Canadian line and the width of the belt covered by its nests explains its gradual southward flight.

The Illinois birds, since they do not bear cold so well as their Canadian consins, are first to rise after sundown, hover for a while a mile high, and then start. The marshes they have left will, until they are frozen solid, contain snipe, the more northern birds replacing the early flyers. The best time for shooting snipe on Bistineau is between December 15th and February 1st. Through February there is a lull, though scattered birds may still be found. In March there are thousands of them, the ranks of those that stayed through the winter being re-inforced by returning wanderers that have wintered on the edge of the Gulf of Mexico.

It is to be recorded that the Louisiana planter, although he declares that he is a sportsman and stands ready to carve the person of him who denies it, uses the pump gun on all sorts of game. This contrivance permits the discharge of six cartridges into a bevy of quail or hover of jacksnipe, and an expert will often get five birds while the ordinary shooter has contented himself with one. The fact that all small game in this country has struggled bitterly for existence against the flintlock converted to the percussion-cap weapon, the percussion-cap weapon converted to a breech-loader and the breech-loader converted to a breech-loading, hammerless marvel of delicacy and balance does not count with the planter. His object seems to be meat, or, if not meat solely, a bigger score than is made by any other person in the party.

This way of looking at sport is responsible for some of the bags made on Bistineau, both on ducks and snipe. Not a great time back three men shot continuously at ducks for two and one-half days. Long before the end of the time each was unable to raise his gun to the shoulder, and shot from the hip. The jar and smoke and constant strain made them sick. The barrels of one man's gun, a Greener, was torn to the thinness of paper for four inches from the muzzle. The score made by these people was nearly 1300 ducks of all sorts. At the end of the explosive debauch the two leading contestants had slain 496 and 476 respectively. They piled the ducks on their waggon and brought them to Horton. It was a miniature mountain of ducks. The birds were given to the whites and negroes and eaten, but for days there was no shooting to be had in the vicinity of the slaughter. The continuous reports of the guns frightened away everything that could get away. Some months have elapsed since, but it is noteworthy that sport has never been so good in that part of the lake as before the "contest."

Certain parts of Bistineau marshes are covered by coarse brown grass not more than six inches high. The soil is soggy, so moist, in fact, that water comes up around the foot if a man stands still for a minute or two. This grass furnishes fine lurking places for the bird, and it is not high enough to interfere with aim. There are times when it is so thickly inhabited by snipe that they get up like bees before the advancing hunter, and unless he is a trained hand he will never know at which bird to shoot, since they are all around him and all going elsewhere as fast as they can. On such days any good shot well supplied with shells would be able to stuff his shooting coat to bursting with jacks, and all of them fat, as they get any quantity of food and put in their waking hours feeding. The man who loves snipe shooting for the poetry of it and the character of the bird will like best a warm, bright day with a slow breeze, such a day as comes often to North Louisiana in midwinter. There is a certain languor in the air and a stillness around, a stillness so profound that it is only accentuated by the sibilant whispers of the little grass stems rubbing sides. When such a day dawns it will not be necessary to get to the ground before 10 o'clock in the morning. The sun must have time to heat the atmosphere, because then the birds lie best. Toward noon their unwillingness to stir becomes more pronounced, and often they will flush within two yards of the hunter. Under these circumstances he is a poor shot who cannot make a decent bag and enjoy every moment of the making. The birds are not so numerous possibly as when the wind howls and the sky is gray, but they look much handsomer, and there are enough to satisfy any reasonable person. A man may even pick his shots. For instance, if he is weak on right quarterers or incomers or straightaways he can get practice to lesson his faults. To score a clean kill of a bird which has been doing the thing that has fooled him a thousand times makes the man stick his chest out and stoop down to pot the shining retriever and to mutter delightedly that the old gun may be a little bit dusty in the face, but it is still on the track.

KENNEL.

Death of Champion Count Gladstone IV.

The death of this grand field trials English Setter champion occurred on February 7th, at Verona Kennels, and was due to old age. Count Gladstone was black, white and tan in color. He was whelped October 29, 1889, by Count Noble out of Ruby's Girl. He was bred by Chas. Turner, of Stanton, Tenn., and purchased by the Verona Kennels in 1897 from, we believe, Messrs. F. R. Hitchcock, of New York, and J. M. Ament, of Hickory Valley, Tenn. He was installed as the head of the Setters in the Verona Kennels and since arriving on the Coast has shown in his progeny a duplication of the qualities and character which won for him in his early career the field trial honors he so readily annexed. Until recently he was holding his age well and acted as young as a three year old.

In 1891 he opened his field trial career by winning third in Central All-Age Stake; in 1892 he won second in the Eastern Club's All-Age Stake; in 1894 he won first in Manitoba All-Age, third in the Eastern All-Age, first Eastern Subscription, first Southern All-Age Stake, first United States All-Age as well as the absolute winner in the United States All-Age Stake and in 1896 terminated his career in the field by winning the Four Hours Stake of the Eastern Field Trials Club and the Champion Stakes of that year. Among the field trial winners who claim him as sire may be mentioned Albert Lang, Dave Earl, Feu Follet, Gleam's Ruth, Gleam's Dart, Lou, Lady's Count, Pin Money, Shadow, Tory Topaz, Tory Rustie, Tory Fashion, Tory Jessamine, Tory Dolett, Count Danstone, Prime Minister, Lady's Count, Gilt Edge.

Count Hunter, Sioux, Lady Rachel, Lady's Count Gladstone, Woodcraft (owned by Henry Betten), Verona Cap, Verona Wilhelmina, Daughter Noble, Lady, Belle of Hard Bargain. Of these winners during 1900, Sioux has won the most prizes, closing with the United States All-Age and Champion Stake. Jos. E. Terry's Lady, W. W. Van Arsdale's Peach Blossom and P. D. Lindville's Maggie F. were winners in the Pacific Coast Derby.

The foregoing brief list of winning field trial dogs sired by Count Gladstone IV. might be supplemented with a list of choice performers found among his grandsons and granddaughters, but space and time are not at command to give a more extended notice of a dog that has, happily for the breed, passed his sterling qualities to a progeny that have emulated a worthy sire on many fields.

The illustration presented on the preceding page is after the original painting by Fred W. Butler, Esq.

Proposed Change in A. K. C. Rules.

At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Kennel Club in New York, proposed changes in the rules governing dog shows and bench show clubs were recommended as follows:

Rules Governing Dog Shows—An additional Rule No. 22, in place of the present Rule No. 22 to read: In default of the payment of prize moneys within sixty days of the last day of a show, the officials of such show, except paid employees, shall be suspended or disqualified for such time as the American Kennel Club shall determine. No claim against a club for unpaid prizes shall, however, be valid unless filed with the secretary of the American Kennel Club within six months of the last day of the show held by such club. Change the present Rule 22 and make same 23.

Rules Governing Clubs Holding Shows—Amend Rule 5 by adding thereto: "Excepting, however, that all claims against a club for unpaid prizes, shall be outlawed after the expiration of six months from the last day of the closing of such show."

To amend the resolutions under which the value of winners classes are determined by adding to the clause relating to Specialty Clubs. "No Specialty Club can delegate its right to any other club or person to hold or manage a show in its name."

The Late H. G. Hemelright.

We regret to announce the passing away of one who was an enthusiastic fancier and a man of many sterling qualities. Mr. Harry G. Hemelright, who joined the silent majority this week, was an energetic member of the Pacific Bull Terrier Club and also of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club until illness made necessary a trip to the southern part of the State last September. Mr. Hemelright, before devoting his attention entirely to doggy affairs, had made an enviable record as a breeder and fancier of homing pigeons, several of his birds having made champion records before he decided to dispose of his loft and follow his more recent fancy. Mr. J. H. Dorian of this city, and Rev. J. W. Flinton of Victoria, became the owners of his choicest pigeon stock.

The Powhattan Kennels were started in 1899, the first entry of Fox Terriers was made at the May show 1900. Warren Clerk, an Eastern importation since dead, winning first in Puppy, Novice and reserve in winners. Cairnsmuir Doctor and Warren Tattle, two other good ones, were sent East when Mr. Hemelright closed out his kennels.

Mr. Hemelright was a fancier of a sanguine disposition and determined character and one whose loss the fancy will no doubt feel.

Pine Hill Cocker Kennels will soon have two Eastern Cocker Kennels domiciled with their other dogs. The new arrivals will be seen at the bench show in May.

Doings in Dogdom.

N. H. Hickman's Elmwood Vassar is a litter sister to Elmwood Varsity sire of Seldon Stuyve, one of the best Fox Terriers ever produced in America, he will be benched at Madison Square Garden show next week.

The rumor is current that a prominent local fancier will add two crack Eastern Fox Terriers to his string very shortly, in fact the dogs are now en route. One of the coming dogs is said to be Norfolk Queen Dance by Champion Norfolk Victorious out of Norfolk Valse.

Mrs. A. W. Lee announces that she has sold her imported Swiss St. Bernard bitch Beline and another bitch Miss Barry to Mr. Philip C. Meyer of this city. Beline will not join the other St. Bernards of the Golden Gate Kennels until she whelps, due towards the end of this month, a litter to Marse Jeems.

Frank A. Cushing, the official keeper of records of the Union Coursing Park Association, has compiled an interesting book containing all the stakes run during last year, the individual performances of each hound, the date and class of stakes, number of nominations, weight of each dog, time of each course, number of lengths in the lead up to the hare, number of courses each dog ran and amount of money won by every dog that ran at Union Park. During 1900 there were 114 events run, in which 893 different dogs participated. The total amount of money distributed in prizes was $74,179. Of the 893 dogs that started during the year 306 failed to raise a flag. The total number of entries during the year was 8519, which indicates a like number of courses run, without taking into consideration the undecided, in consequence Judge John Grace was called upon to render something more than 9000 decisions.

Emin Pasha ranks first amongst the winning sires, his get winning $11,618; Skyrocket second, $8178; St. Lawrence third, with $8157; St. Clair fourth, with $3167, and Waratah fifth, with $2907.10. The St. Lawrence-Moonlight litter won $2982.50; the Emin Pasha-Bonnie Dass litter, $2710. Of the three big kennels, Curtis & Sons won $9141.50; Pasha Kennels, $5873; R. E. de B. Lopez & Son, $3918.50. Of the 114 stakes run Curtis & Sons won twenty-two; Pasha Kennels twelve; Lopez & Son, ten; E. Goary, eight; Pat Reilly, six. Curtis & Sons have the distinction of running but one dog that did not secure a winning bracket, which was the Fram, imported. The biggest individual winner of the year was Sacramento Boy, who has $1735 to his credit. Palo Alto and Whitehead each have six stakes to their credit; Royal Anne and Little Sister four each. Royal Flush, Bacon, Badboy and Wedgewood three each; Ireland, Floodgate, Luxor, Anchor, Flying Fox, Greenhall, Harlen Gladys, Echo, McKinney, Mayflower, Pleasant Girl, Warship, Vandal, Risky Attempt, Candelana, two each. The most remarkable winning of all the hounds was that of Brutus, who won $915 during the year, and never won a stake. May Hempstead holds the record for the number of races run, with 144; Brutus second, with 135; McKinley third, with 134; Royal Anno fourth, with 128.

The Modern Type of the St. Bernard.

That rough and smooth coated puppies are found in the same litter, is one of the peculiarities of the St. Bernard known to fanciers who favor the breed. At the same time, while this would indicate that the puppies would be of the same type, this, however, is not the case. It has always been conceded that the smooth variety is the savior of the breed. If breeders were compelled to depend entirely upon the roughs for a continuation of type, the St. Bernard would, probably, soon become just a big rough dog with more or less correct markings. It is safe to presume that the rough coat of today is a purely manufactured animal, while the smooth is a reproduction of the original dog of the Hospice, altered only in slight degree as regards texture of coat.

Breeders, therefore, if they wish to retain quality and true type, with the short, square head, must frequently breed rough dogs to smooth bitches.

A notable example of the two varieties of coat was in the memorable Sir Bedivere litter, which contained not only this celebrated rough dog, but also the famous smooth coat, Baron Wallasey.

Careful rearing and the best of food have added considerable to the size of St. Bernards, and a full grown dog of 200 pounds weight is not now considered more extraordinary than a dog of 160 pounds weight would have been a quarter of a century ago. But it is a question whether the breed, as a whole, is as robust as it should be. Great height is usually accompanied by structural weakness in one part or another, and in mating much care must be exercised in weighing the possibilities of reproducing these defects. Mating roughs with smooths has been found to give greater size and more stamina.

At one time in Switzerland it was feared that there was some danger of the St. Bernard becoming extinct, the monks having to resort to some other dogs, variously stated as Newfoundland, Pyrenean Mastiffs, etc., to revive the breed. There is little fear of this danger today, for a stud book has been published containing the pedigrees of nearly 6000 St. Bernards of both Swiss and English breeding, to say nothing of the thousands bred in America, which are on record in the stud books of the American Kennel Club.

In giving a description of the St. Bernard it is best to first consider its general appearance. It should strike the eye as large and powerful, with great muscular development (more apparent, of course, in the smooth variety), suggesting endurance. Ch. Le Prince Jr. is about the best exponent of the smooth type on the Pacific Coast. The body should have a lengthy appearance, giving the dog an effect of standing over a good deal of ground. The expression should be what might be termed alert, benevolent and dignified intelligence, and its movements should be more active than the mastiff.

The head of the St. Bernard is very distinctive. Many good dogs, such as Plinlimmon and Le Prince, have been too long in head, though redeemed in a measure by their great depth of muzzle. The prominence accorded to these dogs has developed the idea among some breeders that a long head is correct. It is not, for the standard tells us the circumference of the skull should be more than double the length of the head from the nose to the occiput. This would necessarily make the muzzle moderately short. Most long-muzzled dogs are narrow in skull circumference. The muzzle should be square, full below the eye and not scooped out; there should be great depth from the eye to the lower jaw; and the flews should be very deep, but not too pendulous. The line from nose to stop should be straight; to be Roman-nosed or scooped is a fault. The stop, or indentation between the eyes, should be abrupt and well defined. This is an important point, and aids or detracts from expression. The skull should be broad, rounded at the top, but not domed, and the brow being somewhat prominent adds to the effect of a good stop.

The ears should be of medium size, lie close to the cheek, strong at the base, and should not be too heavily clothed with hair. When at attention the base of the ear should be almost on a level with the top of the head. This adds much to the desired square effect the head should possess. The ears should not be so held that the "flat" of the ear is at right angles with the face. This effect is styled elephant ears.

The eyes are rather small and deep set, dark in color, a light eye entirely destroying the expression, however good the dog might be in other respects. They should be set pretty wide apart and the lower eye droop somewhat, showing a part of the hawk. A full round eye is quite wrong.

The nose should be large and always black, with nostrils well developed.

Teeth must be level, although some winners have been more or less undershot, it is a great fault and is apt to give a fictitious squareness to the muzzle.

The neck should be rather long for a big dog, muscular and slightly arched, the dewlap, the loose skin under the jaw, well developed, though the skin around the neck and shoulders should not have a loose effect.

Shoulders are broad and oblique and running well into the withers, for, unlike some big dogs, the St. Bernard is built for work.

The chest should be wide and deep, and this is where so many tall dogs fail.

The back should be level with no suspicion of hollowness, nor should the dog have the appearance of being lower at the shoulders than at the hips, then, coming to the loins, they should arch a little and droop gradually to the root of the stern. The loins should be wide, deep and muscular, a point that, obviously, was of more consequence for work in the snow, than it is now.

The stern is set on rather high, so that there is no sudden drop from the hip bone. It is long, and, in the rough variety, bushy; in the smooth, there is a slight fringe of hair; it should be carried low in repose and when excited or in motion slightly over the line of the back, but never curled over nor carried gaily. The Swiss prefer a slight curl over at the tip, like a J.

The legs and feet are most important, as their proper construction lend so much to the appearance and utility of the dog. The forelegs should be perfectly straight, strong in round bone, and of good length in proportion to the depth of the body and general height of the dog. A low set St. Bernard loses half its dignity. The same applies to the hind legs, except that the hocks should be well bent and not straight, as so many are found to be; they should be very muscular. The feet should be large and compact with well arched toes, and should turn neither in nor out; the pasterns should be strong and straight and not bent.

As to size, a dog should be at least 30 inches in height at the shoulder, and a bitch 27 inches (the taller the better provided only the symmetry is maintained), thoroughly well proportioned and of great substance.

The coat, in the rough variety, should be dense and flat and not curly over the neck, hips or on sides; over the neck it should be rather fuller. The thighs and tail are feathered, but not heavily. In the smooth, the coat should be dense, hard, flat and short, and only slightly feathered on thighs and tail.

The true color is orange or red, various shades of brindle (the richer the color the better) or white with patches on body of either of these colors. The markings are most important and should be as follows: White muzzle, white blaze half-way up the forehead, white collar round the neck, white chest, forelegs, feet and tip of tail, black shadings on face and ears, the degrees of this and their placing lending much to the beauty and expression of the face. Should the blaze be wide and run through to the collar, a spot of the body color on the top of the head will redeem the objection to some extent.

The disposition should be gentle and kind.

The faults of the breed are: Ill-temper split nose, unlevel mouth and cankered teeth, snipy muzzle, light or staring eyes, cheek bumps, wedge head, flat skull, wall eyes, domed skull, badly set or heavily feathered ears, too much peak, short neck, curly coat, flat sides, curled tail, hollow back, ring tail, open feet or bare feet, cow hocks, straight hocks and self-colored, which latter means, when there are no markings or shadings. All these blemishes are cut in judging more or less according to degree.

Points which absolutely disqualify the St. Bernard in competition at shows are: Dudley (red), liver, flesh colored nose; fawn if whole colored or with black shadings only; black, black and tan, black and white, black, tan and white, and all white. All white, however, has in the past taken high honors under one of the best Eastern judges.

The Song of the River.

Down by the shelving bank,
Where flows the tranquil river;—
Where the yellow soil is dank,
And rank green rushes quiver.

Where falls the slanting light
Which glimmers on the stream;—
Little eddies dimpling bright,
Like golden waves they seem.

Onward the sparkling waters glide,
Murmuring softly as they go—
Onward, onward to the tide,
Swinging, winding slow.

Past the forest old and grand,
Across the sunlit plain;
Over the stretches of pebble and sand,
And into the shadows again.

Now beneath the frowning cliff,
The angry waters roar and rush,
Where lofty mountains soar and lift
Their heads above the wild flood's crush.

Again, its placid course assume,
Broadening, deepening as it goes;
Flashing in the light and gloom,
As the widening river flows.

Ever singing in musical song,
Whispering sad, or laughing in glee;
Through the day and night so long,
Hurrying onward to the sea.

Oh, gentle river, what is thy lay?
As thou, the low banks lave—
Whether plaintive or whether gay,
The ocean must be thy grave.

—J. Mayne Baltimore in Sportsmen's Review.

Along my banks, in reed laden ranks,
Will gather the men, who have the ken
Of casting the fly, 'neath a balmy sky.
Luring the fish for the angler's dish,
And the stories that fresco the glories
Of April's first day; which is one lay,
Plaintive to dangle, but gay to the angler;
I sing as I pave, the low banks I lave
With rippling wave, ere seeking my ocean grave.

PACIFIC COAST FISHING.

The Deep-Sea Fishing of San Diego and Santa Catalina Island.

It was on the 19th day of February, 1853, that I, then a beardless boy of eighteen, landed in San Diego (what is now called "Old Town," about two miles from here); full of energy and youthful ambition. I sit down here now, a white-haired man of sixty-five, to scratch off a few lines about our summer fishing on the Southern California coast. You hear people recommending Southern California to invalids for the winter months, but the real truth is that summer is the time to visit either San Diego or Catalina Island.

Forty-six years ago I worked on board of an old hulk at anchor at the Playa, and San Diego was a place of about 1200 people. There was a one-company post at Fort San Diego, under command of Capt. J. Bankhead Magruder, afterwards famous as a Confederate General, and under him was Lieut. George H. Derby, famous in American humorous literature as "John Phoenix." On the peninsula where now stands the beautiful Coronado Hotel was a long dreary waste of sand, sage brush and silence, where I used to go with Capt. Jacob Bogert, of blessed memory, to shoot quail and cotton-tail rabbits, when we had no ships in port.

Now, all this is changed. Here is a busy city with all the modern appliances of which electricity is the parent. Instead of the lumbering old Goliath that used to make semi-monthly trips between here and San Francisco, there are now semi-weekly trips by elegant iron steamers which have triple-expansion engines and reel off their fifteen knots per hour; and in addition to these there is a line of monthly packets to Yokohama, Shanghai and Hong Kong, each of which carries about 6000 bales of cotton to the land of the little brown man, in addition to other cargo. This place is reached also by the Atchison Railway system, and the last eighty miles of it is right within sight of the white-lipped breakers that chant their eternal orisons to the great white throne. The man who comes this way from San Francisco by rail finds this ride beside the surf a most agreeable change from the arid and dusty journey through the great San Joaquin valley.

Of course, I would rather catch a dozen trout, of an aggregate weight of six pounds, with a fly at the surface of the water, than to haul in a hundred-pound jewfish after a half-hour's tussle in the salt water, but trout fishing is very poor after you leave Kern river behind you; and if sea fishing is what you are after, this is the place to come for it. Here you have the great black sea-bass, sometimes 300 pounds in weight; the voracious jewfish, the slim and savage barracuda, the "Lanky Bob" of the sea; the glittering and pugnacious tuna, fully the equal of his congener in the Mediterranean, and last, but not least, the game and beautiful yellow-tail, that affords a far greater degree of sport than the bluefish of the Atlantic waters.

In October, 1854, the steamship Yankee Blade, Capt. Henry Randall, left San Francisco for Panama with 800 passengers and about $1,500,000 in gold dust on board. Sixty hours later, in a dense fog, through which she had been creeping along at about two-thirds of her speed, she ran on Point Arguello, about sixteen miles north of Santa Barbara. There were some sixty lives lost, but the survivors reached Santa Barbara safely. An expedition was fitted out at San Francisco on the schooner Dancing Feather, an old Boston pilot boat, to wreck the steamer and recover the treasure, and I shipped on her as a deck hand. Capt. James Fowler was in command. We had only been there at work about four days, when on came a heavy southeasterly gale of wind, and we had to seek a harbor of safety, so Capt. Fowler stood off shore about ninety miles southwest and then hauled in due east for a small harbor on the west side of Catalina Island. And there it was I had my first encounter with a yellow-tail, a grand looking fish of sixty odd pounds, and something that none of us had ever before seen. Captain Fowler was from Nantucket and Mr. Abbott, the mate, was from Hyannis, but neither of them had ever seen anything like this. He had the head and shoulders of a Sacramento river salmon, with the forked tail of the mackerel tribe. But we caught dozens of them and christened them "white salmon," for the flesh was in snowy flakes, like that of the striped bass.

Apres of the striped bass, I would say that magnificent game-fish attains the grandest kind of proportions in these waters. It was in 1879 that the young fry were first turned loose in the Bay of San Francisco and as long back as 1893 I saw one taken at Montorey that weighed twenty-six pounds when dressed. I can only attribute the marvelous growth of these fish in our waters to the fact that we have no menhaden oil industries here, or anything else of like character. The coast is very rocky for over 700 miles and the rocks are full of slugs, limpets, star-fish, hermit crabs, and all the lower orders of marine animal life, thus affording ample food to the bass while he is growing. In the upper portions of San Francisco Bay—what are called San Pablo and Suisun Bay—where the fresh water blends with the ocean tide, the striped bass affords good sport in May, June, October, November and December. He was not so quick about making his way northward as the shad (which attains its greatest proportions in the small rivers emptying into Puget Sound), but he will get there all right, after awhile. I got a letter from a friend of mine living at Port Orford about 675 miles north of here, in which he described having caught an eighteen pounder with tereles as bait, and said he believed he could have taken a dozen if he had only been able to get shrimp for bait.

The tuna is the great monarch of these waters, especially in the warm summer days, when the flying-fish are about. Of course, Mr. Doran and Charles F. Holder are the acknowledged chiefs of that branch of sport, and I don't pretend to air my abilities alongside of them. Here we can either go down to the Atchison Railway wharf or take the ferry and cross over to Coronado, where they have built a pier that has given many a good day's fishing without entailing the expense of boat hire. The catch for last Thursday was 272 barracuda, 103 groupers, 51 black sea-bass, 54 halibut, 18 yellow-tails and about 300 surf fish and cavallos.

Over on this side of the bay there is a small dock known as Jorres' Wharf, and there you will find every day from ten to thirty disciples of Izaak the Gentle. On Friday the tide was just right for sport, high water a little after 2 P. M., in consequence of which three fine jewfish were taken from that dock inside of an hour, the successful anglers being George J. Conner, the well known poolseller, who got one of 126 pounds; Mr. C. C. Woodmansee of Indianapolis, one of 151 pounds; and then, to cap the climax, Mr. Dibble of Osceola, Ia., who has been spending the last six months here, reeled in one that weighed 277, and was nearly sixty inches in length. It was the largest fish I had ever seen taken with a rod and reel, and I expected to see the big brute snap the line every minute, but a forty-eight minutes' play tired him out, and he was brought to gaff and dragged out on the beach, being too heavy to lift into a boat.

As for me, I am, so far, content with hauling in sharks weighing from eight to twelve pounds and giving them to the almond-eyed gentleman whose "smile is childlike and bland." I use an old Bathebara salmon rod that Fred Devine made for me twelve years ago, and with which I have caught salmon in Oregon and kingfish in New Zealand. It is a sturdy old rod. I brought it home on Friday night, after having caught five sharks, and the tip of it looked like a corkscrew. I hung it up, with the dowel end downwards, that night, and the next morning nobody could have told that it had ever been used. That Bathebara is great material. Here is a sample of the aesthetic conversation on Jorres' Wharf:

"Moses, what a bite I had!"

"Moses? That must have been a jewfish."

"Git outen my way, Bill Brown; yew doan' give me no room ter sling up when I git a bite."

"Say, Pete, did you git a bite yet?"

"Ya-as, lots of 'em."

"Ya-a-as, yew did—under yer hat."

"Tom, are you thirder?"

"No."

"Well, I am. Pass around the wh-at yer call it."

"Here's pretty good luck. Thus we cross the Yuba."

"By the piper that played before Moses, I had a bite that weighed a ton!"

"Yes, and could prove it too, of old Bill Jones was alive.—Thos. B. Morry in the American Angler.

Fly-Casters' Meeting.

The adjourned annual meeting of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club was held in the banquet hall of the California Hotel, last Tuesday evening, with an attendance of about forty-five members. H. F. Muller, the Treasurer, submitted his annual report and supplemented the same with a verbal report from which it appears the club is in a healthy financial condition, having a cash balance of $400 on hand. The club membership is full to the limit, with about thirty prospective candidates on the waiting list.

A report submitted by the Executive Committee was discussed in executive session, Dr. C. W. Hibbard presiding as Chairman by the request of W. D. Mansfield. This report claimed the attention of the meeting for the balance of the evening. The election of officers being thereby postponed until a meeting shall be called by the Executive Committee in the near future.

THE FARM.

Effect of Food on Wool.

There is no better criterion by which we are able to correctly judge of the general health of a sheep than its fleece. Since the winter health of the flock depends largely on the quality of food it receives, so also is the growth and quality of the fleece influenced in like manner. We have always considered that sheep fed abundantly on roots with a small allowance of grain thrown in invariably give us a heavier, a more brilliant and lustrous fleece than the flock fed on hay and other dry fodder, even with the most liberal use of grain added. There is no special ration which if fed to sheep will produce wool of great strength nor can we at any time say that such a thing is to be recommended to produce a large quantity of wool. It has often been observed that sheep and lambs which have been on full feed for long periods shear heavy fleeces of wool. This would indicate that any ration calculated to keep the sheep in thrifty condition would be suitable for growing large quantities of wool. It is highly desirable to provide the sheep proper nourishment throughout the year, permitting no periods of neglect to intervene to destroy the strength of the fibers of the fleece. Liberal and judicious feeding does not change the quality of the wool, but it does affect the strength and quantity of the staple produced by a given sheep. The weight of wool produced is affected both by increasing the length of fiber and by increasing the amount of yolk and natural oil in the fleece. One fault in our method of western ranging in winter is contained in the fact that a sudden cold snap and attendant shortage of feed is bound to show a weak spot in the fiber and this defect never fails to catch the eye of the buyer when he claws over the wool the following summer.—Field & Farm.

How the Prize Lambs Were Produced.

The splendid carload of range lambs which took the first prize of $300 at the recent stock show in Chicago were owned and raised by L. F. Oswald, of Utah. They were out of common range ewes and sired by full-blooded Lincoln rams, and were dropped on the range along the foothills from April 3d to May 1st. Concerning their treatment Mr. Oswald says: They were run in small bunches until the middle of May, when the mothers were sheared and the flocks started for the high mountains and kept following the snow banks until August 10th, when I sent the ones intended for the contest to my alfalfa ranch and turned the lambs on the alfalfa, then about fifteen inches high. I took great care not to allow them on the field until the dew or frost had disappeared.

They were handled in this way until October 1st, when a mixture of oats and wheat was given them with hay in racks at night. They still had the run of the fields in the daytime. About October 10th the lambs were eating a pound to the head. I then changed the grain to 25 bushels of corn, 5 bushels of oats, 12 grain scoops of good screenings and 150 lbs. of oilmeal all ground together. I gradually increased the grain ration until they were eating a trifle over 2½ lbs. of this mixture and 1 lb. of sugar beets, pulped, a day, with as much wild hay as they wanted.

They ate the 2½ pounds of grain and the pound of sugar beets for thirty days, were never off their feed and were sound. I fed twice a day, night and morning, and at exactly the same time each day, 7 in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. They weighed 83 lbs. when they went on feed, 116 lbs. when they left the feed lot for market and 107 lbs. when sold. They brought $6.50 per 100 lbs.

Adelaide's Sons in California.

Mr. Henry Pierce, owner of the celebrated Yerba Buena herd of Jerseys in Santa Clara county, writes us as follows in relation to the great Jersey cow Adelaide of St. Lambert, whose wonderful record we published last week:

"Referring to your remarks of the great Jersey cow, Adelaide of St. Lambert, it may interest California breeders to know that this cow, that gave 82 pounds of milk in a day and made over 21 pounds of butter in a week, had but two bull calves, of which I own the three year old, and Mr. William Rockefeller (the old man) the other—10 months old."

He started in 28 races, won 25 of them, was twice second and once third.

He is a Sire of Race Horses.

Every one of his get in the 2:20 list secured the record in a race, and all are race winners.

He is a champion in the show ring, champion on the race track and a champion in the stud.

In 1900 his get won first, second and fourth money in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, first and second money in the Occident Stake and first, second and third money in the Stanford Stake. The McKinneys are stake winners. Will make the season of 1901 at

CORALLETOS STOCK FARM

(Eight miles north of Gilroy).

FEE $50.

Return privilege, in case mare fails to get with foal, provided we still own the horse. Good pasturage at $3 per month. Not responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares will receive the best of attention. BOODLE possesses all the qualifications desirable in a stallion. Considering the number of his colts that have been trained, no stallion has ever made a better showing as a sire. Mares may be sent to San Martin by S. P. R. R. Send for tabulated pedigree.

Mr. B., a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. I. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 81 straight kills.
He used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration; it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask. Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. When loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

NUTWOOD WILKES 2:16 1-2.

A Grandly Bred Trotter and One of America's Greatest Young Sires.

The day of 2:30 speed as a test of the get of trotting sires has passed, and the 2:30 list, or rather that portion of it which is slower than 2:20, will soon be laid upon the relic shelf along with the high wheel sulky and other appliances that were good in their day, but have had to get out of the way of progress. Early and extreme speed and the ability to train on are now required of harness horses, and the stallion that gets that sort is entitled to a position among speed sires, and if he is to occupy a place among the stars, size and good looks must also be characteristics of his progeny.

Among the young stallions in America that are forcing their way to the front every year in spite of poor opportunity and environment, Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ is one of the most prominent and has drawn the attention of breeders from the Pacific to the Atlantic. At twelve years of age, he has four trotters in the 2:15 list, one the champion trotting stallion to wagon in a race—John A. McKerron 2:10, another, Who Is It 2:10½, holds the champion three year old gelding race record—2:12. The same year that Who Is It made his three year old record, John A. McKerron trotted to a race record of 2:12½, and we believe Nutwood Wilkes to be the only stallion that ever produced two three year olds to get as low records in one season. And at the time he was but ten years old.

Last year the list of new standard performers contained the names of six by this young stallion, including Georgie B. 2:12½ and Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, besides three that reduced their records. When it is considered that nearly all the get of Nutwood Wilkes that have been raced were in one stable, that of his owner, Mr. Martin Carter, and that they were nearly the entire number of the Nutwood Stock Farm foals old enough to race, the showing is still more wonderful. In short, Nutwood Wilkes at twelve years of age has four trotters in the 2:15 list with an average speed of 2:12 and one-tenth, and as his list of standard performers is sixteen, the percentage of extreme fast ones is 25, or one-quarter of all his performers. There are but thirty-eight sires in America that have produced as many as four trotters in the 2:15 list, and of the thirty-eight Nutwood Wilkes is the youngest. It takes 2:15 speed to win big money in harness races and from a racing standpoint the stallions that get it are the ones that will receive the patronage of those who want the best.

The name Nutwood Wilkes indicates his breeding, but it will do no harm at this time to glance over his pedigree and see from what sources he has drawn his speed and the power to reproduce it in his progeny. His sire, Guy Wilkes 2:15½, was a fast race horse and his list of performers with extreme speed at the trot is only exceeded in numbers by three stallions, Baron Wilkes, Onward and Simmons. Baron Wilkes has 16 in the 2:15 list, Onward and Simmons 15 each, while Guy Wilkes is sire of 14. We are not taking the pacers into consideration in this comparison.

Nutwood, sire of the dam of Nutwood Wilkes, is the leading sire of broodmares in the world, and his daughters have produced nearly 160 with standard records, 34 of which are in the 2:15 list and 9 in the 2:10 list, both champion records. The greatest colt trotter the world ever saw, Arion with a two year old record of 2:10½ to high wheel sulky, and now having a mark of 2:07½ is out of a daughter of Nutwood.

The second dam of Nutwood Wilkes is Belle, a producing daughter of Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31, who sired Wells Fargo 2:18½ and nine other standard performers in "the old days," whose sons have produced twenty-eight with records from 2:09½ to 2:30 and whose daughters are the dams of four in the 2:15 list.

Rebel Daughter, his third dam, was a thoroughbred mare by Williamson's Belmont, that great stallion whose blood has done so much to give California horses speed and stamina, and among whose posterity is Directum 2:05½, who held the champion record for so many years.

Among the sires represented in the pedigree of Nutwood Wilkes are Hambletonian 10, American Star 14, Abdallah 15, Pilot Jr. 12, Geo. M. Patchen 30, William's Belmont, Mambrino Patchen 58, Belmont 64, Geo. Wilkes 2:22, Nutwood 2:18½ and Guy Wilkes 9:15½, and among the broodmares are the Chas. Kent mare, old Telegraph, Rodes mare by Gano, Belle by Mambrino Chief, Dolly Spanker, Miss Russell, Lady Bunker and Lidia W. 2:18½. It is a grand array of producers that are among the very best in the trotting register.

As a sire of money winners, Nutwood Wilkes, with but six of his get competing in races last year in California, stood second, their total winnings being $5775, an average of over $1000 each for the five that won money. Georgie B. 2:12½, Claudius 2:13½, Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ and Irvington Boy 2:17½ were seen on nearly every track on the California circuit last year, proved themselves race horses and are all ready to reduce their records this year.

Besides speed that is shown early and reaches the the extreme limit, Nutwood Wilkes sires size and good looks. His son, John A. McKerron with a matinee record of 2:09, is one of the handsomest stallions in America. Who Is It 2:10½, Claudius 2:13½, Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, Wilkes Direct 2:22½, Alix B. 2:24½ and others of his get with records are square, open gaited trotters and attract attention to their handsome proportions in any company.

At $50 the season, the fee fixed for Nutwood Wilkes' services this year, his book will fill early, and as he was bred to a very high class lot of mares last year and the year previous, the foals of 1900 and 1901, when developed will add greatly to the value of the foals of each succeeding year, as low records will be gained by many of them. The get of Nutwood Wilkes meet ready sale at profitable prices at the present time, but their values will increase greatly within the next two or three years. As sure as his get are trained and raced a majority of them will get records, and as a sire of 2:15 performers few stallions will lead him in five years from now, and they will have to have the best of opportunities.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

The boys down at Irvington say if Sam Casto's two year old trotter ever gets his "back up" there will be nothing left in the $1000 stake, but second third and fourth money.

W. F. Watson has placed his trotter Ned Wilkes and Frank Watson in A. E. Heller's stable at McMinnville. The last named is a three year old stallion brought out from Kansas that is said to be very promising.

Mr. Dodge, of Pocatello, bought Midday Bell, dam of Captain Jones, from Roberts & Williams of this city. The price paid was $400. She is in foal to Claymont.

C. P. Bacon, a pioneer horseman of Oregon, died at his home in Portland last Monday of la grippe. Mr. Bacon was a great lover of the trotting horse, while he never indulged in the sport of racing, he always bred and drove the trotting bred horse. In early days Mr. Bacon was engaged in the livery business and during the time and since has bred and owned some very good horses and among them we mention the stallions Eph Maynard, Bacon's Hambletonian and Chance. Mr. Bacon was very fond of driving and was seen almost daily winter and summer behind a handsome driver. He will be missed by many road drivers who have become accustomed to his presence on the road for many years past.

John Pender, who has been in Oregon for nearly three years past, is in the city on his way to Sacramento, Cal., with his stallion Capt. Jones, where he will make a season with him. Capt. Jones is one of the best bred stallions that has ever been in this State, being sired by McKinney 2:11½, son of Aleyono; first dam Midday Bell by Gossiper 2:14½, second dam Briar Bell (dam of McBriar 2:14) by Don Wilkes, another son of Aleyono; third dam by Mambrino Patchen 58, fourth dam by Almont 33. It will be seen by this that he has a double infusion of the blood of Aleyono, backed up by such great families as Mambrino Patchen 58 and Almont 33. He is bred in the same lines as Zolock 2:10½, McBriar 2:14 and others of the McKinney family. He is not only well bred, but is a great individual, and proved himself last year to be a trotter worthy of his family in his workouts. His colts, too, are showing up well, and Mr. Pender thinks he will give McKinney a close race as a sire. He takes a two year old, Lady Jones, with him and expects to return to Oregon this fall and win the big colt stake at Salem, where she is entered.

Dam of You Bet 2:12 1-2 is Gift by Alban.

PALO ALTO STOCK FARM, Feb. 18, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—In regard to the breeding of the dam of You Bet 2:12½, will say that it is correct as given by Mr. E. C. Truesdell in your issue of February 16, 1901.

While visiting at Palo Alto a few weeks ago, Mr. Durfee said he would like to have the breeding of the dam of You Bet; he said she was sold at a Palo Alto sale in Los Angeles; that he knew the name of the purchaser but could not call it at that moment, but would know it when he heard it; he also said that the mare was, he believed, by a son of Electioneer, who had a record of 2:24 or 2:25.

The names of purchasers at the Los Angeles sale of January 30, '94, were called off and when that of Murdock was reached Mr. Durfee said "that's the man;" this name appeared opposite Florence Clay by Clay 2:25, and as Mr. Durfee was sure that this was the dam of You Bet, she being by a son of Electioneer that had a record of 2:25, we did not look for further information.

Since reading the article in the last BREEDER, I have looked over the sale register again and find that Mr. Murdock purchased both Florence Clay and Gift at the sale above mentioned. Yours truly,

F. W. COVEY.

Tetanus.

E. Mathews, V. S., of New Jersey City, N. J., read before the Veterinary Medical Association of his State at its 1900 meeting the following interesting and valuable paper on the above subject. It is reprinted here for the reason that it may be of great service to some reader. In fact, it is well worthy of preservation for reference:

"We will not enter into any discussion as to the different division given to tetanus (lock jaw) by different writers, except to say that it is a continuous contraction of the muscles, causing rigidity of the parts they supply.

We will speak of tetanus as we find it in our everyday practice. We are called in to see our patient in a more or less advanced stage of sickness, and are told he will not or cannot eat, appears more or less stiff in his gait, and has been so for a day or two. After a more or less careful examination it is pronounced a case of tetanus; prognosis very unfavorable.

As every practitioner is left to his own judgment in the treatment of tetanus, I have tried some experiments on my own account, and will give you the results of some of them.

Case I.—A roan gelding, about five years old, weight about 1200 pounds. I was called to see my patient November 24, 1897, and was given the privilege of taking him and doing what I saw fit with him. Through the kindness of Dr. G. W. C. Phillips, druggist, I procured a small vial of woorara, having the seal and stamp of the government still unbroken; it was very old. I began by injecting hypodermatically one-eighth of a grain three times a day, increasing it to three-eighths of a grain three times a day.

I had this case under treatment about seventeen days with favorable results. He is still working. It was a very severe case, his jaws becoming locked very early; at no time did the muscles of respiration become very much affected. I am of the opinion that tetanus in this case was induced by the removal of a tumor about October 1st, the wound to all appearances making a complete recovery.

Case II.—Brown gelding, eight years old, weight about 1500 pounds. Was treated a few months later from same vial of woorara, beginning with two-eighths of a grain three times a day, with favorable results. The case was not as bad as Case I, but was well defined, and was under treatment about ten days. This case used up that vial of woorara. From that time on my success with the drug has been negative. I attribute it to the inferiority of the preparation. I am of the opinion that if we could get a really good article, and could see our patient in the first stages of the disease, we could cure a large percentage.

Having read in some medical journal of the treatment of tetanus with carbolic acid and beladonna, I tried the combination in two cases with favorable results.

Case III.—Bay gelding, six years old, weight about 1450 pounds; in good flesh. Was called in to see him in early summer. When I first saw him tetanus had already developed, yet he had very slight symptoms. I put him under the carbolic acid and beladonna treatment. He was out of harness about five weeks. Is at present working in a lumber truck all right. I gave him about thirty drops each in a little water with a hard rubber syringe.

Case IV.—Brown gelding, about twelve years old, used as a driving horse; very high-strung and nervous; weight about 1100 pounds.

I was called in about May 1st. A well developed horse from the start. He had the patient taken to another part of the stable in a narrow stall, darkened. Gave him same doses as Case III. Had him under treatment about two months, greater part of the time in a sling. In all of the cases I kept some thin gruel before them.

In this case I had a very careful, painstaking nurse, one who did as he was told, which is a great help to us. These are the only cases which I have treated with this combination, and am well pleased with the results.

W. C. Whitney has secured entire possession of La Belle Farm, near Lexington, owned by Hal P. Headley, and has taken charge, placing the $50,000 Hamburg at the head of the stud. Hamburg, upon his arrival at the place, was given the stall formerly occupied by imp. Meddler, and Meddler was moved to the stall formerly given Lissak, and Lissak placed in the stall used by C. Fleischmann's Halma, Halma and St. Maxim being moved to Beaumont Farm, to which place the Fleischmann's mares were also transferred. There is not a horse on this fine establishment now but which belongs to Mr. Whitney. The band of broodmares numbers eighty-nine, and there are several score of yearlings and two year olds. Only two foals have arrived this season, the first being a brown filly dropped by Kildare and the other a brown colt out of Aunt Betsy, both by Lissak. Lissak is always the first to foal at La Belle.

Wm. C. Whitney's Racing Establishment.

Wheatley Hills is on the outskirts of the Quaker town of Westbury in Massachusetts. It has long been famous for its many beautiful seats, but is now better known by the racing world for the perfection and magnificence of Mr. William C. Whitney's new stables and race track just completed.

Mr. Whitney's racing establishment is said to be the largest and handsomest in the world. From the plain below the new racing stable presents one straight line of frontage, so long that its great size can scarcely be appreciated at a single glance.

Its architectural features are those of the Swiss chalet, its sloping roof being marked by innumerable gables, single and in pairs and triplets.

A wall of red brick approximately six feet high serves as a base, and a succession of windows, as close together as the frames will allow, takes the place of walls in front, rear and sides. Within the object of this unbroken row of windows, six feet above the ground and running around the four sides becomes instantly apparent.

The stalls and harness rooms occupy a long oval in the building's centre. Circling thence for a width of 10 feet from the outer wall is a winter exercising track, extending around the building. Twelve feet six inches in the clear and three and a quarter times around to the mile, it forms a superb inside track.

This colossal racing stable measures 870 feet in length by 36 in width, and is divided into two sections, the center being devoted to a show ring, where horses can be put through their paces.

The building at this point has a square centre structure, extending out both front and back. In the rear one of the features is a shower bath for sick horses, and above are quarters for 60 stable hands.

In respect of finish the Whitney stable at Wheatley is likely to become the most noted in the world. Experts shake their heads and say: "There is nothing like it anywhere. It is not alone the stable's size, but quite as much its finish, that makes up the magnificence of the establishment."

Mr. George A. Freeman, the architect, was instructed by Mr. Whitney to use only the best of materials, and he has certainly fulfilled his part of the contract.

The stalls open front and back, thus gaining admirable ventilation. There is space for 116 stalls; 80 have already been built.

All are box stalls, the majority of them 12 by 14 feet, a few 10 by 12, and their floor is precisely the same as that of the track; an inch of loam on white sand. In the stalls this loam is carpeted by an extra thickness of straw. The stall structure rests on a foundation of red brick.

At 4:30 each morning the stable boys, who are around at 3:30, take out the first bunch of yearlings. Another section goes out for exercise at 7:30, the third at 9:30. Then, as a usual thing, the horses are kept in the stable the rest of the day, and are never exposed to the hot sun. They may be allowed to go out to grass for an hour or two, except in the heat of the sun, but oftentimes the fresh grass is brought to them in box stalls.

The gymnasium crowns a hilltop. Rough stones make up the lower walls. There is an effect of yellow that is almost ochre, and there are the same peaked eaves and windows as are seen in the stable.

This villa-like structure is called "Amusement Hall" or "Pleasure Hall." It is a house of amusement throughout—a private clubhouse, in fact. There is seen on entering a square hallway, two stories in height, with galleries on the second floor on either side, overlooking the tennis courts. There are a billiard room, furnished with quaint chairs, and an exceedingly good bowling alley.

Up at Wheatley Mr. Whitney's favorite custom is to ride unattended in the late afternoon on a pony. He covers in this way the nooks and crannies of his property, and it is on these rides that he studies out many of the improvements he afterward makes. There are enough improvements planned to keep a goodly force of men employed for several years.

Libertine's Fastest Mile.

A correspondent at Oakland desires to know "the fastest time ever made by Libertine on a circular track. The correspondent does not name the distance for which the record is wanted, but we suppose he means at a mile, as Libertine held for six years the record of 1:38½ made at that distance on the circular course at Harlem, Chicago, October 24, 1894. Libertine was three years old at the time and carried 90 pounds. On July 17, 1900, Voter, 6, carrying 122 pounds, ran a mile at Brighton Beach in 1:38, and July 21 Orimar, 6, with 109 pounds up, ran the same distance at Washington Park, Chicago, in the same time. Both these performances were made on circular tracks.

Size, Style, Speed and Action.

During the "period of depression" in the horse business, which is the language in which the years from 1894 to 1899 are referred to by breeders, there was one style of horse that commanded a fair price. This was the trotting bred animal, with size, style, speed and action. If a horse had these qualifications and was well mannered owners had little difficulty in disposing of him at a profit. The observing breeder, now that fair prices are again obtainable for all descriptions of good horses, will heed the lesson which the hard times taught, and not be caught again, should there be from over production or other causes, another slump in prices. He will breed for the qualities that brought the money under all circumstances, and to that end will select a stallion with which to mate his mares that will produce in the offspring as uniformly as possible the qualities desired.

Such a stallion is Monterey 2:09½, owned by the veteran horseman P. J. Williams Esq., of Land's End Stock Farm, Milpitas, Cal.

Monterey is a chestnut horse with stripe in face and ankles white. He stands 15.3 inches high and weighs 1200 pounds. He is a grand individual in every way, the figures just given showing that he has the size, his record of 2:09½ is conclusive evidence of his speed, while any person who has ever seen him trot knows that for style and action few horses are his equal.

His sire, Sidney, outranks every California stallion but Guy Wilkes as a sire of extreme speed, as he has

MONTEREY 2:09½.

17 in the 2:15 list, 26 in the 2:20 list and 93 in 2:30. Sidney never had the opportunities that some of the California stallions enjoyed, as his owner died just as the horse was coming into prominence and he was afterwards sold to Eastern parties. Hattie, the dam of Monterey, is a bay mare that has produced two very fast trotters—Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16½. She is by Commodore Belmont 4340, a great sire of mares that have produced speed. He never had any but the poorest opportunities, being bred only to mares on one Montana farm, but he sired Meteor 2:17½, Carrie Bell 2:23½ and four others, and his daughters have produced twenty with standard records, five of them being in the 2:15 list.

Barona, Monterey's second dam, was sired by the great Woodford Mambrino 2:22½, sire of Pancoast 2:21½, Abbotsford 2:19½, Inca 2:27 and 24 other producing sons. Woodford Mambrino has 13 trotters in the standard list, his sons have sired over 170 and his daughters have produced 50 or more in 2:30, among the produce of these daughters being Kremlin 2:07½.

The third dam of Monterey is Norman 25, sire of Lula 2:15 and others, and the fourth dam was by the thoroughbred horse Gray Eagle.

Monterey took his record in 1898, when he was campaigned on the California circuit. He won at Oakland in June, beating Galetto 2:12, Jack W. 2:12½, Mamio Griffin 2:12½ and others. At Santa Rosa, after Zombro had won the first heat of a race in 2:13, Monterey took the next two in 2:11 flat. At Sacramento he beat Toggles 2:09½ and others in 2:11½ and 2:13½. His record was made at Nevada City in the second heat of a race against Zombro. It was equal to 2:08 on a good track. At Los Angeles he raced against Toggles, Galette, Zombro and Prince Gift 2:12. Toggles won the first heat in 2:10, and Monterey the next three heats in 2:12, 2:11½ and 2:10½. No greater homestretch trotter ever lived than Monterey. His last race was at Tanforan last year when he won the Western Stallion Stako and a beautiful cup valued at $400, and donated by President Henry J. Crocker to the horse making the fastest mile at the meeting. Monterey's heat which won him this prize was in 2:12, which, considering the condition of the track, was as good as 2:08 on a first class track. He trotted the last half of this heat in 1:03½ and finished as strong as a lion.

Monterey has no colts old enough to race, but those that he has are a fine looking lot. They are bays, chestnuts and blacks and show that they will have size and finish, which qualities will make them saleable. They are all trotters with a square gait and need no hopples or too weights to get them going. He will make the season of 1901 at $50, which places his services within the reach of all breeders.

The Great Western Circuit.

Delegates from the associations composing the Great Western Circuit met in Chicago on Tuesday, February 5th, and assigned dates for the season of 1901. There will be seventeen meetings in the circuit this year and the total purses offered will aggregate $179,000. The meeting was harmonious throughout and the delegates were all enthusiastic over the prospects of the coming racing season.

The circuit opens July 2d with meeting at Minneapolis, Minn., Terre Haute, Ind., and Pekin, Ill. The second week will divide the horses between St. Paul and Davenport, Ia. This is unusual in the Great Western Circuit, but the double events had to be arranged to suit the delegates. It is believed that these early double meetings will not materially affect horse owners making the circuit, as the cities whose dates conflict are so far apart. In the last week of August there will be a meeting at Dubuque, Ia., and one at Columbus Junction, Ia., and the circuit will close during the first week in October with the horses divided between Springfield, Ill., and Terre Haute, Ind. The dates claimed by the delegates, purses at present estimated and local secretaries are as follows:

July 2-5, Terre Haute, Ind.; purses, $6000; Charles R. Duffin.

July 2-5, Minneapolis, Minn.; purses, $6000; R. F. Jones.

July 2-5, Pekin, Ill.; purses, $6000; F. W. Sodey.

July 9-12, St. Paul, Minn.; purses, $6000.

July 9-12, Davenport, Ia.; purses, $6000; J. P. Van Tyle.

July 16-19, Des Moines, Ia.; purses, $6000; S. M. Bush.

July 23-26, Independence, Ia.; purses, $12,000, A. H. Farwell.

July 30-August 2, Joliet, Ill.; purses, $8000; L. E. Ingalls.

August 6-9, Freeport, Ill.; purses, $8000; J. N. Taylor.

August 13-16, Davenport, Ia.; purses not announced.

August 20-23, Galesburg, Ill.; purses, $8000; W. H. Smolinger.

August 27-30, Dubuque, Ia.; purses, $20,000; C. T. Hancock.

August 27-30, Columbus Junction, Ia.; purses, $5000; R. S. Johnson.

September 2-5, Hamline, Minn.; purses, $20,000; E. W. Randall.

September 9-13, Milwaukee, Wis. (State Fair); purses, $10,000; J. M. True.

September 17-20, Indianapolis, Ind. (State Fair); purses, $8000; Chas. Downing.

Sept. 24-27, Evansville, Ind.; purses, $20,000; R. L. Akin.

September 30-October 5, Terre Haute, Ind.; purses, $12,000. Chas. R. Duffin.

September 30-October 5, Springfield, Ill. (State Fair); purses, $20,000; George H. Madden.

The old officers of the circuit were re-elected. They are: E. W. Randall, Hamline, Minn., president, and George H. Madden, Mendota, Ill., secretary and treasurer.

On the Speedway in Golden Gate Park.

BY FRANCES D. LA PLACE.

[Written for the Breeder and Sportsman.]

Up the Speedway, down the Speedway, see the horses go!

Sorrel, bay, roan and black

Free of blinker; not a check,

Bay is winning by a neck!

But the roan comes round the bend,

Whoa! The black wins at the end.

Up the Speedway, down the Speedway keep your horses straight,

Whether in sulky, buggy or gig.

Let the "old plugs" have a run

Just to see a little fun;

But the women are shut out:

"Lack of nerves?"—Not a doubt.

Up the Speedway, down the Speedway there you meet a friend.

As you drive along the way

Each may brag about the speed

Of his own particular steed.

Then you put them to the test

And the Speedway proves the best.

Up the Speedway, down the Speedway in the sunny Park.

The "Horse" man" enjoys his life

Though he drives a fancy pacer,

Speedy trotter, or a "racer"

In his sulky, king of men!

Down the Speedway! Back again!

THE CALIFORNIA CIRCUIT will be determined very soon after the Legislature now in session decides what appropriation is to be made for the district fairs. As there is every prospect at the present time for one of the most bountiful harvests this year that has ever been garnered in California, and that a very large immigration of home seekers is coming here from the East and Europe, the district fairs need support more than ever, and first class displays of the products of the State in the districts and at the State Fair at Sacramento will do much toward inducing the better class of those immigrants to remain here and purchase land on which to establish homes. In those districts where fairs are given with State aid, the agricultural associations will in most instances provide programs for harness racing, and as soon as they know to a certainty that they will be given the help of an appropriation for the fair exhibit, they will be able to announce dates, size of purses and other particulars in regard to the racing. If by any chance, which is not probable, the appropriation for the district fairs should not be voted, there will be an effort made by representative and reliable gentlemen interested in harness horse affairs to provide a circuit of harness racing that will be worthy the patronage of horse owners and the public. Owners and trainers have been making numerous inquiries recently as to when the California dates will be announced and what the probable value of the purses will be. If it were not for the fact that the appropriation for district fairs is now exhausted, and that for the next two years not yet made, dates would have been selected ere this and purses announced, but we can assure those who desire to race their trotters and pacers in California that there will be racing provided for them and that the purses will be generous enough to be profitable to those owning the winners thereof. The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will make a supreme effort to give a meeting this year that will be popular with the horsemen and the public and will soon make a preliminary announcement of some of the features. The Napa Association will certainly give a harness meeting, and the Woodland organization is determined to still further improve upon its splendid effort of last year. Vallejo will be in line with a good harness program, the State Fair will furnish two weeks of racing, and Stockton and Los Angeles can be depended upon to hang up generous purses. Several of the smaller districts will hold meetings this year and no horse owner need delay training for fear that he will not have an opportunity to race. There will be a California circuit and many good purses to race for.

THAT GRAND OLD MAN, Hon. Jesse D. Carr of Salinas, who has been a prominent figure in the history of California since her admission into the Union, and who took part in the first and last Admission Day ceremonies, is now 87 years of age, and failing health warns him that he must begin putting his house in order. Interested in many great enterprises, having investments in many counties, and every moment of his time occupied with business, Mr. Carr writes us that he will not have any more of his horses trained and that the entire band is for sale. On his farm near Salinas they are now on pasture, in good condition and as will be seen by reference to the advertisement in another column there are among them forty well bred mares, nearly all in foal to standard bred stallions. Mr. Carr has been a breeder of harness horses for years and has always bred for conformation and size as well as speed. He has some splendid specimens of horseflesh now on his farm and all are for sale. It will be noticed that many of the mares are sired to Boodle Jr., a son of Boodle 2:12 1/4 out of Nina B. by Electioneer. As Mr. Carr writes: "Boodle Jr. is as finely bred as any horse in the State and there is no reason why he should not prove to be as good a breeder as old Electioneer himself. His oldest colt is now about twenty months old. Mr. Dwain is now driving him on the track and says he thinks he is the best colt I ever raised. I have some ten or twelve of his colts foaled last spring and do not think I have ever had a horse in my life whose colts looked as promising as his do. He has a good deal more speed than old Boodle had at his age and more than Electioneer ever showed. I think he is going to prove as fine a stock horse as there is in the State. I have no hesitation in saying that he is the best individual of any of the colts old Boodle ever sired." Horsemen generally will regret that "Uncle Jesse," as he is affectionately termed by all who know him, is retiring from the horse breeding business, but they know that nothing but his age could compel him to do so. No better opportunity was ever offered to secure some prizes for the track, the road and the breeding farm, and they will be offered at very low prices.

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS in coin of the realm is guaranteed to the winning colts in the great Kentucky Futurity for foals of 1901 by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association of Lexington. In the two-year-old division the first four colts got $3000-$1000-$500-$200 respectively, and $300 is divided among the nominators of their dams. In the three-year-old division the first four colts get $10,000-$2000-$1000-$500 respectively, and $500 is divided among the nominators of their dams. In the three-year-old pacing division, the first four colts get $1000-$500-$300-$200 respectively. And to be eligible to all these races, to within four months of the starts, costs but $15, or one-fourteenth of one per cent. The entry of the mare in foal on March 15th costs $5. On December 1, 1901, the foal must be described and $10 paid on it, and not a cent more is due until June 1st of the year it starts. If the mare nominated on March 15th has no foal on Dec. 1st, another mare and foal may be substituted. Could there be a more liberal race? This is the twelfth Kentucky Futurity. It has been opened each year regardless of panics and depression, often in the face of certain heavy loss. For years it alone upheld the earning capacity of trotting colts and eventually encouraged the opening of similar events. It has earned and deserved the first position among trotting stakes of the world, both in value and reputation, and every trotting bred mare in foal should be named in it March 15th, with Secretary H. H. Wilson.

DENNIS GANNON, the well known horseman, has been ill with bronchial trouble for the past three months and is not able to leave his bed. He wants to sell his mare Twilight 2:18 1/2 by Noonday, and has placed the price of $1000 on her. Twilight is in shape to get ready for the races this year and can win money in her class. She took her record last year on the Oakland track when it was at least six seconds slow, and has been timed miles repeatedly in better than 2:15. A mark of 2:12 is within her reach and her breeding is of the best, as will be seen by her pedigree, given in the advertisement, to which attention is called.

The Man With a Pull.

When the Government was purchasing horses in California last year, we heard many complaints from farmers and others that they were unable to sell horses to the purchasing agents except through a third party who had to have a big commission. The Government buyers have been in Oregon during the past month and the Portland Oregonian, the leading daily of the northwest, recently contained the following. It will be noticed that it is the man and not the horse which is required to have the "pulling" power by Uncle Sam's buyers:

Considerable indignation was aroused among the farmers and horsemen of Union county this week by what was alleged to be unfair discrimination on the part of Captain Cheever, who purchased 43 head of horses for cavalry and artillery purposes. About a month ago it was announced by the Portland press that the United States Quartermaster at Vancouver wished to secure for the Government 500 head of horses in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, and that he desired to buy direct from the farmers.

This was the only notice that the farmers received, and they were at a loss to know when to submit their animals. It was observed however that the McDonald Bros., who had previously acted as agents for the Government, were busy collecting horses and this led to the discovery that a selection would be made at Union. The speculators run in 57 head from which 39 were selected. The farmers discovering the "lay of the land" submitted only 23 head and from these only four were selected, these four being the property of the man at whose stable the sale was held. Naturally the farmers are inclined to believe that the selection was determined largely by "pull."

Two $10,000 Handicaps.

The race war was profitable to horsemen last Saturday as it resulted in two races for $10,000 instead of one, for the horses that were originally in the Burns Handicap. To draw as much as possible from the Oakland track, the Tanforan people instituted the San Francisco Handicap with $10,000 added for horses eligible to the Burns. This, of course, divided the field, and the California Jockey Club's classic had nine starters, while at Tanforan fifteen horses went to the post for the big purse. Favonius and his stable companions, Scotch Plaid and Mortgage, were favorites for the Burns, but The Fretter, a son of imp. Brutus, won at 7 to 1. Favonius was second and Joe Ripley third.

Sam Hildreth's Waring, a four year old by imp. Massetto, won the San Francisco Handicap, with Vesuvian second and Specific third. The odds on the favorite were 9 to 1.

The Burns was run in 2:07 1/2 and the San Francisco in 2:05 1/2.

On the steamship Minneapolis, which sailed for England on Sunday, February 10th, was the two year old colt Etruscan, that was bought by Lord Carnarvon, a prominent English turfman, from Lucien O. Appleby, owner of the Silverbrook Stud. Etruscan cost Appleby $1450 at the sale of yearlings from the Rancho Del Paso Stud last May. He is a chestnut in color, by Goldfinch-Ortwin. Etruscan was entered in all the big races on this side for both this season and next, but was declared out.

Boodlo 2:12 1/2, sire of Ethel Downs 2:10 and others, will make the season of 1901 at the Corallitos Stock Farm, which is between San Jose and Gilroy. Boodlo is noted all over the State as a sire of size, style and speed, and those of his get that have raced never found the race too long for them. Very few of Boodlo's produce have been trotted or raced but he has six in the list, all trotters, with Ethel Downs 2:10 at the head.

The latest issue of the English Racing Calendar shows that during the season of 1900 1924 races were run in England. Of this number 682 were at five furlongs and under six, 352 at six furlongs and under one mile, 358 at one mile, 469 over one mile and under two, sixty-one at two miles and under three, one at three miles and one at four miles. The number of horses which started was 3921, the largest on record.

When the Intertate Fair of Trenton, N. J., held its annual meeting recently, Secretary Margerum presented the best report that has been placed in the hands of the directors since 1891. It showed a net profit of $14,837. Mr. Margerum reported that the attendance during the five days was 93,624, an increase of more than 21,300 over 1899.

Kentucky Futurity

$21,000

Fee $5 Per Mare.
Closes March 15th.

Opened by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association for the 1901 produce of mares, nominated March 15, 1901, or their substitutes, as provided hereafter, to be contested in 1903 and 1904, in THREE DIVISIONS, as follows:

$14,000 for 3-year-old Trotters.	Divided: First, $10,000. Second, $2,000. Third, $1,000. Fourth, $500. The original nominators of dams of first four colts to receive, respectively, $300, $100, $75 and $25.	$5,000 for 2-year-old Trotters.	Divided: First, $3,000. Second, $1,000. Third, $500. Fourth, $200. The original nominators of dams of first four colts to receive, respectively, $150, $75, $50 and $25.	$2,000 for 3-year-old Pacers.	Divided: First, $1,000. Second, $500. Third, $200. Fourth, $200.

ENTRANCE, $5, to accompany nomination of mare March 15 1901, when her name, color, pedigree, and name of horse she was bred to in 1900 must be given; $10, DEC. 1 1901, when color and sex of foal must be given, and if a nominated mare has no living foal on that date, her nominator may substitute another mare and foal, regardless of ownership. No further payment until June 1st of year of race. No payment required on two-year-olds not intended to start until three-year-olds.

A payment of $25 is due June 1, 1903, on each two-year-old trotter expected to start in the two-year-old division. September 1, 1903, a payment of $50 is due, and a starting fee of $100 must be paid by seven o'clock of evening before race.

A payment of $50 is due June 1, 1904, on each three-year-old (trotter or pacer) then kept in. September 1st, a payment of $50 on each trotter and of $25 on each pacer is due, and a starting fee of $250 on trotters and of $25 on pacers must be paid before seven o'clock of evening before the respective races, which will both be mile heats, three-in-five.

A distanced horse's money goes to the first horse, but if less than four start, those starting and the placed horses' dams will receive only what each would have received had four been placed. National Association Rules, in force when races are called, to govern. No hopped horses allowed to start. Right reserved to reject any entry we do not want.

Address nominations to Secretary. Mail same on or before March 15th. Make remittances in New York or Chicago exchange, postoffice or express money order.

Our Fixed Events Close June 1.

H. W. WILSON, Secretary, Lexington, Ky.

THE "400" SALE.

Gayton Brings $9000, Anaconda $6500 and Coney $4100.

The harness horses of the Fasig-Tipton Company's "400" auction sale drew a large crowd to Madison Square Garden on Wednesday, February 13th. The attendance was made up very largely of horsemen, breeders, owners of racing stables, and trainers, the sale, though an extraordinary one, as regards the number of high-class and high-bred stock catalogued, offering but little attraction to the general public. The horsemen, however, represented about every horse-breeding section of North America and included about a dozen European harness racing men and breeders as agents. The foreigners' interest was chiefly in the dispersal of the strong racing stable collected by James Butler, who, intending to retire from racing for the present, sent his entire string to the sale. Of this lot, the stout young stallion Gayton 2:08½, styled "King of the Allertons," and the two great campaigning pacers, Coney 2:02½, holder of race and wagon records, and Anaconda 2:02½, were the stars.

Coney, the first of the Butler consignment to be offered, caused sharp competition with James Carroll, B. O. Shank and Vance Nuekal, the leading bidders. Nuekal went to $3100, and then gave it up, the others carrying the price up to $4100, at which figure Shank secured the famous wagon horse, presumably for Dr. J. C. McCoy of Delaware, for whom he trains. Albert C. Bostwick, the millionaire amateur horseman, was a bidder on the great bay pacer Anaconda, but his desire to own the horse evidently was not very great, for after a sharp tilt, in which four or five bidders engaged, Mr. Bostwick turned away from the ring and Anaconda went to E. B. Rice of Boston for $6500.

The foreign buyers practically had the contention for Gayton to themselves, though until the bids went above $5000 American horsemen were among those in the strife for possession of the handsome and sturdy animal. Karl Piatnak, one of the leading patrons of harness racing in Austria, was the most aggressive of all, and left no doubt that he meant to take Gayton to Europe. To the bid of $9000 the hammer fell at last, in favor of Mr. Piatnak. Gayton, the Austrian turfman said, would be shipped abroad as early as the voyage can be made in safety and without the chance of throwing the horse too far out of condition to permit of his being handled early. He will be campaigned on the Vienna tracks, under the care of the American trainer, George Nelson, who has charge of the Piatnak horses. He is intended ultimately for the stud, though Mr. Piatnak now is engaged exclusively as a racing man and has no important interests as a breeder. The fifteen head of the Butler consignment brought a total of $26,675, an average of $1778.33.

From the Bonner farm came an even and high-class lot of well-bred horses, the choicest of which caused spirited bidding. The best prices paid for any of these were $1600 for the six-year-old Highland Baron 2:30, and $1800 for Baron Review. Twenty-eight head from the Bonner farm brought $9185, an average of $328.03. For the others of the eighty-three horses sold, the prices were fair, in general, though there were some bargains, good-looking and promising young horses occasionally going for astonishing prices. The prices were as follows:

The report of the succeeding day's sales will appear in our issue next week.

The State of Texas, big as it is, is a debtor to Colonel Henry Exall of Dallas, whose plucky fight against business adversity and the gamo stand he took during the years of depression in horse flesh are now bringing their own reward. The record of his breeding operations, says Palmer Clark, stands alone. Of thirteen mares purchased the first year to be bred to his Electioneer-Sprite stallion, six standard, six non-standard, and one of unknown breeding, but who was the dam of Madge Hatton 2:27½, he got twelve foals, of which at three years of age eight had acquired marks in 2:30 and better, at four years eleven of them had marks in standard time, and the twelfth took a 2:30 record as a five year old, his entire first year crop thus getting standard records. But that is not all. The Colonel named nine mares in futurity stakes in which there were some 4000 nominators, and he sent a colt to the scratch in each event, and got a piece of the money in every race except in the Review purse at Buffalo, where he stood to earn third money with a sick horse. The driver, wishing to save him the last heat drove him just to get inside the distance, but overlooked the fact that as the race progressed and horses dropped the distance flag was moved up, and consequently was shut out through the oversight. This is a record that cannot be surpassed or even equaled. John Phippen, formerly of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, is now the trainer at Col. Exall's Farm, having held that position for two years and driven the majority of the colts to their records.

BRONCHIAL
TROCHES

Neglect of a Cough or Sore Throat may result in an Incurable Throat Trouble or Consumption. For relief use BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. Nothing excels this simple remedy. Sold only in boxes.

SULKY NOTES.

Train your trotters and pacers.

The California circuit for 1901 will provide racing.

Early closing events for Denver meeting close next Friday.

Red Seal 2:10 and Thompson 2:14½ will be in John Hussey's string this year.

Vance Nuckels will be up behind Coney 2:02½ when he starts in the races this year.

The California State Fair will probably give a good purse for trotting stallions this year.

The stewards of the Grand Circuit desire that John A. McKerron be left in the 2:13 class.

W. C. Trimble of Instant and Cobwebs fame, has a pacer by Rio Alto 2:16½, that is said to be a 2:10 horse.

C. W. Williams will do the starting for the Galesburg Driving Park Association for its meeting in August.

If you are going to Denver this year, make some entries in those early closing events. They close March 1st.

Geo. H. Ketcham, of Toledo, has just received a commission to purchase four high-class trotting mares for export.

I Direct 2:12½ is in the stud at Alameda at $25 for the season. He is one of the best bred of all the sons of Direct 2:05½.

J. Howard Ford, who recently bought Stony Ford Farm in Orange county, is said to be trying to buy Charley Herr 2:07.

The price paid for Gayton 2:08½ was $9000, instead of $4000 as the telegraphic report from the East to all the coast papers stated.

The Maid 2:05½, after being turned out all winter, will soon be taken up by Richard Curtis and be prepared for another campaign.

J. A. Green, the Philadelphia trainer who formerly owned and drove the pacer Saladin 2:05½, now owns the pacing stallion Be Sure 2:06½.

Rose Dale Steek Farm at Santa Rosa has some good roadsters for sale. It will pay anyone looking for track or road horses to visit this farm.

Frou Frou 2:25½, former champion yearling to high wheel sulky, is in foal to Advertiser 2:15½. Frou Frou is owned at Grand View Stock Farm, Lancaster, Pa.

The Empire City track is still owned by the Clark estate, the syndicate of Brooklyn horsemen organized to purchase it having failed to secure possession of the property.

Fred Gerken, of New York, has engaged Fred Noble to drive for him this year. He intends campaigning The Monk 2:08½, Fred S. Wedgewood 2:09½ and several green ones.

The Oakley track at Cincinnati, which will give a meeting early in July, has decided to give four days of racing commencing September 16th and hang up $40,000 in purses.

Secretary's get are all noted for their good looks, size, speed and excellent road qualities. At $30 the season, he is a profitable horse to breed to, as his get sell for good prices.

Dick Blumenthal of Hartford, Conn., on a recent trip to Maine, bought a very promising green trotter called Alocean, by Arion 2:07½, dam by Paola 2:18, brother to Palo Alto 2:08½.

Send us $1 for a stallion service book and you will be able to keep your accounts easily and accurately. It can be carried in the pocket and contains space for the records of one hundred mares.

George Wilson, brother to Secretary Horace W. Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association, died at the Cincinnati city hospital, February 3d, from a stroke of apoplexy.

The old time race stallion Jerome Turner 2:15½, is still hale and hearty and was a show ring winner with his colts at the Texas fairs last fall. He is owned by D. B. Connelly, at Sherman, Texas.

William Harold 2:13½, sire of Janice 2:13½, will make the season of 1901 at Haywards and is in Geo. Gray's charge. He is one of Sidney's best sons, and has never sired anything but can show speed.

Hambletonian Wilkes, the only son of Geo. Wilkes in California, should receive a large patronage at $40 the season. He has sired a long list of fast race horses, all of them good looking and game to the core.

The dates for a California circuit will be fixed within a few weeks. Many of the associations that gave meetings last year are more than anxious to try it again this summer. There is every prospect of a prosperous year in California and the meetings will all pay a profit if properly managed.

Read Hon. Jesse D. Carr's big advertisement this week. He wants to sell all his trotting bred horses and broodmares. As Uncle Jesse is 87 years of age and not in the best of health he cannot devote any more time to race horses. He has some well bred stock and his broodmares and foals are well entered in stakes.

Irvington Boy 2:17½ is in William Cecil's string again at Pleasanton and will be out among the pacers of his class this year. He is one of the gamiest horses ever seen on the circuit and has more speed than his record shows.

At a meeting of the New York Road Drivers' Association, a member introduced a resolution asking the Board of Review to remove the record of 2:10 that stands against John A. McKerron. It was promptly voted down.

If you want to raise a handsome pony that will be a horse show winner, send a small mare to the Menlo Stock Farm to be bred to Sir Gibbie II. He is but 13.3 hands high and a horse of marvelous conformation. See his advertisement.

Cleveland will be a banner town this year. The Billings horses are here, the Pittsburg people coming, and right at home there are men on the lookout for sensations and willing to pay the price for what they see and like.—John Splan.

Wilkes Direct 2:22½, full brother to the great John A. McKerron 2:09 to wagon, is getting some choice mares this year. T. W. Barstow, his owner, will train him again and give him a mark of 2:15 or better this year unless prevented by accident.

Helen J. 2:18½, the mare by Corrector that John Sawyer brought down with the Van De Vanter Stock Farm string to the Pleasanton track last month, died last week from lung fever. Helen J. had trotted trials in 2:15 and was considered a great prospect in her class this year.

Welcome 2:10½ is the fastest big horse in the stud in California. He weighs over 1300, but carries his weight so well that few would guess it. He has the best disposition of any stallion we know of, is very handsome and grandly bred. Write to Geo. Gray at Haywards for one of his cards.

E. M. Cheesman, of Cambridge Springs, Pa., owner of Bruce Watson, a brother to Eyelet 2:06½, has bought the noted producer Angeline by Chester Chief. She is the dam of several in the list, including Online 2:04 and Ontonian 2:07½. Mr. Cheesman also bought a mare by Direct 2:05½, dam Cricket 2:10.

A letter from James Sutherland conveys the information that he has sold the McKinney mare Solo 2:23 to John Blue for $500. Solo is a faster mare than her record and is a well bred one, being out of a daughter of Stamboul 2:07½. She made her record in 1899 over the Concord track, which was at least four seconds slow that year.

Much might be written about Chas. Derby 2:20 and his son Owyhee 2:11½, but the fact that they are standing for public service at $50 the season should be enough to attract a large patronage to them. They are at Oakwood Park Stock Farm, where several champions have been bred in the past and from whence more will come in the future.

Imported Soerates No. 99, the German Coach stallion that won the special silver cup at the Horse Show in this city in 1894, and has many first premiums to his credit, will make the season of 1901 at Llano Seco Rancho (Parrott Grant), near Chico, Butte county. Soerates should do well in that district as he will sire horses that will bring good prices when matured.

Nominations to six purses offered by the Overland Racing Association of Denver will close March 1st, next Friday. There is $1000 for trotters eligible to the 2:25 class and $1000 for pacers of the 2:20 class. Also two purses of $500 each for colt trotters and two of the same value for colt pacers. Read the advertisement in our columns to-day and make your entries in time. It will be a great meeting.

B. B. 2:10½, the old roan pacer that was racing against Hal Pointer for the championship of the turf more than ten years ago, is now one of the cracks of the snowpath at Springfield, Mass. George W. Rice, of that city, has just purchased him from New Jersey parties. B. B. is now in his nineteenth year, and he has been doing service on the track and road since 1888. His record was made at fifteen years of age.

Tuberosa, the son of Falrose that is making a season at Woodland, is said to be a phenomenally fast horse. He is a square trotter. The only race in which he ever started was at Dixon last year, where in a local three-cornered match he trotted the last half of a heat in 1:07½ and finished the last eighth in 15 seconds. As the track is not extra good, and a half-mile oval at that, this was a great showing for a horse not in actual training.

The big prices brought by trotting bred horses of the coach, carriage and roadster type in the Chicago market recently shows that this is the kind of horse now in the greatest demand. For a time the draft horse brought higher prices than the lighter horses, but to-day, the horses suitable for coach, carriage and road lead, and as the breeders continue to produce higher class horses for these uses higher prices will be obtained.

Those that have figured out that The Abbot 2:03½ is in a class by himself do not allow for improvement in some of the other horses which were out last year. Boralma 2:08 was a much greater four year old than the son of Chimes, and the same is true of Peter the Great 2:07½. There is no reason why both of those horses should not be much faster the coming season than ever before, which will put them in the same class with the champion.

Colonel Henry Exall, Dallas, Texas, has sold to Thomas Stark of Colorado Springs, Colo., the promising four year old Porto Rico that won fourth money in the Kentucky Futurity last fall in the fastest three heat race ever trotted by three year olds; time, 2:12½, 2:10½ and 2:12. He is by Electrite 2:28½, out of Anthem by Wilkes Boy 2:24½, and consequently a full brother to Ima Electrite 2:15, he being Anthem's second foal, Ima being the first. The price paid was $2500.

Alta Vela 2:15½, son of Electioneer, is at Woodland this year and is making the season at $50. Sons of Electioneer are not numerous in California and breeders should not miss the opportunity to secure their services. Alta Vela will be a producer of extreme speed.

The Buffalo Association will try to get up a free-for-all pace this year with such as Coney 2:02½, Prince Alert 2:02, Connor 2:03½, Anaconda 2:02½ and Frank Bogash 2:03½ for starters, and a fast trot, which will include Lord Derby 2:07, Charley Herr 2:07, Georgena 2:07½, Boralma 2:08, Bay Star 2:08½ and Peter the Great 2:07½ as starters.

The Indian Government, assisted by the Royal British Commission on horse breeding, is largely increasing its purchases of breeding stock with a view of materially improving the quality and quantity of horses produced in that country. Recently four very fine thoroughbred stallions and two Spanish jacks were shipped from Southampton to Calcutta where they will be placed in the Government Stud. It is stated that a total of fifty stallions and twenty jacks will be sent to India this spring.

Boodle Jr. ought to produce speed. He is by Boodle out of an Electioneer mare, second dam Gabilan Maid, by Carr's Mambrino, a son of Mambrino Patchen, third dam Ida May, Jr., by Owen Dale, fourth dam Ida May by Williamson's Belmont. Hon. Jesse D. Carr has entered nine mares bred to Boodle Jr. in the Breeders $6000 Futurity. These mares are all for sale together with the rest of the trotting bred stock belonging to Mr. Carr. This is an opportunity to secure some great bargains and very likely a future stake winner.

One of the best bred fillies ever produced in this country is now owned by Ho Yow, the Chinese Consul, whose recent investments in trotting bred horses have attracted considerable attention. This filly is coming three years old and is by McKinney 2:11½, dam Blanche Ward by Onward 2:25½, second dam Belle Patchen by Mambrino Patchen 58, third dam Lady Blanche by Privateer 258, fourth dam Jeany Lind by Abdallah 15, fifth dam Lady Wisner by Saltram, son of Webber's Kentucky Whip. This filly is a fine individual and gives every promise of being as good as she looks. Ho Yow has purchased five or six mares during the past month, besides a fine pair of road horses.

President Hock of the Goshen Driving Association has selected August 20-23d for this year's meeting, to be held on the historic half-mile track at Goshen. The program of events has not yet been fully decided upon, except that there will be eight $1000 guaranteed early closing stakes, four for trotters and four for pacers. It is quite possible that ten of these stakes will be scheduled. President Hock says that the Goshen meeting will outline any held in Orange county since the days of Old Messenger, 100 years ago. The question of giving two year old sweepstakes, at both gaits, at $100, the association to add $100 for each nomination, is being discussed with good chances of their being announced when the program is fully made up.

The Elmwood Farm at Lexington, Ky., home of Adbel, yearling record 2:23, has two yearlings by that stallion that seem to be extra good. Adbel is sure to take high rank as a sire of early speed. His sire, Advertiser, was a fast colt trotter, and his dam, Beautiful Bells, threw nothing but extreme early speed, and Adbel himself trotted the fastest mile ever made by a yearling. The owners of extreme early speed are sending their mares to Kentucky to be bred to Adbel. Nellie A., who trotted to a yearling record of 2:29½ and Leone who has a yearling record of 2:28 will both be bred to him this year, making three yearlings at Elmwood Farm with records below 2:30. Elmwood therefore is the only farm in the United States with such a trio.—American Sportsman.

It is not generally known that England's new king once owned the old-time American trotting stallion, Silverheels by Vermont Black Hawk. In a moment of enthusiasm, General James W. Singleton presented the handsome horse to the then Prince of Wales, who greatly admired him in the show ring at the St. Louis fair of 1860. Silverheels was the apple of General Singleton's eye, and when he cooled off it was like parting with a member of his family for the old horseman to be separated from his favorite. In some way the Prince learned of this. On the following day he had Silverheels led out in front of his private box at the fair, and, calling General Singleton, publicly gave his pet stallion back to him, accompanying the presentation with a neat little speech. The story is vouched for by the veteran horseman George P. Floyd, who then had charge of Silverheels.

Detroit will probably have a new race track this year. The movement to form an association and build the track, stand, clubhouse and stables is well under way, and a meeting will soon be held to perfect the details. The Detroit Matinee Club raced at Highland Park in 1899 and at Grosse Pointe in 1900, and the success of the organization has prompted members to branch out for themselves. What they want is a half-mile track, where the racing is always more spectacular than on a big ring, and it will require about $25,000 to float the project. The track itself will be built on the lines of Combination Park, Boston's famous "parlor track," with very wide stretches and a sufficient pitch to the turns to allow speed in the wagon races. An ornamental grandstand seating 1500 will answer, and stabling for 200 horses will be required. It is also the intention to have a modern and thoroughly equipped clubhouse, where members can drive and get a country dinner at any time. Fire Commissioner Fred T. Moran is one of the men instrumental in the project, and will put $2500 into it. H. R. Leonard, A. E. Murphy, H. B. Edwards, J. E. and A. L. Goldberg, W. R. Croul, A. W. Freer and others have signified their intention of investing in the plant. It will have a very beneficial effect on the amateur sport, and will greatly increase the popularity of the matinee club.

THE SADDLE.

Charles Head Smith does not take J. W. Schorr's offer to race his three year old Alard Scheck against Smith's colt Garry Herrmann for a side bet very seriously. Smith says that such a match could not be run until after the Kentucky Derby at the earliest, and as the two will meet in that event it is not probable that a match will be required to settle the question of supremacy. The two colts remain about equal choices in the winter betting on the early classic event, despite confident prophecies on the part of Louisville turfmen that Garry Herrmann would soon be a pronounced favorite.

A lease of the Silver Brook Stud Farm near Redbank, N. J., has been taken by Clarence H. Mackay for a term that may be extended indefinitely. Mr. Mackay was a prominent buyer at the dispersal of the Bitter Root Stud breeding stock and horses in training three weeks ago, though his identity then was concealed under the name of the Earl of Clonmel, who acted as his agent in bidding and buying. The horses in training will be added to the hitherto small stable Mr. Mackay has maintained in this country, the best known animal of which is the Brooklyn Handicap winner of 1899, Banastar. In the lot bought at the Bitter Root sale the most noted horse is Frankfort, the three year old brother to the celebrated Hamburg. Others of note are Hartman, Choate and Cathaire Mo, all two year olds. As these are all heavily engaged in the most valuable stakes of the Eastern turf, and Mr. Mackay has a capable jockey in George Odom, the Mackay stable promises to figure prominently on the metropolitan tracks in the future.

In his assignment of weights for the Montgomery handicap, the best race for three year olds and over on the Memphis Jockey Club's spring calendar, Secretary McFarlane appraises Carruthers & Shield's four year old Advance Guard as the best horse and gives the Great Tom colt to the impost of honor. The handicap will be run at Montgomery Park on April 1st as a feature of the opening day's card for the Memphis meeting. Advance Guard is to carry 121 pounds and other heavily weighted horses are: Favonious 120, F. W. Brode 119, Waring 118, Vulcain 117, The Lady 116, Prince of Verona 115, Gonfalon 115, Zoroaster 115 and John Yerkes, The Rush and Unknown 112 each. Alard Scheck is allotted 103, Joe Frey 108, Rolling Boer, Telamon and Silverdale 106 apiece. Lady Schorr 104 and Duelist 102, Florizar 98 and Salvable 100.

Patrick Freeman, the American jockey who last season made a conspicuous success on the French turf, riding on the Paris tracks, sailed February 6th to fill an engagement made last fall to ride through the season of 1901 for M. Dreyfus. Freeman only went to France late in the summer, after an unsuccessful attempt to make a place for himself on the New York tracks, his fame before having been confined entirely to the Western tracks. Cassius Sloan, elder brother of Tod Sloan, preceded him in riding on the Paris tracks, and had made a great reputation when Freeman reached Paris, but the newcomer, after going unnoticed for a few weeks, finally secured a mount, and attracted attention enough to get additional riding. Then one day he rode five winners, and his fame was established. At the end of the French racing season Freeman was the foremost jockey, and very popular with both horse owners and the public, although in the United States he had been regarded as having seen his best days as a jockey. On the reputation he made in the short time he rode at the end of the season his services were in great demand, and he was signed to ride this year for M. Dreyfus, who has a large and prominent stable. In addition to that, Freeman has three other retainers in France, and if he rides through the year, probably will earn in riding and retaining fees something like $25,000. Freeman, four or five years ago, was considered as one of the best of the Western jockeys.

The wedding of Mr. Seth W. Loughborough and Miss Theodora Winters, youngest daughter of that well known horseman, Mr. Theo. Winters, was celebrated at Washoe, Nev., Thursday, February 14, 1901, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. The happy couple took their departure on the afternoon train for San Francisco, where they intend spending their honeymoon. Information has been received of the displeasure of a leading uptown hotel upon their arrival in San Francisco, owing to the quantity of old shoes of every description, size and shape, tied to their trunks, among them being one large pair of overshoes placarded "A happy pair." So rather than cause further annoyance to the hotel they changed their quarters to another, leaving all superfluous effects behind.

While everything is harmonious in the East and one of the most prosperous seasons in the history of the turf is expected, merry wars are in progress on the Pacific Coast and in the West. The formation of the Western Jockey Club has stirred up opposition and it appears almost certain that there will be enough tracks in rebellion to form an independent circuit. W. O. Palmer, the ruling spirit at Fort Erie and Highland Park, Detroit, has stated that neither of the associations which he represents will ask for a license, while Nashville, Little Rock, Newport and the Delmar track at St. Louis also intend to act independently of the new organization. Those interested in the St. Louis track assert that if any attempt is made to outlaw their meeting they will retaliate by building a track at New Orleans in opposition to the Crescent City Club. It seems probable that there will be two conflicting factions in the West, each outlawing the other, one set of tracks recognizing the old Turf Congress and the other the Western Jockey Club. The solution of the problem may rest with the Eastern Jockey Club.

The stable of J. R. and F. P. Keene are having a streak of ill luck. It was only a week ago that word was received from England that Tommy Atkins, the crack three year old, had died and now the firm has also lost by death the valuable yearling filly by Kingston-Fair Vision. W. L. Powers, representing the Keenes, on Saturday notified Ralph Bayard, secretary of the Brighton Beach Association, to declare Tommy Atkins out of the Brighton Derby and the Iroquois Stakes, which were his only engagements at Brighton, while the filly was to be declared out of the Produce Stakes of 1902.

Patsey McDermott, the well known jockey, sailed for England last week. He will be a valuable addition to the English turf, as he can hold his own with any of his craft and what is better still can ride at 102 pounds without the trouble of reducing. He says he will look the ground over carefully before he makes a contract.

The comfort of the patrons of the Brooklyn and Coney Island Jockey Clubs will be greatly increased next season by the building of new betting wings. The old ones have been torn down and glass buildings will take their place. The ring at Coney Island will cost $18,000.

Jockey George Odom is in New Orleans. He has been signed to ride next season for Clarence Mackey, son of the bonanza king, who purchased Frankfort, the full brother of Hamburg, which was sold at the Daly sale. Odom's contract calls for him to do 105 pounds and he is to receive a retainer of $15,000 for the season. He will ride in New Orleans for the remainder of the meeting.

The name of M. Lewis Clark is not to be dropped from the books of the new Louisville Jockey Club, nor the memory of this great race horseman forgotten by the people of Kentucky. It was decided at the close of the last racing season not to continue the Clark stakes after this year because it was considered such a walkover for the Derby winner, but no arrangement whatever was made to perpetuate the memory of M. Lewis Clark. As soon as it became known that Louisville was to drop the Clark stakes, the Harlem Jockey Club, Chicago, took up the matter and at once added another feature to its card and named it the Clark stakes. At once a number of protests were made in Louisville which were followed by others until the directors of the New Louisville Jockey club decided that something had to be done. Last week they held a special meeting to consider the matter, and it was decided to run the Clark stakes as usual this year, and instead of continuing this feature so as not to conflict with Harlem, it was agreed to add another stake which will be called the Clark handicap, to be worth not less than $3000 or $4000, and to which all ages will be eligible.

Jockey Cochran, who is the smallest jockey riding at New Orleans, has signed to ride for J. J. McCafferty the Eastern turfman next season, and his salary is said to be $10,000.

A horse has finally run a mile below 1:40 at New Orleans. On the 5th inst. the Crescent City track record for one mile was lowered a quarter of a second by Varro, a chestnut gelding by Pardee-Julia Magee, who covered the distance in 1:39. Varro is about the best horse shown at New Orleans this winter, and he is entered in the Crescent City Derby. After a long delay at the post the field was finally sent away. Lady Callahan showed the way for a half mile, when Varro, who had been lagging in second place, assumed the lead and won by a short neck from the heavily played favorite, Aloha II.

Secretary Howard of the Washington Park Club, Chicago, has announced the list of nominations to the stake events which closed on January 15. There are 1427 entries, an average of over eighty-three to a race. Of course the main event of the meeting will be the American Derby, for three-year-olds. The value of this event has been raised since last year, as it is now worth close to $25,000, the added money being increased from $10,000 to $20,000. Ninety-three entries have been made, among them being: Commando, Ballyhoo Bey, Garry Herrman, Alard Scheck, Articulate, Conroy, Lady Schorr, Silverdale, Joe Frey, The Parader, Bellario, Beau Gallant, Far Rockaway, Bon-nibert, Brutal, Rolling Boer, Canmore, Outlander, Golden Age, Torminus, Blues, Sweet Lavender, Watercolor, Jiminez, Amuse, Frankfort, Robert Waddell and Tyr. The list of entries to the stakes is as follows: Three-year-olds—American Derby 93, Sheridan Stakes 69, Englewood Stakes, for fillies, 45, Drexel Stakes 89. Three-year-olds and upward—Midway Stakes 84, Auburn Stakes 97, Oakwood Handicap 81, Great Western 69, Young Handicap 86, Wheeler Handicap 102. Two-year-olds—Lakeside, for fillies, 85, Kenwood, for colts, 81, Maywood 71, Quickstep 105, Hyde Park 136, Lakeview Handicap 63.

The Coney Island Jockey Club has announced the list of entries to the annual Champion stakes of 1903. This is a race for three-year-olds and upward, and the value is $25,000, of which $20,000 goes to the winner, $2000 to the second horse, $750 to the third, with the remainder of the money being divided between the owner of the second and third horse at the time of the entry and $500 to go to the trainer of the winning horse. J. B. Haggin, the well known breeder, is the largest nominator. He has entered seventy weanlings, sixty-one being from his Rancho del Paso stud in California and are by such well known sires as Goldfinch, Golden Garter, Sir Modred, Salvador, Star Ruby, Tryant, Watercress and Darebin. Nine are from his Elmendorf stud in Kentucky, the sires represented in this lot being Nomad, Order, Salvador, Candomas and Arkle. John Madden has twelve weanlings, all by Mirthful, while A. B. Barnes has the same number by Prince of Monaco, Handspring, Jim Gore and Cayuga. August Belmont has six weanlings, L. O. Appleby six, Gideon & Daly 3, and Julius Bauer 2. C. Littlefield Jr., has seven on the list, two-year-olds; Green B. Morris 5, J. E. Madden and the Keenes four each, W. C. Whitney seven, and Phil Dwyer two.

A dispatch from London says: William C. Whitney of New York has offered to take over Heath house from the late William Beresford's executors under certain conditions. Besides taking Heath house, Whitney will agree to fulfill the arrangements entered into with the jockeys, Lester and John Reiff, subject to the condition that John Huggins remains at Heath house as a trainer. It is understood that Huggins had meditated returning to the States, but is now considering Whitney's offer. Huggins is well liked, and it is hoped he will stay. The Sporting Life at the time of Lord Beresford's death spoke of Huggins in the following complimentary terms: "That we shall ever lose so fine a trainer as Huggins is not at all likely, provided he cares to stay in England, for his ability is of the highest, and plenty there are who would gladly avail themselves of his services."

The weights for several of the earlier of the English spring handicaps have been received here, and American turfmen will be interested to learn that American horses head the list in the first of these, the Doveridge, one mile, to be run at the Derby spring meeting on April 19th. W. C. Whitney's four year old Delacy, by Hanover-Kingcup, has the top weight, 9 stone, (126 pounds), with Caiman, sold out of Pierre Lorillard's stable to Mr. Warren, next with 8 stone 12. Richard Croker's Flambar is third in the handicap, with 8 stone 10. In the Lincolnshire, one mile, to be run at the Lincoln spring meeting March 26th, the once famous Jean Beraud, now a five year old, owned by Mr. Whitney, has the highest impost of the American horses engaged, with 8 stone 8, (120 pounds), and is sixth on the list. The Grafton, aged, being top weight with 9 stone 2. Caiman and Flambar are in with 8 stone 6 each, while J. E. McDonald's Rensselaer, aged, from whom great things were expected when he was sent to England to race as a four year old, gets in among the middleweights with 7 stone 6. In the Grand National Steeplechase to be run March 29, Manifest is at the head of the list with 12 stone 10, (178 pounds.)

Three Chicago handicappers who are making winter books on the American Derby have figured out the chances of each of the ninety-two candidates. There is some variation of opinion and only one handicapper is willing to declare that one horse is better than the others. All agree that Garry Herrmann should be classed with the favorites and one holds him a point or two better than Commando or Alard Scheck. Five of the Derby colts are bunched at the head of the list by all the handicappers. They are Charles Head Smith's Garry Herrman, John T. Schorr's Alard Scheck, J. R. & F. P. Keene's Commando, Richard Croker's Beau Gallant and William C. Whitney's Ballyhoo Bey. These five horses undoubtedly represent the cream of the Derby material viewed from a standpoint of performance. Of these five, all have yet to show what they can do over a distance of ground. Allowing that the physical condition of all is equal the breeding will tell the tale, and this important item carried back a few generations is a subject for an interesting study. For instance, some will not fancy the Domino strain in Commando, but on his dam's side he gets the blood of Ten Broeck, and Ten Broeck was dedicated to distances. There is nothing lacking in Alard Scheck. The Hindoo blood is good enough for most people, and breeding should not stand in the way of the development of the Schorr candidate. Ballyhoo Bey is a Kingston and Beau Gallant is a Jim Gore colt. The Esher strain in Garry Herrman may detract slightly from some turfmen's admiration for that colt, but others will stick to him. The California colts are classed by the handicappers in a division next to the five above named. Articulate, Canmore, Golden Age and Rolling Boer are considered about on the same footing as far as Derby prospects are concerned, and with them are listed Blues, Bon-nibert, Conroy, Far Rockaway and The Parader. The third division includes Brutal, Frankfort, Joe Frey and Silver Dale.

Reports from New Orleans state that the management proposes to raise the purses in an attempt to induce owners of good horses to run at the track. It has been found that the large purses offered at San Francisco are hurting the New Orleans meeting.

The Western string of race horses, owned by Eastin & Larabie, and shipped from Kentucky to New York, consigned to Peter Wimmer, who last year handled Kinley Mack when he won the double event of Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps, arrived at the Sheepshead Bay track February 6th. The horses, thirteen in number, were received by trainer Wimmer, and were at once transferred to his stable, at the head of the straightaway, known as the New Futurity Course. Most celebrated of the lot of horses are the famous old black mare Imp, now seven years old, and the hero of the two great spring handicaps last year, Kinley Mack, now five years old and top weight in the popular spring handicaps this year. Imp, the property of Daniel Harness, was sent from Chillicothe, Ohio, the home of her owner, by way of Cincinnati, to join the Eastin & Larabie lot, and this year will be trained by Mr. Wimmer, her former trainer, Charles Brossman, who is also a part owner in Imp's racing qualities, having agreed to the change. Owing to indecision by her owner, Imp was not engaged in the important handicaps this year, but she is entered in some of the richest weight-for-age races, and will be handled especially with a view to winning some of these. Kinley Mack, with 128 pounds impost in both Brooklyn and Suburban, and 127 pounds in the Brighton Handicap, top weight in all three, will be trained with a view to running for all three events. In spite of his clubfoot and his supposed unsoundness, Kinley Mack is now in first class condition, and there appears to be no reason for the general belief that he will not stand training this season. Next to the two famous old horses the most prominent animal in the newly arrived stable is the three year old Sharpshooter, from whom great things were expected last year. Nine of the twelve of the Eastin & Larabie string are two year olds, all well bred and highly tried early in the fall in Kentucky.

Game Legislation.

The game bill now before the Legislature was subjected to innumerable amendments after its introduction. When the Fish and Game Committees were through with the document and had shaped it into proper form the bill was somewhat different from the original draft submitted. The matter of game protection, we are sorry to say, has received a serious set-back by reason of the unwarrantable interference of the individual who was responsible for the introduction of the features in the present bill which were rejected by both the Game Convention and the California Fish and Game Protective Association. The question of prohibiting the sale of game is not one that is palatable to the people at large, in spite of the virtues claimed for the proposed measure, which we believe in the main to be good. Its introduction was premature and may result in preventing the adoption of legislation for game protection that is not only reasonable but absolutely necessary, and which would, if the wise counsel and intention of the Game Convention had been followed, have been accepted by the taxpayers, citizens and sportsmen and ere this would also have had the recognition and favor of the law making body now in session.

The usurpation of the powers and commissions which had been conferred upon two committees, by the self appointed protector of California's wild game, aided and abetted by one or two other "apostles of game protection" who were actuated, not as much for the public welfare, as for the chance to be "Johnny on the spot" when the plums fell, has resulted in a temporary stagnation of the game protection issue that will be remembered in the future by the people who have been betrayed and also by the sportsmen whose rights have been trampled upon.

A Rara Avis.

Not for many years past have collectors had such opportunities for procuring fine specimens of wild fowl as has been the rule for the past three or four months. The canvasback, cinnamon teal and mallard specimens which we have seen recently in the studio of H. F. Lorquin, a taxidermist located at No. 331 Kearney street, are remarkable for symmetry, color, beauty and condition of plumage.

Many other varieties of wild ducks have also been mounted for sportsmen, as well as quite a number of interesting specimens of hybrids and albinos.

Unexpected visitors of the Anas family make their appearance in our shooting districts at times, seeming to have strayed temporarily from their particular habitat. A pair of strange and unknown variety of wild duck was shot last week in one of the Black Jack ponds on Sherman Island. They were sent down to President John Lommer who will have them mounted. Whilst they were temporarily on exhibition in a local sporting goods store they were the subject of much inquiry and comment, being unknown to most sportsmen who examined them. W. S. Kittle and Al Cumming solved the riddle by stating that they had seen and shot several specimens at different times and that they were known as the Mexican tree duck. This bird is described by George Bird Grinnell as follows:

The brown tree duck, Dendrocygna fulva (Gmel), is found in Mexico and northward through parts of California and Nevada, as well as in Texas and Louisiana. The head, neck and lower parts are deep reddish-yellow, darkest on top of head, and changing to reddish on the flanks, the longest feathers being streaked with pale yellow; middle of neck whitish obscurely streaked with black. A distinct black stripe runs from the head down the hind part of the neck. The upper parts are brownish-black, the feathers of the wing being tipped with chestnut. The upper tail coverts are white; the belly and lower tail coverts yellowish-white; the bill is blackish, and the feet and legs are slate-blue; the length is about 20 inches; wing, 9½ inches. The colors of the young are somewhat duller, and the wing coverts lack the chestnut.

The fulvous tree duck, known as the yellow-bellied fiddler in Louisiana, and the long legged duck in Texas, is quite common there at certain seasons. Its habits do not vary greatly from those of the black-bellied tree duck. Like that species, it spends much of its time in fresh water lakes and sloughs, feeding on the grasses that grow there, and it also visits the cornfields at night in search of grain.

The flesh of both of these species is said to be very delicious, and is eagerly sought after. The birds are shot only by being stumbled on or by lying in wait for them as they come into or leave the cornfields.

The duck is exceedingly unsuspicious and readily permits approach, so that many of them are killed.

When crippled, however, their strong legs enable them to run very fast, and, like all ducks, they are expert hiders, getting into the grass and lying there without moving. The bird is also a good diver, and if it reaches the water is not likely to be captured. It is said never to be found on the salt water, but confines itself entirely to inland pools, rivers and swamps.

Terrible Teddy.

The recent hunting adventures in Colorado of Gov. Theodore Roosevelt have been the subject of much and varied elaboration and illustration in many papers by numerous ingenious scribes and artists. A great deal of the matter printed seems to have been founded purely on imagination, spiced with humor or political satire.

The action of certain "blue-stockings" as will appear from the following resolution appearing in the Boston Globe of January 19th is not only a curiosity in its way, but the document is one that is laughable to the extreme:

ANDOVER, Mass., January 18.—The Forum literary society of Phillips Andover Academy, one of the largest and most flourishing institutions of its kind in the country, adopted a resolution to-night condemning the spirit shown by Vice-President-elect Roosevelt in killing animals for pleasure.

J. M. Cates of Cambridge offered the resolution after reading the newspaper account of Col. Roosevelt's recent encounter with a mountain lion, in which he dispatched the animal with his knife after it had been driven to bay by the dogs.

The first speaker, C. T. Ryder of Andover, said: "The killing of a 67-pound lion whelp in so one-sided a battle was an act of brutal cowardice and cruelty."

G. W. Howell of Lenox, N. C., spoke at length, and pointed out that Roosevelt, in his eagerness to plunge his knife into the animal, put himself on a level with the dogs, by jumping from his horse and taking part with them in the fight.

The resolution, which was carried after stormy debate, was as follows:

"Whereas, we, the members of the society of the Forum, believe that the race of man has no right to destroy, for reasons other than self-defence, the lives of animals which an all-wise Creator has ordained to live upon this earth, and

"Whereas, we believe that the reports which have been spread broadcast of the hunting expedition upon which the Vice-President-elect of the United States, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, is at the present time said to be engaged, are calculated to have a debasing effect upon the minds of the school children and youth of our country and to counteract the good results which have been accomplished through the efforts of humane societies, churches and private individuals toward stamping out those savage instincts inherent in the human race which have for ages past caused wars and murders and impeded the progress of the world; be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of the Society of the Forum, do hereby condemn the spirit manifested by Hon. Theodore Roosevelt in ruthlessly taking the lives of innocent and unoffending animals without provocation and with the sole aim of gratifying a desire for killing, which we do not believe to be compatible with a truly manly and Christian character."

The editor of Our Dumb Animals, a paper published in Boston, in its reference to the above submits the following question and answers it in a highly original and erudite manner:

Did an "all-wise Creator" create wild animals of prey for a good purpose?

We answer, Certainly. Otherwise other weak, sick and wounded animals would have a slow death with great suffering.

Frank Doliver would not have many friends in that section of our national plantation and George Walker would wish he was dead on Sundays.

Stimulated by the success of California jack rabbit drives, a number of Oregon sportsmen will join in one of these affairs, March 5th. The round-up is to be held on Blalock island, in the Columbia river, opposite Coyote station on the O. R. and N. It is expected a large number of sportsmen will attend from Portland and the other Oregon cities in the excursion radius from the place of meeting. The island is six miles long and half as wide, covered with sage brush and other good cover. It is owned by the Blalock Company, which is trying to put in crops of various sorts, hence the crusade against the destructive rabbits. Hunting will be done in the California style—on foot, and clubs will be the arms carried. Two expert shots, both careful men, will be on the outside ends of the lines, so as to finish any coyote which may break cover and endeavor to escape by water. The corral at the end of the island opposite from the start will be a triangular fence, leading into a corral, in which the game will be dispatched. Several hundred sportsmen (?) will be expected, and this, the first affair of its kind in Oregon, bids fair to be a great success. The assemblage will be the guests of the Blalock Company, and refreshments will be served, as well as free ferryage provided across the river.

Field, Marsh and Fen is the title of a beautifully illustrated booklet containing practical pointers promoting pleasure for sportsmen. The brochure can be procured by addressing any of the Du Pont Powder Co.'s agents.

Field Sports Retired.

The publication of Field Sports and Fanciers' Magazine, a monthly publication devoted to legitimate amusements, has been discontinued. The publisher of Field Sports has arranged with the management of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN to have delivered to those subscribers to Field Sports who had paid their yearly subscription in advance, copies of this journal in lieu of numbers of the suspended magazine due to paid up individual subscribers.

The first number of Field Sports was issued in the fall of 1891 by the Pacific Field Sports Publishing Company. On February 4, 1893, a change in the management was announced and the paper was continued under the auspices of Mr. H. T. Payne until September 1898 when the plant was sold to the Field Sports Publishing Company. The journal was then issued monthly until last December, the issue for that month closing its career as a paper devoted to sports and sportsmen.

A Buffalo Battle to the Death.

The pride of the Golden Gate Park herd of buffaloes and lord of the boscine harem was stripped of his laurels on last Sunday morning by a younger rival and "Young Ben" as he was called, gave up his life in a gallant but futile defense of his royal tenure. Ten years ago two bulls and a cow buffalo were placed in the park paddock. They were well cared for and thrived, recently the original enclosure was deemed too small to accommodate the herd; another paddock was built near the ocean beach in which were placed four strong young bulls, all of them native sons. While being taken to the new quarters Young Ben gored a mounted officer's horse to death. He was a grand specimen of the buffalo, clean limbed, supple, active and strong and ruled his fellows by right of might and was respected accordingly. About two weeks ago it was noticed that Ben was out of condition and apparently ill, all his friskiness had vanished. On Sunday morning the other bulls were not kept waiting by Ben at feeding time as had been usual, they soon noticed the champion was not himself and forthwith helped themselves to the feed, a piece of familiarity which had never been countenanced before. Ben meanwhile was quiescent, but not for long. Presently one of his rivals made overtures that had but one meaning. The old law of survival of the fittest and a battle to death between the two bulls was on. In this the challenger was aided by the other two who repeatedly charged the struggling monarch and gored him in the sides while he was fighting his rival. He had been the dictator and ruled his conquerors absolutely. Now was taking place something characteristic of the buffalo nature or instinct. Whenever a growing young bull, and they reach maturity at the age of three years, will summon up courage to attack and conquer the master of the herd all the other males will aid him in the fight. The unequal contest did not last long and the dethroned ruler of the buffalo paddock lay prone on the ground, his sides ripped and gory from the combined onslaught of hoof and horn. His head will be mounted and placed in the Park Museum.

Charles G. Lamb, a cattle man well known in Santa Barbara county, came into that city one day recently with two very fine lion skins which he and others secured hunting in the Santa Cruz canyon, on the San Marcos rancho. The skins are large and of good fur and Mr. Lamb will have them stuffed. The lions were captured with a lasso by an old man named Bico Bejarra. The feat is unusual and one that few men have seen done. They were lassoed, moreover, from trees. Dogs treed the animals and the men of the rancho came upon them in two big sycamores. The lions were thirty and thirty-five feet from the ground. Lamb would have shot them with his revolver, but Bejarra stopped him and promised sport. With unerring aim he caught lion number one around the body just back of the forelegs. The animal was hauled down and after a struggle killed. The second one was then roped and met the same fate as its mate. Bejarra's work was very much praised by all who saw him handle the lions.

The coming trap season promises to be a busy one for the shooters. Eight or ten trap shoots are already scheduled in this vicinity for March. Yesterday a well attended blue rock shoot took place at Ingleside. The live bird season will be formally opened on Sunday, March 3d at Ingleside, by the veteran trap shooting organization, the California Wing Club. The popular Union Gun Club will open the blue rock section of the grounds on the same day. On March 10th the San Francisco Gun Club hold their initial target shoot and commence their live bird season on Sunday, March 24th. The programs of the Olympic and Lincoln Gun Clubs have not yet been announced. The Empire Gun Club will open the Alameda trap grounds on Sunday, March 10th. The underground system of trapping pigeons is now in process of construction at Ingleside and will be ready for shooters about the 1st inst.

The duck season, now closing, has been a good one, the birds being more plentiful than for years past. Quail shooting has also been good; birds were numerous in many districts.

Correct Version of Judge Johnson's Letter.

The following letter from Thomas Johnson, Esq., of Winnipeg, Man., is a duplicate, verbatim et literalim of the communication forwarded by Judge Johnson to a weekly contemporary with a request to publish the same.

It is the custom with journals which value their standing and influence and desire the support of the public—and particularly so with class publications, to either reject a communication or, if it is published, as requested, to print the statement in full—providing that it is fit for publication, when a protest is made claiming unfair treatment and charging criticism of a character which is liable to impugn the writer's motives or abilities.

A comparison between the letter given below and of a sentence of apparently the same communication published last week by our contemporary will show a deliberate mutilation of the author's phraseology which distorts and radically changes the meaning of a sentence of integral importance in its relation to facts and truth.

The sentence is as follows, the interpolations and changing are shown in italics:

"I do not purpose going into full details of the work done during the trials, as I think all fair-minded sportsmen will agree that when three judges follow the dogs every moment from start to finish, and the times most of the spectators—including myself—were interested, was only when a handler would call 'point,' the sportsmen will accept the verdict of the judges as likely to be the more accurate."

To one familiar with field trial running the foregoing garbled sentence is equivocal—taken in relation to the context—and a reflection on the abilities and intelligence of the writer. Mr. Johnson's meaning is made clear when printed as originally written, and is shown below by the italicized omitted keyword. Any one familiar with field trials and field trial dogs knows that the "point" is not the all absorbing standard of quality upon which a dog's merits are determined. At a trial the claim of "point" made by a handler would naturally divert the attention of the spectators to a particular dog. This distinction has been apparently distorted in a manner that will admit of no excuse and is an imposition upon its readers designed to belittle and ridicule the writer, whilst making a hypocritical showing of fairness in publishing an altered communication and attempting to palm it off as the following original letter which we leave for sportsmen to consider without further comment:

WINNIPEG, February 8, 1901.

EDITOR Pastime—Dear Sir: I have carefully read your editorial comments of the judging at the late Pacific Coast field trials, and while I never object to fair criticism, I must protest against your opinion, as expressed, for reasons I will endeavor to make clear.

In the first place let me say that the most thorough esprit de corps existed between myself and confreres, and every final decision arrived at was unanimous.

I must thank you for your fair statement of why I probably did not see a lot of the work done during the trials, but in this you are mistaken, as I followed the dogs zealously from start to finish, and saw at least ninety-five per cent, and what I did not see was carefully explained to me by whichever of my associates witnessed same. I do not purpose going into full details of the work done during the trials, as I think all fair minded sportsmen will agree that when three judges follow the dogs every moment from start to finish, and the times most of the spectators—including myself—were interested, was when a handler would call "point," I will accept the verdict of the judges as likely to be more accurate.

Your remarks of "putting gentlemen in the saddle, who understand what constitutes a high class performer, or the Club will suffer" is a pertinent one. I could, I think, readily answer this portion of your article from a personal standpoint, but to do so would partake too much of egotism. I would, however, like you to permit me to say, that there are others who make clinics suffer, and they are the individuals who are charged with an exuberance of their own vast knowledge, which is not shared by those who know them best, and who having lost the respect of the best supporters, and encouragers of field sports, commence to toady to the disgruntled kicker, who never learned the first rudiments of how to take a defeat gracefully. Such disturbers are an incubus to any club, which will suffer with their support, and prosper without it.

I would also like permission to say, that I took notes of all the work done during each competition, and if any owner, or all owners, who desire to know why their dogs were not placed will drop me a line, I will give them full particulars of my conception of their dogs' field ability, how they used it at the trials and the causes that led to their defeat.

Yours truly,
THOS. JOHNSON.

The following extracts from another letter from Judge Johnson are self-explanatory—the only eliminations made are of a purely personal character and were not intended for publication:

I am in receipt of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and have carefully read the report of the Pacific Club's field trials, and I must say it is the only accurate account I have read, so that with its truthfulness, correctness, and facts so apparent, it cannot help but commend itself to all fair-minded sportsmen; and those who pose as such, but who cannot see good in anything outside of what they own themselves, "carry no weight," and what they think or say would never disturb the unanimity of either of us.

Mr. Philip C. Meyer, a popular member of the St. Bernard Club, was married to Miss May Hyman in Maple Hall, Palace Hotel, on Thursday. It was a swell event.

Westminster Kennel Club Record Entry.

The entries for the annual bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club, which commenced at Madison Square Garden, Tuesday, February 19th, and continues until to-day, closed on the 4th inst. with 2084 on the list. This is the largest in the history of the association, the most received in any previous year being 1977, at the last show. The number will be added to slightly on the arrival of the next English mail and there may probably be a few more mail entries from the Western fanciers.

The greatest proportionate increase is in Scottish Terriers, forty-eight being entered as compared with twenty a year ago. Great Danes, Russian Wolfhounds, Sporting Spaniels, Boston Terrier and the toy breeds have also received entries above the standard. The most noticeable decrease is in the Bulldog class, where the superiority of Richard Croker, Jr.'s, Rodney Stone is supposed to have kept out the owners of other dogs that would have had a chance in other years. The Fox Terriers have suffered from two causes. The death of Louis Rutherford has prevented the entering of a strong contingent from the Rutherford Kennels and the fine wire-haired Terriers belonging to G. M. Carnochan are not entered owing to the fact that Mr. Carnochan is judging the class. Four entries have been received for the Griffon class, a French sporting dog. The number of entries in each class follows:

St. Bernards.....	113	Bull Terriers.....	98
Newfoundlands.....	5	Airedale Terriers.....	25
Great Danes.....	58	Boston Terriers.....	176
Mastiffs.....	11	French Bulldogs.....	67

A fine Irish Terrier arrived at New York on the 8th inst. on the Germanic. The dog was shipped to Howard Gould, but the man in charge refused to give any particulars as to the pedigree. It was appraised at $5000 before being shipped by Mr. Jamison, the Irish merchant, who is a friend of Sir Thomas Lipton.

Forty-one dogs in forty-one crates gave thanks in forty-one different keys when the White Star freight steamer Tauric reached her dock at New York. They had been at sea nearly two weeks and barked their keen delight that the trip was at an end. They came from Liverpool and were to form part of the dog show at Madison Square Garden. There were all kinds of dogs from the big and haughty St. Bernard to the beautiful St. Charles Spaniel, with a row of ugly Bulldogs to form an attractive background of teeth and toughness.

Northern Bench Show Notes.

Portland will have a bench show commencing April 3rd and running for four days. This show will be followed by the Seattle dog show opening on April 10th and closing on the 13th inst. These shows will be held under the P. K. L. rules.

Victoria was originally scheduled to fill in dates on the circuit, but the English fanciers seem inclined to have a show all to themselves, which will open its doors commencing on May 23rd for three days.

Vancouver and Spokane fanciers are continuously talking bench show but definite action has been dormant for two years.

The recently organized kennel club at Victoria has the prestige of Sir Henri Joly, Lieutenant Governor, as Patron; Honorary Presidents Hon. C. E. Pooley, Hon. Mr. Justice Walkem, Hon. Mr. Justice Drake and Hon. P. O'Reilly.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are Mrs. Bradley-Dyne, President; Rev. J. P. Flinton, Vice-President; Dr. D. B. Holden, Honorary Secretary; Dr. John Duncan, Honorary Treasurer. Executive Committee, the Board of Officers and Messrs. J. W. Creighton, J. D. Prentice, R. Hamilton, T. B. Macabe, J. O'Reilly, W. F. Burton, J. K. Wilson, Bradley-Dyne, W. M. Le Poer Trench, A. Garesche, W. J. McKeon, G. J. Litchfield, Emil Pforderer, G. L. Milne, W. F. Burton, Dr. Verrinder, Tolmie and Hanson.

Mr. E. Davies, of Dowdney, B. C., and Rev. Dr. Christmas will probably act as judges for the coming show, J. Keith Wilson will be manager.

Six cups have been donated for the club's bench show: Mr. Hansen "Civil Service Cup," J. K. Wilson, "Bankers' Cup," Dr. Duncan, "Medical Cup," Mr. Litchfield, "Merchants' Cup," Drs. Garesche and Verrinder, "Dentists' Cup," and Mrs. Bradley-Dyne, "Breeders' Cup."

Mr. Jack Bradshaw has been mentioned as an eligible judge for the Portland Show. The selection would no doubt be a satisfactory one for the Northern fanciers.

The Pacific Mastiff Club held a regular meeting on Wednesday evening last week and resolved to offer the following special prizes for competition by its members at the fifth annual bench show of the San Francisco Kennel Club, to be held in May next: For the best Mastiff, a silver cup; best Mastiff dog, a gold medal; best Mastiff bitch, a gold medal; reserve Mastiff dog, a silver medal; reserve Mastiff bitch, a silver medal; best Mastiff dog puppy, a silver medal; best Mastiff bitch puppy, a silver medal.

Popularity of the Collie.

There is no breed of dog so popular as the Collie, with the possible exception of the Fox Terrier and the so-called bird dogs, Pointers and Setters. This popularity is due to the Collie's beauty and intelligence. The sheep dog's intelligence is of a very high order. The Collie derives its name from the name given in olden times to such sheep as had black faces and legs, and, as these were the prevailing variety in the north of England and Scotland, the dog that guided them was naturally called the "colley dog." Later the "dog" was dropped, and colley became the general term for a sheep dog. It is spelled either collie or colley.

The Collie's intelligence is due in great measure to its constant association with man. In saying this we refer more particularly to the working Collie, for in the case of many show dogs, good looks and adaptability, either in temperament, coat or endurance, are not synonymous. The fancy craze has laid its hand upon the breed, and, though its looks have been enhanced by careful breeding for head and coat, this has been done, it is claimed, at the expense of intelligence. Any breed of dog which is bred in idleness soon loses, to a greater or less extent, its adaptability for the certain line of work its ancestors were used for. This we find to apply especially in Pointers and Setters.

At the first show, in 1860, at Birmingham, Eng., where classes were made for Collies, there were five entries; nowadays from 100 to 200 entries are the rule in England, and at New York shows the number has reached as high as 163. At the first show in 1877, there were eight. The record entry for Collies for a Coast show was sixty-two at the Oakland show last December.

Thirty years ago, even in England, the Collie was more or less uncertain in breeding, but with the advent in 1870 of a dog called Cockie, a strain was established through him. Afterward came Trefoil, and to these two dogs most of the best Collies of the day trace their pedigree and good looks. Then came the great Charlemagne. For six years he was never beaten at a show—the celebrated Rutland accomplished the feat—but when eleven years old he appeared again at the Collie Club show in London in 1890 and won the prize for the best in the show. He died the year after, with the reputation of being the most noteworthy Collie of any time. Rutland was bought for $12 before he came out, but ultimately was sold for $1250. A peculiarity at the time and a much desired point very difficult to obtain in those days, was this dog's semi-erect ear, and to obtain this property in the progeny, Rutland was extensively used by breeders.

From this time the Collie increased in money value until now $1000 is but an ordinary sum for a good dog.

Among the crack Collies that have brought more than $1000 are Metchley Wonder, that once fetched $2650. The same purchaser, Mr. A. H. Megson, afterward paid $5000 for Southport Perfection and then capped his extravagance by giving $6000 and a dog called Edgbarton Marvel, valued at $2500 for Ch. Ormskirk Emerald, that is still considered the best Collie in the world, and a dog who is best represented on the Pacific Coast by Q. J. Albee's Ch. Ormskirk Emerald, Jr. (Ch. Ormskirk Emerald—Queen's Bounty). This stands as the record price for a Collie.

American breeders, however, are also responsible for big prices. Mr. Mitchell Harrison of Philadelphia started the fever by importing Dublin Scot, Scotland, Maney Trefoil and later Ch. Christopher for $5000, a record at the time. This dog is still living at the age of 14 years. Then J. Pierpont Morgan took a hand in the game and imported Sefton Hero for $3000, and afterwards paid $5000 for Rufford Ormonde. All these dogs had easily asserted their supremacy over home bred stock, until Mr. Morgan bred Ch. Ornament, probably the best dog ever bred in America. Not only do the crack dogs bring good prices, but members of the other sex have been eagerly sought at big figures. The record $1250, was given for Sweet Lassie.

Probably the best litter of Collies ever bred was one out of Long Eaton Magic by Wellesbourne Conqueror, and included four youngsters that in six months won over ninety first prizes.

Another crack collie is Ch. Balgroggio Hope, for which Mr. Morgan has offered all sorts of money but without success.

The disposition of the Collie has been a matter for much argument. Many people, strango to say, much as they admire the animal and desire to possess one, are deterred by the idea that the breed is treacherous. This is entirely erroneous. The breed is so very vivacious and inclined to bark and gambol, that timid people often imagine danger when the dog is merely showing an overfervence of good spirits. In the old days when he was an uncared for, unkennelled watchdog, churlishness and snappishness were prevailing features, but constant association with his superiors has improved his disposition immensely, and his bark now is more a call of welcome than a cry of alarm or ill temper. Properly brought up and trained, as all dogs ought to be, he will be found faithful and good-natured enough.

There is one drawback to the Collie—he matures so early, or rather has the appearance of so being, that when he arrives to the age of two years he has become comparatively plain. Collies are said to be at their best when ten months old, and the few that improve or hold their own after that age are in a small minority. This is the reason when a lasting dog comes forward it is held to be so valuable. Southport Perfection, now in Mr. Morgan's kennel, is one of this sort—at six he was as good as he ever was. Others were and they are Metchley Wonder, Stracathro Ralph, Ormskirk Emerald, Sefton Hero and Wellesbourne Conqueror, who improved as he got older. This is not a big list out of the thousands shown. We might also mention here, Verona Kennels' Ch. Old Hall Admiral and Ch. Heather Mint, now in the East and in charge of James Watson, Esq.

There are two kinds of Collies, the rough and the smooth. The latter differs only from the rough in the coat, which should be hard, dense and flat. The general appearance of the Collie is that of a lithe, active dog, with no useless timber about him, his deep chest showing strength, his sloping shoulders and well bent hocks speed and high intelligence. The expression of the face should be sharp and doubtful. Taking the dog as a whole, he should impress one with his elegant and pleasing outline, which is quite distinct from any other domesticated animal, and show great activity and strength. These latter points are indispensable in sheep herding.

Taking the head first, the skull should be flat, moderately wide between the ears and gradually tapering to the eyes. There should be only a slight depression at the stop. In considering the width of the skull, this should depend upon the combined length of skull and muzzle, and then the whole must be considered with the size of the dog. The cheeks should be flat, and when these are termed "full" it is a sign of "going off." Much depends upon the shape of the muzzle. It should be of fair length, tapering to the nose. It must not show weakness or be snipy or lippy, nor must it be overshot, a prevailing fault, however. The nose must always be black, whatever the color of the dog. The teeth should be of good size and level. The jaws should be clean cut and powerful. The eyes of a Collie are one of its most important features. They give expression. They should be of medium size, set somewhat obliquely, not round, but almond shape, and of a brown color, except in the case of merles, when the eyes are frequently blue and white or china; the eyes should have a bright, snappy expression, full of intelligence, and with a quick, quizzical look when listening. The ears are also very important. They should be small and moderately wide at the base, and should not come too close together at the top of the skull, nor too much to the side of the head. In repose they should be carried thrown back, but when at attention brought forward and carried semi-erect with the tip slightly drooping in an attitude of listening and facing the muzzle.

The neck should be shapely and of fair length, for it has to carry an immense amount of hair. It should be slightly arched, powerful and muscular.

The body should have lots of liberty, rather long, ribs well sprung, lots of heart room, deep in chest, fairly broad behind the shoulders, which should be sloping, slightly arched over the loins, and powerful, in order to gallop.

The forelegs should be straight and muscular, the latter sometimes giving the dog a little bowed appearance. The elbows should be true to the body, neither in nor out, with a fair amount of bone. The forearm is somewhat fleshy and the pasterns should be flexible without being weak. The hindlegs must be muscular at the first and second thighs, but very clean and snowy below the hocks, with well bent stifles. The feet are oval and very neat, soles well padded and toes arched and close together.

The tail, called brush, is moderately long and is carried with a slight upward swirl at the end, but should never get over the back.

The coat is most important. It should be dense, the outer coat harsh to the touch, the inner or under coat soft and furry and very dense and so close as to hide the skin. The mane and frill should be very abundant; on this depends much of the character of the dog; the face is smooth, also the ears and tips, but they should carry more hair toward the base. The forelegs are slightly feathered, the hindlegs profusely so above the hocks, but smooth below. The hair on the brush is very profuse.

The color is immaterial, but sable and white, sable, and black and white, and black, white and tan, are most usual.

In size the Collie should stand about 22 to 24 inches at the shoulder, bitches 20 inches to 22 inches. Dogs will weigh 45 pounds to 65 pounds, bitches 40 pounds to 55 pounds.

They should have a racy rather than a cloddy appearance.

The faults of a Collie are: Domed skull, high, peaked occipital bone, heavy, pendulous or prick ears, weak jaws, snipy muzzle, full, staring or light eyes, crooked legs, large, flat or hare feet, curly or soft coat, cow-hocks, and brush twisted or carried right over the back, undershot or overshot mouth.

Coat and frill count the most in a Collie.

The noted stud Fox Terrier, Dalby, one of the famous "Totteridge Eleven," formerly the property of Francis Redmond, London, Eng., is now at the Kilhurst Kennels, Harrison, Ohio. Dalby's pedigree goes back to some of the best strains in the celebrated Hunton Kennel, and this combined with Despoiler (his sire) should prove a valuable cross for Veracity, Claude Duval and Claudian bitches. He is a grand stamp of a Terrier, having an exceptionally long, lean head, with perfect ears in shape and carriage.

Mr. Camillo E. Pani, of Ciudad Juarez, Mex., a member of The Bulldog Club of America, has recently imported the thoroughbred dogs Royal Sovereign by Demos ex Mona; also a brindle dog puppy Royal Tiger by Night Watch. His favorite fancy, St. Bernards, has been indulged in by the purchase of nearly all of the Alta Kennels' show kennel, including Marse Jeems and Ursula.

When the North Wind Blows.

When the north wind blows on the southern sea
The venturing tide turns about;
The waters retreat to the caves of the deep,
And the whitecaps are picketed out;
The camp is all snugged for a wintry day,
While the south wind has wandered in dalliance away.

The foam on the breakers is chilled and white
As the snow on an old man's beard,
And the waves are still as the graveyard mounds,
For the timorous sea is afeared.
The north wind is angry and threatens a fray,
And the vigorous south wind has wandered away.

The beach is bare, and bleak, and wide,
And the fishermen's nets are dry;
The pelicans squat in the lee of the reef,
And the ocean is hushed as the sky;
For the north wind is master and lord of the day
When the sun is aslant and the south wind's away.

Fly-Casting at Stow Lake.

The initial meet for this season of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club was scheduled for last Saturday, at Stow lake. A number of the members with their rods and reels met at the rendezvous at 2:30 P. M. The weather conditions were not favorable for expert work, a fog and west wind interfered materially with the long distance casting, in this event; the contestants east from the lower platform, the tally-boards being moored in the water some sixty feet distant and extended in a northeast direction. Champion Mansfield did not enter in this event, contenting himself with practice casting; he put his line out frequently to and beyond the 120 foot mark. In the regular entry Col. G. C. Edwards was high rod with 103 feet. At the initial meeting on February 17, 1900, the Colonel was satisfied with a cast of 83 feet. Herman Muller was second on Saturday with 102 feet, last year his cast was 99 feet. Chas. Grant was third with 101 feet. Col. Young beat his initial record last year by one foot.

In accuracy on Saturday Mr. Muller scored first with 93 4-12 per cent, a year ago his score was also 93 4-12 per cent. Second high rod was manipulated by W. D. Mansfield who scored 90 8-12, which was below his introductory record of 95 8-12 made last February. Henry Skinner who scored 89 8-12 was in third place. Mr. Skinner was said by Col. Young to have used a peculiar new leader of special delicacy and short length which helped his score considerably. Mr. Battu exceeded his initial count last year in this event.

In the delicacy event Col. Edwards beat his opening score of last year by 4 2-12 points. Mr. Mansfield, who was high rod in this event, was 2 1-12 points higher than a year ago. Col. Young was nearly two points better in percentage. Mr. Muller also slightly exceeded his first score made last February.

The members who chose the Sunday meeting as well as some now aspirants for fame and skill in the art of fly-casting convened at the lake on Sunday morning. Among the veterans present we noticed the appearance of several new faces. The attendance of casters was far in excess of the number present on Sunday morning, February 18, 1900. A light northwest wind prevailed during a cloudy day on Sunday last, but nevertheless some excellent scores were shown by the members. Harry Golcher, with a cast of 115 feet, exceeded by two feet his record last February and gave him the longest score record for the initial Sunday meets of two seasons. Fred Daverkosen was second high man Sunday, as he was a year ago. He bested his previous score five and one-half feet. Muller, Mansfield and T. W. Brotherton divided third honors with a cast each of 98 feet. Brotherton was also third high man last year. Brotherton and Muller were high rods in accuracy. The participants in this event who were present last February all show marked improvement in their work.

Harry Golcher shows the initial Sunday high scores for two seasons in accuracy. Mansfield also stands twice in second place for this event.

The following is a summary of scores made at the first contest last year by those gentlemen who were present at the lake on the 16th and 17th insts.

Saturday Contest No. 1, February 17, 1900. Long Distance—Edwards 83 feet, Muller 99, Young 95. Accuracy—Battu 83 per cent, Edwards 91, Mansfield 95 8-12, Muller 93 4-12, Young 93 4-12. Delicacy—Battu 82 2-12, Edwards 81 5-12, Mansfield 84 4-12, Muller 80 5-12, Young 81 4-12.

Sunday Contest No. 1, February 18, 1900. Long Distance—Brotherton 105, Daverkosen 105 1-2, Golcher 113, Mocker 84, Turner 79. Accuracy—Brotherton 90 4-12, Daverkosen 89, Golcher 91 8-12, Mansfield 91, Turner 81 8-12. Delicacy—Brotherton 79 4-12, Daverkosen 78 7-12, Golcher 86 7-12, Mansfield 83 11-12, Turner 79 6-12.

This afternoon at 2:30, will take place at Stow lake, the second classification contest of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club. To-morrow morning at 10 o'clock the second Sunday contest will be held. Weather permitting a large attendance of members is expected and some good scores will probably be recorded. The rod-wielders are showing much interest and enthusiasm in the sport, thus early in the season.

Catching Eels With Canthooks.

Salt water eels are caught frequently around our bay shores. The rocky shores of Marin county, from Point Bonita to Sausalito, proving good fishing ground for the succulent wrigglers, some of which will turn the scale at five pounds weight. They also abound in large numbers in the pools, crevices and under the rocks of the storm beaten Farallones. Al Wilson recounts an eel hunt one day on the South Farallone, the island upon which the lighthouse is located. Wilson and several other sportsmen were ashore during one of their sealing trips last year. While the party were listlessly killing time near the rocky and swell beaten landing place, some of the children of the island accompanied by the school teacher arrived on the scene, the tide being then at its lowest. The newcomers began a lively scramble over the limited beach space, turning stone after stone, such as their youthful strength enabled them to move; under the stones a wriggling, squirming eel would now and then be found and tossed into the basket with shouts of childish merriment.

Wilson surveyed the eel hunters for a few minutes with an amused smile, then seemed to have an inspiration which quickly evolved action and astonishing results. He picked up one of the large canthooks which the party used for the purpose of dumping dead sea lions into the ocean current from the rocks where they had been laid low by a rifle ball. Another canthook was also seized by a comrade and the two sealhunters selected an immense boulder to experiment on. The hooks were rapidly placed in position and with "a heave altogether" the inert mass of storm beaten rock was turned over and to the eager eyes peering into the crevices and errannies that had been hidden under the boulder for so long, a number of fine, fat, big eels were discerned which were rapidly scrambled for and placed in the basket. Other rocks yielded more fish, until in a short time more eels were caught than could be carried.

We have heard of many methods of catching eels, but this style of going eel fishing with canthooks is a new one.

The following recipe for making salmon salad is given by a local angler who vouches for the gastronomic elegance of the dish: Take two onions, cut fine, a small carrot, a small head of celery, half a cupful of parsley cut fine, two table-spoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of prepared mustard. Let them simmer fifteen minutes in just water enough to prevent scorching; then add one cupful of vinegar, one cupful of water, salt, a pinch of cloves and a little cayenne; then put in your fish. Simmer half an hour, then remove from the fire and let the salmon remain in the dressing until perfectly cold. Serve with lettuce and some of the dressing strained through a fine sieve.

Local anglers continue to have a try, now and then, for the elusive steelheads in the tide waters near Point Reyes station. Signs of the fish have been reported frequently but few have been hooked. Charley Precht caught an eleven pound spent fish on Sunday and Del Cooper hooked what must have been a large and judging from the amount of tugging and fighting the fish did before breaking loose. John Butler, Louis Rondeau and F. Schad were among the anglers at the Point on Sunday.

Col. O. W. Jackson and Professor Bob McFarland made another attempt this week to catch striped bass in the water off Point Bluff, Marin county; all efforts were unsuccessful, however. The bass has now been a scarce article for some time. The season for taking them will open in a few weeks and much sport is anticipated. The many sloughs of the Sonoma and Petaluma marshes will be thoroughly prospected.

THE FARM

The Mis-use of Tuberculin.

"The tuberculin test of breeding animals now required by all quarantine regulations of the United States and Canada is proving hurtful to the cattle-breeding industry of America." This is the blunt, unqualified declaration made by Shorthorn breeders of the Mississippi Valley, assembled at the annual meeting of the Central Shorthorn Breeders' Association at Kansas City last week. Asserting that the test has proved no substantial protection they denounce it as "a menace to their herds and an unnecessary restriction upon their business." On this ground they rest an emphatic request to the agricultural authorities of both countries to remove the quarantine restrictions based on the tuberculin test. This petition will also be sent to the live stock sanitary boards of every State in the Union.

This is an appeal that may well give pause to those that are responsible for this vicious regulation. It is the voice of the men most concerned, it is the expression of those in whose interests allegedly the test was required. It is not a hastily reached conclusion. It is not a half-formed conclusion. Cattle breeders have listened to the scientists on this subject entirely dubious of the correctness of their latter-day contentions concerning this disease, but inclined to tolerate the inconvenience and annoyance of the experiments being performed on a large scale if possible good could come from them. But soon individual complaint began to rise. Personal acquaintance with the workings of the compulsory test quickly awakened disgust and kindled resentment and as the trade expanded, bringing more and more within the reach of this regulation, the protest swelled to the strong chorus that is now being voiced by organized stockmen. The American Association of Exhibitors of Live Stock, the breeders' associations in their Chicago meetings, the National Live Stock Association, and now the Central Shorthorn Breeders' Association have spoken out positively against the quarantine now based on the tuberculin test and to this expression the authorities will do well to give heed. We have the unique spectacle at the present time of practically a unanimous protest from individual breeders and organized associations against the enforcement of a measure which the veterinarians are endeavoring to persuade cattlemen is for their own good. As the live stock breeders of America are of sound reasoning faculties and able to figure out the case for themselves they are declining with thanks the proffered aid from the scientists now engaged in experimentation. Their experience with tuberculin has taught them the dangers to healthy cattle connected with its use. In the nature of the case the evidence on this point that can be given from many an importunate and breeding farm is not such as will admit of publication, but it is available for the proper authorities at any time. A public statement of the losses incurred in healthy animals from this experimental dosing with tuberculin would kindle a resentment among men whose property is thus put in jeopardy by the veterinarians that would not easily be assuaged. It is against this gathering storm, the mutterings of which are plainly perceptible, that The Gazette has warned these experimenters with other people's property.

The cattle breeders of this continent are willing that scientists should carry on all the experiments they desire at their own or the Governments expense. They decline longer to furnish the subjects. They object most strenuously to the compulsory use of tuberculin on animals which are not under suspicion of disease because of the losses which are known to have resulted from the indiscriminate official injection of this stuff into the veins of healthy animals. Evidence on this point is constantly accumulating. Enough has already been collected to warrant the sweeping denunciations of the Kansas City Convention. The officials of the Agricultural Departments of the United States and Canada are confronted with a grave accusation, the result of the misleading advice of over-zealous scientists. Breeders now demand of them the abolition of the compulsory test. Its fallibility has been demonstrated, its ineffectiveness has been proved, its danger is undoubted. What is wanted just now is a little common sense—protection from the ravages of tuberculin rather than from the alleged dangers of tuberculosis.

Tuberculin doubtless has a place in the private practice of veterinarians. It has none at present in governmental quarantines.—Breeders Gazette.

Dairy Notes.

It is not all of dairying when one has provided himself with the best of everything that pertains to the profession; increased responsibilities always follow improved methods—all of which means look to your milk strainers when you can't find any other reason for the milk going off, either in winter or summer. If you are using an old fashioned cloth strainer, do something more to it than washing it out in cold, or even warm water. The best you can do, you can no wash out the enemy: every hole is a hiding place; every thread is an abiding place, and when covered over with a film of casein, they lie in wait for to-morrow's milk. Boiling water, with a little soda in it, will remove the casein along with the bacteria and thus remove one source of contamination.

It is often asked why soap should not be used for cleaning dairy utensils. Well, first, because all soap is not clean. No one article of common use is so open to adulteration as soap. Fat from various dubious sources can be, and is, used in making the lower grades of soap, so in washing away one source of trouble it may leave a larger one behind. Second, will not dissolve the thin layer of half-dried casein that is very apt to be found on the upper part of the cans, in summer and that is very bad. Third, if the wash water is hard the soap will form insoluble compounds with the lime, etc., in the water and these are liable to stick to any cracks there may be in the can. Last, common washing soda and a little lye, is both cheaper and will do the work quicker and better.

Tradition seems to have considerable influence, even yet, on our dairy methods. Ways and means that were in use when dairying was a craft rather than a science, are still found floating around that part of farm papers that is devoted to dairying. Following is an example: "To make the finest flavored and longest keeping butter, the cream must undergo a ripening process by exposure to the oxygen of the air while it rising." Again: "Cream makes better butter to rise in cold water." The patent office also shows to what extent the air question has influenced the churn inventor and in consequence we have churns where the air is pumped in and pulled in, with the idea that the air performs some mysterious action on fat, casein or milk sugar, or as the circulars of the "two minute churn" put it: "The air oxidizes the casein and sets free the fat globule, etc., etc."

The whole question probably goes back to the time when bacteria were unknown and the production of flavor in the cream, like the aging of liquors, was attributed to the action of oxygen, for want of a better explanation. It is very doubtful if exposure to the air influences, in any way, either the flavor or keeping quality of the butter produced. The tendency has been, for twenty years, towards methods that include the keeping of cream in covered utensils, during creaming, ripening or churning. Cooley creamers, tight ripening vats and churns, all contribute to the manufacture of butter while protected from the air, and there is not much doubt that, with the average creamery or dairy, the closer milk and its products are kept from the surrounding air, the less liability is there for its taking up objectionable odors and taints.

One of the Canadian schools made an experiment on this point, by dividing a quantity of cream and ripening one lot in a close tank, and exposing the other in a thin layer while ripening. The butter made from both creams was equally good, and certainly the "oxidized" cream showed no superiority over the other. Aeration of milk however, is entirely another question, and always will be so long as cow stables and cows have their usual dirty surroundings. Aeration enables the dairyman to drive out of the warm milk, those odors or taints that the milk may have taken up, while in the cow or milk pail.

If a cow is obliged to spend day after day in a dirty ill-smelling stable, to breathe air that has passed over a fermenting manure heap, or that has been re-breathed by stable companions, it would be strange if the cow and her milk were not saturated with the offensive odor. Under these conditions, aeration will not only free the milk from this taint, but also reduce the temperature decidedly, and thus aid materially in increasing the keeping quality of the milk.

Keeping Swine in Good Condition.

Hogs that have considerable range during seasons are the ones that may be most economically and profitably fattened. Sometimes it is not possible to give this pasture for any considerable period, and the animals have to be confined most of the time. When such is the case they are apt to be troubled with indigestion. Extreme care must be taken to avoid this as far as possible. To a certain extent root crops, soiled (or green) cowpeas or rape, will remedy the trouble, or will, at least, do a great deal to correct it. One of the best correctives for indigestion when something in the form of medicine is required is a mixture consisting of three bushels of charcoal, eight pounds of salt, two quarts of air-slacked lime and one bushel of wood ashes, mixed with a pound of copperas that has been dissolved in hot water. Keep the mixture where the hogs can have free access to it. They will not eat more than is good for them, and their indigestion will disappear. This formula is by no means meant to take the place of pasture or green food cut and thrown into the hogs, but it will do no harm to keep it before them at all times when they are confined. It will keep them in good condition and will prevent much of the dirt eating so common among confined hogs, and which indicates the need of something to aid digestion.

The champion fat wether in the carcass show at Chicago was a grade Southdown yearling fed by the Wisconsin Experiment Station. This animal was started on feed June 15th, but was fed lightly on bran, oats, ground peas, etc., during hot weather. After September 1st, a little cornmeal and oilcake were added. The last four weeks the amount of cornmeal was increased daily until it was given all the grain it would eat with a relish. Some clover hay was fed for roughage. Turnips and rape also formed a part of the ration. The fattening sheep were all given the run of a small pasture part of each day when the weather was good.

Wool Market.

The American Wool and Cotton Reporter of January 23d said: It is a pretty monotonous state of affairs which one finds in the Boston wool market at present. Two weeks ago the wool company opened its lines of overcoatings and took good orders. The other houses followed with their overcoating lines. But the wool dealers are not able as yet to see any amount of new business on this account. Now they are waiting for the improvement of the heavy-weight lines the first part of February. A week ago the London sales opened at an advance. This, too, has not caused any great amount of business to be transacted. A little better tone, perhaps, but trade waits this time to see how prices hold in London. Prices are not at all well and whatever the apathy of the market may be, however small the quantity of sales, the fact remains that the dealers and farmers alike are not letting up one bit in their opinion of the value of their commodity. That is one reason why sales are so light, because the dealers will not make concessions.

The sales of the week in Boston amounted to 1,170,000 pounds domestic and 115,000 pounds foreign, making a total of 1,285,000 pounds, against a total of 1,715,000 pounds for the previous week and a total of 3,120,000 pounds for the corresponding week last year. The sales since January 1st amount to 6,159,000 pounds, against 13,155,600 pounds last year.

More than one-fourth of the entire cheese product of the United States is produced in Wisconsin. There are now more than 1800 cheese factories in that State. Besides the regular goods they produced last year 15,000,000 pounds of cheddar, 15,000,000 pounds of Swiss, brick and Limburger cheese.

M. D. Parmenter of Prowers county, Colorado, has been growing sugar beets for fourteen years. He has come to the conclusion that he cannot afford to sell his beets to the factory as they are worth more than the factory price to him as feed for his cows. He has produced as high as fifty-two tons to the acre.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibbey of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bel Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal.

Price $1.00 per package. Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail.

FOR SALE.

I Have for Sale on my Ranch near Salinas about

Seventy-Five Head of High-Bred Horses, Mares, Yearlings and Colts.

I will sell them all together or any number of them. All are finely-bred and most of the mares are stunted to some of the best horses in the country. Below I give a list of some of the mares and the horses by which they are in foal. I would greatly prefer selling them in a body and would give a great bargain to anyone who would buy them or even one-half of them. I am selling these animals on account of my age as I am now eighty-seven years old, and too old to be bothered with race horses. These animals are now running out on my ranch about seven miles from town. It is a very large ranch and I could not get them up without a day or two's notice and would not like to be asked to get them up unless a man wanted to buy at least eight or ten. Anyone wishing to start a good stock farm can do no better than to buy my entire band or a portion of them.

By the percentage of his performers in the 2:15 list McKinney is the champion sire of the world. At 13 years of age he has 30 standard performers, one-half of which are in the 2:15 list.

A Race Horse Himself.

He started in 28 races, won 25 of them, was twice second and once third.

He is a Sire of Race Horses.

Every one of his get in the 2:20 list secured the record in a race, and all are race winners.

He is a champion in the show ring, champion on the race track and a champion in the stud.

In 1900 his get won first, second and fourth money in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, first and second money in the Occident Stake and first, second and third money in the Staurof Stake. The McKinneys are stake winners. Will make the season of 1901 at

SAN JOSE RACE TRACK.

Beginning Feb. 1st. until further notice.

(Eight miles north of Gilroy).

FEE $50.

Return privilege, in case mare falls to get with foal, provided we still own the horse. Good pasturage at $3 per month. Not responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares will receive the best of attention.

BOODLE possesses all the qualifications desirable in a stallion. Considering the number of his colts that have been trained, no stallion has ever made a better showing as a sire. Mares may be sent to San Martin by S. P. R. R. Send for tabulated pedigree.

Mr. B.—, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

On Monday, November 19, 1900, at Interstate Park, Mr. R. A. Welch successfully defended his title to the Dupont Trophy, defeating Mr. T. W. Morfe in a race of 100 live birds by the great score of 99 to 98.

MR. WELCH, a simon pure amateur, plus his faith on 3 1-2 drs. SCHULTZE.

MR. MORFEY always prefers 3 1-2 drs. E. C.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. I. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 51 straight kills.
He used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Duck Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.

Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

VENDOME STOCK FARM.

The Royally Bred Iran Alto 2:12 1-4 and His Produce.

When in the fall of 1892 James W. Rea, the well known capitalist of San Jose, went to Palo Alto Stock Farm and purchased an eight months old colt for $4500, he took away with him one of the best bred youngsters ever seen on that great breeding farm, and one that, had Palo Alto's founder, Senator Stanford, been alive, could not have been purchased for ten times the money. The colt was Iran Alto, now holding a race record of 2:12 1/4 (which he can reduce several seconds) and the sire of eleven living foals, four of them with standard records, one of which, Dr. Frasse, has a four year old record of 2:12 1/4. Of the seven foals that are without records not one has as yet been trained, but Mr. Rea is so confident of the abilities of his great young stallion that he is willing to wager any reasonable amount that every one of them will get a record in standard time if it lives to be four years old. Iran Alto has never made a season in the stud, being bred to but twelve of his owner's mares, and to one belonging to the father of Vendome Stock Farm's trainer, C. F. Bunch. The mares belonging to the Vendome farm were mated with outside stallions, such as Boodlo 2:12 1/4, McKinney 2:11 1/4 and others in the hope of getting fillies to mate with Iran Alto after his retirement from the track. Having secured a number of mares by this plan and purchased several others, Mr. Rea will breed Iran Alto to them this year, and for the first time advertises him for public service. He will not be allowed to serve more than ten outside mares, which he desires to have of approved breeding.

Iran Alto's blood lines are such that even had he not already proved himself a race horse and a sire of extreme racing speed, he would reasonably be expected to do so. His sire, Palo Alto 2:08 3/4, one of the greatest race trotters ever bred, is the holder of the world's stallion record to high wheel sulky, and the sire of Iran Alto 2:12 1/4, Pasonte 2:13, Palita 2:16, Rio Alto 2:16 1/4, Palatine 2:18, Palon 2:18 1/4, Cressida 2:18 1/4, Alla 2:21 1/4, Fillmore 2:21 1/4, Erastus C. 2:22, Palo Belle 2:24 1/4 and Avena 2:27, although he left but about forty foals all told, having died at an early age and before being actually placed in the stud. Palo Alto 2:08 3/4, as all horsemen know, was Senator Stanford's favorite stallion as he was bred on the lines laid down by him to improve the breed of trotters, and which has been such a marvelous success. Palo Alto's sire, Electioneer, has 166 in the 2:30 list, and is the leading progenitor of extreme trotting speed in the world, his son Chimes being sire of the world's champion, The Abbot 2:03 1/4. Of Electioneer it is not necessary to say much. No other sire has approached him in the number of standard trotters, and his family holds more world's records than that of any other stallion.

The dam of Palo Alto was the thoroughbred mare Dame Winnie, dam of Palo Alto 2:08 3/4, Paola 2:18, Altivo 2:18 1/4, Big Jim 2:23 1/4 and Gertrude Russell 2:23 1/4. Dame Winnie was by Planet out of Liz Mardis by imported Gloncoo, her next dam being Fannie G. by imp. Margrave, the first mare to run a mile so fast as 1:45 in America, and the grandam of Alma Mater the wonderful broodmare with eight in the list, and dam of those great speed producers Alcantara 2:23, sire of 142, Alcyone 2:27, sire of 60, Allandorf 2:17 1/4, sire of 27, Alfonso 2:29 1/4, sire of 12 in 2:30 and several other producing sons and daughters. Palo Alto's breeding is rich in blood that produces speed—Electioneer, the leading sire of trotters and thoroughbred blood that has produced extreme speed at both running and trotting gaits.

The dam of Iran Alto is that wonderful mare Elaine 2:20 by Messenger Duroc. Elaine was the world's champion three year old of 1877, the record being 2:28 1/4. She was the world's four year old champion next year when she reduced her mark to 2:24, and afterwards took a mark of 2:20. She is the dam of Norlaine that took the world's champion yearling record of 2:31 1/4 in 1887, of Iran Alto 2:12 1/4, of Palatine, three year old record 2:18, of Anselma 2:29 1/4, and also of Elsie, the dam of Palita, two year old record 2:16, Rio Alto, three year old record 2:16 1/4, Novelist, two year old record 2:27, Mary Osborne, yearling record 2:37, three year old record 2:28 1/4, and Salvini 2:30.

The second dam of Iran Alto is the famous Green Mountain Maid, dam of Elaine 2:20, Prospero 2:20, Elesta 2:20 1/4, Dame Trot 2:22, Elina 2:24 1/4, Mansfield 2:26, Storm 2:26 1/4, Lancelot 2:28 1/4, Antonio 2:28 1/4, Mirinda 2:31, and of Electioneer 125, the greatest of trotting sires. It will be noticed that Iran Alto gets two crosses of Green Mountain Maid and two of Hambletonian 10.

In a letter to the editor of this paper Mr. F. W. Covoy, Superintendent of Palo Alto Stock Farm, recently wrote:

"The extreme speed lines in the make up of Iran Alto is very remarkable. He is by a champion who was a fast colt trotter, out of a champion mare who held the world's record for three and four year olds, and producing the world's champion yearling Norlaine 2:31 1/4.

The family that Iran Alto comes from has to its credit: A world's record for yearlings—Norlaine 2:31 1/4; a race record for two year olds—Palita 2:16; a world's record for three year olds—Elaine 2:28 1/4; a world's record for four year olds—Elaine 2:24; a world's record for stallions—Palo Alto 2:08 3/4.

Iran Alto traces twice to Green Mountain Maid who has six trotting 2:10 descendants. Iran Alto comes from a family of extreme speed, and will produce extreme speed."

Iran Alto was a fast colt trotter. He was first raced in his three year old form and was second every heat in the Occident stake won by La Belle at the State Fair that year, the heats of which were trotted in 2:20 1/4, 2:19 1/4 and 2:20 1/4. At Los Angeles that year in the stake for three year olds, where Iran Alto and the Palo Alto mare Cressida were the only starters, and for which she was a big favorite, he won in straight heats and got a record of 2:19 1/4 in the second heat. His present record was made at Stockton in 1899, where he was the contending horse in nearly every one of the six heats and had such horses as Hael Kinney 2:09 1/4 and Neernut 2:12 1/4 behind him. A splint prevented his racing last year, but in condition he can beat 2:10 to a certainty.

Of his produce just four have been trained. Of these Dr. Frasse 2:12 1/4, one of the greatest bulldog trotters ever seen on this Coast, was the result of Iran Alto's only service as a two year old when he was bred to Lynda Wilkes. The next year, as a three year old, he served two mares, one of them Lynda Wilkes and she produced Dr. Frasse's Sister 2:25 1/4, that took her record as a three year old and was second in the Occident and won the Stanford Stake that year. As a four year old five of the farm's mares were bred to Iran Alto and five foals resulted, two of them being trained last year—Vendome 2:21 1/4 and Thos. R. 2:30, the latter a 2:10 trotter if there is one in California this year.

Iran Alto and his four colt performers were all trained and driven to their records by "Farmer Bunch" who was interested with Mr. Rea in selecting and purchasing the young stallion. It has been the idea of both Mr. Rea and Mr. Bunch to secure by breeding and purchase a number of McKinney's daughters to mate with Iran Alto, reasoning that the blood of Electioneer, Green Mountain Maid and Fanny G. (grandam of Alma Mater) in his veins, when coupled with that of Alma Mater through the daughters of her greatest grandson could not help but result in speed and gameness of the very highest order, and a world's champion by Iran Alto out of a McKinney mare may yet be bred by them. The Palo Alto Stock Farm, by its genial and able Superintendent Mr. F. W. Covoy, is breeding in these lines this year and sent twelve of its great Electioneer mares to McKinney. Mr. Covoy will send a couple to Iran Alto, and one of them will be Bell Bird, the daughter of Electioneer and Beautiful Bells.

The writer visited the Vendome Stock Farm last Monday for the first time. It is a beautiful spot, a mile and a half from San Jose, situated on Guadalupe creek, and contains 80 acres. Seven artesian wells that flow enough water to flood the land in one night in the summer time make irrigation when necessary merely play. There are rye grass and alfalfa paddocks that grow more feed to the acre than any spot in California, and the residence, barns, etc., are kept in good order and condition at all times. We saw Yedra, a daughter of Nutwood 2:18 1/4, that is over twenty years old but does not look more than half of it. Her daughter, Lynda Oak 2:18 1/4, is used as a buggy mare this year by Mr. Rea and his daughter and grandchildren. Lynda Oak is the dam of three in 2:30 and can trot in 2:12 or better. Mr. Rea says that by mating her with Iran Alto he will make her the greatest broodmare in the world.

The Vendome Stock Farm is an ideal place whereon to breed trotters. It has abundant feed, is beautifully and conveniently located and what is not to be overlooked has a successful start. Among the mares there that are due to foal in a few days is Much Better 2:07 1/4 by Chas. Derby. She was bred to Boodlo last year in the hopes of getting a filly to breed to Iran Alto. She will be mated with Iran Alto this year.

Mr. Rea and his trainer and manager "Farmer" Bunch have made a successful team and if they pursue the plans they have laid in breeding mares of their selection to Iran Alto there is nothing that can prevent his being what his breeder Senator Stanford intended him for—the best son of Palo Alto 2:08 3/4, his favorite horse.

Matinee Racing at Los Angeles.

Harness racing for ribbons has been made very popular in Los Angeles by the Driving Club organized there last year. On February 22d, the Club celebrated Washington's birthday by an afternoon of racing that was thoroughly enjoyed and remarkable for the good time made by some of the contestants. Several thousand people were present.

The officers of the day were: Presiding judge, A. W. Bruner; Associate judges, Mark S. Severance; J. M. Gilbert, Dr. Geo. L. Cole; Timers, Lee Mabury, F. E. Browne, A. M. Edelman.

Following is a summary of the day's racing:

Mile dash for horses that had not started at previous matinees.

Joe..... (C. D. Black) 1

Annie B..... (J. P. Burns) 2

Time—2:48 1/4.

The Los Angeles Driving Club.

A recent issue of the Los Angeles Express contained the following:

In the interest of true sport no better thing was ever organized in Southern California than the Los Angeles Driving Club. It has encouraged a healthy rivalry among owners of fine horse flesh, provided a clean amusement for the public generally and proved conclusively that gentlemen may conduct the "sport of kings" without any objectionable features creeping in to mar the sport.

Horseless carriages may become the popular means of locomotion of the future, but it will be many long years before the standard bred horse of style, speed and action will be supplanted in the affections of the people.

Two of the driving club members were in the far east last Monday and both cut their stay short in order to hurry westward and handle the ribbons over their entries in Friday's races. A delayed train came near causing them to miss the races, and the wires were kept hot with directions to trainers. When they finally arrived at the track, in the nick of time, their joy was as intense as a school boy's. This same interest is manifested among the entire club membership.

One of the most enthusiastic members is Milo M. Potter, owner of Primrose the new club champion, Sister, Maud McKinney, Sweet Marie and several other fast ones. His stable would prove a bread winner on the racing circuit, if he wished to send them after purses and stakes, but Mr. Potter maintains the expensive stable merely for pleasure. Much of the credit of the recent good showing made by these horses is due Trainer Kent for the careful preparation he gave them, but at the same time it is probably the best stable all things considered, owned by any amateur reinsman in the west.

News From Oregon.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Clay Bryant has gone to Sacramento along with John Ponder.

Mr. Mosher will have the track at the fair grounds in splendid condition for early spring work.

A. L. Force reports the loss of his broodmare Pathfly by Pathmark, out of Bid by Black Pilot, due to foaling.

This time last year there were seven stallions at Irvington; this year there is only one. They are getting as scarce as automobiles.

It begins to look like Oregon will be short of first class stallions this season. There are but very few up the valley, not enough to serve the mares that should be bred.

Aug. Erickson has one of the handsomest yearling fillies in the State, sired by Claymont out of Viola, dam of Giles Noyes 2:05 1/4. Viola is due to foal to Claymont again this spring.

W. F. Watson has bought the two year old Caution colt out of Timosa, from Clay Bryan, and has changed his name from Alta Caution to The Bryan. He will be sent to A. E. Heller at McMinnville to condition for the stake in which he is entered.

There is nothing to indicate that there will be a race meeting at Irvington this year, and no doubt the few horses in training there now will be compelled to move to some other track, as the Irvington track is in poor condition to train one, and will get no better without considerable expense.

Paid to Breeders of Winners.

During the past three months the San Francisco Jockey Club has given to breeders throughout the country over $2800, in accordance with the rule which the directors of the club adopted before the racing season opened. This sum has been credited to twenty-two different breeders located in all parts of the United States.

Wild Horses Snow Bound.

A visitor from Ashland states that an effort is being made to capture a band of nearly a thousand wild horses which have roamed the hills and ranges of Southern Oregon for years, and which are as fleet as deer and equally as wild.

This great herd of horses is now snowed in at Sicán marsh, not far from Yainax Indian agency in the Silver Lake country. The animals were caught in the heavy storm and are now surrounded by five feet of snow in which they flounder about. As browsing is poor they will starve unless got out before spring.

This band of wild horses have been increasing for nearly a score of years. It originated with horses which strayed from ranges. During recent years when food has been scarce and prices low many horses of good breed have been turned loose by their owners and have joined the band. It is reported that strains of good blood have been grafted in and some of the wild horses are splendid animals.—Redding Free Press.

MONEY FOR AGRICULTURAL DISTRICTS and for the State Agricultural Society has been provided in the general appropriation bill which was reported to the California Legislature on Thursday last with a unanimous recommendation from the committee that it pass. The amounts are the same as those appropriated two years ago. As the entire bill which provides for the maintenance of all State expenditures appropriates less money than was voted by the last Legislature, there is no reason why the appropriations for the agricultural districts and the State Fair should not pass without opposition. The forty odd districts get a total of $80,500 and the State Agricultural Society $30,000. These appropriations are for two years and have usually been divided, one-half being used each year. It is the duty of every agriculturist and live stock breeder who desires to see the district fairs prosper and made high class object lessons for the people, and profitable to the State and the districts, to give these appropriations his endorsement and request the members from his district to give them their support. There will probably be strong efforts made by parties desiring appropriations for measures not included in the bill in its present shape, to amend it and add them thereto, and ask for large sums to carry them out. As the Legislature will in all probability refuse to appropriate any greater sum in the aggregate than the present bill provides for, all additions will be made at the expense of items now in the bill. It will be well for the friends of the district and State fairs to be on their guard and prevent, if possible, any taking from the agricultural appropriation. We believe it is the desire of a large majority of the legislative body and the Governor as well, that the appropriations for the fairs remain as they are now and there is no question but a vast majority of the taxpayers are of the same opinion. The fairs of last year showed a vast improvement over those of the years immediately preceding, and aroused an interest in blooded stock of all breeds that has in itself added many thousands of dollars to the assessable property of the State. Of horses alone there will be three times as many bred this year than there were two years ago and it is the same with the leading breeds of cattle. Our State and district fairs need every dollar that is given them by the State, and there is not an appropriation made that is more judiciously expended and brings better results than that portion of the State money which goes to the agricultural districts. Some make better use of it than others, but there are very few that do not expend the money in a manner that is profitable to the people of the district where the fair is given. When the appropriation for the district is passed and the bill signed by the Governor there will be signs of activity in harness horse affairs all over the State, as a circuit will then be assured that will provide racing for all the horses that are now or will be in training in California this year.

ONE DOLLAR TO ENTER in a stake guaranteed to be worth $11,000 is an inducement that should draw two or three hundred entries to the Hartford Futurity from California alone. Last year the authorities at Charter Oak Park astonished the horsemen by opening a ten thousand dollar stake with a dollar entrance fee and their audacity was approved and endorsed by the biggest lot of entries ever made to a stake. This year they go the horsemen a thousand better and the extra "thou" is to be divided between the nominator of the dam of the winner and the nominator of the winner of the race. If the owner of the mare retains ownership of the colt until he wins he gets the entire extra bunch of ten one hundred dollar bills. The stake this year is guaranteed at $11,000 with an entrance fee of one dollar for mares to be named on March 15th. At the same initial fee as last year, the stake is increased by ten per cent. The other payments in full are $30, so that for less than one-third of one per cent. a colt can start in this race. The division of the stake is $8500 for trotters, $2500 for pacers, to be decided when three years old. The nominator of the dam of the winner and the nominator of the winner get $500 each. Here is a stake that should secure every good broodmare on this coast. It is the colt stakes that make life in the harness horse business. Suppose you have a colt that is three years old and your trainer along in May shows a mile in 2:25 and a quarter in 34 seconds, and the horsemen begin talking about him as a very likely trotter and a probable 2:15 performer. If he is entered in a few of these rich stakes there will be people writing to you from Maine to Oregon as soon as they hear about him, and you will be asked to set a price. He will be worth thousands, cash in hand. But if he has no stake engagements he will not bring one quarter the money even though he shows greater speed. Stakes keep up the breeding business and make good prices. It is the duty of stallion owners and all breeders who are interested in making the business healthy and profitable to make entries in these stakes. The Hartford enables everybody to get in. Read the advertisement and invest a dollar for each mare that is in foal. The following are some of the reasons why the Hartford is one of the best up to date. Only foals named when entries close March 15, 1901, to start. Breeders don't have to beat world beaters that show up later. Management forfeits all rights to sell substitution.

KENNY THE BIKEMAN is the person you are looking for now if you want your old sulky repaired or that new one lined up so that it will run true. You can find him at 531 Valencia street, near 16th, and he can furnish you with a speed cart, a track sulky or a speed wagon at the very lowest rates and will guarantee his goods.

INGLESIDE IS TO OPEN soon. The Supervisors at their meeting last Monday passed to print an ordinance permitting for 36 days in each year book-making and betting on premises where racing is actually held. This will permit Ingleside to open and the San Francisco Jockey Club is making great preparations for the event, which will occur probably on Saturday, March 9th.

TWO SMALL PAYMENTS this year and nothing more until the year of the race is one of the attractive conditions of the Matron Stake of $10,000 which has again been opened by the Terre Haute Trotting Association, the leading association of its kind in the middle west. A year ago this stake was given for the first time, and it was so well received by breeders that we presume it is to be an annual event at Terre Haute. As the conditions show the event calls for $10,000 and is for foals of 1901 to be trotted for by two year olds in 1903 and by three year olds in 1904. Of the stake $2000 will go to two year old trotters, $1000 to two year old pacers and the balance, $7000, goes for the main stake that will be trotted for by three year olds, first money being $4500. Nominations will close on March 15th when a payment of $5 must be made, a payment of $10 will be due on the second day of next December and nothing more will be required until June 2d of the year of the race. In other words, $15 is the entire entrance fee required until June of 1904 unless it is decided to start the colt in the two year old race. The conditions also provide that if the nominated mare proves barren or if the foal dies before December 2d another mare may be substituted regardless of ownership. No owner of a well-bred mare in foal to a well-bred stallion can afford to leave her out of this stake. Every futurity offered in the United States in the last ten years has shown that every colt entered and which turned out good was worth double his value by reason of the engagement. No one can tell how valuable your foal of 1901 will be and the possible benefit that can be derived makes the investment of $15 one of the very best that can be made in the horse business. Read the advertisement. For entry blanks write to Charles R. Duffin, Secretary, Terre Haute, Ind.

THERE IS ONLY ONE $21,000 STAKE and that is the Kentucky Futurity, and it closes March 15th with a fee of but $5 per mare. It is the richest trotting stake in the world, from two to four times as large as other like events, while the entrance fee required to carry the colt to a saleable or trainable age is either the same, or less. The $5 entrance would be trifling for a race one-fourth its value, being but one-fortieth of one per cent. The $10 payment on weanlings (or their substitutes) next winter, makes a total of but one-fourteenth of one per cent. to keep each foal eligible, without further payment, to within four months of both races, nothing being due on two year olds between December 1, 1901, and June 1, 1903, and nothing being due on three year olds between December 1, 1901 and June 1, 1904. Therefore, before any payments are due, the breeder can sell his colts, with the advantage of the rich stake engagements, and the buyers can work them enough to know if they warrant further payments. Whether you breed to sell or race, you can't afford to miss the Futurity. It is the star event of the trotting turf. The winner makes its sire popular in the stud, and doubles the value of his colts.

A NUMBER of important improvements are to be made on the property of the Vancouver Jockey Club this year and the sport of racing there is in a very healthy condition. At a meeting of the directors of the club held recently the proposed stake for British Columbia bred colts was talked of and Secretary Robert Leighton stated that over twenty colts would be entered, as he had already been promised that many. This stake would be for trotters and do much to encourage the breeding of light harness horses. The club will probably join the North Pacific Racing Association and will retain its membership in the American Trotting Association, of which it has long been a member. President Fullerton and Secretary Leighton of the V. J. C. are very sanguine that the sport will be of higher class and more generously patronized this year than ever before in British Columbia and have already been assured that many good running horses from California will start at their meetings.

GROVER CLAY 2:23½, son of Electioneer, dam the producing mare Maggie Norfolk by Norfolk, next dam Tilda Quill by Billy Cheatham, ought to get plenty of patronage this year at a fee of $25. Dennis Gannon has him at Emeryville, and attention is called to his advertisement. Grover Clay has sired Clay S. 2:13½ and Mr. Gannon informs us that another of his sons trotted a mile in 2:16½ last year up in Humboldt county. Grover Clay gets extra good looking large horses and they are stylish and speedy. A son of Electioneer, out of a mare by the great running champion Norfolk, should not go begging for patronage this year.

THE AMERICAN HORSE BREEDER, one of our most valued exchanges, comes to us this week looking as attractive as a summer girl in a bright new dress. The horse papers are keeping step to the music of good times.

Breeding of China Maid.

Since the publication in the BBEEDER AND SPORTSMAN last week of the breeding of the daughter of McKinney 2:11½ recently purchased by Consul-General Ho Yow, representative of the Chinese Government in this city, horsemen are wondering how it happened that this filly was not snapped up by some of the Eastern horse buyers who have visited the State during the past year. The fact of the matter is that the owner of the mare did not care to sell and had never made any move in that direction. This gentleman, Thos. Grace, of Farmington, purchased Blanche Ward, the dam of this filly, in Kentucky, in 1889, when she was eight months old, paying $3200 for her. He shipped her to his home in Farmington and when she was grown, bred her to Guy Wilkes when that horse was commanding a fee of $1000. Mr. Grace has the receipted bills now to show that the cost of sending her to San Mateo, pasturage during the season, service fee and freight bills amounted to $1300. Blanche Ward foaled a filly as a result of this mating, which Mr. Grace still owns and in 1897 bred to McKinney and got a stud colt now coming four years old which he recently refused $4000 for. This colt will make a season this year at Farmington. He bred Blanche Ward to McKinney the same year and got the filly just purchased by the Consul-General. Consul Ho Yow has named this filly China Maid, and that she is a handsome and racy piece of horseflesh the accompanying engraving from a photograph taken last Monday at San Jose plainly shows.

The breeding of China Maid is so rich in speed lines that it has attracted much attention recently. McKinney 2:11½, her sire, is the leading sire of 2:15 performers of his age in America, and is recognized as the greatest son of Alcyon, who was the greatest son of Geo. Wilkes. Blanche Ward, dam of China Maid, is by Onward 2:23½, also a son of Geo. Wilkes, and the greatest living sire, having 163 standard performers, 24 of which are in the 2:15 list, among them being Pearl Onward 2:06½, Beuzetta 2:06½, Gazette 2:07½, Colbert 2:07½, Pilatus 2:09½ and Col. Thornton 2:09½. The daughters of Onward have produced 13 in 2:15, among them Choral 2:06½ and two others with records of 2:10 or better. Onward's dam is Dolly, the dam of Director, of broodmare sires himself and his daughters have produced no less than eighteen 2:15 performers, among them being the trotters Ralph Wilkes 2:06½ and Jupe 2:07½.

The next dam of China Maid is Lady Blanche (dam of Alcyon 2:15, sire of 15 in 2:30 including Amos R. 2:09½ and Nell Gwynn 2:10½) by Privateer 258 a producing sire that has sons and daughters that are producers. The next or fourth dam is by Abdallah 15, sire of the old champion Goldsmith Maid 2:14 and one of the greater progenitors of trotting speed, having 14 producing sons, among them Belmont 64, sire of the great Nutwood. A tabulated pedigree of China Maid with the fast performers of each generation back to the fifth would make a wonderful showing. China Maid is now in "Farmer" Bunch's charge at the San Jose track and will be trained to race and get a low mark. She is a square trotter. Consul General Ho Yow has certainly shown excellent judgment in his first selection for a mare from which to breed trotters. Another mare that he purchased recently is Braw Lass by El Benton 2:23, out of a mare by Mambrino Wilkes. She is a splendid individual as the engraving herewith shows. El Benton is by Electioneer out of Nelly Benton (dam also of El Rami 2:14) by Gen. Benton. As Mambrino Wilkes is a producing son of Geo. Wilkes, Braw Lass represents the Electioneer-Wilkes cross which has produced so many fast trotters and pacers.

BRAW LASS.

Obituary.

JAMES B. CHASE, a pioneer resident of this city, and well known horse breeder, died at his home on Mason street, on February 22d, lacking a few days of being 74 years of age. Mr. Chase came to California in 1851 and engaged in the stevedore and ballast business, at which he acquired a competency. He was a great admirer of the thoroughbred horse and owned a beautiful farm in the Sonoma valley when with the great race mare Katie Pease and many other royally bred mares he founded a stud farm from which has come many stake winners. Among them may be mentioned Hidalgo, who won many memorable races both in the East and in California; Gilead, winner of the Thornton and other stakes and conqueror of Rey El Santa Anita, Hawthorne, etc.; DeBracey, who beat the best three year olds in the Middle West and California and ran a mile in 1:40; Monterey, one of the crack two year olds of 1894, sired by Hidalgo; Marigold, who ran a mile in 1:41, two miles in 3:30½ and four miles in 7:20½, the world's record for mares; Centella, winner of twelve races and $9265; Kildare, winner of more than twenty races; Morven, a heavy winner on the flat and over the sticks; Del Norte, who broke the Coast record at a mile and a sixteenth; Top Gallant, winner of fourteen races and "in the money" on fifty-three occasions; Horatio, a good two and three year old; Phoebe Ann, a winner East and West; Mischief, a stake-winner and producer; Glen Ellen, a winner and phenomenal producer; Mystery, who won three Derbys and took the measure of Geraldine and Acclaim; Manzanillo, who won two races at Sacramento in 1898 and defeated the famous Libertine; Rebecca, a winner and one of the most wonderful producers alive; Marian, her sister, a good winner and the mother of Sir John, Sykeston, Lady Marian, etc., and Modwena, a stake winner in 1898. Many others might be mentioned, going to show that Mr. J. B. Chase has had a greater measure of success as a breeder than often comes to a man.

James B. Chase was born in New Bedford, Mass., in 1837. He was the father of eleven children, six of whom survive him. He was a member of San Francisco Lodge I. O. O. F., Master Mariners and Legion of Honor.

FRANK M. DAY, one of the prominent horse breeders of California, died at his home in Alameda, February 24th from paralysis. He was a native of St. Paul, Minn., aged 47 years. He had resided in California nineteen years and in Alameda three years. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. For many years he had been a commercial traveler for a San Francisco firm. He leaves a wife, a son and a daughter. Mr. Day some years ago founded the Belmont Stock Farm at Belmont, San Mateo county, purchasing the Red Wilkes stallion Dictatus and placing him at the head. The hard times in the horse business which settled on the whole country soon after, induced him to retire from horse breeding altogether, though his son still owns Dictatus and has been fairly successful with him. Mr. Day was a very enthusiastic lover of the harness horse, but ill health made him an invalid for nearly two years prior to his death.

A move has been made with the Sheepshead Bay track. Mr. Frank T. Clark, the Superintendent, states that he has ploughed it up, and will resoil it just as soon as the frost is out. He expects to have it in first class order in March, if favored with anything like reasonable weather.

W. H. Jackson, Jr., will be a recruit to the running turf, making his debut at Montgomery Park. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt University, educated for a lawyer, but has forsaken Blackstone for the stud book. His stable will be highly bred two year olds from his father's farm at Belle Meade and they will be trained by John Brandon.

sire of the ex-champion Directum 2:05½ and Direct 2:05½. The dam of Blanche Warr is Blanche Patchen by Mambrino Patchen 58, sire of the great Mambrino King, that is the sire of seven 2:10 performers and sire of the dam of The Abbot 2:03½, champion trotter of the world. NORA MCKINNEY.

This handsome four year old filly is in "Farmer" Bunch's string at San Jose. She is by McKinney out of a mare by Dexter Prince, and was raised by David Young, of Stockton. She resembles Hazel Kinney 2:09½ in looks and also in action and is a very promising trotter.

SULKY NOTES.

Mares are foaling.

Enter in the rich futurities.

The Hartford costs but $1 and is for $11,000.

Seth Griffin has begun work on the new Memphis track.

Don't miss having an entry in the rich Kentucky Futurity—$20,000.

Vina Belle 2:15½, is safe with foal by Peter the Great at the Forbes Farm.

Lomo Alto Farm's consignment at the Chicago sale averaged nearly $500.

Bessie Huntington, dam of Charley Herr 2:07, has been bred to Ali Bey, a son of William L. and Dewey Eve, by George Wilkes.

Chas. L. Griffith is driving Rect 2:16½ on the road through Golden Gate Park. He is one of the fastest trotters that goes down the speedway.

Nutwood Wilkos is getting a lot of high class mares again this year. Mr. Carter is receiving letters every day from owners who want to book their mares.

The Terre Haute Matron Stakes, $10,000 for foals of this year has many excellent features. Add to the value of prospective foals by naming the mares by March 25th.

The colt that has been reserved at the Two-Minute Farm to succeed his sire, Guy Wilkes 2:15½, is the two year old, out of Lea 2:18½ by Sidney. He is said to be a trotting wonder.

Palmer L. Clark, the founder of the Horse Review, has been engaged to conduct a department in the Chicago Sunday Inter-Ocean, devoted to the news of the trotters and pacers.

There will be twenty-six harness events at the Denver meeting in June, and the amount of money hung up will be $13,000. The prospects for a good meeting are very bright.

Secret 2:26½ by Secretary, the gray mare that Dr. Latham took East two years ago and placed in Chas. Marvin's hands, was among the horses sold at the 400 sale in New York, in February. She brought but $120.

Rey del Diablo 2:23½, J. M. Alviso's fast colt by Diablo 2:09½, is showing wonderful speed at Pleasanton. He worked a quarter in 32½ seconds last week very handily. He will be another 2:15 performer for his sire.

Mr. A. B. Sprockels has sent his mare Venus II. 2:11½ to Pleasanton where she will be trained by Millard Sanders. She looks to be in perfect shape and hasn't a blemish on her. She should lower her record this year.

Boydello 2:14½ is a good horse to brood to this year. He is a grandson of Electioneer and well bred on his dam's side. He is not only a fast and gamerace horse, but a model of symmetry. See Ed Lafferty about him at Alameda.

See that the Assemblyman and Senator from your district look after the appropriation for your district agricultural society. The appropriation bill will be up for discussion next week at Sacramento. The agricultural districts should not be slighted.

Mr. Malcolm Forbes, of Boston, had Bingen 2:06½ out on the snow path one day last week, and the great stallion was easily boss of the road. He caught the eye of the crowd every time he marched down through the centre by his impressive way of going and superb style.

Dr. Boucher went to Pleasanton this week with his pacer by Harry Gear out of Miss Logan 2:06½. He will enter him through the Eastern circuit and expects a very low mark for him. No three year old in California has shown as much speed as this fellow and he looks and acts like a race horse.

Ed Geers says he does not care to enter The Abbot in a three-cornered race with Cresceus and Charley Herr, although he would like to get on a single-handed match with either one of them. Geers is no young fox to be caught with an exposed trap. He says: "Two pretty fair horses can defeat one crack."

Mr. P. J. Williams desires to farm out his great mare, Hattie, the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16½. He will take $250 cash for her use for one year. She is now heavy in foal and a sure breeder. Here is an opportunity for some one to breed a crackerjack, and one that will sell for $1000 as a yearling.

John Hogan, for many years superintendent of the famous Stony Ford Farm in Orange county, is now in the employ of William C. Whitney as foreman at the farm in Kentucky, where Hamburg is to be kept. The man who once had charge of Electioneer and other trotting stallions will hereafter look out for the $60,000 thoroughbred.

One of the best posted breeders in California, and a gentleman who has bred a number of good ones himself, was asked by a young man the other day what stallion was the best to breed a standard bred mare to this year. "That is a hard question to answer," the gentleman replied, "but if you breed her to Nutwood Wilkos 2:16½ you will make no mistake and will have the satisfaction of knowing that there are none any better bred or more likely to produce you a fast trotter than he."

I Direct 2:12½, will be a great producer of speed if given an opportunity. He is from speed producing families, champions on both sides. At $25 the season his services should be in great demand. Ed Lafferty has him at Alameda.

The first foal reported to this office from mares named in the Pacific Breeders Futurity $6000 stake is owned by Mr. Chas. F. Giles, of 1113 McAllister street, this city. The colt is a bay, by Wilkes Direct 2:22½ (full brother to John A. McKerron 2:10), dam Pearl G. by Kebir. Mr. Giles has named him Frank G., and has already pointed him toward the big end of the stake.

L. V. Harkness, owner of Walnut Hall Farm, at Donerail, Ky., whose success in winning both divisions of the Kentucky Futurity last year was one of the features of the harness racing campaign, has consigned to the sale ring every marketable animal on his extensive farm that shows a tendency to pace. Mr. Harkness has an aversion to the pacing gait, and he is going to eliminate it from his stud by selling off the pacing colts as fast as they show their heads.

J. W. Gordon is working his stallion Silver Arrow by Silver Bow at the San Jose track and will race him this year in the hope of getting a low record for him. Mr. Gordon's black gelding Black Diamond, that was thought last year to be one of the best green prospects in the State and would certainly have reached a low mark this year, is just recovering from a mix-up with a picco of barbed wire that came near cutting a couple of his legs off. The cuts have all healed and though they left ugly scars, the gelding shows no signs of lameness. He is a big, rangy fellow, high headed and can trot a 2:40 gait anytime, even in the condition he is now. If no further accidents happen him he may be able to get a record yet.

It is said on good authority that Vance Nuckols, of Cleveland, will campaign Conoy 2:02½, this year, and if he does the Cleveland trainer will probably ride about as close to the two-minute mark as any man in the business. Nuckols never trains very many horses, but the few he does train gets about as good care as it is possible for horses to get. Nuckols is also a very clever driver, as he showed the Grand Circuit followers last season when he got some of the money in about every race in which he started Tom Nolan and Arch W. Coney is one of the speediest pacers ever seen, and it is quite possible that he will materially reduce his record during the coming horse season.—Buffalo Horse World.

During the Fasig-Tipton sale last month a rumor was circulated that George Ketcham had bought the fast bay trotting gelding, Henry S., that was thought to have had a mortgage on the Merchants' and Manufacturers' $10,000 stake at Detroit last year, but pulled up lame after a warming-up mile before the race was called and was not started. When Ketcham was asked about the deal he said he had received a price on the horse and the chances were he would complete a trade for him. Charley Thompson, in whose stable Henry S. is located, at Guttenberg, N. J., said that he was going all right and should be a great race horse the coming season. If the deal is consummated, Henry S. will be campaigned in the stable with Cresceus.

Although the sale of thoroughbreds from the farm of the late Marcus Daly realized $403,000 for the estate of the Montana breeder, it is a significant fact that his heirs have concluded to keep the trotting department of the farm in operation, writes Raymond in the Horse World. From this it is evident that the heirs to the Daly millions regard the breeding of trotters as more profitable than the breeding of runners. Probably no breeder of thoroughbreds ever gave more attention to them than did Mr. Daly, and his success was exceptionally great, but as a means of earning dividends on the capital invested, it is evident that the trotters are regarded as better than the thoroughbreds by those most familiar with the earning of both departments of the Daly breeding establishment.

In a letter to Turf, Field and Farm, J. Malcolm Forbes, the Boston millionaire horse owner, says: "I see that some of the papers are trying to push the professional judge question to the front. In theory it would be all right, but in practice you could not get the men who are honest and at the same time capable. You and I know what pressure would be brought and how the professional judges, traveling through the circuit and living with the drivers and the pool sellers, would find it almost impossible to act independently. Under the present system we have seen bad blunders in judgment, but through the Grand Circuit at least I believe, the stand has been very generally honest. At any rate, under the present system the standard on the trotting tracks has improved very much in the past twenty years, and I think we had better leave well enough alone. One can stand losing a race on its merits, but as soon as I feel that the judges and the starter are working in favor of any interest rather than fair play, I will stop racing."

Coney 2:02½, was bought by J. H. Bronson for $4100, no doubt on the recommendation of Burt Shank, who has regarded the black gelding more highly than any other man for more than a year. After Coney had closed his campaign in 1899 and was sent to the New York sale, Mr. Shank asked James Butler again and again to buy the horse for him to race, but got no satisfaction. When the sale came, however, and Coney looked to be going for $1,100, Mr. Butler stepped in and bought Coney for $50 or $100 more and sent the gelding to Shank at the farm with the words: "There he is, now get my money out of him." When Shank brought Coney to Cleveland last spring his horse could not have been in better order. It was soon apparent to all who saw the two work, that Coney could step all around Anaconda, and the mile in 2:05½ which Shank drove Coney in July, without hopples, was not the geldings limit that day. During the season Coney's winnings were $5000 and at the sale he fetched almost $3000 more than Mr. Butler paid for him.—American Sportsman.

Mr. T. F. Ricks, of Eureka, Humboldt county, has a six year old mare by Mustapha 11,716, son of Guy Wilkes, that he will put in training this year. Her dam is Lou 2:14½ by Ira. Mr. Ricks formerly owned Lou, and believes that but for too much work and racing, which resulted in her breaking down, she would have had a record below 2:10, so he has allowed this daughter of hers to become fully matured before placing her in training. She is thoroughly broken and has stepped a mile in three minutes.

The free for all pace at the last Ottawa, Ont., meeting was one of the hardest and brilliantly fought contests ever pulled off over the ice. It was a seven-heat race, the track was half-mile and the time made was 2:21, 2:21½, 2:21½, 2:22, 2:19 and 2:19½, and it was won by Looking Glass, owned by Col. W. Perry Taylor of Buffalo. Sloppy Weather won the first two heats, Looking Glass the third, fourth and seventh heats, and Jewel the fifth and sixth heats. In this race Jewel made a world's record for a half-mile track on the ice, stepping the sixth heat in 2:19. Frank G. Smith, who started the horses at the meeting, says that the racing in every heat was great, and every finish was of the eyelash order, and when the horses reached the wire in the final heat the crowd fairly went wild with excitement.

Neernut 2:12½ will make the season of 1901 at the farm of his owner, Geo. W. Ford of Santa Ana, at $40. On Friday and Saturday of each week Neernut will be at the Los Angeles race track to accommodate a number of owners desiring to breed to him there. This splendid young representative of the Electioneer-Nutwood cross is in fine shape at the present time. Out of 45 mares bred to him last season not over two or three missed. The young colts and fillies by him now being worked at the Santa Ana track are as fine looking a lot of youngsters as has ever been seen in Southern California and are all, without exception, stepping fast. Toughnut is already showing quarters in 33 seconds easily. Neerana, a bay filly out of Florence C. by Alban, is a crackerjack and a brother to her is not far behind her in speed. He is entered in the Stanford Stake to be trotted at the State Fair this year. A full brother to Neeretta, now a two year old, is entered in the same stake for next year. The Neernuts will begin dropping into the list now about as fast as they are raced and it will not take him long to make a great showing among the sires of extreme speed if his get are trained. An article on his breeding will appear in this journal next week.

Henry Hellman has a big string of trotters and pacers at the San Jose track, several of them prominent candidates for the California circuit this year. The record horses in the string are Wild Nutting 2:11½, Myrtha Whips 2:10½ and Ned Thorne 2:15½, all looking well and in shape to race again this year if purses are offered for the classes to which they are eligible. Oro Guy, the three year old colt by Oro Wilkes out of Roseate by Guy Wilkes, that R. I. Orr of Hollister purchased as a suckling at the foot of its dam in 1898 at the Corbitt closing out sale, has developed into a powerful big horse that will not only trot to a fast record, but should prove a great stock horse. He has a bold way of going that is very attractive. Examiner is the name given a three year old by Wilkes Direct 2:22½ out of a mare by Strathway. This is a handsome and promising youngster. Motanic, the five year old by Chehalis 2:04½, dam by Hamboy, is owned by Mr. John Wise of this city. He is a handsome colt with a head and neck very much like his sire, and shows great speed. T. S. Montgomery's two year old filly by Boodle 2:12½ is another promising youngster. Mr. Hellman also has a four year old gray filly by Wild Boy, a four year old by Prince Nutwood, a green pacer by Benton Boy and the stallion Alton, son of Altamont-Tecora and a very handsome member of that great family of fast ones.

B. O. Van Bokkelen, of San Jose, will again journey to the East this year with a string of good California horses that he is now putting in shape at the San Jose track. Mr. Van Bokkelen will not race all of them, several being horses that he has purchased for Eastern parties and will deliver them when he goes over East in June. He has the game and fast stallion Stamboulette 2:10½, and no horse ever looked better than he does right now. After a year's rest he looks to be fully equal to the task of reducing his record, and this will be expected of him with confidence. Tom Smith, the McKinney colt that showed so promising last year, is another good one in Van Bokkelen's care. He has had a severe attack of illness, the result of a cold, but looks well now and will soon be ready to show speed. The fast pacer Fredericksburg 2:12 will go East in this stable. He is a candidate for 2:05 before fall. Among the other horses under Mr. Van Bokkelen's charge are Vic Shellar, owned by Mr. C. Y. Bollinger; an Oro Wilkes colt out of a mare by Princips, the property of Mr. C. J. Molero; a gelding by Sable Wilkes, owned in this city, a very promising four year old brother to Ethel Downs 2:10 that is owned by Mr. T. J. Weeks of Santa Cruz, and a three year old stud colt by Alex Button out of Carrio Malone, the dam of Chas. Derby 2:20. The horse that attracts the most attention however is The Roman (3) 2:18½, the sensational three year old of last year. He is filling out wonderfully and growing every day. Since he landed at the San Jose track from La Siesta Farm, he has grown fully an inch and measured last week fifteen hands one inch and a half in height, a gain of nearly an inch in three months. He is in perfect health, and though he is only jogged for exercise, picks up his feet and places them down in a manner that shows him to be everything that is claimed for him. "He moves more like The Abbot than any horse I ever saw, and I have seen a great many on the grand circuit," said the man in whose special charge the gelding is. It is the opinion of all the horsemen at San Jose that when Mr. Christy of Kansas City instructed Dick Benson to buy The Roman, that he made the best bargain in horse flesh that he has ever made in California for some time. That he will trot close to the world's record they all believe.

THE SADDLE.

Majon Barak T. Thomas.

A Lexington writer speaks thus of one of America's foremost horsemen: Thirty-five years ago a man of 50, dressed in the ragged uniform of a Confederate soldier, stood in the office of James A. Grinstead, the famous banker, breeder and turfman of the "time before the war."

"Jim, I need some monoy. I want to get on my feet again," said the soldier.

"Just write your check for what you want and I will see that it is honored at the bank," was the reply.

The soldier was Major Barak G. Thomas, now dangerously ill, and whose life history reads like a romance.

Within the past few years, when James R. Keene and his party of millionaire turfmen from the East visited Lexington and the blue grass region, they were entertained at the elegant residence of Major Barak G. Thomas. They looked at his famous pictures of great horses—horses that had been bred and which master hands have produced upon the canvas; they drank punch from gold and silver bowls—bowls which Hira won more than thirty years ago—and brewed from Bourbon, which had mellowed in Major Thomas' cellars for two decades; they accepted with gladness the kind hospitality of this courtly gentleman, listened with eagerness to the words of turf lore which fell from his lips, and saw as they sat beneath his roof how that ragged Confederate soldier of 35 years ago had carried to a successful end his determination to "get on his feet again."

They saw him, too, the last of the old school of turfmen. Such men as James A. Grinstead, Dr. Weldon, David McDaniels, Price McGrath, Major E. O. Elliott, Wood Springfield, General A. Buford, Captain Viley, John Harper, John M. Clay, A. Keene Richards, Miles Kelly and the like were his contemporaries. All of these are dead and he, the most successful of them all, stands like the best, at the last. Domino, the largest winning horse in American turf history, was bred by him. Mannie Grey, whose produce have won more money than any brood mare in American breeding annals, cropped the blue grass in his paddocks. King Thomas, which sold for more money than any yearling that ever passed under the auctioneer's hammer in America, was bred at his farm. Himyar, in the year when his sons and daughters won more money than any other stallion, was owned by Major Thomas.

Always a lover of the thoroughbred horse, Major Thomas owned racers before he was of age, and he continued to breed and to race thoroughbreds even while engaged in other forms of business. His first success of note was to come after the war in Hira, that wonderful daughter of Lexington and Hegira which was to lay the foundation of his new fortune—the fortune of his old age. The Major Thomas of to-day retains all of the cheery disposition, which has stood him in such good stead under trying circumstances, in spite of his eighty-five years and his recent narrowly averted attack of pneumonia. "I am sorry to see all the nice things they have said about me, for they will have nothing left when I die," he laughingly remarked. He declares that he is good for many years yet.

Major Thomas' life reads like a romance—a fit subject for a Dumas or a Dickens. It lacks but one essential feature—the woman in the case—for he has never married and lives wifeless, childless, a bachelor in his elegant home. There may be a story hidden behind the placid front he always wears. In the South, down underneath the magnolia trees, where the gray moss waves in the breezes, may sleep the girl who might have played a part in a life which has exceeded the three-score years and ten of Holy Writ, but if it is so he has never told his story.

Even the manner of his joining the army reads like a chapter in a novel. Union soldiers were encamped around Lexington. Major Thomas had a serious difficulty with a man from a particular company, and in the fight which followed the soldier was killed. Major Thomas was exonerated at the examining trial, but the man's comrades determined on revenge, and after several days of waiting saw Thomas in the distance, and, armed with rifles, began pursuit. A race for life ensued, and the city limits were quickly passed. Once in the open country Major Thomas saw an engine side-tracked, and boarding it, found the engineer a friend who had known him when a civil engineer on that road. On the engine he was borne to a place of safety, and a few days later joined the army in Virginia.

The havoc of war left Major Thomas but one piece of property. Years previous he and his brother, Circuit Judge Charles B. Thomas, owned a good race mare by imp. Ambassador, called Heriga, which for several years held the best two-mile record. Before leaving home he had her bred to Lexington, and when he returned he found a filly old enough to race. The part interest he owned in this filly constituted Major Thomas' sole earthly possessions at that time. He entered the filly in a stake worth about $2000, run at the old Woodlawn course, near Louisville, and she proved the winner, giving the now famous broodmare a new start in life and laying the foundation of his present fortune and earlier prosperity. The filly in time became the broodmare Hira, the dam of Himyar, the sire of Domino. From the appearance of Hira on the turf, Major Thomas' prominence as a racing man and successful breeder began, and it has continued down to 1900, Tommy Atkins, Maximo Gomez, Trumpet and The Musketeer, all grand winners last year, being bred by this noted sportsman.

Major Thomas followed a certain line in breeding horses, and having been so very successful his views are of much general interest. In a recent interview he said: "Having long since learned that every foal was just a reproduction of some preceding horse or mare in the family to which it belonged, my aim has been to use no mares for raising horses except those which had no stains in their pedigree and traced back through good performers on the turf to an Oriental origin. Tom Bowling was only a few crosses thoroughbred, but he looked the image of his sire, Lexington, and was a grand race horse. None of his five or six brothers looked like Lexington, and not one of them was worth his oats. Suppose the dam had come from a long line of winners. Is it not clear that she might have produced the type of some one of them, and, therefore, make the foal resulting from crossing her with Lexington a greater racing probability? Poor mares may throw one good winner, but they will get ten or fifteen bad ones in the meantime."

Major Thomas began his breeding career on a large scale when he founded Dixiana stud. There he resided for years in a large stone house, which was surrounded by the white painted cottages for the hands, the place presenting from the road the picture of a Swiss village. Over the gateway hung a unique sign which warned off peddlars and agents, and the last line read: "Nothing but a good race horse wanted here." In one of his attacks of illness he sold his beautiful estate and moved to his present city residence. He transferred his horses to another farm, which he called Hiravilla, and which is still his property.

Major Thomas will always live in turf history as one of the most striking characters. He is regarded as the sage of the turf to-day, and has always been consulted on matters of turf legislation when of great importance. He first devised the scheme of having the numbers on the program correspond with the number on the jockey's arm. He has bred scores of great horses outside of Himyar and Domino, and some of the mares he raced in other hands proved very famous producers, notably Lady Reel, the dam of Hamburg. It is said that he sold Maud Hampton, after she had produced Ban Fox, King Fox and King Thomas, for the highest price ever paid for an American brood mare, but at J. B. Haggin's request, the amount was never made public, that California millionaire having been the purchaser.

He still owns one of the most valuable broodmares in the world in Quesal, who last year had out three fine stake winners in Tommy Atkins, Trumpet and Maximo Gomez. It is very rare that three performers out of the same mare each win stakes in a single season, and it is doubtful if any mare in one year ever before had a two, three and four year old stake winner at the same time.

Though never at one time owning a great number of mares, and hardly ever over two stallions in service, Major Thomas' success as a breeder is truly remarkable. He has bred forty stars, which have won $5000 or over, and such other noted performers as Aureola, best two-mile heat racer in her day; Herzog, first horse to run a mile better than 1:44; Hildlight, who lowered the 1-3-16 mile record; Queen Ban, who beat Miss Woodford; Rosary, at one time holder of the five-furlong record; Sir Himyar, beaten a nose in 1½ miles in 2:07½, the world's record when made, and White, who ran a dead heat with Los Angeles in the Latonia Derby of 1888.

Major Thomas is the only breeder in Kentucky that ever bred two unbeaten two year olds, neither Domino nor French Park being defeated at that age, and the latter was never beaten. He has always made it a rule never to buy a mare, no matter how cheap, if she lacked any of the prerequisites he believed necessary to secure her success in the stud. The results he attained are startling, as he is the only man whose establishment has turned out winners of all the big classic events in the East for two year olds. The Futurity, Great American, Great Eclipse, Great Trial, Produce, Saratoga, Kentucky, Double Event, Junior Championship and Matron Stakes and the Great Eastern Handicap have all fallen to colts bred by him.

SADDLE NOTES.

Dr. Thos. Hagyard, veterinary surgeon for the Elmendorf Stud, died Thursday afternoon of rheumatism of the heart at Elmendorf. Dr. Hagyard was one of the most skillful veterinary surgeons of this country. His two brothers are also surgeons, Dr. E. W. Hagyard being now at the late Marcus Daly's Bitter Root Farm, while Dr. J. Hagyard is a practicing surgeon in Lexington, Ky.

Goodwin Brothers announce that the publication of "Winning Stallions" has been discontinued on account of lack of support.

The crack English jockey, Sammy Loates, was not greatly impressed with the racing he saw in California if the following statement made by him to a New York reporter is correct: "My impressions of racing here were gathered while on the Pacific Coast," he said, "and so I am not qualified to speak of racing in the East. Of course, there is a difference in the tracks here and in England. Over there we race on the turf, while here your tracks seem to be sand, and sometimes mud. The races I witnessed were not so exciting as those in England. In the first place, out there the stakes were not high, and the horses not the best. I understand that it is different in this vicinity."

William Duke, who will probably draw the highest pay of any trainer in England, was a passenger on a steamer which left New York for England last week. Duke is under contract to Sir John Thursby Salisbury. Sir Thursby has at present fifteen horses in his string, and according to Duke has several other good ones in view. "Sir John," said Duke, "is a liberal gentleman. He has offered to spend $50,000 for horses, if I pass on them." Duke has a record of thirty-three wins last season with seven horses. Enoch Wishard, who heads the list, won fifty-four races with thirty-three horses.

Mr. W. O'B. McDonough had an unique experience at Tanforan last Monday. His colt Beau Ormonde started in a six and a half furlong race for three year olds against a field which he appeared to hold safe. The colt was wretchedly handled by N. Turner, who was in the saddle, but finally got up in the last stride. The judges called it a dead heat between Beau Ormonde and Invictus, and on further consideration allowed a claim of foul against Beau Ormonde, placing him last.

Invictus showed wonderful and startling improvement in Monday's race at Tanforan. On Saturday last with Burns in the saddle he was a hot favorite, and though off in the lead showed no speed and was beaten off. On Monday he was piloted with J. Daly who certainly does not class with Burns and showed great speed leading a good field to the wire.

The first mare bred to Hamburg after his arrival in Kentucky was Black Venus by imp. Kantaka, dam Queenio by Himyar.

Jockey Tony Hamilton will sail shortly for England, where he will ride the coming season. He has not yet secured an engagement, but will no doubt secure mounts.

Jockey Ural, one of the leading jockeys in the early '80's and contemporary with McLaughlin, Donohue, Hayward and Barbee, was found dead in a barn on Gravesend avenue, Sheephead Bay, on February 14th, and his remains will be buried by The Jockey Club. Ural rode for the late G. L. Lorillard and piloted to victory such horses as Greenland and Reveller.

Ingleside will be opened in all probability one week from to-day.

If you did not send in a name for your two year old by March 1st (yesterday), it will cost you $50 for your procrastination.

The English Sportsman confirms the report that the Duke of Devonshire will lease the race horses of King Edward VII., for 1901. These number fourteen and they will, it is stated, be run in the name and under the colors of the Duke in all their engagements.

The first important three year old event of the year was the Washington's Birthday Handicap, one mile and an eighth, value $2385, which was run at Tanforan last Friday. This event was looked forward to with great interest as it was supposed that from its result a line could be obtained on the probable starters for the California Derby. Owing to the bad condition of the track the outcome was rather disappointing and the race did not appear to be a true run one. Articulate endeavored to make a runaway race of it and was in front throughout until the eighth pole was reached where he was passed by Telamon, who won with ease by two lengths. Canmore was a bad third. Telamon's race showed startling improvement over some of his late essays.

Charlie Thorpe was seen in the saddle on Washington's birthday. He had the mount on Brutal in the stake race, but failed to finish inside the money.

The attendance at both tracks on Washington's Birthday was very large, and the bookmakers had their hands full in attending to the wants of their numerous patrons.

Barrack seems to have gotten into shape and is commencing to show some of the form which he displayed last summer at Chicago, when he defeated such high class horses as Advance Guard, Zoroaster and Ban-nockburn. His race at Tanforan last Friday was won with ridiculous ease.

Earl Islington made his first appearance on the track since his retirement a year ago, and was well supported at fifties, as he was reported to have been working very fast at Ingleside. Off well, he was running easily in third position when he was seen to falter and fall out of the running; at the three-eighths pole his jockey dismounted and led him back to the stand on three legs. His trainer said it was doubtful if he would ever face the barrier again.

Sea Lion has proved to be quite a useful horse for Bookmaker Caesar Young. Since coming into Mr. Young's hands he has won several selling events, besides annexing the George Washington Handicap and the Palace Hotel Stakes.

The San Mateo Handicap at Tanforan Park was an easy thing for Waring, who, with 120 lbs. in the saddle, galloped in front throughout and won with his ears pricked. Imperious showed sudden and startling improvement and finished in the place. Wyoming was third four lengths away.

Burns & Waterhouse had bad luck again in the Palace Hotel Handicap. Favonius was weighted out of it and Bangor sulked, which resulted in the B. & W. stable only gaining second and third money, the long end of the purse going to Sea Lion.

The substitution of Lee for Buchanan on Vohicer by the judges at Tanforan last Saturday worked a hardship on those bettors who had backed Vohicer. This horse, with a hustling rider such as Buchanan had a chance to finish in the money, but with a weak boy like Lee figured to run last. In changing jockeys it should be obligatory on the judges to put up a boy of at least equal ability to the one removed.

At the Traps.

The formal opening of the trap shooting season on the Ingleside grounds is scheduled for to-morrow with both live bird and inanimate target shooting. The California Wing Club and the Union Gun Club will each hold their initial shoot for the season of 1901. The target section of the grounds is in excellent condition. The improvements being put in the live bird grounds will be completed and the underground trapping system in readiness for the shooters.

On Washington's Birthday a blue rock shoot took place at Ingleside. A number of practice ten bird events were shot and several pool events at ten and fifteen targets. Among the shooters present were C. C. Nauman, A. J. Webb, M. O. Feudner, Edg. Forster, Gene Forster, Pete Walsh, "Slade," M. H. Iverson, E. Feudner, Otto Supe, L. Leach, H. Kerrison, Tom Lewis, Fred King, S. Sylvester, C. E. Englehart and Walter Davis. The average of scores was excellent.

The California Wing Club has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Dr. S. E. Knowles, President; Edw. Donohoe, Vice-President; C. C. Nauman, Secretary, the Board of Directors is composed of the officers and Chas. H. Shaw, Otto Feudner and Frank Vernon.

The club program for the year comprises six monthly shoots, each taking place on the first Sunday of a month, the initial shoot for the season will take place at Ingleside to-morrow. Five shoots will be at fifteen pigeons. The final shoot will be at twenty-five pigeons. All shooters will stand at the thirty-yard mark, instead of the twenty-eight yard line as was the practice heretofore. Five elegant prizes valued at $150, will be given to the five high guns at the end of the season. Two years ago the club had three prizes for the season's shoot, last year another trophy was added and this season it was determined that it would be a pleasing move for the members to offer an additional trophy.

Peter J. Walsh was elected to membership at the last meeting of the club.

The San Francisco Gun Club announce the following trap shooting events for Ingleside this season:

The blue rock program comprises six monthly club shoots at twenty-five targets, each shoot taking place on the second Sunday of the month; the first meeting will take place on March 10th. A handsome medal will be awarded the high average gun and $150 will be distributed in cash prizes. The other shooters who have competed in the six club shoots will be divided into four classes after the final shoot. High gun in each class shall receive $20.00 and second high gun $10.00. The classification will be made as follows: After the final shoot a list of members who have competed in the six club shoots will be made, beginning with the highest score, down to the lowest. The number of names on the list will then be divided into four equal parts, and the first and second high gun in each of the resulting classes shall be declared winners of the cash prizes. Targets will be trapped to members for one cent apiece in all events excepting pool shoots.

The live bird program comprises six monthly club shoots held on the fourth Sunday of the month. The first shoot will take place on March 24th. Five shoots will be at fifteen birds and the final shoot will be for twenty-five pigeons, making a total of 100 birds.

A diamond medal will be the trophy awarded the high gun for the season. The classification of the other shooters into four classes is similar to the blue rock division. High guns in each class will receive $30 and second high gun $20. All live bird shooters will stand at the thirty-yard mark.

Club shoots will start promptly at 10 A. M. No entries will be received after 10:30 A. M. Any member missing two consecutive shoots will have to withdraw from the club matches. The winners of the high average medals will not participate in the division of cash prizes. The sum of $400 will be distributed in cash and prizes among the winning club members.

The Union Gun Club has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Fritz Walpert, President; M. J. Iverson, Vice President; Wm. Janssen, Secretary-Treasurer; C. M. Wollam, Captain.

The Empire Gun Club announces that both the "Yellowstone" championship trophy and Schumacher handicap trophy will be placed in open competition again this season. The former prize must be shot for seven times, at twenty-five targets, $1 entrance. 50% entrance money to go to side pool, two moneys 60% and 40%. Trophy winner barred from pool. Three back scores can be shot up during the season. Second high gun will get 60% and third high gun 40% of the pool money.

The Schumacher trophy conditions are seven shoots at twenty targets—ten singles and five pair doubles—distance handicap, entrance 75 cents. Winner of trophy will not share pool in the pool made up of 20% of the entrance money divided into 60% and 40%.

These trophy shoots are open to all, the first comencing to-morrow, the last shoot taking place on September 8th.

During the Empire Club shooting season targets will be trapped to all comers at one cent per bird. The regular club program will be issued next week.

Harold Money of Oakland, N. J., a member of the Carteret club of Garden City, L. I., and the youngest son of Capt. A. W. Money, the veteran trap shooter, won the amateur pigeon shooting championship of America from a field of 17 contestants at the Carteret Gun club's grounds, New York, on the 22d inst. with a score of 88 killed out of a possible 100.

Later a miss-and-out contest for $15 entrance was instituted, to which the club added a prize of a $100 silver cup. The new amateur champion was put on the 33-yard mark and had to concede two, three and four yards to some of the men whom he had just beaten. McAlpin, who was on the 31-yard mark, and Dan Bradley, who was on a similar mark, had to play second and third to the young fellow at the finish. Money killed 17, while McAlpin ran second with 16, Bradley 15 and Painter 15, the other 12 men falling by the wayside.

Cartridge and Shell.

Harvey McMurphy arrived from the East this week and will shake hands with his fellow sportsmen who frequent Sportsman's Row. He will remain in this city about a month.

The California Coyote Club will re-organize this month. The club will change their kennel quarters from Pinole to Haywards where commodious kennels will be constructed for a pack of twenty-five dogs. The club recently received from Kentucky a grand brood bitch and splendid hunter, she is from the famed Jack Shepard stock. The club members invariably follow coyotes and wildcats on foot. The new section selected for the club hunting ground is too rough a country for following the quarry on horseback. The farmers also, are averse to the riding hunter, because they fear the use of the convenient wire-nippers in making a quick passage through a barb wire fence when it bars the hunter's course in following a hot trail. Mr. K. Quinan, an enthusiastic club member will shortly leave for South America to assume a lucrative position with the De Beers Explosive Company. The regular club hunts will be resumed shortly. Coyote pelts are not taken except in the fall and winter months, the tail will be the trophy this summer. The summer crop of tails will be used to ornament rugs made of coyote or cat skins secured in the colder months when the furs are in good condition.

A club hunt is carried out after the following plan. The start is made at 8 A. M., the animals sought being nocturnal in their habits are then in their lairs. Upon arriving at the gulch or canyon to be hunted, the captain posts his men on the ridges at agreed upon or understood locations compatible with safety and a chance for a shot at the fleeing animal. After the men are posted each hunter signals to the master of the hunt with one horn blast. The captain signals back; the master of the hounds then turns the dogs loose and they immediately "feather" the ground. If they jump the quarry, their giving tongue will warn the posted men to be on qui vive. When a kill is made by a rifle shot, the signal is two horn blasts. If the chase escapes over the ridge or out of gun range the hounds are called back by three horn blows. The signal for danger or injury is a series of short consecutive blasts or rifle shots. Capt. Selfridge who was badly injured by a fall two months ago is out again thoroughly recovered and ready to join in the next club hunt. Coyote hunting is rapidly gaining favor in many parts of the State as an exciting and enjoyable sport.

How Wild Animals Sleep.

The students of animals in search of information concerning the habits of wild beasts might travel around the globe before finding better opportunities to study the fierce creatures of jungle and prairie than right here in the heart of New York. It might be argued in defense of the dangers courted by the naturalist who seeks the wild animals in their natural haunts that the creatures are never the same in activity, and the data derived from close observation of a menagerie of animals would hardly apply to the wild creatures in their natural habitat; but the study of the animals in captivity furnishes a great deal of information.

When the night falls the inhabitants of the woods and jungles undergo a change. The great night prowlers yawn and stretch their limbs and emit howls and screeches that startle the echoes of the forest. The shy, timid creatures huddle closer together on the tree limbs or burrow in their holes in the ground or rotten tree trunk to hide from their natural enemies. They know from instinct and experience that the great animal hunters are abroad, and from the intense darkness of the woods a great hulking form may at any moment dart forth upon them. So these timid little animals and birds huddle together and sleep with one eye open. It would be courting danger to slumber otherwise, and scarcely can a twig snap or a leaf fall from the tree without attracting attention.

In captivity these peculiar characteristics of the wild animals and birds are not entirely lost. In fact some of them are so fixed in the very nature of the creatures that they are handed down for several generations to those born in captivity. It is undoubtedly true that continued captivity gradually blunts and dulls the keen instincts and hunting and fighting intelligence of the wild forest inhabitants. The power with which these creatures resist this leveling influence of captivity is much greater in some cases than in others, and it would seem as if they would never grow accustomed to their new kind of life or lose the keen senses which nature gave to them.

The difference in the animals is particularly noticeable in the creatures of the Central Park menagerie or at the Bronx Zoological Garden. Because of the more confined quarters of the former there is better opportunity to study the animals at night time. Then it is that primal instincts assert themselves. Oftentimes the new captive which remained dull and dormant through the quiet hours of the day will rouse itself and become bold, daring and crafty in the dark. The staring crowds of visitors through the long day intimidated it, but now, under the sheltering darkness of night it becomes again the ferocious beast of prey, and with the odor of other animals filling the menagerie its hunting spirit becomes dominant. For a long time it may lay stretched on the bottom of the cage, with eyes and ears alert, watching and listening eagerly for strange sounds or noises. Many times a new occupant of the menagerie has made the nights hideous for weeks at a time by its outcries and restless walking up and down.

Great care is taken both at the Zoo and the park menagerie not to frighten the animals after dark, and all spectators are turned away before sundown. Then the animals are given their evening meal, and this induces them to go to sleep peacefully. Just now while in their winter quarters the animals retire early. It is dark in the menagerie houses by 5:30, and by 6 most of the creatures have finished their evening meals and are spread out for their night's rest. All is quiet in the great cages. The lions and tigers stretch themselves out flat on their cage floors, showing the small indifference to danger that they do in the jungle, and their slumbers are usually peaceful and heavy. Recently an attempt was made to take flash light pictures of the sleeping animals in the menagerie, and the sudden flash of light so disturbed them that in a few moments half of them were roaring or screeching in their cages. The lions and tigers alone seemed to sleep through the tumult, apparently unmindful or unconscious of the whole noise. There is something odd or peculiar about the sleep of the tigers or lions, and even in the day time they may frequently be found slumbering in their cages.

The bears are also heavy sleepers, but they are less disposed to seek slumber in the day time, although occasionally they will curl up and rest. The big grizzly bears in the outside cages in the park invariably curl up under the rocks, which supply them with the only resemblance to a cave. Sometimes they crawl up to the very top of the rocks, and with front paws spread around the iron cage bars go to sleep in what seems an uncomfortable and perilous position. But bears never relax their muscular grasp of any object when asleep. The black bears will curl up among the branches of a tree when they have the opportunity and go to sleep in this peculiar position. In their native haunts this is a common habit with the black bears. The big white polar bears of the park simply curl themselves up on the rocky bottom of their outdoor cage and go to sleep without thought of fear. They show a peculiarity in the selection of their sleeping place characteristic of nearly all the captive animals. They select one particular corner of the cage for sleeping, and invariably they seek this out for every night's rest. This corner seems more like home to them, and they sniff around the whole cage before they are finally satisfied that it is the right place for their night's rest.

The high-strung, nervous animals are the most interesting to watch at night time. They usually belong to the hunted tribes, whose lives are in constant danger in the forest, and they possess such a highly developed nervous system that they really sleep with one eye open. They never seem to lose themselves in slumber so that an enemy could steal upon them unawares. The slightest noise will instantly awaken them, and even in the park menagerie this instinct of self-preservation is clearly shown. The prairie wolves merely seem to close their eyes for an instant, and then open them again to see if all is quiet. Many vain efforts have been made to photograph these animals by flashlight at night time, and every time revealed the fact that one eye at least was partly open. Some time ago one photographer who had secured permission to photograph the animals at night time waited a full hour in breathless silence for an opportune moment to photograph the prairie wolves. When the pictures were developed the animals had both eyes open. Usually when noises disturb these creatures they jump up and run around their cage, or stand alert, ready for instant action.

Many of the animals in the menagerie do not have the opportunity to select their natural sleeping places, and hence their positions are not indicative of their true preference. Thus the porcupine tribe in the park are forced to sleep in their cages the best way they can, but up in the Zoo they climb into the branches of a tree, and then curl themselves up in a round ball and go to sleep. In this position nothing but a bristling wall of sharp quills is presented to the outside world, and the quills make an unpleasant mouthful for any beast of the woods.

The day sleepers in the menagerie are for some reason the heaviest slumberers of all, and when they close their eyes in early morning they seem almost as stupid as if drugged. Both eyes are closed and every sense of faculty seems dormant. Danger in many forms could creep upon the creatures, and they would never be aware of it. Even when violently aroused from their day slumbers they do not instantly regain their faculties, but appear stupid and only half awake. This is in marked contrast to most of the light night sleepers, which on the approach of danger are instantly awake and on the alert. Before one could put a hand through the iron bars to touch one, an instinct would warn it of danger and it would leap away or stand on the defensive ready to bite or scratch the offending hand. Thus in a way the natural instincts of their wild life are kept alive in captivity, and these senses are only dulled through many generations of cage life. —New York Evening Post.

The Fly-Casters.

A postponed annual meeting of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club was held on Thursday evening last in the assembly hall of the Mills Building.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected by acclamation: Walter D. Mansfield, President; F. H. Reed, First Vice-President; Col. G. C. Edwards, Second Vice-President; Horace Smyth, Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive Committee elected, which with the officers, composes the Board of Directors, includes J. P. Babcock, H. F. Muller, C. G. Young, J. S. Turner and Edw. Everett.

The announced program of twelve contests for the season of 1901, was by reason of circumstances—the draining and cleansing of Stow lake, etc.—re-arranged and a new schedule of ten contests adopted, the next regular contests taking place at Stow lake early in April, due notice of which will be given by the Secretary. Contests numbers 2 and 3 were counted out. Contest number 4, dated for March 23d and 24th will be held on those dates or sometime in April, the days depending upon the completion of the lake improvements.

The first five contests of the series will be for classification. There will be three re-entries allowed members in which to cast up back scores. The class contests will be five in number, with two re-entries for back scores.

In lure or bait casting the record scores will commence on the sixth contest of the series. After considerable discussion it was agreed to have but one class in this event, the prior contests being set apart for practice. High scoring rods will win.

The rules in vogue for the casting events of 1900 will prevail this season, with the exception of several important changes suggested by the Executive Committee and afterwards adopted.

The Executive Committee is empowered to extend the re-entry limit for cause in the case of individual members.

The method of casting in Event No. 2, accuracy, has been changed to conform to the style practiced by the Chicago Fly-Casting Club and also in Eastern contests. After the first five scoring casts at the forty-five foot buoy the caster will continue with five casts at the second and third buoys, thus making fifteen consecutive casts.

The same rule will apply in the delicacy and accuracy event. This eliminates the making of "dry casts." In the case of a leader or a fly fouling back on the line, the caster will have the opportunity of stopping and clearing his line, but upon resuming his casting must start with the next buoy. In Event No. 3, it was decided to score the cast from the spot where the fly strikes the water in front of the platform on the forward cast. Events 2 and 3 will be cast from the first platform. The other two events from platform number two.

In the long distance event, on the "call off" the caster is allowed but 60 feet of line out. In lure-casting, five consecutive casts will count, commencing at the 60 foot buoy and then one cast each at buoys placed ten feet apart up to 100 feet.

For this season the classification in long distance casting will be—champion class, all members who cast 115 feet or over prior to 1900 and also those who average 102½ feet or over in the first five contests this season. The championship class members last season were Golcher, Lovett, Brotherton, Daverkosen and Everett. The first class standard is over 90 feet and under 102½ feet. The first-class long distance fly-casters last year were Muller, Young, Brooks and Huyck. The standard for the second class is any distance under 90 feet. Battu, Haight, Edwards, Brooks and Foulks were in this class last year. It is safe to presume that several of these gentlemen will easily move up a notch or two this season leaving the honors in this class for a number of promising beginners.

In the accuracy and delicacy event a class has been added. The standard of skill for the three classes is as follows: Champion class, 90% or over. The members in this division last season were, Mansfield, Young, Lovett, Muller, Golcher and Everett. The first class guage will be under 90% and up to 83%. The members of this section last season were Haight, Huyck, Battu, Daverkosen, Brotherton, Brooks, Foulks, Edwards and Everett. The second class limit comprises all scores under 83%.

The class divisions in the accuracy and delicacy event are the following: Champion class, 82% or over. Mansfield, Golcher, Lovett, Young, Muller, Battu, Daverkosen, Everett and Edwards competed in this class last year. First class, 77% and under 82%. The first class in last year's contests was Brotherton, Huyck, Haight, Foulks, Brooks and Battu. Second class will be filled by all members whose average is under 77%.

Medals will be awarded in the long distance event as heretofore. For the accuracy event and the delicacy event two extra medals will be awarded, thus providing prizes for the winners in the newly created second classes. This will be an encouragement to the new members and also give some of the older casters a chance to gain angling laurels.

The Horace Smyth medal has been generously put in competition again for this season's contests and will be awarded to the member competing in the ten meetings, who shows the greatest average improvement. This standing will be determined by the increase in the sum total of the season's percentages over the sum total of the classification percentages.

There will be three medals in long distance, one for each class. The winners last year were, champion medal, H. C. Golcher, who was high man in his class for the Saturday contests and won the tie from Lovett in the Sunday contests. First class medal winner was H. F. Muller who was high rod for both days throughout the season. Dr. Brooks won the second class medal, winning the tie from H. Battu who was high Saturday contestant.

In the delicacy event the champion class medal winner was W. D. Mansfield, who was dual high rod for the series of 1900. First class medal was won by H. Battu, the week day representative who won the tie from T. W. Brotherton, a Sunday rod welder. G. H. Foulks was awarded the Horace Smyth trophy in 1900.

Prior to the beginning of last year's contests a rule was adopted whereby the then holder of a medal should win the same three times before attaining permanent ownership of the prize. This rule was again adopted for this season but any member who has not yet won a medal will have to win the same but once to retain the prize.

The Saturday and Sunday contests will be conducted on the same basis of averages and percentages as prevailed in the past.

All ties to be cast off in future will be determined by the Executive Committee.

The rules as now adopted and with the amendments briefly listed above will be issued in booklet form as soon as practicable.

A custom which allowed members who were away from the State to be placed on the absent list was revoked by the club after considerable discussion, and hereafter it will be compulsory for every member of the club to pay his dues to retain his membership. This action will be carried out for the purpose of keeping as many active members on the roll as possible. The duties of the treasurer was merged with the secretary's work, the office of second vice-president was created in order to fill out the requisite number of directors.

The meeting was adjourned subject to the call of the Executive Committee. The regular meeting dated for next Tuesday evening has been indefinitely postponed.

Striped Bass Club.

A meeting of the San Francisco Striped Bass Club was held last week. The salt water anglers assembled at the residence of Fred Daverkosen on Bush street and enjoyed a social evening after transacting the regular business of the meeting.

A new club constitution and by-laws was submitted and adopted. The document will soon be printed and issued to the members in pamphlet form.

The Executive Committee will prepare a new set of casting rules.

A "high hook" medal for this season will be given to the member catching the largest striped bass this year. The member holding the same at the close of the fishing season will permanently own the prize.

The club fishing season commences on March 1st and ends on December 1st. All fish caught, by the members, weighing three pounds and over are entitled to official record.

There will be a casting contest held once, on a Sunday, in every two months, followed by a tournament after the fishing season for striped bass is closed. The dates for these events are determined by the Executive Committee, who will, if possible, choose a day which is not looked upon as favorable for fishing. A failure by the committee to catch an unlucky fishing day is liable to end disastrously for the committee members.

A large contingent of the club members propose to inaugurate the season by fishing-in Schultz slough, a tributary of Petaluma creek, to-morrow.

Striped bass are plentiful in the markets; many large fish have been sent in by the net fishermen, some of them going over forty pounds and many splendid fish have been noticed that run over thirty pounds. The large fish are caught in Suisun bay near the mouth of the San Joaquin; this spot is the place where the first fish were liberated after crossing the continent in cans carried on the trains. Most of the bass running now are male fish filled to bursting with milt. Many fish have recently been caught at the mouth of Petaluma creek, below the railroad bridge. Very few fish have been taken with rod and line. Some of our most experienced and skillful anglers have endeavored to get a strike. Every known fishing ground has been tried and a number of unfamiliar waters have been prospected without avail, despite the use of all kinds of lures, baits and tackle. During the last cold spell, striped bass were very scarce. The theory has been advanced that the fish left the bay surface waters; many shallow places around the cold shores were entirely deserted by the bass, and sought the comparatively warmer tempered but deeper waters either in the ocean or San Francisco bay where it was impossible to locate them. The idea seems plausible for as the weather gradually became warmer the fish made their appearance in the old haunts in daily increasing schools. Pete Walsh sent down from Black Point during the week a dozen splendid large fish for distribution among his friends.

Eminent piscatorial honors are not entirely won in the higher ranks of the followers of Walton, as will be noticed by the claim to fame made in creating a new world's record for skinning 540 pounds of whole fish which has been established by Freeman H. Brown, who performed the required work in 43 minutes 50 seconds at Gloucester, Mass., recently. The best previous record was about one hour.

Rain about the middle of the month and then a period of dry weather until the first of April should bring about conditions for the trout angler that would be hard to improve.

KENNEL.

Doings in Dogdom.

Prof. J. Boozelerq Markland asserts that doggy ethics are fractured, when a big fat man leads a thin hungry dog about on a chain.

Great Dano entries for the S. F. Kennel Club show will be well represented by John Love Cunningham, also the Enterpriso and Posen Great Dano Kennels.

Dawson people all go armed with clubs on the streets to protect themselves from the attack of dogs afflicted with rabies, induced by extreme cold. The mad-dog epidemic has increased to such an extent that a general extermination of the canines has been suggested.

Glenwood St. Bernard Kennels, owned by Phil C. Meyer and located in San Mateo, is now the name for the Golden Gate St. Bernard Kennels. The change of name has been granted by the American Kennel Club and the dogs raised henceforth by these kennels will have the prefix Glenwood.

A smart wire-haired young Fox Terrier dog made his advent in this city recently and is temporarily placed at Woodlawn Kennels. He is by Ch. Go Bang out of a Cairnsnuir bitch. His owner purchased him whilst sojourning in the East. He is said by competent judges to be a good one.

Mr. Harold R. Brown recently received from Newmarket Kennels, Montreal, Can., a Bull Terrier dog puppy by Edgewood Dick out of Newmarket Violet, a granddaughter of Ch. Woodcote Wonder by Ch. Little Flyor. The puppy is now five months old and a promising candidate for bench honors.

Woodlawn Kennels under the management of Jack Bradshaw presents to our local fanciers the ideal embodiment of a long felt want in doggy matters. For convenience of location and comfortable fittings for the canines installed in these kennels it is a model, and one would go far to find a superior kennel establishment.

S. Christenson has sold his Bull Terrier bitch Miss Venom by Woodcote Venom II. out of Mr. Clinton E. Worden's Lady Jane to George Mead, of Oakland. Miss Venom won second in puppies at Tanferan. She is destined for a future home in Honolulu. She is a good young bitch and should produce some excellent ones for fanciers in the far Pacific Islands.

Eclipse Blanche, the dam of Lady Mask, arrived in this city from Geo. Bell's Eclipse Kennels, Toronto, on Wednesday, February 20th. Two hours after being delivered at the Woodlawn Kennels, she gave birth to a litter of six puppies, five dogs and a bitch. Blanche and the youngsters are now doing finely. The dam will be seen in the Fox Terrier section at the coming bench show.

Pinehill Cocker Kennels has been reinforced by the arrival of two good red ones from W. T. Payne's kennels, Kingston, Pa. Uncas No. 58,885 (Red Leo-Red Molly) and Bluff Beauty (Black Knight-Flossie). We are advised they reached their Marin county destination in excellent condition and are two very fine little Cockers. They will make their debut at Mechanics' Pavilion in May.

We regret to chronicle a setback to the Coast Bulldog fancy in noting the loss to Leon S. Greenebaum of his Bulldog bitch Gold Nugget, which died on the 22d inst. of pneumonia. She was in whelp to Harry Lacy—both dogs were received from Mr. Harry Lacy, of Boston. Nugget made her initial appearance here at Tanferan, winning second in novice and reserve winners. She was by Webb's Monarch out of Nelly, a brindle and a likely specimen of the breed.

Edgewood Jean, a Bull Terrier bitch Mr. H. H. Simpson, of Alameda, brought out from Mr. Gooderham's Newmarket Kennels, was recently sold for, it is reported, $200. The purchaser is an Eastern fancier. This bitch was badly injured upon her arrival here, and too, while she was heavy in whelp. She is said to have been a first class one in every respect, in fact, John Sparrow, who knows something about the breed, was so well impressed with her that he bought two of her puppies after seeing the dam. He is now more than pleased with the pair.

Mr. Irving C. Ackerman, the young Great Dano fancier, has two puppies, a dog and a bitch, by his prize winning Great Dano Beau Brummel II. that are looked upon as very promising youngsters, particularly the dog, which although only ten months old, is now thirty-two inches in height. These puppies will be benched at the May show and promise to take a lot of beating before lowering their colors to any young ones on the Coast.

Mr. Ackerman will show a Great Dano konnol comprised of Beau Brummel II., Yorik H., the puppies already mentioned and possibly Tholma.

Bruin, a St. Bernard dog belonging to Joseph Baldwin, Bloomfield, N. J., is regarded as a hero by the citizens of that place. Recently there was a fire in the Baldwin stable. The dog gave the alarm by barking and scratching at the door of his masters home. There were two valuable horses in the stable. The dog was very friendly with them and was almost beside itself with excitement until Baldwin broke open the stable door. He managed to release one horse and led it out into the yard, and going back to get its mate, as he reached the doorway he was astonished to see the dog with the dangling end of the rope in his mouth, loading the second horse out through the flames and smoke. Investigation showed that the dog had chewed the rope and released the horse.

Apropos of a sentiment, advanced by a number of fanciers, that local judges could acceptably preside in the ring during the May bench show, Dominick Shannon was mentioned as an eligible for the Fox Terrier judging by several well known admirers of the Fox Terrier. There is more value in this suggestion than might casually appear. Mr. Shannon was a prominent breeder at one time and knows the type thoroughly from the ground up. As the question of expense, etc., has entered largely in the matter of engaging an Eastern judge, the San Francisco Kennel Club bench show committee would not go far out of the way if they threshed out the local crop of available judges—this is suggestive merely. Speaking of local judges Mr. Jack Bradshaw could and would fill the bill for the Greyhound classes.

The kennel press in the East have taken note of the peculiar tactics invariably indulged in by the self-constituted "oracle of dogdom." The situation has been correctly sized up by American Stock-Keeper, a journal of standing and influence, as follows:

"During the off season of bench shows in California, the annual field trials afford the scribes a chance to get after a judge, especially if he is imported. This time it is poor Mr. Johnsen of Winnipeg, Man. The first time he judged he could not have done better if he tried; so one was led to suppose. This time the great disorganizer is after him with one of his characteristic diatribes. The wonder is that dog owners of intelligence will be led by such a halter. Of course any one who knows Mr. Johnston is aware that any criticism of his knowledge of field work from that quarter is regarded as a pastime and in no way seriously."

Pacific Advisory Board.

At the meeting of the American Kennel Club at Madison Square Garden, New York, during the bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club, the Pacific Advisory Board, the Coast representative of the American Kennel Club, was granted, in substance, the following increased authority and jurisdiction:

"Recommended, that the Pacific Advisory Board be accorded authority to act as the agent of the A. K. C. and to receive membership applications, approve show dates, approve classifications, fix the value of winners' classes, receive and transmit listing fees. The position of secretary of the committee to be honorary. All acts of the Board to be subject to appeal to or correction by the American Kennel Club. Carried."

The concession is one of the most important moves hitherto made in regard to Coast kennel matters. The distance to New York, where the governing kennel organization is located, has, with the time required to properly handle matters of immediate importance, been a stumbling block in the speedy and proper adjustment of various subjects of vital interest to local and Coast fanciers.

The personnel of the Pacific Advisory Board is: John E. de Ruyter, chairman; M. C. Allen, H. H. Carlton, A. J. Allen and J. P. Norman, secretary.

California Cocker Club.

The California Cocker Club held a meeting on Tuesday evening, February 19th, at 125 Geary street, San Francisco, J. H. Dorian presiding. Mr. Dorian was elected first Vice-President vice A. Edwards resigned, H. A. Wegener elected second Vice-President and the following Executive Committee chosen: W. C. Ralston, J. H. Dorian, E. C. Plume, H. A. Wegener and Philip C. Meyer. Mrs. E. Colwell and Mr. R. R. Grayson were elected to membership. The new standard of the American Spaniel Club for Cocker Spaniels was adopted. The head of Ch. Woodland Duke (in effigy) was chosen as the emblem of the club.

Cocker circles are all en rapport and arranging for a splendid representation of the breed at the coming May show. The club will make extra efforts for a record entry and propose to offer several valuable specials.

Hardy Alaskan Half Breed Dogs.

Experience has proven that a cross between the Great Dane and "Siwash" dog of Alaska has developed a hardier strain of canines than even the heretofore supposed invincible Malamoot or Esquimaux dog. This latter variety has furnished many tales of the wonderful vitality, endurance and speed possessed by the canine natives of the frozen north in making long and killing journeys in all kinds of weather from point to point in that bleak rendezvous of the gold hunter. A trip recently made by Mr. E. T. Barnett, of Dawson, to White Horse, a distance of 369 miles was covered in six days and eight hours by a team of dogs consisting of "Malamoots" and the Great Dane cross above mentioned. One day the thermometer registering 84 degrees below, two Malamoots gave out after going thirty six miles, the cross bred dogs stood the weather and work without showing any distress. They are active and supple and show the best characteristics of both breeds. Their coats are close and thick and but little longer than Great Danes ordinarily have. The Great Dane colors generally prevail in the half breeds. They are very game and great fighters. Mr. Barnett has had five years experience in the Alaskan gold fields and favors these cross bred dogs more than any others, not excepting the native dogs. In 1897 he purchased a team of dogs in Circle City for $2000. These dogs, it was claimed, were a cross between Scotch staghounds and timber wolves, they were bred at a trading post near Hudson Bay.

Breeding for Points Has Changed the Bulldog.

No breed of dog has been so changed through breeding for fancy points as the Bulldog. Originally an animal of great activity and strength, through the condemnation of his original purpose, bull baiting, it has become a mere ponderous accumulation of exaggerated features, which could no more serve him in an encounter with his cousin canine than with his bovine antagonist. The original Bulldog used for bull baiting while possessing much of the outline and character of the dog of to-day, was built on more active lines, and had the necessary strength of jaw and muzzle formation to hold on to the bull's nose while his antagonist thrashed the ground with him. His pluck was proverbial and his indifference to pain was so marked that almost incredible stories are told of the tortures he would submit to before losing his hold on the bull. But to-day the Bulldog is a very mild mannered sort of chap, though many of his old traits are only latent.

The Bulldog is a good example of the old saying about giving a dog a bad name and you might as well bang him. In the minds of the average person every half-bred bull and terrier mongrel that is used for fighting purposes, is termed either a "business" dog or a Bulldog. If one of these curs bites a child or runs amuck, he is generally alluded to in the graphic reports of his doings, as a Bulldog, while, in reality, there is no better tempered, more honest dog in the whole canine race than the Bulldog. If he is savage he does not hide the fact, and both by expression and action he allows it to be known. He is never deceitful. As a friend and guard of the home, he is admirable, and no better dog can be chosen as a playmate for children. Some dogs will resent the unconscious cruelty of very young children, but one could pull a Bulldog both ways at once and he would seem to enjoy it. But he has his sense of dignity and can differentiate between abuse and rough play; therefore he won't stand the whip. As a house dog the Bulldog is eminently suited for either city or country. He is quiet, unobtrusive, nor addicted to barking like the Terrier or the Collie and responds readily to sociability with those around him—he likes notice.

The Bulldog has been wonderfully changed since it became an object of the fancier's attention, until, in the case of many first class show specimens, their points have been so exaggerated that they are little more than cripples.

Owing to his notable pluck and powers of endurance the Bulldog was used in several breeds as a cross to develop more pluck and tenacity. Notably has this been done in the Greyhound and the Terriers, and from him by judicious selection and mating has been produced the handsome white Bull Terrier.

One of, if not the earliest importer of celebrated show Bulldogs to this country was Col. John E. Thayer of Lancaster, Mass., whose kennel was easily supreme during the middle eighties, containing Ch. Britomartis, for which he paid the then record price, $1500, Romulus and other cracks.

Col. Hilton, of Saratoga, New York, was another fancier who later on imported the crack King Orry.

But it was not until the establishment of the Bulldog Club in 1890, at the Boston show, that exhibition kennels became more general, and the unjust prejudice that existed in the idea that the Bulldog was merely fit for the companionship of the corner loafer, began to disappear.

Many fine animals have been imported from England. Among the most noted importations were Champions Bodgebury Lion, His Lordship, Saleni, King Orry, Harper, Pathfinder, and recently Ivel Rustic, Katerfelto, Bromley Crib, Rodney Stone, etc.

Last year the breed made a big jump in general interest and popularity through the importations made by Richard Croker, Jr., and the Vancroft Kennels of Pittsburg, of the best show specimens. Mr. Croker brought over Champions Rodney Stone and Bromley Crib, which cost actually $5000 and $3500, respectively. The latter dog unfortunately died from pneumonia at the beginning of the year. To the Pittsburg Kennels came those grand bitches, Champions Housewife and Lady Dockleaf, and the crack dog, Champion Katerfelto.

Mr. Codman, of Providence has a strong kennel, at the head of which are Champion Glenwood Queen, one of the best bitches in the country, and Glen Menarch.

Mr. Tyler Morse of Boston has also a good kennel. He recently imported a winner in Footpad, and used to own Champion Rustic Sultan. The best specimens of the breed we have seen here recently are Leon S., Greenbaum's Harry Lacy and Geld Nugget.

In describing the breed generally, or as a whole, the salient points which strike the observer are the immense skull, the protruding under jaw, the grotesque facial angle, to be seen in no other breed, the massive neck and the extraordinary disproportion of the girth of the brisket as compared with the waist, the prodigious width of chest, the shortness of body, the reach or "wheel" back, the low set legs, the malformation of tail and the disparity of development between the forepart and the hind, all of which contribute to make the Bulldog an animal of marked individuality.

The head should be of striking massiveness in proportion to the dog's size. It cannot be too large, so long as it is square; that is, it must be as deep as it is wide; it must not be wedge-shaped, peaked or domed. The head of the female is, of course, not so massive. The jaws should be broad, massive, powerful and square, the lower jaw projecting considerably beyond the upper and up into the top lips—this feature being termed "turn-up." When the jaws meet even, or almost, or are overhung, the dog is called "frog-faced" and the formation is a fault. The under teeth should not show. The lips should be broad and thick and are called the "chops." On the thickness of the chop depends the degree of "cushion," an important attribute; the lips should hang well over the bottom jaw and form heavy wrinkles at the corner of the mouth. The teeth should be strong and the lower jaw be wide enough at the point to admit of the front teeth between the tusks! being regular and upright, not straggling and pointed outward as very often is the case. The nose must recede until it almost touches the stop, and should be broad and black with wide open nostrils. This formation is a relic of the old bull baiting days, for with this "layback," the Bulldog was better able to hold his grip and breathe at the same time. A spotted nose, a red nose or split, handicaps the dog very considerably.

The indentation at the junction of the forehead and the muzzle must be very deep and should run into a furrow extending up the forehead, which should be flat and not prominently overhanging the face; the skin covering should be very loose and hang in large wrinkles. The eye should be placed low down in the skull and as far from the ears as possible and wide apart, round and of medium size, neither sunken nor prominent, and very dark. The ears should be set on high, small and thin, and the rose-ear is correct, the back of the ear falling inward and the front edge curving over outward and backward showing part of the inside of the "burr." A good guide to the degree of shortness of face desired is that the length from the inner corner of the eye to the extreme tip of the nose, should not exceed the length from the tip of the nose to the edge of the under lip.

The neck should be broad, massive, moderately short, with a good curve, and have much loose, thick and wrinkled skin about the throat, which forms the dewlap.

The chest is important with its width, depth, roundness and prominence, making the dog look broad and short legged in front. The shoulders are very noticeable and should be broad, thick and deep, very powerful and muscular, but not lumpy, with a formation at elbow which turns the latter unnaturally out.

The brisket should be very deep and capacious and be well let down between the forelegs; it should be large in diameter and round behind the forelegs and reaching into well-rounded ribs, the belly must be tucked up, not pendulous.

The shortness of the back is an important point. It should be broad at the shoulder with a slight drop behind the latter, whence the spine rises in a curve to the loins, which should be higher than the shoulders, giving the roach back.

The tail is set low, juts out rather straight and then turns downward, the end pointing out horizontally; smooth and devoid of coarse hair and fringe, moderate in length and tapering from a thick root to a fine point. It should not be raised over the back at any time. There is also the screw-tail, which is said to be a sign of inbreeding, and, with some owners, is desirable.

The forelegs are stout and short, set wide apart, muscular, with well developed calves, which give them a bowed effect, though the bone should be straight and strong at the pasterns.

The hind legs are longer, with hocks well let down and not bent much, strides long and straight but muscular. The hocks should turn in a little so as to expose the inside edge of stifle. This point was supposed to give power to the dog in crawling up to the bull before the spring for the nose. The feet are round and compact.

The coat should be fine, short, close and smooth. The peculiar formation of the Bulldog gives it a heavy, rolling gait, called the swing, which is caused by a more forward movement of one shoulder.

The most desirable weight for a Bulldog is about 50 pounds, though they often run over 60 pounds. Bitches are smaller. Several weights are provided in the show classifications under and over 45 pounds for dogs and under and over 40 pounds for bitches.

The color of a Bulldog is usually brindle of different shades, red, fawn, and smut (that is a whole color with black muzzle), white, with their varieties, then the pied and mixed colors. Black and tan is very objectionable, but black and brindle is allowable, but not so fashionable as the other colors.

The breed is a difficult one to raise and breed, and for this reason puppies of good stock command high prices, and no good show dog can be had for less than $300 to $500 or more. Some kennels have been known to breed bulls for years without succeeding in raising a pup.

J. H. Mullins, owner of the noted Bridge Kennels of Bulldogs, New York, lost by death on Thursday night February 14th, the imported dog King Crib, valued at $1,500 and the winner of many prizes. Within a few months of this importation the death of Bromley Crib and King Crib so soon after, is a blow to the admirers of the Crib strain in the breed. Usually the Bulldog is very tenacious of life and King Orry, Handsome Dan, the Yale mascot, and other old dogs have made friends with thousands at successive shows. "Hard to breed, but long to last," is what old fanciers say of the Bulldog.

California Dairies.

The dairy interests of California are by no means insignificant. In the year just passed there were 28,782,859 pounds of butter made from California cows, and that product was worth $6,360,054. The cheese manufactured in the State was 4,989,900 pounds, worth $503,986. There was produced from the dairies 66,302 cases of condensed milk, worth $276,558. There was sold by the milkmen and dealers for consumption milk and cream to the value of $5,567,462. In addition to the direct product in milk and the butter and cheese made the calves from the dairy cows were valued at $1,293,276 and the value of hogs produced on dairies and creameries were $1,492,236. This gives a total value of dairy products as compiled by the State Dairy Bureau of $15,493,272 for the year 1900, which is an increase of 2,215,647 over the output of the previous year.

There are now 317 creamery plants in operation in the State using upwards of 553 centrifugal milk separators. The total number of dairy cows in the State is given by the Bureau as 298,868.—Sacramento Bee.

In the Pacing Race $500 will go to the winner, $250 to second, $150 to third and $100 to fourth.

ENTRANCE AS FOLLOWS: $5 to nominate March 25, 1901, $10 December 2, 1901, when color and sex of foal must be given. Nothing more till June 2d of year of race, and all foals on which payments (of $10 each) are made December 2, 1901, will be eligible to start either as two-year-olds or three-year-olds, or in both years (if conditions that follow are complied with), no payment being due in 1903 from those not wishing to start till 1904. Those expecting to start two-year-olds must, on June 2, 1903, name and describe their entries, and pay on each a forfeit of $15, and as many may be named as the owner desires to keep in. Thirty days before meeting, those who desire to start in trotting race shall pay $30 on each entry they then keep in, and those who desire to start in pacing race shall pay $10 each; on starters in trotting $30, and on pacers $15, must be paid by 7 o'clock on evening before race. Those desiring to start three-year-olds must, on June 2, 1904, name and describe as in the two-year-old event and pay on each a forfeit of $35; thirty days prior to the meeting on each of those to start $35 must be paid, and on starters $70 must be paid by 7 o'clock on evening before the race.

The Two-year-old races will be mile heats, two in three; but the three-year-olds will trot mile heats three in five.

A distanced horse's money will go to the first horse; but if fewer than three start in a race, those starting and the winner's dam will receive only what each would have received had three been placed.

Rules of American Trotting Association to govern. If a mare proves barren, or slips, or has a dead foal or twins, or if either the mare or foal dies before December 2, 1901, her nominator may substitute another mare and foal, regardless of ownership; but there will be no return of a payment, nor will any entry be liable for more than the amount paid in. In entries the name, color and pedigree must be given, also the name of the horse to which she was bred in 1900. Send entries to

W. P. JAMS, Pres. CHAS. R. DUFFIN, Sec'y.

Terre Haute, Indiana.

Stakes for 2:28, 2:20 and 2:15 trot; 2:25, 2:18 and 2:14 pace for September meeting, together with purses for July meeting to be announced later.

FOR SALE.

I Have for Sale on my Ranch near Salinas about

Seventy-Five Head of Highly-Bred Horses, Mares, Yearlings and Colts.

I will sell them all together or any number of them. All are finely-bred and most of the mares are stunted to some of the best horses in the country. Below I give a list of some of the mares and the horses by which they are in foal. I would greatly prefer selling them in a body and would give a great bargain to anyone who would buy them or even one-half of them. I am selling these animals on account of my age as I am now eighty-seven years old, and too old to be bothered with race horses. These animals are now running out on my ranch about seven miles from town. It is a very large ranch and I could not get them up without a day or two's notice and would not like to be asked to get them up unless a man wanted to buy at least eight or ten. Anyone wishing to start a good stock farm can do no better than to buy my entire band or a portion of them.

Kentucky Futurity $21,000 Fee $5 Per Mare. Closes March 15th.

Opened by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association for the 1901 produce of mares, nominated March 15, 1901, or their substitutes, as provided hereafter, to be contested in 1903 and 1904, in THREE DIVISIONS, as follows:

$14,000 for 3-year-old Trotters. Divided: First, $10,000. Second, $2,000. Third, $1,000. Fourth, $500. The original nominators of dams of first four colts to receive, respectively, $300, $100, $75 and $25.

$5,000 for 2-year-old Trotters. Divided: First, $3,000. Second, $1,000. Third, $500. Fourth, $300. The original nominators of dams of first four colts to receive, respectively, $150, $75, $50 and $25.

$2,000 for 3-year-old Pacers. Divided: First, $1,000. Second, $500. Third, $300. Fourth, $200.

ENTRANCE, $5, to accompany nomination of mare March 15, 1901, when her name, color, pedigree, and name of horse she was bred to in 1900 must be given; $10, DEC. 1, 1901, when color and sex of foal must be given, and if a nominated mare has no living foal on that date, her nominator may substitute another mare and foal, regardless of ownership. No further payment until June 1st of year of race. No payment required on two-year-olds not intended to start until three-year-olds.

A payment of $25 is due June 1, 1903, on each two-year-old trotter expected to start in the two-year-old division. September 1, 1903, a payment of $50 is due, and a starting fee of $100 must be paid by seven o'clock of evening before race.

A payment of $50 is due June 1, 1904, on each three-year-old (trotter or pacer) then kept in. September 1st, a payment of $50 on each trotter and of $25 on each pacer is due, and a starting fee of $250 on trotters and of $25 on pacers must be paid before seven o'clock of evening before the respective races, which will both be mile heats, three-in-five.

A distanced horse's money goes to the first horse, but if less than four start, those starting and the placed horses' dams will receive only what each would have received had four been placed. National Association Rules, in force when races are called, to govern. No hopped horses allowed to start. Right reserved to reject any entry we do not want.

Address nominations to Secretary. Mail same on or before March 15th. Make remittances in New York or Chicago exchange, postoffice or express money order.

Our Fixed Events Close June 1.

ELECTIONEER NUTWOOD NEERNUT 2:12 1-4

Sire of NEERETTA 2:09 1-2

By Albert W. 2:20, son of Electioneer.

Dam Clytie 3d, by Nutwood 2:18 3-4.

Will make the season of 1901 Fridays and Saturdays — at —

Los Angeles Race Track.

Balance of the time at Santa Ana.

Neernut was foaled in 1891, and the great race mare Neeretta 2:09 1/4 is his first foal to race. She was the champion four year old filly of 1899, getting a record of 2:11 1/4 that year, which she reduced the following year to 2:09 1/4. Neernut's oldest colts are coming six and weighs 1100. He trots without boots, weights or the two greatest trotting families in the world. He combines the blood of the years old. He is a blood bay, 15 1/2 hands high, hopped and is fast and game, having a record of 2:14 in a sixth heat. For further particulars and tabulated pedigrees, address

GEO. W. FORD,
Santa Ana, Cal.

BOODLE 2:12 1-2.

Sire of Ethel Downs 2:10, Thompson 2:14 1-2 and four others.

Will stand for service at the

CORALIETOS STOCK FARM

(Eight miles north of Gilroy).

FEE $50.

Return privilege, in case mare fails to get with foal, provided we still own the horse. Good pasturage at $3 per month. Not responsible for accidents or escapes. Mares will receive the best of attention. BOODLE possesses all the qualifications desirable in a stallion. Considering the number of his colts that have been trained, no stallion has ever made a better showing as a sire. Mares may be sent to San Martin by S. P. R. R. Send for tabulated pedigree.

Mr. B—, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

By the percentage of his performers in the 2:15 list McKinney is the champion sire of the world. At 13 years of age he has 30 standard performers, one-half of which are in the 2:15 list.

A Race Horse Himself.

He started in 25 races, won 25 of them, was twice second and once third.

He is a Sire of Race Horses.

Every one of his get in the 2:30 list recorded the record in a race, and all are race winners.

He is a champion in the show ring, champion on the race track and a champion in the stud.

In 1891 his get won first, second and fourth money in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, first and second money in the Occident Stake and first, second and third money in the Stanford Stake. The McKinneys are stake winners. Will make the season of 1901 at

SAN JOSE RACE TRACK.

Beginning Feb. 1st. until further notice.

Breed to Monterey 2:09 1-4. No. 31706.

Champion Trotting Stallion of California.

Sired by Sidney 2:19 1/4, who outranks all California stallions, except Guy Wilkes, as a sire of extreme speed, having 17 to his credit in 2:15 and better, 26 in 2:20, 93 in the list, and sire of Lenna N. 2:05 1/4, Monterey 2:09 1/4 and Dr. Leek 2:09 1/4—three better than 2:10.

First dam Hattie, dam of Montana 2:16 1/4 and Monterey 2:09 1/4, by Com. Belmont 4310, sire of 6 in list, and the dams of Iago 2:11, Fell Fare 2:10 1/4, Monterey 2:09 1/4, Galette 2:12, Dr. Spellman 2:13 1/4.

Second dam Barona by Woodford Mambrino 2:21 1/4 (sire of Abbotsford 2:19 1/2 and 12 others, and the dams of Kremlin 2:07 1/4, Bonnatella 2:10 and others) son of Mambrino Chief 11.

Third dam Miss Gratz by Alexander's Norman 25, sire of Lula 2:12, May Queen 2:20 and others.

Fourth dam daughter of old Gray Eagle, thoroughbred.

Monterey won 13 races, and he is the only horse I ever saw make Geers lay the whip on the peerless Abbot 2:03 1/4 to win the 4th and 5th heats in 2:08 and 2:10 in the free for all at Glens Falls in 1899, and Monterey was right on his neck. Monterey also got third money in the great stallion race at New York that year, Bingen 2:09 1/4 and others being distanced. Monterey won the western Stallion Stake and a $400 silver cup presented by President Henry J. Crocker for horse making fastest mile at Tanforan meeting in 1900.

Monterey weighs 1300 lbs., is 15.3 hands high. TERMS $50 FOR THE SEASON ending July 1st, 1901. All bills payable not later than June 31st, 1901. Usual return privileges for mares not in foal. THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

Once more proved its right to the title, at the GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP of 1900.

First, H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
Second, J. J. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
Third, Phil. Daly Jr., with 51 straight kills.
He used the "Old Reliable" Parker.

Also, as the official record show, 50 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers, 37.5 per cent of all guns winning money were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world. Send for catalogue.

Shooters Take Notice!

Nobel's Sporting Ballistite

is a perfect powder for TRAP AND GAME SHOOTING, safe and sure, smokeless, waterproof, has great velocity, practically no recoil, does not injure or foul the gun barrels and will keep in ANY CLIMATE, ANY LENGTH OF TIME.

For Trap and Field Shooting

NOBEL'S SPORTING BALLISTITE is the ideal powder on account of its velocity and great penetration: it is superior to any other powder as it kills on the spot. No chance for a duck, when hit, to escape by diving or flying. Give it a trial, that is all we ask.

Ballistite is quick as lightning, gives perfect pattern and for cleanliness no other powder is equal to it. Shells loaded with this powder can be obtained from all Cartridge Companies, Gun and Ammunition Dealers, or from us.

$2,000 for 3-year-old Pacers. Divided: First, $1,000. Second, $500. Third, $300. Fourth, $200.

ENTRANCE, $5, to accompany nomination of mare March 15, 1901, when her name, color, pedigree, and name of horse she was bred to in 1900 must be given; $10, DEC. 1, 1901, when color and sex of foal must be given, and if a nominated mare has no living foal on that date, her nominator may substitute another mare and foal, regardless of ownership. No further payment until June 1st of year of race. No payment required on two-year-olds not intended to start until three-year-olds.

A payment of $25 is due June 1, 1903, on each two-year-old trotter expected to start in the two-year-old division. September 1, 1903, a payment of $50 is due, and a starting fee of $100 must be paid by seven o'clock of evening before race.

A payment of $50 is due June 1, 1904, on each three-year-old (trotter or pacer) then kept in. September 1st, a payment of $50 on each trotter and of $25 on each pacer is due, and a starting fee of $250 on trotters and of $25 on pacers must be paid before seven o'clock of evening before the respective races, which will both be mile heats, three-in-five.

A distanced horse's money goes to the first horse, but if less than four start, those starting and the placed horses' dams will receive only what each would have received had four been placed. National Association Rules, in force when races are called, to govern. No hopped horses allowed to start. Right reserved to reject any entry we do not want.

Address nominations to Secretary. Mail same on or before March 15th. Make remittances in New York or Chicago exchange, postoffice or express money order.

JOTTINGS.

TWO GOOD PROSPECTS for the races this year are pictured on our front page this week. The photos from which the engravings were made were taken last Sunday in front of Ed Lafferty's stables, at 1424 Sherman street, Alameda. Boydello 2:14½ is in the stud, but will only be allowed to serve a limited number of mares, as it is intended to campaign him again this year. The sprained ankle, received in his first and only race last season seems to have entirely recovered and if it shows no signs of lameness when fast miles are asked of this grandson of Electioneer, he should win a fair share of the races in his class on the California circuit and get a mark of 2:10 or better, as he is certainly a very fast horse. He is a finely proportioned stallion, and one of the most intelligent and best dispositioned horses ever seen. Few horses have more brains in their head than Boydello, and that is a very important qualification for a stock horse in our humble opinion. The other engraving portrays a colt that attracts attention in any company. He is a bay, with his near hind foot and ankle white and has one of the shortest of backs, as well as nicely turned quarters and loins. He has plenty of muscle, good bone and possesses both quality and substance. His head is one of the sensible kind and he shows it in every action. Lafferty has had this youngster but a few weeks, and has never asked him for speed as yet, but believes from the way he handles himself that he possesses a generous amount of that necessary commodity. This colt was bred and raised by Geo. Fox, of Clements, and is by Silver Bow 2:16, dam Grace (dam of Daedalion 2:11, Creole 2:15 and Eagle 2:19½) by Buccaneer. Grace is a half sister to Lettie, that is also the dam of three in the list, namely Welcome 2:10½, Wayland W. 2:12½ and Maud Singleton 2:28½, and Grace and Lettie have each a son that is a great producer of speed, the former's son Creole being the sire of Javelin 2:08½, and the latter's son Wayland W. being sire of Arthur W. 2:11½ and John A. 2:12½. This colt is entered in the Occident Stake for this year, and is bred and looks like a trotter.

Mr. Lafferty has several other horses in his string, among them the little black stallion I Direct 2:12½ that is also in the stud and limited to a few mares. I Direct never looked better in his life than at the present time and gives every promise of being able to again lower his record. He is one of the best bred sons of Direct 2:05½ and as handsome as a picture.

The Alameda track has not been in a shape to drive on a good part of this winter owing to the excessive rainfall, but the last week or so of dry weather has put it in fine condition. Two or three days of sunshine will dry it sufficiently for jogging even after a week of continuous rain. It is so close and convenient to San Francisco that many horses would be trained there were it not for the lack of stall room. The straightaway, which was made before the circular track was built, is nearly always in good shape for speeding, and if the present idea of covering it with shell from the Alameda cove is carried out it will be an ideal speedway. If it could be beautified with a few shrubs and a neat walk for pedestrians made alongside, it would soon be a popular resort.

J. M. Nelson has but a few horses at his Alameda stables, old Altamont, a four year old by Alexis, and two or three others being all. Nelson tells a joke on A. C. Dietz, the well known horseman and owner of that good stallion Longworth by Sidney. Mr. Dietz sent to Nelson last month a mare with instructions to begin work on her for the circuit this year. Two weeks after she arrived she dropped a foal. Dietz was notified and sent up another mare who looks now as if she would do just as the other one did. Mr. Dietz was told of this mare's condition and will take no further chances but will ship Mr. Nelson a young stallion. Nelson is getting to be a poultry enthusiast and is raising Black Minorcas and White Leghorns. He says that every hen is a producer and the young ones need no hobbles or too weights to get them going right.

Phoebe Childers 2:10½ is in Grant Lapham's charge. She looks fit to trot for a man's life right now, although she will be some lighter in flesh when the bell taps. Phoebe would be a prize winner at a beauty show where harness horse breeders were judges. She is clean, well muscled, and breedily looking, and has that racy appearance which is the admiration of trotting as well as running horsemen. Phoebe is as sound as the day she was foaled, not a pimple or a mark anywhere, and is everything that her owner L. E. Clawson of this city says she is. Did you ever hear him talk about her? If you have you may have a slight suspicion that he is over enthusiastic, but if you will go over to Alameda and look the mare over you will use the same language the Queen of Sheba did when King Solomon showed her around his stock farm.

Sunday forenoon always furnishes plenty of sport at Alameda track if the day is fine. The trainers all lay their horses off on that day and the track is used by the road drivers of Oakland and Alameda who pay for the privilege. Some good brushes are seen every Sunday and some pretty fair trotters and pacers compete in them.

Among the visitors to the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week was the prominent Iowa horseman, Tom James of Des Moines, owner of Baron-dale 2:11½, a son of the great Baron Wilkes. Mr. James will be in California for a few weeks and will visit the leading stock farms while here as he is greatly interested in the American trotter. His horse Baron-dale is a grandly bred one, being out of Nathalie by Nutwood and she is also the dam of Grand Baron 2:12½ the latter therefore a full brother to Baron-dale. The second dam of Baron-dale is the great broodmare Beatrice (dam of Prodigal 2:16, Patron 2:14½ and Patronage; that are respectively the sires of John Nolan 2:08, Ananias 2:06½ and Alix 2:03½), by Cuyler 100, and the third dam is another great broodmare Mary Mambrino by Mambrino Patchen. Baron-dale never served a mare until he was five years old (he is now 11) and has but one in the list Baronoid 2:24½, a horse that will trot in 2:12 this year, barring accidents. Mr. James is not an extensive breeder, believing that size, style and speed are all necessary qualifications for both sire and dam, and what few mares he has are all very royally bred ones. Among them is Mary B. by Wilkes Boy 2:24½, sire of two in 2:10 and 50 in 2:30, her first, second, third and fourth dams being all great broodmares by Young Jim, Administrator and Mambrino Patchen, the third dam Kitty Patchen being by Mambrino Patchen out of Betty Brown a daughter that great sire. Another of his mares is Dictara Wilkes, dam of Baronoid 2:24½. She is by Dictator Wilkes, a son of Nancy Lee, dam of Nancy Hanks 2:04, her dam Bonarosa by Dictator, next dam by Mambrino Patchen. It will be seen that Mr. James has some royally bred stock and has a right to expect great results from his farm in the near future. Mr. James made a short stay at Los Angeles and says he found the horsemen very much alive in the orange belt and attributed the enthusiasm displayed to the Driving Club recently organized in Los Angeles in which he is undoubtedly correct.

While in San Jose last week we noticed that on the street which leads to the race track there were a few blocks which were in very poor condition while the remainder was in first class order, its smooth surface making riding over it a pleasure. On inquiry we learned that these blocks had been macadamized with a blue rock from the Gay quarry near San Jose, which furnishes material admirably adapted to make good roads. The macadam is put on in three layers. The first consists of rock broken to the size of a large orange, the next about half this size and the third layer consists of pieces not larger than a small prune. After these layers have been thoroughly rolled with a heavy steam roller, they are covered with pulverized rock and rolled again. The surface resulting is smooth and is neither dusty in summer nor muddy in the heaviest rainy season. San Jose should have the best streets in California at a low cost with such material close at hand.

We know of several parties here in San Francisco who are in the market for a first class team of roadsters. The peculiar feature of the demand is that but very few parties who want a high class pair, realize that they are hard to get, and few desire to pay what a good pair is really worth. In this connection the following by Palmer Clark, who edits the harness horse department of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, is interesting reading:

"The difficulties encountered in securing a first class, well matched team of trotters or pacers are indeed very real, and some idea of why a pair is worth so much more than the same team sold separately is acquired when the difficulty of mating up an ideally matched team is understood. They must look alike, travel alike and drive as one horse, with manners and speed added. They must not pull, and an essential qualification is that they must stick to the trot in company and stand a drive at top speed without going to a break. These qualifications in one horse are not so hard to find, but to find two that will fill the bill, in every respect, is entirely another matter. To illustrate: Take for example the team put together by L. M. Newgass last week. Two years ago, when prices on good horses were the lowest, Mr. Newgass bought at auction the handsome bay mare, Muggins 2:20½, stating at the time that with her handsome appearance, style, manners and speed, she would make half of a show team that would carry off the honors in the big ring. As a member of the firm of Tichenor & Co. and L. Newgass & Sons, the new owner of the successful race mare was in touch with more traveling horse buyers than any other one man in America, and one after another as they came to market with stock were asked to examine the mare, and then be on the lookout for a suitable mate for her. How many miles have been traveled, and how much expense incurred in this effort during the past two years, can only be conjectured, but now having the team together with the necessary requirements the labor is not ended by any means. Next comes the work and expense of educating them to work in union at all ways of going, and properly fitting them for the show rings. Assuming them to be successful on the tan bark (and no one who has seen them together will deny they have an equal chance with the best), and they are sold at a figure up in the thousands, it is a question in my mind whether there is any profit in the transaction, or at least sufficient to warrant the risk and labor involved. A well matched team is cheap at any price, and only the wealthy can afford to own and drive them at their value. The mare secured for Muggins is Zula Z., record 2:30, but has shown better than 2:20 speed, and has thirteen blue ribbons to her credit."

Geo. Davis' handsome and fast pacing stallion Rey Direct 2:10 is bound to be a great sire. Not a colt of his get is dropped that is not a big, lusty fellow with strong resemblance to his sire. Rey Direct, unlike many of the Director family, is a very certain foal getter and as he has the strongest of constitutions and wonderful vigor and strength, his ruggedness and high rate of speed will certainly be transmitted to his offspring.

William Hogoboom, who is training a string of very promising youngsters by Lynmont at the Marysville track, recently sold the trotter Lynhood 2:28½ by Lynmont and the mare Lady McDonald by Direct to H. A. Wardner, of Walla Walla, Washington. Mr. A. W. Hexter was the owner of Lynhood, but Hogoboom negotiated the trade and besides these two sold a very promising bay mare by Lynhood to the same gentleman. Mr. Hogoboom is getting ready to campaign on the California circuit again this year, and horsemen who have visited Marysville say that he will have some very fast young horses to start. Eula Mae 2:17½ is looking and doing well. It will be no trick for her to get into McKinney's 2:15 list this year.

The California team record for a mile is one that ought to be held by some enterprising amateur driver. It is now 2:16½ and was made in an actual race by those two pacers by old Alexander Button, Thos Ryder and Belle Button. It was made at Oakland in 1892, and with the fast pacers and trotters we now have it should not be such a difficult task to lower it, although a pair that can trot or pace a mile in that time is not put together every day.

Mr. Milo M. Potter of Los Angeles, holds the record for the fastest mile ever driven by an amateur in this State. He drove his handsome little mare Primrose by Falrose a mile in 2:14½ at Los Angeles, February 22d. Primrose is a pacer and her record is 2:13. Now that amateur clubs are organizing all over the State the mark set by Mr. Potter will furnish something to shoot at, and we may expect to see it lowered before the year is over, and it is more than likely that this gentleman will knock a few seconds from it with Primrose or another of his younger horses.

The only mare over bred to Iran Alto 2:12½ outside those owned by the Vendome Stock Farm was a mare by Dawn 2:18½, son of Nutwood. The dam of this mare was Edith 2:10 by Dexter Prince, she out of a mare by Hamilton Chief, and the next dam by Williamson's Belmont. The foal that resulted from breeding Iran Alto to this mare is a filly now four years old and is said to be one of the most promising youngsters in California. "Farmer" Buneh will probably have her in his string soon. She was bred by his father.

A letter from Memphis, Tenn., reports the veteran track builder, Seth Griffin, hard at work with sixty teams and the necessary men on the new trotting track, which, with good weather, he expects to finish in May. When Frank Jones gave him the contract, instructions were to get the best top dressing, no matter from what part of the country it had to come. Mr. Griffin reports the top soil at Memphis about like that used at the Empiro City track, New York, only there is an abundance of it. Horsemen will remember how fast horses stepped at New York, and how good the footing was the first few meetings, before neglect and heavy rains washed the never-too-heavy top soil away. The stakes decided upon so far for the opening meeting include one for two year old trotters and one for three year old trotters, a 2:20 and 2:14 trot, and a 2:30 and 2:08 pace, entries to close about June 1st. The innovations are likely to be radical and numerous.

The Horse Show at Livermore.

Livermore's annual horse show was held on last Saturday and was a great success notwithstanding the disagreeableness of the day caused by the high north wind that prevailed throughout the day. Hans M. Christenson who was one of the committee on arrangements don't believe in doing things by halves and he collected enough money to defray all of the expenses besides hiring the Livermore band which played patriotic airs from the veranda of the Livermore hotel throughout the afternoon and led the parade during the forenoon.

At 11:30 A. M., Frank Fennon as marshal of the day and his aids Wm. Moody and E. Horton had everybody in position and the orders to fall in were given and the parade was on, witnessed by an immense crowd.

At the head of the parade was M. Henry of Haywards with his Director stallion Educator. Many of those present had read of Educator and his splendid appearance and were inclined to think that those writing of him had stretched their imagination a little but when this handsome son of the Black Tornado with heat erect and eyes aglow was seen keeping step to the strains of the band everybody was willing to admit that he was the most perfect show horse ever seen in a Livermore parade and when he was taken back to his stall many followed him there to further examine him and not a criticism of any kind was offered. That Educator is a producer was shown by the next animal in line, Black Beauty a three year old filly owned by J. McConaghy of San Leandro. This filly is a model of beauty and was greatly admired.

Guard, the game and speedy son of Guide, came next, followed by two fillies sired by him, May G., a two year old, and Merrill F., a yearling.

A. Wilder showed Skylark, a likely looking colt by Comet Wilkes.

John Frick's Jack Nelson Jr. shows that the blood of the old time monarchs mixes well. Jack Nelson Jr. was sired by a son of John Nelson and his dam was by California Patchen.

Wm. Murray's famous Diablo was represented by J. H. Dutcher's Diablo Jr. out of a mare by Plowboy. Diablo Jr. will make the season in Livermore and his book is being rapidly filled.

Probably the best son that the mighty Nutwood left in California was Redwood out of Alice R. by Naubuc. Redwood never had a chance to show what he could do, either on the track or in the stud, but all of his colts were horses of fine style and carriage and were able to hold their own on the road. Billy Tanglewood by Redwood was in line on last Saturday and in future shows will be represented by a number of his colts, as he is producing a fine class of colts, the oldest of which are now three years old.

N. D. Dutcher showed Warren by Walker and seven of his colts, and if the late Dr. Hicks, who bred Warren, could have seen the handsome, big fellow and his family, he would certainly have been proud of them, as they made a fine appearance. Dan W., a four year old stallion, and Daisy, a three year old out of a mare by Whippleton, are the counterparts of Warren.

In the draft horse division were Louis Mels' Joe Reno (a Shire), John Mohis' Morgan Boy (a Morgan), C. C. Christensen's Black Bart (Punch) and the following Percherons: A. Block's Raglan, Joe Martin's Origen, H. M. Christensen's Le Dard, Nolan Coat's Monarch, A. Flores' Dom Pedro, S. Borges' Duke, A. Fregolio's Duke Jr.

SPECTATOR.

LIVERMORE, March 5, 1901.

Quartermaster is Dead.

The great stallion, Quartermaster 2:21½, died February 22d, at the Ridgewood Farm, Danbury, Conn. Quartermaster was a brown stallion, foaled in 1883, bred by A. S. Talbert, of Lexington, Ky., and was by Alcyone, dam Qui Vivo, by Sentinel; second dam Missie, by Brignoli. His record of 2:29½ was taken in 1890, at Gleetwood, when he defeated Isaquena, St. Elmo, Aline, Violin and Shipman, and trotted his fastest mile in the fourth and final heat. Messrs. Runde and White, of Danbury, bought him as a two year old and in the course of his life refused scores of tempting offers for him. At Madison Square Garden, New York city, in November, 1891, when eight years old, he and four of his foals were shown against Mambrino King. Quartermaster was awarded the blue ribbon and the first premium of $500. In 1892 the contest was renewed, and Quartermaster entered the list competing for first honors as a stallion and as a sire. Again, Mambrino King, with Haldane, disputed his claim, and Quartermaster, upon his individuality and breeding, was awarded the first premium of $1000. His get have raced well not only here but abroad, and his blood has given abundant proof that it has that very desirable quality, the ability to breed on. Of his get 45 have taken standard records at the trot and seven at the pace. The fastest are the trotters Quartermarch 2:11½, and Quarterstretch 2:15, and the pacer Daphne Dallas 2:11½.

At the Chico Track.

CHICO, Cal., March 3, 1901.

BREEDER & SPORTSMAN:—The weather has been fine here for the last week and prospects are good for crops in this vicinity this year.

Horse business is looking up a little around Chico. There are only a few horses as yet being worked here.

Mr. D. Daniels has two promising green ones, a three year old by California Lambert, the other a four year old filly by Kentucky Baron. They are the property of one of our leading attorneys, F. C. Lusk.

Mr. A. Summers is jogging Monte Carlo 2:14½, Fitz Lee 2:13½ and Maud P. 2:27½. They are also the property of another one of our leading attorneys Col. Park Henshaw.

Mr. Chas. H. Wheeler has Harry J. 2:30½ and a big fine looking sorrel stallion by Diablo, that shows wonderful speed at the pace. He also has Cinderella, a two year old filly by Arthur Wilkes, that is entered in the Occident and Stanford Stakes, the property of Geo. Trank.

Mr. F. Turner has a green pacer, a full brother to Fitz Lee 2:13½, that is a very good prospect. He also has a green pacer by Dr. Hicks that he is quite sweet on.

I have my stallion Kentucky Baron 2:27½ and am making a season with him here; he is getting a high class lot of mares. I have him limited to thirty mares which I have nearly all booked, as I intend to race him this season, knowing that 2:27½ is no limit of his speed. I think he will make another 2:15 performer for his great sire Baron Wilkes. I am working Honolulu Maid, a two year old filly by him that I have entered in the Occident and Stanford Stakes. I think she is headed toward the big end of the stakes barring accidents. The horses here are all looking fine and doing well.

Yours respectfully,

WM. DUNCAN.

The Dinner Was on Stimson.

Tom Hughes' Electra by Silkwood, did things to Hanford Medium, Willard Stimson's stallion, last Saturday afternoon at Agricultural Park, Los Angeles. The race could hardly be called such, as the mare in all three heats simply walked around the older horse, who is evidently not equal to former performances. At no time did Hanford Medium show 2:11 time or even better than 2:18, while the mare exhibited possibilities far in advance of her 2:15½ trial, although 2:18 in which the first heat was paced, was the best time negotiated. As all three heats were won before entering the stretch, this time is slow.

A. W. Bruner acted as judge. He succeeded in giving the horses a good start in the first two heats, but in the third, after scoring for the word several times, Hanford Medium got away a good length in front of Electra, taking the pole. Electra was forced to pull up and go around, and when she was again stepping out freely the stallion was five lengths in the lead. At the quarter Electra had cut this down a length, and in the back stretch she passed the older horse with a steady stride which brought her into the turn full four lengths to the good, with Hughes pulling her head off, Stimson, whipping, tried to gain on the mare, who jogged in.

Stimson was greatly disappointed at the performance of his entry. He explained that the track was too hard for the tender underpinning of Hanford Medium, but it is extremely doubtful if the stallion could beat Electra on newly plowed ground.

The unofficial fractional time, as taken in the grand stand, follows:

First heat—0:32½, 1:05, 1:41½, 2:18. Second heat—0:33½, 1:06½, 1:43½, 2:20½. Third heat—0:34, 1:07, 1:45, 2:19½.

Floreta Bell, Byron Erckenbrecher's mare, beat Rex Alto two straight heats. John Llowellyn, the owner of Rex Alto, expressed little confidence in the contest before the race was arranged, but Floreta Bell's feat in taking the second heat easily in 2:16½, rather startled him. The first heat was done in 2:26.—Los Angeles Express.

Outlook Good at Stockton.

C. A. Whitehead, owner of that fast son of Director, Delphi 2:11½, writes us from Stockton that about 40 of the horsemen of that city have organized and will keep the track in first class shape for training purposes for four months, beginning March 1st. Mr. Whitehead will have charge of it and expects quite a number of horses will be at work in a few days if the weather keeps good. Daisy, the handsome Nutwood mare belonging to Edward Dunn, dropped a fine black foal by Delphi on the 25th of February. The outlook for a good fair and race meeting at Stockton this fall is good as there is an increasing interest in the breeding of stock of all kinds and especially light harness horses, for which the demand for good ones is ahead of the supply.

Why Every Breeder Should Enter at Buffalo.

The 1901 Grand Circuit meeting of the Buffalo Driving Club has been dubbed "The Pan-American Exposition Meeting," it being held during the great Exposition that will attract thousands to Buffalo from every section of North, South and Central America. Every breeder of trotters who has followed the trend of affairs, recognizes that to the Columbian Exposition the industry is indebted in a manner beyond measure. That the export demand for trotters received an impetus after the Exposition of 1893 is readily conceded and the relief afforded by the demand for export worked incalculable good for the overstocked breeder. A glance at the report of the Treasury Department for the years 1893 and 1900 shows a marvelous gain in the number of horses exported and this gain was due to the Exposition of '93. What the Columbian Exposition did for the export demand in Europe the Pan-American can do for the South American trade. The trotting horse has never gained a foothold in the American Republics south of the United States solely because no effort has been made in that direction. But the time will come when the sport-loving peoples of the lower continent will be after the harness game and no better time can be found to insert the opening wedge than during the Pan-American Exposition. This Exposition is given with the idea of bringing together in a close industrial bond the countries comprising the American continent and thousands of South and Central Americans will be in attendance. The breeder who has the good of the industry at heart will enter his horses at Buffalo and thus give the visitors from the South a chance to see the harness racers at their best. While it is undoubtedly true that the country is far from overstocked at present and the likelihood of it ever being so is most remote, it is undoubtedly true that breeding operations are being conducted on a larger scale than heretofore and the supply will be larger in a few years than in any year in the past decade. No better time to cultivate an acquaintance between the American trotter and the people of South America will ever be offered. Enter your horses at the Pan-American Exposition meeting of the Buffalo Driving Club.

Supervisors Buy a Race Track.

The Fresno race track and fair grounds, one of the best appointed properties of that description in the State, outside of those in the immediate vicinity of San Francisco, has been purchased by the Supervisors of that county for the sum of $30,000. It is proposed to turn the place into a county poor farm, that is, the infield and other portions of it that can be cultivated. The county hospital at Fresno was burned recently and at present quarters have to be rented in the city limits of that city to accommodate the indigent sick and helpless that are charges upon the county. The Supervisors believe that they can remodel some of the buildings at the Fresno track so that they will furnish temporary quarters for the invalids and that the land inside the track oval can be worked profitably by the patients that are able to labor, and thus be a partial means of support to them. We understand that it is proposed to allow the track, grand stand and stalls to remain and that they will be kept in order and rented to horsemen and some provision made for an annual fair to be held on the property. There is no doubt but the track and stalls can be kept in condition for the use of horsemen at a profit to the county, and the use of the grounds for an annual fair would benefit the entire community.

Big Profits from Nutwood.

Frank D. Stout of Dubuque, Ia., who has accumulated a great deal more than $1,000,000 in the lumber business, says he never made an investment of any kind that paid as well as his purchase of the trotting stallion Nutwood 2:18½ for $22,000. "In one year," says Mr. Stout a few days ago, "we bred Nutwood to sixty-one outside mares at a stud fee of $1000, and the same year we raised forty colts of our own, which we sold at an average of more than $5000 each." It is said that Mr. Stout cleared more than $500,000 during the five years following his purchase of Nutwood at the Glenview sale in 1886.

Answers to Correspondents.

Please let me know the breeding of Lady Tiffany—W. D.

She is registered in volume 9 of the American Trotting Register as by Gibraltar 1185, dam Kitty Gavin by Royal George 83. She was bred by Monroe Salisbury.

Louis Winans, of London and Brighton, England, who has the largest stable of trotting and pacing roadsters on the other side of the big pond, has decided to campaign a stable next year, and has instructed Geo. H. Ketcham to buy four trotters and ship them to him in time to take part in the summer meeting in France, Germany and Austria.

The New York Speedway.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21, 1901.—Since the now famous Harlem river speedway was completed, a little more than two years ago, the characteristic sport of driving fast trotters on the road has undergone a revival in New York which amounts to a new birth of this old pastime. Road driving had reached a low ebb before the opening of the Speedway took place, on July 2, 1898. The last of the unpaved avenues on which the Bonners, Vanderbilts, Works and Rockefellers used to speed their horses in early days had disappeared with the rapid growth of the city. There was not a level stretch of soft earth road in all New York where the man who owned a trotter could tighten the reins and sing out: "Go on, boy!" to his favorite flyer. No incentive remained for the horseman to keep a fast one in his stable, and while the population of the city increased, the number of fast road horses steadily diminished.

On the splendid speeding ground which stretches away at the water's edge along the eastern side of the picturesque upper end of Manhattan island, two miles and a quarter without an intersecting street, all the glories of the old Bloomingdale road, Third avenue and Harlem lane have been revived and surpassed. Old road drivers who had given up their horses have taken to driving again and purchased better trotters than ever before. New men are every day swelling the ranks of those who take their daily recreation behind a fleet road horse.

Within a year nearly 1500 new members have joined the Road Drivers' Association, and this organization represents only a small percentage of these who drive on the Speedway. Metropolitan horsemen now possess more fast trotters and pacers than are owned in any other six cities in America, and driving enthusiasts from all over the country are bringing their crack road horses here to take part in the sport. At least one Western millionaire has in a measure changed his residence from Chicago to New York on account of the Speedway.

The owners of fast horses are not by any means the only beneficiaries of the Speedway. Remote as it is from the heart of the city, 20,000 pedestrians sometimes go there on a pleasant Sunday in spring or autumn to see the trotters and pacers in action. Sunday is the gala day on the road. Beginning before 11 o'clock in the morning, the best horses are out for an airing, and the broad stretch north of Washington bridge then presents a spirited scene. Brushes between rival flyers come thick and fast.

Again at 3 o'clock or thereabouts in the afternoon there is another carnival of speed. Most of the sport is then on the lower stretch, between High bridge and the macadamized approach from One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. The horses are not of the class seen on the north end in the morning, but their contests are just as exciting and the crowds on the sidewalks are even larger than the morning crowds.

On week days the speeding is late in the afternoon. Business men leaving their offices down town are often met at the terminus of the elevated railroad by grooms or trainers having the horses in charge, and from there to the speeding ground is a drive of only five minutes or so. But for those who keep their horses south of Central Park a trip to the Speedway involves a drive of nearly 15 miles, going and coming.

While some men who drive daily and win many brushes keep but one horse, other enthusiasts own half a dozen or more, and employ trainers to keep them in shape for fast work, so that a fresh horse is always ready. Nathan Straus, for example, had in his stable at one time last season Alves 2:09½, Cobwebs 2:12, Our Jack 2:13½, Cuprum 2:12½, Querist 2:12½, Freddy 2:16½, Lily Glenn 2:17 and Malacca 2:18½, and he has since then purchased the renowned pacer Robert J. 2:01½; the fastest harness horse ever kept for road driving.

C. K. G. Billings, of Chicago, brought two carloads of horses and paraphernalia here last season, and then added $20,000 worth of flyers to his stable while in New York. Among the fast ones he has driven on the Speedway are Lucille 2:07, Battleton 2:09½, Ellert 2:11, Mabel Onward 2:12½, Aggie Medium 2:12½, Jimmy Hague 2:13½, Maj. Greer 2:14, Frankers 2:14½, Rightwood 2:16½ and the pacers Bumps 2:03½, Free Bond 2:04½, Sunland Belle 2:07½, Hontas Crooke 2:09, Gus Barrett 2:10½ and Tulsa 2:10½.

Viewed from a commercial standpoint, the opening of the Speedway has been of great benefit to the breeder, the dealer, the stable keeper, the carriage builder, the harness maker, the horseshoer and everybody connected with the horse interest and with other related lines of business. Its influence on the breed of horses has been most beneficial, and promises to be of greater ultimate good in this direction than all the race tracks in the State combined.

The Speedway puts a premium on the horse that possesses not only speed, but good manners, good looks and ability to trot fast without the aid of all the artificial appliances which disfigure the average horse seen on the harness racing circuits. Boots are used on some of the Speedway stars, but the model road horse will go without them.

Just when and by whom a Speedway was first suggested is a matter of uncertainty. As long ago as 1880 a soft earth driveway for trotting horses in Central Park was proposed. Ten years later Hamilton Busbey addressed a letter to A. B. Tappan and his associates of the Park Board, asking them to take steps to provide such a driveway. The project had the support of Mayor Hugh J. Grant and in 1892 a bill was passed and approved by Gov. Flower, authorizing the construction of a speedway on the west side of Central Park. The measure aroused bitter opposition and it was repealed with the understanding that a speedway should be built elsewhere.

To Thomas F. Gilroy, then Mayor of New York, belongs the credit of having suggested the unrivaled location of the great driveway which has become a reality. Mr. Gilroy himself turned the first shovelful of earth in the work, and after more than four years of difficult labor the Speedway was completed. Its cost was about $3,000,000.

An Offer of $35,000.

Palmer L. Clark, President of the Chicago Horse Sale Company, makes an offer, which, if accepted, will bring about the most interesting series of races in the history of the trotting turf. He says:

"The much-talked-of three-cornered match race between The Abbot 2:03½, champion trotter, Cresceus 2:04, king of the trotting stallions, and Charley Herr 2:07, whose bulldog racing qualities have placed him in the select class of champions, is likely to end as all such newspaper matches end, unless the parties concerned indicate a greater willingness to come together than they have thus far evinced. Sensational horses, like theatrical stars, are generally under the management of progressive men, on the lookout to advertise and to keep their charges before the public, and this time of the year is the most favorable for rumors of matches, sales, races and plans for the season's campaign. As a rule, I am opposed to matches between two horses. No matter how fair they are or how honestly conducted, they are bound to hurt the business. The condition of the track or weather or a temporary indisposition of either horse is sure to make the contest a one-sided affair, and, again, no good driver will punish his horse and destroy his chances in succeeding heats by driving for a close finish just to please the crowd, when he knows his horse is beaten, and the inexperienced cry fraud. The proposed match between these three horses, however, would eliminate one of the objections mentioned, but in making just one race it can readily be seen that the weather, condition of the track or either contestant, would favor one or the other of the participants, thus conducing to a result that might be reversed at a subsequent trial under reversed conditions.

I believe these three horses would draw more people, and the betting would be heavier, than any other three horses that could be named, and if the owners wish to race their horses on good mile tracks once a week for a purse of $5000, entrance fee, until some one horse has won three races, I can get them the money; the races to be mile heats, best three in five, each owner to select a judge, and I to name the starter. This plan would result in at least three contests, a week apart, on three different tracks, with a possible value, to the winner of $15,000, or with a divided purse would insure a contest for the place as well as the race. On the other hand, the races might be split, each horse getting two races before the contest was settled, thus making seven weeks' unparalleled racing, with a total of $35,000 at stake.

"In 1894, the pacers Robert J., Joo Patchen and John R. Gentry occupied about the same relative positions before the public then as these three trotters do now. Two were stallions, rivals for the highest honors in their class, and the third a gelding, with the championship well earned, and owned by a man who wanted first honors more than he needed money. In discussing the situation with a friend, I was authorized to make an offer similar to the above, and journeyed to Buffalo to make the necessary arrangements, where I felt I would have succeeded but for the then pending Philadelphia match between Patchen and Gentry. My $5000 races looked small alongside of the 80 per cent. gate receipts offered by the Quaker City association, until after the money was divided and the $500 fines paid, and then it was too late. It is to be hoped that this new proposition will meet a ready response from those interested, and thus effectually settle the question of the merits of these great horses in a series of races that can reflect only glory on the losers as well as the winner."

Traces Twice to Alcyone.

A well bred son of McKinney 2:11½ is Captain Jones that as will be seen by an advertisement in this paper, is making the season of 1901 at Sacramento in charge of his owner John Pender, who recently brought the horse here from Oregon. Captain Jones has two crosses of Alcyone, which is a distinguishing feature of his pedigree and a rare one in any horse. With the sire of Captain Jones every horse breeder in California is familiar as he is the most prominent stallion in America to-day and the only standard bred horse on the Pacific Coast for whose service a fee of $100 is asked. The dam of Captain Jones is Midday Bell by Gossiper 2:14½, thus making him bred very much like the great young horse Zolock 2:10½. Gossiper is the sire of Gazelle 2:11½, Miss Jessie 2:13½ and others and is a son of Simmons 2:28, like Alcyone a son of Geo. Wilkes 2:22. Simmons is the sire of 19 in the 2:15 list, and his daughters have produced six in that exclusive list including Bennie Direct 2:05½, and the champion three year old trotter of 1900, Fereno 2:10½. Simmons has 98 standard performers, 25 producing sons and 15 producing daughters.

The second dam of Captain Jones is Briar Belle (dam of that fast trotter McBriar 2:14), by Don Wilkes 2:24½, a son of Alcyone that is the sire of Riverside 2:12½ and twelve more in 2:30. The dam of Don Wilkes was Gossip by Tattler 300 (son of Pilot Jr.) out of the famous Jessie Pepper. Gossip has three producing sons and three producing daughters.

The third dam of Captain Jones is Belle Bryan a daughter of the great Mambrine Patchen 58 that sired Mambrino King, sire of seven in 2:10, besides many other producing sons and nearly 100 daughters that have produced horses with standard records. With such blood as this in Captain Jones' pedigree, coupled with the fact that he is a grand individual and is a proven producer of handsome colts, there is no reason why he should not have booked to him some of the best bred mares in California. That he will produce speed is certain and no better bred horse stands for public service in any country on earth. Mr. Pender has placed the fee for Captain Jones services at $25 for the season, a very reasonable figure, and invites breeders and others interested in good horses to call at the Sacramento track and look the horse over. Look over the advertisement in this issue.

Big Sale of Range Horses.

One of the most extensive sales of horses ever held in this country was the sale of the range and other horses purchased by the German agents in California last fall, which was conducted by William G. Layng in this city last month. The German Government having no use for the animals ordered them sold. Mr. Layng held the auction at the baseball grounds, corner of Sixteenth and Folsom streets. Five hundred and ten horses and 125 mules went under the hammer, the sale beginning at 9:30 A. M. and the last horse being knocked down at 6:30. Some animals were as wild as deer, although they had been put through a course of handling by vaqueros at Baden when first brought in from the ranges. The horses averaged $40 each, which is sufficient evidence that the horse market is in a healthy condition here in San Francisco just now, and they would not have attracted a bid of $5 per head two years ago. The 125 mules averaged $70 each. Mules are good value now and buyers for the U. S. Government are now paying $100 per head for good army mules and find them scarce at that.

Country shippers of horses to the principal Western market centers all say that it is getting harder and harder to buy horses. The farmers are buying one from the other and paying prices that shippers cannot afford.

A Great Harness and Turf Goods Institution.

Our readers will no doubt closely pursue the advertisement of Messrs. Tuttle & Clark, of Detroit, Mich., appearing in this issue. On the first of March each year this house issues its new catalogue of turf goods, which is received by horsemen all over the world with a great deal of interest, for the catalogue generally illustrates many new and valuable improvements in paraphernalia for the trotter and pacer. This year they claim to have eclipsed all former years. In the way of improvements their line will certainly be hard to beat from what people say about them. In fact, it is of the very greatest importance to every user of horse goods, track harness and similar goods to avail himself of the opportunity of possessing one of these catalogues. They are an old established house and certainly have set the pace in improvements for the last six or seven years. According to what Messrs. Tuttle & Clark inform us they have materially changed the styles of horse boots that are in vogue to-day, making great improvements in them. Improvements which anyone can fully understand and appreciate by seeing the goods or looking at their catalogue. They have greatly improved their line of track harness, raising the quality and standard very materially. They have not, however, raised the price. In some cases the prices have been lowered.

Again referring to boots they are making boots out of a material known as vulcanized leather. This is a new patent tannage of leather, almost white in color, like compressed felt but is tough as raw hide and makes exceedingly fine knee and arm boots, knee boots and quarter boots. Their catalogue fully explains this new leather. They have changed their linings in nearly all boots, using what they term genuine modified kangaroo skin. This is a very peculiar kind of leather. It is tough, will not crack, will not take water, always soft and pliable and is absolutely non-chafing. Some of the best horsemen in the country claim that it is one of the greatest improvements. Messrs. Tuttle & Clark also issue a book called the Twentieth Century Handy Book which among other things contain some very valuable and interesting statistics. The Handy Book is included with the catalogue, free of charge. When writing them be sure and mention this paper.

BEFORE ANOTHER WEEK has passed the Legislature will have passed the appropriations for the district fairs and the directors of the different agricultural societies will know just how much aid they will have from the State toward providing premiums for displays of the products of their districts. The probabilities now are that the appropriations of two years ago will be increased by twenty-five per cent which will enable the associations to make a much better showing than last year. As soon as the Legislature has passed the measure and it is signed by the Governor, there will be a movement all along the line toward making official announcements for 1901. That a good circuit will be arranged is certain and from the interest already manifested, the prospects are very bright for the most successful circuit of fairs seen in California for years. A rough estimate of the number of horses now in training in this State shows that there are nearly five hundred trotters and pacers and when programs are announced this number will be increased. At Pleasanton there are over one hundred, at Alameda and Oakland fifty, Woodland has forty or fifty, Colusa, Red Bluff, Chico and Marysville tracks have from a half dozen to twenty each, the Sacramento track has sixty horses at work, Salinas, Eureka, Vallejo, Santa Rosa, Hollister and Fresno have very respectable strings, while Los Angeles and Santa Ana have one hundred at the lowest calculation. All that will be needed to get a good entry of harness horses this year will be the offering of a good program of liberal purses. We again urge all the district boards to get to work as soon as possible after the appropriations are made and announce a fair, and it will be advisable not to try to do too much. A three day meeting with the purses all well filled will pay, where a six day meeting with the same horses strung out through twice as many purses might be a losing venture. The horse breeding business is one of the leading industries of the State at the present time and one of the most valuable to the commonwealth. It should be encouraged as much as possible, and the district fairs are the proper mediums for such encouragement.

AN INVESTMENT OF ONE DOLLAR made in the Hartford Futurity Stake next Friday may put you in the way of winning the big end of the $11,000 prize which the three year olds of 1904 will contest for at Hartford over the historical old Charter Oak track. This is one of the best opportunities in the horse business to get a big return for a small investment. How many colts do you know of that would have never been heard of had they not been entered in some rich stake. The Roman 2:18 1/4, a horse that is certain to beat 2:10 if he lives and has no bad luck, would probably have spent his life on a dairy farm doing menial service had he not been entered in the Occident Stake of last year. He had been named in that stake, however, and showing speed on the road while hauling a milk wagon, it was decided to train him for the stake. He did not win it, but showed a half in 1:03 after getting a bad start, won every race in which he started thereafter, and was sold for $5000. If it had not been for the Occident Stake perhaps The Roman would never have been developed. Now the Hartford Futurity offers every breeder a chance to get in for $1 and all the payments together amount to but $31 on a colt. It is one of the best conditioned stakes ever devised and was made in the interest of breeders and horse owners. Every mare in California of trotting or pacing blood that was mated with a standard horse last year and has dropped or will drop a foal this spring should be named in this stake. California breeders should make an effort to place California colts in the position to win these big Eastern stakes by entering them. If California colts could be returned winners of the majority of the rich events decided this year in the East, there would be a train load of horse buyers here before Christmas offering big prices for every likely colt that was well engaged. It pays a breeder to have his stock well represented in stake events. If he wants to sell he will find that it is the best and cheapest advertising he can do. When one is showing an unengaged colt to a prospective buyer and is indulging in lurid oratory in attempting to describe his good qualities and great speed, and the aforesaid prospective buyer asks if it has any stake engagements, the effect of the oratory is lost. A man does not have much faith in his colts if he gives them no stake engagements, especially when they can be secured as cheaply as in the Hartford.

COLT RACING is the backbone of the horse industry, that part that most directly benefits the breeder. Stakes and purses for young trotters is the very life of the breeding industry. It fosters it and forms an incentive for men to buy young trotters at high prices. Trotting as a sport has and always will endure. Yet no sport can have a following among any class other than the very wealthy where the earning capacity is insufficient to at least defray part of the expense. It is the prospect of winning money that incites men to pay long prices for horseflesh, and unless colts are given the buyer or the breeder who races must wait the development necessary to enable a horse to cope with seasoned campaigners. It is unreasonable to expect three year olds to successfully race against aged horses, and it is impossible of course for two year olds to do this. Yet colts at these ages can be made successful racing machines, and consequently be made to have an intrinsic value. Now that speed is to a certain extent born with the foal and the proportion of fast colts is greater than formerly, colt stakes can be made as interesting as those for matured horses. The Kentucky Futurity for three year olds is one of the classic events of the trotting turf. It is usually a race worth going miles to see. The time made not infrequently compares favorably with that of the class races. The spectators relish a battle between precocious youngsters; the prowess of the latter appeals to the racing public. It is in a measure the achievement of scientific breeding. The value of colt stakes is incalculable, for not only does the winner earn remuneration for the time and labor incident to the development of the colt, but he reflects credit on the breeder and reputation to his breeding stud. Nothing can benefit a breeder as much as to produce a stake winner. Nothing gives his breeding stud the same advertising. Both sire and dam are made famous in a day. The cost of entry is so slight in comparison with the prize itself that breeders and owners of young foals cannot afford to keep their colts out of stakes.

CALIFORNIA HORSEMEN going East should make entries in the rich events offered by the Buffalo Driving Club and advertised in this issue. The early closing stakes are very generous and the date for making entries is next Friday, March 15th. As the great Pan-American Exhibition will be in full blast there in August, when the meeting is to be held horsemen will have an opportunity of seeing this great exhibition while there. As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, Secretary Sage has provided two stakes of $5000 each, the Electric City for 2:24 class trotters and the Pan-American for 2:24 class pacers; and four of $2000 each as follows: The Niagara Falls and Queen City for the 2:14 and 2:19 trotting classes, and the Iroquois and Empire State for 2:09 and 2:14 pacing classes. The entry list will close on March 15th and the entrance fee is five per cent, with five from the winners, and payments are due March, April, May and June 15th and July 10th. There is no liability beyond amount paid in, provided due notice is given to the Secretary of withdrawal. Hopples are not barred. At a later date a strong purse list will be offered. Horsemen do not need to be reminded of Buffalo's claims. The Queen City has always been the friend of the light harness horse. It has been well called the mother of the Grand Circuit. Buffalo will fully hold its own in the Grand Circuit series.

SECRETARY SCHUCKMAN writes us from Denver that the early closing stakes of the Overland Racing Association filled well and the indications are that a very successful meeting will be held in June. Unfortunately, the grand stand at the track caught fire on February 20th and was burned to the ground. The association immediately made a contract for the construction of another, which will be complete in every detail and the contractor is bonded to have it completed by May 15th. There will be quite a number of California horses at the Denver meeting, which will open June 15th. A program of additional purses for harness horses and runners will be advertised shortly.

Offers to Race For $60,000.

BOSTON, March 4.—Probably the greatest trotting race ever seen will be arranged this season for the largest purse ever hung up. The proposition is contained in the following letter issued last night by Thomas W. Lawson, owner of the champion gelding, Boralma:

"As there is considerable controversy about the merits of Cresceus, Charlie Herr and The Abbot, and there seems to be much trouble in getting on a match between all three or any two of the three, perhaps I may be able to assist, now that I have concluded, on account of the cup race, not to send Boralma to Europe until next fall.

"To that end I will agree to race Boralma against the three, each entry to subscribe $10,000; and I further agree that the association holding the race will add a purse of $20,000, making $60,000 in all, the first horse to take $40,000, second $15,000, third $5000. All minor conditions to be arranged on a mutually satisfactory basis to all."

In raising coach horses conformation, size, style and action are the leading characteristics. For gig and other light vehicles 15 to 15.2 hands are frequently used if of cobby conformation and high, commanding action. But for the heavy coach, victoria and park surrey, sixteen hand animals are demanded. In contour the coach horse should be of round barrel and well ribbed down to the hip. A broad arched loin is desirable, as strength at the coupling is essential for durability and weight-pulling qualities. The croup should be well set up, as a low set tail gives the animal an inferior appearance. The quarters should be broad and deep with good muscular development of the stifles and gaskins. The stifles ought to stand out prominently from the flanks and show beyond the angle of the body. The hock should be broad, clean cut and well protected with a strong, clearly defined tendon. The canon bones must be flat and well protected with strong tendons. The forelegs should be moderately wide apart and the forearm well muscled. With oblique shoulders, arched neck, clean bony head, full intelligent eye, slim, thin pointed ears and a foot of medium size, the modern coach horse commands himself to popular favor. The producer never realizes the sensational prices negotiated by professional dealers. A prospective show animal is always sold as a diamond in the rough, and the art of the trainer is required to develop and manner the horse for private use or exhibition purposes. The unmannered coach horse will sell to the experienced handler for $150 to $800, according to quality. Frequently the dealer errs in judgment and the animal, after much expense, fails to rise above the ordinary. There is a handsome profit to encourage the breeder to raise coach horses, as they are in urgent demand and ready sale at remunerative prices. Drovers' Journal.

Anaconda Will Meet the Champions.

Now that match talk is all the go on the good old hot stove and hot air circuits, the veteran Boston trainer, John Trout, he of the merry infectious laugh, is out with a defi to race Anaconda 2:02½ against any sidewheeler in the world three in five at from $1000 to $3000 a side; or will pace the "Kangaroo wonder" five races, all at $1000 a side, one a week for five weeks, Joe Patchen 2:01½, preferred, all over mile tracks, and man and money are on call within a day's notice of acceptance of any of these propositions, writes "Percy" in the New York Telegraph.

This means that we shall see Anaconda out racing this summer, and that is a relief, for we need the great son of Knight and the Haggin mare in the free-for-alls along the line now that the ranks are so much depleted.

Mr. Rice, who owns Anaconda, is just turned twenty-one, and the youngest owner of as fast a horse, I fancy, as ever has raced horses. He wants to match another pacer that he owns, Helen R. 2:10½, against Emma E. 2:09½, owned by a Bostonian, and at $1000 a corner it would be of interest to local horsemen who make the Boston tracks their summer headquarters.

Between Messrs. Rice and Lawson, the Bostonese have two very game sportsmen, for it takes nerve to stack up Boralma 2:08 against the top notches of the trotting contingent, and, if good, Joe Patchen, with a good fitting and driving, should be yet a hard horse to meet in a race or series of races.

Last fall he was badly rated here at Parkway, yet paced his mile in 2:06½ on the half mile ring on none too favorable a day. I don't believe he is quite as good as he was a few seasons ago, still, if I owned Anaconda, I'd be rather cautious about tackling the grand old "iron" pacer by Patchen Wilkes.

Anaconda has had a wonderful career on the turf. Starting in 1897 as a four year old, he contested in eight races, winning seven, and a heat and second place in the eighth, taking a record of 2:08½. The average time for the twenty heats paced was 2:13 3-5. In 1898, he was started fifteen times, winning nine races; was three times second, once third and twice behind the money. His winning heats (28) averaged 2:07 1-7. Every heat was below 2:10, except one, and he reduced his record to 2:04½. He was beaten by Directly in 2:04½, 2:06½, 2:03½, and distanced one time in 2:07. Anaconda started eleven times in 1899, won six races, was second three times and third twice. He was beaten by Joe Patchen in 2:04½, 2:04 and 2:03½; by Searchlight in 2:03½, 2:06½, 2:04 and 2:03½, 2:04½, 2:04, 2:05½, 2:04½, 2:03½; by Lena N. in 2:12½, 2:15, by John R. Gentry and Joe Patchen in 2:04½, 2:03½. His seventeen winning heats were paced, except in the first three, on a half mile track early in May, at an average of 2:05 46-100. Every heat was below 2:08, and his record at the end of the season was 2:03½. Last season he was started five times down the Grand Circuit, winning two races and finishing second three times, making a record of 2:02½. His winning heats were in 2:07½, 2:04½, 2:02½, 2:04½, 2:04½, averaging 2:04 65-100.

Sacramento Track Notes.

SACRAMENTO, March 6, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN: Considerable interest in manifested in horse circles here just now, and especially as the season is coming on when the programs for the meets in the different agricultural districts are in process of formation.

Among the stables of trotters and pacers at the track here are those of Clay Bryant and John Pender from Oregon. They have Captain Jones by McKinney and several others.

Vet Tryon has Margaretta 2:15 by Direct, and quite a string of green ones that he is getting ready for the circuit.

O. J. Holmes is driving a number of good ones. He has the stallion Arthur Holt in the stud, and is training H. O. B., Lady Keating and others.

L. M. Clark has begun work on Ouboul 2:22 and several others.

Mrs. E. W. Callendine has Abdine and the colt Guy-nut by Nutwood Wilkes here. Guy-nut is conceded by all to be the best looking yearling in this vicinity.

Chris Jensen has quite a string and H. S. Hogoboom is in charge of Stam B. 2:11½ and has several colts in training by Zombro 2:11 and Stam B. that are stopping some, he says.

Mr. Martin, the lessee of the track, is working hard to have it in perfect order, and his intention is to make it the finest and fastest track in the State. More anon, WILITA.

The following horses are among the probable starters in the free for all trot at Denver June 22d: Vonus II. 2:11½, Phoebe Childers 2:10½, Togglos 2:09½, Pat L. 2:09½, Stamboulet 2:10½ and Altoka 2:10½.

Horse Business at Ukiah.

[Ukiah Saturday Night.]

The Ukiah Race Course and Fair Grounds, formerly owned by Ukiah Park Association, is now the property of F. C. Albertson, Thomas Charlton and H. B. Smith.

It is the intention of these gentlemen to expend about a thousand dollars in regrading the track and fixing up the stalls and buildings on the premises.

We are informed that the track now has a slope of about eleven feet between the turns, and that County Surveyor Donohoe will at once begin setting grade stakes preparatory to cutting and filling the turns about three feet each, thus making the slope about four feet. As soon as the survey is finished bids will be let to move the dirt. The track is a half mile, 46 feet wide, and regulation shape.

These gentlemen should be congratulated in the move contemplated, and we feel assured that in time Ukiah can boast of having one of the best fair grounds in the State.

Ukiah is taking a sudden start in the horse business, especially as far as fine blood is concerned.

Several local horsemen contemplate forming a futurity stake for trotters and pacers when two or three years of age, and are sending their mares to Santa Rosa to be bred to the Guy Wilkes stallion, Lynwood W.

Among those already sent are O. E. Williams' bay mare, Thomas Charlton's two bay mares, Monte Banker's sorrel mare, H. B. Smith's bay mare May Ayers. Those we know of that are to be sent are Smith & Gibson's sorrel mare, H. T. Hopper's bay mare, Otis and John Redemeyer, one mare each; John Burgess, one mare; S. S. McGarvey, one mare, and there are several others.

The futurity stake will be for colts raised in Mendocino county. The conditions of the stake are not yet published and the time of entry has not yet been decided, but will probably be about July 1st. Several mares have also been bred to Charlton's St. Patrick for the purpose of entering colts in the stake.

We are glad to see this interest taken. There is no reason why record breaking trotters cannot be raised in Mendocino county as well as any other place.

Successful County Fairs.

[Spirit of the West.]

County fair officers should begin early this year to complete arrangements for their fairs. A great deal has been said and written upon the subject: "How to Manage County Fairs." Spirit of the West believes the best way to secure success is by interesting the home people. Balloon ascensions and fake side shows, are often paid large amounts, for very poor performances, and other cheap attractions are paid too much for the class of entertainment furnished. Spirit of the West would like to see a higher estimate placed upon the intelligence of the people in general who attend county fairs and less upon the theatrical features of cheap attractions. In fact, we will broaden the issue a little and include State Fair attractions.

No county fair can count on permanent success one year with another that depends upon special features and attractions to draw the people, in other words, if there is no incentive, except a mere entertainment, which may be very poor; to induce the people to attend the fair, the chances of success are not of the substantial kind.

Our belief is that there is talent enough in each county, if properly cultivated and utilized, to make every county fair a success.

We do not mean that the program for the week should entirely exclude special attractions, but a great many that have been a feature for years could be left out without endangering the gate receipts.

As we said at the beginning of this article, to make a county fair a success, all the people in the county must be interested. They must come upon the stage and become performers in the play.

The young men and the young women must be interested. Some can help in one way; others in another way. The grounds should be put in order just the same as the dwelling house and the home on the farm. Every township in each county should have a committee and each committee should have some certain part of the duty to perform, make the county fair educational instead of theatrical, and secure the co-operation of the school children rather than the class who attend merely to be entertained.

Caustic Balsam Cured Bone Spavin.

ATCHISON (Kan.), July 26, 1900.
Perhaps you will recall about a year ago I wrote you concerning your Gombault's Caustic Balsam for a bone spavin, and also said if it cured my horse of his bone spavin I would add my testimonial to your list. I have given it a long trial, as it will now soon be a year since I blistered him and put him out to pasture. He has been driven on the road and worked on a farm ever since he was taken from pasture last November. He shows no signs of lameness. Every one predicted it would not cure, but I gave him thorough treatment and testify to the power of Gombault's Caustic Balsam to cure bone spavin.
N. F. MAYNARD.

The Business Improving.

Says the Chicago Inter-Ocean: The shipping of mares from Kansas and Missouri to New York, to be bred to the great pacer John R. Gentry 2:00½, and from Wisconsin to Missouri to be bred to the great young sire and show horse, Norcat, recently noted in this column, and the more recent shipment of mares from Canada to Galesburg, this State, to be bred to Allerton 2:09½, recalls the times when mares were sent across the continent to California to be bred to the famous Electioneer, and it gives a fairly good idea of the return of conditions in the breeding business which has not been apparent for nearly a decade. When the cost of shipping is taken into consideration, with the service fee, the cost of keep, the cost of raising the prospective foal until it is at least two or three years of age before anything may be expected of it, it is evident that there are gentlemen in the business that are able and willing to speculate for the sport's sake alone. Those who have, however, experienced the pleasure of breeding, raising and developing a champion, know something of the charm that stimulates the speculation and the fascination that accompanies the undertaking. All will not have the same fortune that came to C. W. Williams, then at Independence, Iowa, when he sent his two mares to Kentucky, the one to be bred to William L. and the other to Jay Bird, the resulting foals being respectively the champions in their day and class, Axtel (3) 2:12, and Allerton 2:09½, as there will always be more blanks than prizes, but the agreeable signs of the times are the number, which is daily increasing, who have the means and the inclination to try.

Gossiper 2:14½ will make the season of 1901 at New ark, Alameda county, and should not be overlooked by breeders. He is a grandly bred son of Simmons, and is a producer of extreme speed, having sired Gazelle 2:11½, Miss Jessie 2:13½, Ketcham 2:16½ and others. Gazelle is the dam of the sensational pacer Zolock 2:10½ and Ketcham is the sire of Connie 2:15½, which shows that Gossiper breeds on. His sire, Simmons, is sire of the dams of Bonnie Direct 2:05½ and of Fereno 2:10½, the champion three year old of last year. Gossiper possesses wonderful speed, and his record is no measure of his ability. His dam was by the old champion, Smuggler 2:15½, and his second dam by a son of Mambrino Patchen. The very best of pasturage for mares will be furnished at Newark for $2.50 per month. Write to Mr. S. T. Coram, manager, in regard to Gossiper or pasturage.

Perhaps it is the result of the wonderful miles some of the trotters went hooked to a wagon last year, that has decided Roy Miller to have a sulky made for Grattan Boy that is a distinct departure in sulky construction. The new sulky that Grattan Boy will draw is much lower than the average sulky, and with shafts eighteen inches longer than sulky shafts usually are. This sulky will allow Miller to hook the stallion far enough away from the sulky frame so that there will be no danger of his striking it. The speed which has been shown by wagon trotters recently proves that it is not necessary to hook a horse so close to a sulky as has been supposed, and Miller is one of the first to take advantage of it.

At last Chicago is to have a first class road drivers' association, a number of the leading amateur drivers of Chicago having met last week and organized what will be known as the Gentlemen's Driving club. Permission has been granted the new club to use the Washington Driving Park for its summer matinees, and as that is all that is necessary to carry out their operations in first class shape, the men behind the movement being such as will see to it that all the other requirements of a first-class gentlemen's driving association will be amply provided for. The club will be exclusive to the extent that it will be for amateurs only and it will likely affiliate with the Road Drivers' league, recently organized in New York City. The charter members include C. K. G. Billings, Frank S. Gorton, John R. Thompson, F. G. Hartwell, Will J. Davis, Martin A. Ryerson and E. A. Lord.

At a recent special sale of horses held in Indianapolis nearly 900 head found new owners. Dealers all complained that between the prices asked by breeders and feeders for drafters in the country and those that Eastern consumers will pay, it is hard to strike a balance on the right side of the ledger. Draft geldings, 1800 pounds, sold up to $235 and busses to $140. Expressers sold at $140, $160 and $175, four head being taken on an export order at the last named figure. One hundred head of Southerners were taken by one man at a range of $65 to $95 and over 250 cavalry horses for the British army brought from $70 to $170. The largest attendance of buyers seen in Indianapolis this year was counted.

SULKY NOTES.

Enter in the stakes.

Don't forget the Hartford Futurity.

The fair appropriations will be made.

Silkwood 2:07, is making a season at Reading, Kansas, at $25.

There is a good season of racing ahead for harness horsemen this year.

Cricket 2:10, dam of William Harold 2:13½, has been bred to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½.

The $21,000 Kentucky Futurity is the biggest stake for trotting bred colts. Make an entry in it.

Woodland's fair this year will be ahead of any fair ever held in the State, so the directors say.

Young Jim, now 27 years old, is still hale and hearty and in the stud at a farm in Harrison county, Ky.

Seventy-five Tennessee mules, two, three and four years old, were recently auctioned off in that State for an average price of $131.75.

Sunol 2:08½ is in foal to Orowood, son of Oro Wilkes 2:11, at Shultshurst Farm, and Kentucky Union 2:07½, will drop a foal by Chimes at Village Farm.

A movement is on foot in Portland, Or., to organize a joint stock company to lease the Irvington track for the purpose of holding a race meeting this year.

For the meeting at Cincinnati class races will be offered for probably free-for-all, 2:07, 2:18, 2:21 and 2:27 trotters and free-for-all, 2:06, 2:11, 2:16 and 2:20 pacers.

The money value of the prizes to be won at the coming Boston Horse Show in April exceeds $25,000. In addition many valuable trophies and pieces of plate will be competed for.

E. B. Rice, the new owner of Anaconda 2:02½, has just passed his twenty-first birthday. He owns also L. L. D. 2:08½, Helen R. 2:10½ by Redfield and last year's noted campaigner, Orianna 2:12½.

James Butler, East View Farm, New York, has bought of W. J. Young, of Lexington, Ky., the brown mare Catherine Lunette, by Wilkes Boy, dam Minnie Thornhill, dam of Melton, trial 2:20½, by Billy Thornhill.

The Oregon State Board of Agriculture will give a very liberal purse for 2:14 trotters at the State Fair this year in order to draw together a high class lot of trotters, like Anzella, McBriar, Road Boy and others.

H. W. Brown is wintering Altoka 2:10½ at Salt Lake and intends to race him on the big circuit this year. He has a two year old by Altoka, out of Miss Fox, that is entered in all the big stakes East, where he will start this season.

A special prize of $500 has been offered for the best tandem team shown at the coming Boston Horse Show. No limit has been placed on the size of the horses and the class will therefore be in the nature of a free for all for this sort of a hitch.

Diablo 2:09½, will have a good patronage this year at Woodland. Breeders will be falling over each other in a few years trying to book mares to this great young stallion. He will be one of the greatest speed producers ever bred in California.

A dealer in this city has a contract to supply the U. S. Government with several hundred mules at $90 a head. It is said by some of the other dealers that he will have to pay $100 or over for mules that will fill the Government requirements.

The Year Book, Vol. XV., for 1900, is in the hands of the printers, and Secretary Steiner hopes to have books ready for delivery next week. The book will be the same as that of 1899, which was a great improvement on all year books issued since 1892.

C. A. Durfee has received a letter from an Eastern horse breeder who wishes him to secure a mare of Electioneer blood, get her safely in foal to McKinney and ship her East on the train with the Palo Alto consignment to the Cleveland sale in May.

Capt. W. Ford Thomas of this city has sent his handsome chestnut mare, a full sister to Nellie R. 2:17½ to the Nutwood Stock Farm where she will be bred to Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. We'll wager the foal will trot in 2:30 before it is three years old.

James B. McDonald and F. Townsend of Fresno have purchased the McKinney stallion called McKinley from M. A. Lewis of Oakdale. He is six years old, a handsome blood bay and weighs 1300 pounds. McKinley will make the season of 1901 at Fresno.

This is the time when trainers and horse owners are getting boots and harness for their horses and they are keeping the leading dealer John A. McKerron busy filling their orders. As he makes the best horse boots and light harness in the world he gets the business.

The San Leandro road drivers have organized a club of thirty members under the name of the San Leandro Driving Association. The half mile track just east of town is now in fine condition and will be kept in shape for matinee racing, which will be held frequently during the spring and summer months. M. L. Rawson is President of the club and Isaac Ury Secretary.

Wilkes Direct 2:22½, is the sire of several colts owned in Santa Clara county that are showing speed, and he will have a list of standard performers soon. He is a larger horse than his full brother John A. McKerron 2:09 to wagon, and is one of the best looking stallions in California.

P. W. Hodges has moved his horses from San Jose to Pleasanton. Hazel Kinney 2:09½, and Atherine 2:16½ are both safely in foal to Stam B. 2:11½. Something extra good should come from the Stam B.-McKinney cross. Hodges has Queen R. 2:12½ moving nicely and that roan pacer by Dictatus is a regular whirlwind.

It will not be decided until later whether or not John R. Gentry will be raced this year, but under no circumstances will he race against any other horse than his "fellow townsman," Joe Patchen. The indications are that Gentry will have a big season in the stud and this will be concluded before any racing contests are mapped out.

Some of the members of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland, who are interested in horse shows are agitating the giving of an open air horse show at the Cleveland Driving Park in the spring. It is possible that the show will be given under the auspices of the Gentlemen's Driving Club, and will take place on the day of and the day preceding the opening of the matinee season.

Andy Welch is talking of hanging up a unique purse at the Grand Circuit meeting at Hartford. He proposes to offer $10,000 for a race, the actual purse to be $7000, the other $3000 is to be divided $1000 to the winner of each of the first three heats, and the winner of the race to take fifty per cent of the $7000 purse. By this arrangement a straight-heat winner of the race would get $6500.

Hans Frelson has taken Secretary to the Alameda track for the season of 1901. The service fee for this handsome son of Director is $30 this year and he will have quite a number of very handsome mares booked to him. Secretary gets size, style and high action and puts as much finish on his get as any horse in California. He is a sire of speed and for his opportunities has a large list of standard performers.

Zella McCee by Dexter Prince, dam by Parker's Elect, has been bred to Zombro this year. This mare has shown great speed, having worked a mile in 2:13. She should get a great colt by Zombro. A fine looking mare by Antevolo was bred to him recently. This is the Wilkes-Electioneer cross which is so popular at the present time and will remain so as the two horses named were the two best sons of Hambletonian 10.

The Terre Haute Trotting & Fair Association gives the Matron Stake of $10,000. This event is for foals of 1901 to be decided as two year olds in 1903 and as three year olds in 1904, the main stake for three year olds calling for $7000. Under the conditions it will cost $5 to nominate each foal on March 25th, and after a payment of $10 on December 2d no more will be required until the year of race. Send for entry blanks to Chas. R. Duffin, secretary, Terre Haute, Ind.

The majority of the horses that perform in the Canadian ice races have five calks on each bar shoe. The average American horseshoer may wonder where the fifth one is placed. It is midway between the toe and the heel on the left side, and the object is to keep the animal from slipping when speeding around the sharp turns. All of the horses wear pads under the shoes to protect them from the jar. It takes a Canadian turfite to prepare a horse properly for the ice races.

The world's famous Kentucky Futurity calls for $21,000, of which $14,000 goes for three year olds that trot in 1904, first money being $10,000, $5,000 goes for two year olds that trot in 1903, and $2,000 goes for three year old pacers. It costs but $5 to nominate a mare and no one can show where a colt of speed with a Kentucky Futurity engagement is not worth just twice the value of a colt equally as good that was not engaged. As entries close on March 15th, no time should be lost in writing to this office for entry blanks.

If you want to get real value for your money, see Kenney the Bikeman and purchase a McMurray sulky or speed cart. These are certainly the best vehicles for the money made in the United States, and as the prices are within reach they are popular with horsemen. The McMurray sulkies have been used in making several of the world's champion records, and they are reliable in every way. The speed carts are the most popular in use for fast work on track and speedway. See Kenney at 531 Valencia street, near 16th, in this city.

A fast son of Aleyone is offered for sale by Mr. D. A. Sprague, proprietor of the Maple Leaf Farm, South Charleston, Ohio. The stallion is Alatus 19,092, record 2:17½. He is by Aleyone, sire of McKinney 2:11½, and his dam is Nettie (dam of Jerome Turner 2:15½, News Boy 2:22½, Turner 2:23½ and Alatus 2:17½) by Tom Hall 3000, grandam Mary by Sorrel Tom, son of Bald Stockings. Alatus is the sire of Alice J. 2:09½, Jessie W. 2:15½, Bend Orr 2:21½ and Barefoot O. 2:24½. Mr. Sprague offers Alatus for $1500 if taken soon. We refer our readers to his advertisement in another column for further particulars.

Zombro 2:11, the fastest trotting son of McKinney, will be in the list of speed producing sires before the close of the year. The two year old by him out of a full sister to Arrow 2:13 is a real trotter, and is entered in several stakes. Tuttle Bros. owners of Stam B. 2:11½ have a colt by Zombro out of Bell Medium, Stam B's dam, that has already trotted quarters in 40 seconds. He will not be two years old until May. So many of the young Zombros in the southern part of the State are showing speed that there has been an effort made to get Mr. Beckers to promise to stand him in Los Angeles again next year. He gets speed, size and stylo with as great uniformity as any stallion that ever stood for service in this State.

M. Henry of Haywards has leased from Mrs. Cropsy the mare Hulda by Guide 2:16½, dam Allee R., (dam of Eva W. 2:25½ and Redwood 2:27) by Naubuc, second dam Nelly by Geo. M. Patchen Jr. 31. Mr. Henry will breed Hulda to his stallion Educator by Director, and as the sire and dam of the prospective foal are both strong, vigorous animals, it should be decidedly of the Director type, and fast.

A gentleman who recently visited the Village Farm near Buffalo says that a herd of cows is maintained there nowadays to supply milk for the weanlings which get a liberal ration of the lactical fluid every morning. The youngster which has the box next the cow stable is the full brother to the champion The Abbot 2:03½. An offer of $10,000 has already been refused for this little chap but that was no object, the colt being especially promising, indeed much more so than his famous unsexed brother was at the same age.

Grover Clay, the son of Electioneer that Dennis Gannon has in the stud at Emeryville this year at a fee of $25, gets very handsome horses as a rule. A well known Oakland capitalist has one that is one of the handsomest carriage horses in that city. That Grover Clay should get good looks is not to be wondered at. His sire was a good looking horse, and Norfolk, the sire of his first dam, was the founder of a family of very handsome thoroughbreds. Few grander looking thoroughbreds were ever seen than the Prince of Norfolk, Emperor of Norfolk, El Rio Rey and Rey del Rey, all sons of Norfolk. Then Billy Cheatham, sire of Grover Clay's second dam, was a very handsome horse and his sons and daughters had much more than average good looks. We remember roadsters that Nathan Coombs, his owner, used to drive back in the early 70's, and they were as proud as peacocks and very handsome animals. It is no wonder that Grover Clay gets size and good looks, bred as he is.

James B. Iverson and Judgo Vanderhurst of Salinas made a sale of several road horses this week to W. W. Van Arsdale, the millionaire lumberman of McCloud, near Sissons. Mr. Iverson disposed of his handsome road team, the sorrel gelding Willneer by Eugeneer 20450, dam Wilhelmina by Messenger Duvoe, and the bay gelding Mulvener by Eugeneer, dam Mulvorhees, a son of Jim Mulvenna, out of a Dan Voorhees mare. The pair can road along at 2:35 and brought $450. Mr. Iverson also sold the same party a handsome six-year-old gelding by Eugeneer, out of Knoxie by Winthrop Knox, just slightly broken, for $115. Judgo Vanderhurst sold the five-year-old bay gelding, a sweet-going young horse by Winnipeg 14489, to Mr. Van Arsdale, who will use him for a roadster as well as for the saddle for his wife, who is an expert reinswoman as well as an equestrienne. The price, we understand, was $150.—Salinas Journal.

Vendome Stock Farm at San Jose made no mistake when a stallion of Electioneer blood was selected to head its stud. The Electioneers cross well with all the other families and get speed of the highest order. Electioneer and Steinway gave us Klatawah 2:05½, Chas. Derby 2:20, W. Wood 2:07; Electioneer and Dictator gave us Directum Kelly 2:08½; Electioneer and thoroughbred produced Palo Alto 2:08½, Sunol 2:08½, Azote 2:04½ and Expressive 2:12½; Electioneer and Wilkes produced Adell 2:23, the champion yearling, besides Borama 2:08 and many others; Electioneer and Nutwood gave us the great Arion 2:07½, whose two year old record of 2:10½ to a high wheel sulky has never been approached. Electioneer and Mambrino Patchen blood when united through Chimes and a daughter of Mambrino King, produced The Abbot 2:03½, the fastest trotter yet produced. Electioneer and McKinney blood produced The Roman 2:18½, the sensational three year old of last year that sold a few months ago for $5000.

There have been at least a dozen of the get of McKinney 2:11½ change hands here in California during the past three months at prices ranging from $500 to $5000, The Roman 2:18½ bringing the last named figure. An offer of $4000 was made and refused a few days ago for a son of McKinney out of a mare by Guy Wilkes, second dam Blanche Ward by Onward. This young stallion is four years old and has no record. It pays to breed to a horse whose colts can be sold at such a big profit. There will be more McKinneys in training this year than ever before, and it need not surprise anyone if this stallion leads all sires of new performers at the close of the year. If he does, his sons and daughters will be eagerly sought by Eastern buyers and it may be that in a few years the produce of the son of Aleyone will be like those of Electioneer—a scarce article in the State where they were bred, as the Eastern horsemen will want them all. Mr. Durfee is receiving letters every week from parties on the other side of the Rockies asking him to price sons and daughters of McKinney to them.

Commenting on Hon. Mr. Tracy's remarks anent the secret of breeding trotters, viz., "All that is necessary is for breeders in selecting their animals to choose those that do not pace and reject those that do," friend Thompson says in Turf, Farm and Home: "That all appears very simple and easy, but when I bred Louviska, a puro-gaited trotter that never even singled going down hill, or ambled when going from a walk into a trot, never knew but three gaits, walk, trot and run, to a horse like Alclayono 2:20½, with the same characteristics, and get the pacing filly Neldora, that paced a mile in 2:14 over the half-mile track in Lewiston as a three year old, what are you going to do about it?" Yes, and we are constrained to remark that when you breed such a trotting-bred mare as Dame Wood by Wedgewood (trotting record 2:19), dam Fancy, with a trotting record of 2:30, to such a trotting-bred horse as Ashland Wilkes, with a trotting record of 2:17½, and get a pacer like John R. Gentry 2:00½, what are you going to do about it? The problem seems all the more perplexing, too, when we remember that John R. Gentry has a brother, Myron McHenry, that took a trotting record of 2:15½. This all reminds us of what the Frenchman said: "Sometam dey come one ting; sometam anoder."—American Horse Breeder.

THE SADDLE.

The Saratoga Racing Association.

The new organization will close a number of stakes on March 11th, Monday next, a fact that should not be overlooked by horse owners who are now racing in California. This new organization, of which William C. Whitney is President, is making an effort to again make this track the most popular and fashionable race course in America and the stakes, full details and conditions of which appear in our advertising columns, are well arranged and very liberal. Two year olds have been very well treated, and have the United States Hotel Stakes of $10,000, with $7000 to the winner, $2000 to the second and $1000 for the third, five and a half furlongs; and the Grand Union Hotel Stakes of $10,000, with a similar division, over six furlongs. Of unusual interest is the Saratoga Special, a new stake by subscription of $1000 each, half forfeit, and a piece of plate valued at $500 added. Subscribers to name three horses by May 1st, only one to be a starter. Among the subscribers already known are William C. Whitney, R. T. Wilson, Jr., Philip J. Dwyer, F. R. Hitchcock, Julius Fleischmann, P. H. McCarren, J. R. Keene, John E. Madden, David Gideon, Perry Belmont, J. G. Follansbee, August Belmont, A. H. & D. H. Morris and H. K. Knapp. It should make a magnificent two year old event over five and a half furlongs. Other two year old races are the Adirondack Special of $5000, a handicap over six furlongs; the Flash Stakes of $5000, over five furlongs; the Spinaway Stakes for fillies with $1000 added, over five and a half furlongs; the Albany, a two year old handicap, with $1000 added, over six furlongs, and the Troy, a selling stake, with $1000 added, over five and a half furlongs, and the Kentucky, for fillies, with $1000 added, over five and a half furlongs.

For three year olds the list is headed by the Travers, with $10,000, over a mile and a furlong; the Kenner, $5000, a mile and three furlongs; the Saranac, $5000, a mile and a furlong; the Alabama, for fillies, $2500, a mile and a sixteenth; the Huron, $1000, a mile and three-sixteenths; the Seneca (selling), $1000, six furlongs, and the Mohawk (selling), $1000, over a mile and a sixteenth.

For three year olds and upwards is the Saratoga Handicap, with $10,000, over a mile and a furlong; the Saratoga Cup, $5000, a mile and five furlongs; the Champlain of $3000, over a mile and a furlong; the Delaware Handicap, with $1000 added, over a mile and a sixteenth; the Amsterdam, with $1000 added, over a mile and 70 yards, and the Catskill, a selling stake, with $1000 added, over six furlongs.

The Ballston Hunters' Steeplechase for four year olds and upwards, with $1200, is over the full course of about two miles and a half. The Beverwyck Steeplechase of $1500, for four year olds and upwards, over the full course, and the Summer Hurdle Handicap, for four year olds and upwards, with $1000, is over eight hurdles in two miles.

All entries should be made to the Secretary of the association, H. K. Knapp, at the offices, 173 Fifth Avenue, New York. The schedule is a most attractive one and should be liberally patronized.

A Celebrated Ringer.

There is more than one path that leads to success on the turf, and among the most remarkable and at the same time disreputable was chosen by William Brannon, who is now living a retired life in Covington, Kentucky, with the notoriety of being the most marked man ever connected with racing in this country. Others have offended the turf laws, and after a period been reinstated, but those in authority have said that William Brannon should never again enjoy the privileges of the course. He stands to-day in racing records as an outlaw on the American turf without a future.

No race ever run in America was followed by more sensations than when Polk Badget swept down the stretch in Latonia an easy winner that mellow September afternoon nearly ten years ago. He was entered in the race by the Rocky Creek stable, and the faded colors of his jockey—Keith—suggested that he was nothing more than a regular campaigner from the small fair districts familiarly known as the "bush." His pedigree was given as by Quicksote—Eva R., and the peculiar looking breeding was not noticed, as in those days it was not out of the ordinary to enter horses with the most ordinary pedigree in maiden races. The opening price against him was 25 to 1, but this was quickly pounded down to 8 to 5, and when the horses went to the post the thirty books doing business at the track that day had, in the majority of instances, rubbed his price off their slates. Everything worked well for the Brannon confederation that day. There was no delay at the post; they were sent away and Polk Badget took the lead from the jump, and flashed under the wire an easy winner. Before the judge suspected anything the numbers had been hung up, the bets paid, and the greatest steal in American turf annals had passed into history. Perhaps because the Brannon confederation had worked so successfully in ringing Tanner as Polk Badget is the reason "Will" Brannon's sin against turf laws is classed as unpardonable. At any rate, Secretary Hopper recently said Brannon would never be reinstated so long as he had any voice in racing affairs.

In a recent talk Brannon said he did not think it possible now to ring a good horse like Tanner with profit and escape detection. He said that the only way such a job could be worked now would be by some one of such standing that his simple word would explain away any suspicious circumstances.

"I never saw as good a subject for ringing purposes as Tanner," said Brannon. "In the first place he was a horse of perfect temper and as docile as the buggy horse of a country doctor. All the races he ran for us he only had to gallop in. He was really a high class horse, and over tracks as fast as they are to-day a mile in 1:39 would not have been beyond his capabilities. He could carry weight, any kind of going suited him, and a stable boy could ride him as well as a Reiff or a Tod Sloan. After he had cleaned up at Louisville as Little Dan, I bleached him a chestnut and sold him. He won many times afterward under the name of Bill Brown. Counting his legitimate races, together with the races he won under various aliases, I should think that Tanner landed first money in fully seventy-five races, and in his ringing career, when right on edge, he never encountered a horse that could make him fully extend himself. It takes a good horse to make a ringer," continued Brannon. "Someone once asked Milton Young, the famous breeder, what was the best horse he ever bred. He replied that Frogdance probably was, because he was the only one good enough to be bought for a ringer."

Brannon, according to his own statement, has no knowledge of Frogdance, and what became of the son of Pirate of Penzance will probably remain a mystery forever. It is generally believed that the horse died before the coup planned for him could be carried out. Brannon tells many interesting stories of "bush" racing. In Texas the combination put through many jobs, but was finally caught red handed at Waco and the Sheriff attempted to seize the horse. The horse was with some effort removed from the track to a stall, but the Sheriff traced him. Inside a negro boy was heard singing Georgia ballads, and he apparently did not hear the knocks of the Sheriff on the outside. The exasperated Sheriff broke down the door, only to find that the back of the barn had been taken away and that the horse had been spirited out through a cornfield. Although they lost money at Waco, they had better luck at the other places, and as the result of the trip with Post Odds cleaned up a tidy sum.

Handicapping is a Science.

Nothing in racing has changed more of late years than handicapping. Ten years ago it was a simple "rule of the thumb," to-day it is an intricate science.

It consists in the art of placing a number of horses on terms of equality when the official handicapper of a club does the work, but when the punter does it, it means finding out what slips the official has unwittingly made, and benefiting by them. He makes slips because his work is done anywhere from a month to twenty-four hours before a race, while the punter has to the last minute, with all advantages of track conditions, exercising data, etc., to help him.

Ten years ago a man took the entries for a race and avoided gathering any idea of the official estimate. He made a handicap for himself, as if he had been the official, and when it was finished he compared the result with the official weights, picked out the most favored horse, according to his argument, and played it.

Boiled down, this means he took each horse, noted track, weight, distance and where he finished. If a horse carrying 120 pounds won from a horse carrying 102 pounds by half a length, what weight would bring them together?

This was a rude method of solving a very delicate problem, for half a length is a tenth part of a second over six furlongs, and so a rude table in use for nearly a hundred years was used, which made to win by a neck driving, was equal to three pounds; handily by a neck, four pounds; half a length driving, four pounds; half a length handily, five pounds; a length driving, six pounds; and a length handily, ten pounds, and so on. Thus, driven hard by whip and spur, winning by half a length, four pounds placed on the 120 pound horse or four pounds taken off the 102 pound horse would result in a dead heat. That's the theory of it. That it does not always work out that way is one of the "glorious uncertainties of racing."

The modern method retains all the good points of the old system, but developed and elaborated so that the old blunt terminal becomes as a needle point. In those matters Americans are away ahead of the rest of the civilized world. Of that there is no doubt, and the condition of what may be termed our "racing literature" proves it.

To-day everything is reduced to percentage and a decimal point for calculation. When these are massed into a total it definitely indicates the best horse on performances.

The old method held that weight brought the horses together. The new method realizes that one horse with added weight runs more slowly as the post is being reached, while the other is running at the old rate, or even faster, because of greater encouragement, and a table of percentage is used to demonstrate the difference.

Thus if a horse runs a mile in 1:42, carrying 115 pounds, his percentage or decimal is possibly 108. If in a race at the same distance, carrying ten pounds more, it will be 98, a point being deducted for every added pound. Naturally, if ten pounds be taken off, his decimal rises to 118.

The arrangement of the oscillating point is arbitrary with the calculator, and is generally placed at a point away beyond the record for the distance, making it impossible to reach the maximum, such as a mile in 1:30, for instance. So much for weight.

The speed of the last race was a mile in 1:42, and the percentage figure is 51.78, this being the average number of feet covered per second, there being 5280 feet in a mile, divided by the 102 seconds which constitute the 1 minute 42 seconds. If the previous races run by the individual horse were at other distances, the same line of calculation added or subtracted will give the correct figure for the distance.

More Weight for Age Races.

By far the most important and encouraging feature of the present situation in American turfdom is the unmistakable evidence of a coming revival of weight for age racing over really satisfactory distances of ground, says the New York Telegraph. This is especially noticeable upon reference to the plans of the race-courses under the direct control of our Jockey Club in the East, and the revolution, so to speak, is doubtless mainly due to influences emanating from that body.

It is but a year or two since the turf in this section possessed in the Brighton Cup the only event which was in any way worthy to be regarded as a distinctly classic fixture for the older horses, the sport being then characterized by excessive patronage of the two year old division, with almost a monopoly of handicap races for the seniors.

The season of 1901 will witness a most beneficial change in this direction. Instead of allowing the Brighton Cup to stand out virtually alone as a strictly weight for age event the other great race courses in our vicinity will furnish a magnificent series of races, with distances so varied and adequate that the question as to supremacy in the all-aged department should be thoroughly well solved ere the close of the season.

The benefit and importance of this policy to both the racing and breeding interests of the American turf cannot be overestimated. The previous lack of this class of events has for some years caused either the premature retirement of our high class racehorses at the very zenith of their careers or else has compelled them to take their chances under heavy weights for more or less important handicaps.

The public, carried away with the prestige of these horses and blind to the great disadvantages under which topweights invariably labor in handicaps, would make them strong favorites for those races, and their defeats would frequently cause dissatisfaction and unfavorable comment, for which there was no reasonable foundation.

The new and better policy of 1901 will afford ample scope for the senior cracks to race for valuable prizes, however, without running the risk of interference or injury from the lightweight riffraff which almost invariably characterizes a handicap.

This will surely result in the prolongation of the racing careers of our best horses, and their inevitable mootings in these races will add great dignity and importance to our turf.

Another direct benefit from this policy will be found in its tendency to check the exportation of high class horses to England. This has already been amply demonstrated, for several of the best two year olds of last season would have shared in the foreign trip of Olympia, Cap and Bells, Elkhorn, etc., had it not been for the prompt announcements made last fall in regard to the certainty of weight-for-age fixtures of adequate value for the all-aged division of 1901.

The weight-for-age events on Jockey Club courses during the coming season will furnish a great series of important races, and their installation makes a new and eventful epoch in the American turf. Their importance and the possibilities they contain for both the general racing public and the owners of the high class horses may be easily realized when it is considered that the series will comprise the Jockey Club weight-for-age race at Morris Park (spring), $1500 added, one mile and a furlong; the Standard Stakes at Brooklyn (spring), $1500 added, one mile and a half; the Advance Stakes at Sheephead Bay (spring), $3000 added, one mile and a half; the Brighton Cup, $5000 added, two miles and a quarter; the Saratoga Cup, $5000 guaranteed, one mile and five furlongs; the Century Stakes at Sheephead Bay (fall), $10,000 guaranteed, one mile and a half, and the Morris Park weight-for-age race, $3000 and the Woodlawn Vase added, two miles and a quarter.

The Brooklyn Jockey Club's usual First and Second Specials will constitute its fall quota to the series. Irrespective of these, however, the above seven events will net a total of virtually $50,000 to the all-aged division, and the great bounty of the whole matter is the reasonable certainty that each and all of the series are calculated to be won by the best horse on the day.

The tendency for these splendid races, as has already been noted, has doubtless come in the main from Jockey Club circles, and is in itself not the least of the benefits which have inured to the American turf from the policy of the governing organization of the East.

SADDLE NOTES.

Racing is still going on at both the race tracks in this vicinity and there are few new developments. The San Francisco Supervisors have passed an ordinance permitting racing for thirty-six days in each year, and the San Mateo Board has repealed its ordinance limiting racing. The only sensation of the week was an offer of $500,000 for the Ingleside and Tanforan tracks, made by M. A. Gunst on behalf of his associates in the California Jockey Club. The offer was declined. The class of racing is not of a very high order at either of the tracks at the present time, and as the dates approach for the big stables to start east, the class will still further deteriorate.

At a meeting of the San Francisco Jockey Club held this week, Alfred Bouvier was appointed managing director of the association. Bouvier is well known as a theatrical promoter. He managed the recent Grau grand-opera season and was for a long time identified with the Baldwin Theater, but this is his first venture into the racing game. Bouvier came to San Francisco in 1886 from St. Louis, his native city. He is very wide awake and courteous, and will aid in popularizing the San Francisco Jockey Club with the race-going public. It is intended to secure increased railway facilities and to plan out an elaborate program for next season. There are also numerous details to be arranged in regard to the re-opening of Ingleside a week from to-day. The bulk of the racing paraphernalia will have to be shipped from Tanforan to Ingleside during the nighttime, if there is to be any racing at Tanforan on Friday.

There is more than a chance that Jockey Reiff, the great little American lightweight, will ride the winner of the first big race in England this season, and that is the Lincolnshire handicap. Harrow, a five year old by Ormo-Lady Primrose, is owned by Richard Croker, and trained by Enoch Wishard. He was bought at the sale of the late Duke of Westminster's horses, and is a speedy miler. He has only 104 pounds to carry, and that is a light impost for a horse of his age. In speaking of Harrow, the Sporting Life of February 15th says: Equally satisfactory news comes to hand concerning Harrow, who was yesterday supported at 15 to 1, for the first great handicap of the season, and despite the fact that his stable companion Flambard has been occasionally supported for the Lincoln event at outside prices, I feel sure that the five year old son of Ormo and Lady Primrose will be the representative of Wishard's stable in the great race at Lincoln. As Lester Reiff rides Flambard, it looks as if the American boys would have a good chance in the first big race of the season.

Bon Holladay, by Hanover, dam Mollie L., by Longfellow, one of the best long-distance performers during his career on the turf, has been sold by Messrs. Eastin & Larabee to Mr. J. B. Haggin, and will be placed in the stud at Elmendorf. Mr. Haggin, besides purchasing Holladay, bought ten mares, five yearlings and one suckling. The price paid was not made public, but is said to be about $50,000.

Seven jockeys sailed from New York February 27th, on the Oceanic to seek honors on foreign tracks. This is the record for outward-bound riders, and the number leaving was further increased by the sailing of Elmer Jones on the New York. Lester and Johnny Reiff, who will ride for Haggin's stable, were objects of especial interest. The remarkable feature of the sailing is the number of jockeys that are bound for Austria. Morgan, who was so successful there last year, was the feature of the brigade. Eddie Jones also sailed. He will ride for Dr. Dreher, a rich Austrian brewer. Jones took along with him Erbsmalt, an eighty-pound boy. Austria is also the destination of Tony Hamilton, who sailed on the Lahn Tuesday. Taral, Doggett and Ballard are also on their way to the new hunting ground, and Eddie Ross, the Pacific Coast boy, who is going shortly, will make a total of eight Americans in Austria next season. Cash Sloan and his wife were also on the Oceanic.

There is a considerable difference of opinion among the English turf writers as to the condition of the much-talked-of Derby favorite, Volodyovski. Truth, in its issue of February 14th, has the following: "I hear from Newmarket that it is believed that something is seriously amiss with one of Volodyovski's hocks, and that it is now considered improbable that he will ever get through a Derby preparation. No rational being will dream of backing the horse for a farthing, and it is difficult to conceive how any one fit to go at large could be so infatuated as to accept the ridiculous price which has been offered against this colt during the winter." On the other hand, the Racing World, which makes a specialty of training reports, contains the following in its Newmarket notes of February 16th: "Volodyovski may not be at all safe to lay odds against for the Derby; it is quite certain that he is not suffering from thoroughpin, though his hock is much disfigured; those who profess to see that both hocks are affected are trusting entirely to imagination." Meantime, Volodyovski is quoted at 100 to 15 for the big event. The colt is by the King's horse Florizel II., and even should he fail to stand training, Florizel II. will be represented in this year's classic stakes with Doriclos, Floriform and Royal Rogue.

Strenuous efforts are to be made to attract a higher class lot of horses to New Orleans next winter. During the coming summer a number of improvements are to be made on the track. Among them is the promise of a new grand stand, something that is badly needed. The purses will be raised, $300 being the minimum, with handicaps each day and a number of new stakes, none of which will be of the guaranteed variety. If these inducements are put before the horsemen at the proper time there is no question that it will bring the desired results.

The Supreme Court of Missouri, in declaring the Breeders law constitutional, closed up all the pool rooms in St. Louis. The Court held that the State, in the exercise of its police regulations, might prohibit gambling altogether or regulate it in such a manner as it saw proper. The act was also attacked on the ground of class legislation, but the Court held that the law "embraces all persons alike who choose to place themselves within its reach," and was not, therefore, vicious class legislation, either as to persons or places.

Magian, the bay son of imp. Ill Used, which Mr. Perry Belmont has placed at the head of his stud, will be remembered principally for his victories in the Dunmow Stakes and the White Plains Handicap at Morris Park in the fall of 1894. In the Dunmow he fought a battle royal with Mr. O. H. P. Belmont's Brandywine, the Nursery bred colts drawing clear away from their field in a head and head sprint, but the White Plains was won by a length. In this race Magian carried 117 pounds, among the defeated ones being Countess Tenor (second with 116), California (third with 110), The Commoner (118), Owllet (102), Havoc (105), Annisette (116), Halma (110), etc., and the six furlongs were on that occasion negotiated in 1:10, from which it will be seen that Magian's speed was of a high order. Magian has grown into a really handsome and impressive stallion. He is a bay with black points, on the typical Ill Used order and much like His Highness. His quality and strong, flat bone are alike impressive and it needs no lengthy study of the son of Magnetism to convince one that he possesses ample qualifications of individuality as well as pedigree for continuing his successful career as a sire, which was so auspiciously begun with six two year old winners—Edgeworth, Merri-man, Lyrer Belle, The Covenanter, The Landress and Mistigri—in 1900.

Owner Lakeland appears to have got a bargain in Ogden at $4200, for the horse is sound and should be worth every dollar of the amount paid for the stud. Ogden has been entered in the Carter Handicap and other events, and his astute owner does not disguise his good opinion of the horse.

During the coming season there are 21 American jockeys who expect to ride in Great Britain and Europe. The names of the boys, with the reported amounts they will receive, are: Tod Sloan, free lance, probable income from various owners, $20,000; "Cash" Sloan, $5000; Henry Martin, $10,000; Henry Spencer, $12,000; Joe Scherrer, $3000; Fred Taral, $5000; Sam Doggett, $5000; Danny Maher, $20,000; Lester Reiff, $25,000; Johnny Reiff, $15,000; J. Morgan, $10,000; E. Rigby, $6000; W. Simms, $5000; E. Vittatoc, $5000; Tony Hamilton, $3000; Elmer James, $4000; Waldo brothers, Dave and Edward, $3000 each; McJoynt, $8000, and J. McIntyre, $5000. Of the above list of jockeys, Taral, "Cash" Sloan, Doggett, Morgan, Simms, McJoynt and Hamilton will ride in France and Austria. The others will have mounts in England. The Reiffs will ride for Richard Croker, McJoynt for W. K. Vanderbilt, Maher for P. Lorillard and Spencer for Edward Corri-gan. Of this number Tod Sloan may not get a license in England and Spencer will have to get the ban removed from him in this country, as his license was revoked here by the Jockey Club last season.

The stewards of the Western Jockey Club at a meeting held in Chicago March 5th, adopted the rules which will govern the new turf body. The most important point is a declaration of policy towards race track owners who refuse to recognize the authority of the Western Jockey Club. The stewards passed a rule barring from participation on any Western Jockey Club track any one racing at unrecognized meetings, such as those held by all tracks west of the Allegheny mountains, except California, where a license is not obtained from the stewards. The decree does not carry absolute "outlawry" because the persons so barred are privileged to race in the East or on the Pacific Coast, but it was as far as the Western Jockey Club could go under its present powers and shows that the stewards are determined to take a firm stand to obtain the control of racing in the West and will press their power to the utmost.

The California Jockey Club has filed an answer to the suit of Charles Wedderstrand, a jockey, who has sued for reinstatement in the United States District Court. The defendants make a general denial of all the allegations in the complaint. The specific grounds for expulsion are that Wedderstrand was guilty of dishonest practices in holding back a horse on December 8, 1900. The time for argument was set for next Monday.

An eastern writer thus describes Frankfort, the full brother to Hamburg, purchased by Clarence Mackay at the Daly dispersal sale. Frankfort is disappointing at first sight for there is nothing heroic about his proportions, nor is his individuality particularly impressive. He is a bay with black points and with a star, and one misses Hamburg's white face and hind stockings. Frankfort's good point is not in his height, but in his length, and he appears to have spread out since the sale and shows signs of muscling up. He may be described as a nicely turned colt, although hardly a classic looker, one of the kind that improves as one studies him, yet never fulfills expectations as to the individuality actually expected from a brother to Hamburg.

Burlingame Stock Farm's colt Brutal has been declared out of the Suburban.

A Los Angeles paper says: The war between the San Francisco race tracks may result in depriving Los Angeles of its spring race meeting. J. W. Brooks, official handicapper of the California Jockey Club, was the man appointed by the Sixth District Agricultural Association to agitate the matter among horsemen, and if a sufficient number of them could be induced to stop over here for ten days or two weeks to ensure a fine meeting, the local people were going ahead with arrangements at this end. The northern trouble has divided the horse owners against themselves, and although they are remaining neutral in the trouble, Mr. Brooks is unable to do much missionary work, and the plan to give Los Angeles the very best running meeting it ever had is liable to fall through. President E. T. Wright of the Agricultural Association said recently that no word had been received from either Mr. Brooks or John C. Lynch as to the status of affairs for a couple of weeks. "We are ready and willing to give the meeting, and believe a high class meeting would receive substantial support here, but the track troubles around San Francisco will probably spoil the plan," said Mr. Wright.

The second volume of Goodwin's Turf Guide, completing the record of racing in the United States and Canada for the year 1900, has just been issued. The work contains all the best features of the publication in former years, and has also several new departments, one of the best of which is a tabulation of the performances of American horses in England, showing the number of races and amount of money won by each. Records of American racing, indexed form tables, records of best performances, the names and addresses of race track secretaries, information about the various tracks and an article on handicapping are among the conspicuous departments of the "Guide."

Dr. Seward Webb, who with his "Across the Continent Train Party," is at Santa Barbara for a time, has purchased one of the finest saddle animals in Southern California. He has a well appointed stock car on his train and the horses go East with him when he leaves California. Of the horses bought seven were from the stud of the lately deceased Countess Hamsch, of Montecito. They may be described as brilliant animals. There are three trained polo ponies of the seven, clever little animals known to polo players the Coast over. The other horses were blooded saddle animals trained to the bit after the Mexican fashion. They were bought from M. Den and Hiram Pierce. It is stated that R. Barrett Fithian may sell Mr. Webb some stock.

According to the English newspapers, there is fear in England that the supply of American horses for military service in South Africa will be exhausted before the war there is ended. The army is now getting nearly 10,000 horses a month, and it is said that most of the animals are disabled and out of business within six weeks after they are sent into the field.

Bench Show Notes.

The selection of judges for the San Francisco Kennel Club May show was announced last week. The choice of the bench show committee was for Mr. Henry Jarrett, of Philadelphia, and Mr. James J. Lynn, of Port Huron, Mich. The former gentleman is a prominent Eastern breeder of Collies and is also regarded as an authority on Pointers, Setters, Cocker and the small breeds. Mr. Lynn is by choice a Fox Terrier fancier. Both judges have officiated at many important Eastern shows and have also been successful exhibitors. Mr. J. Bradshaw will judge Greyhounds.

These selections seem to be universally acceptable to the majority of the fancy here.

The work of preparation for the May show is progressing rapidly. A sanguine feeling among the doggy rank and file is that the fifth annual show of the local club will be a successful one.

The office of the Kennel Club, it is announced, will be opened at No. 16 Post street on or about the first of April. This change in location is a wise move, the spot is a central one, easy of access from any part of the city, and will be of much convenience to intending exhibitors.

A rousing list of elegant specials is promised for the May show.

Among the proposed novelties it is possible that Mr. Lynn's crack kennel of winning wire-hairs will be entered for exhibition only.

The Fox Terrier showing here in May promises to be a hot competition. N. H. Hickman, J. B. Martin, C. K. Harley and Jack Bradshaw will each bench a kennel of four. Some of the best outside of New York will show up in this quartette of kennels, nearly all of the dogs having scored wins already.

Toy Dogs.

The term "toy dog" was never applied with more appropriateness to any breed than the clever and beautiful little Pomeranians. Admirers of this breed claim that the Pomeranians supersede every other dog and are sure to become the most popular as pets. In England they have had a great vogue for some time, but as yet there are comparatively few in this country. The first were brought over about a year ago by Mrs. C. Harley Williamson of New York, who fell in love with the beautiful little animals, and has made a sort of fad of them. Mrs. Williamson, who is a member of the Ladies' Kennel Association, brought a dozen with her from a European trip, and now she has twenty, keeping some of them at her home in that city and others at her Lakewood place. At last year's Westminster Kennel Club show her Lakewood Roy took the prize for the best Pomeranian exhibited.

The black Pomeranians are the smallest. As yet it has been impossible to breed the white one so small. Eight pounds is the dividing line; dogs under eight are called "toy Poms," and the smaller the finer and more valuable. Lakewood Roy weighs not quite five pounds. Besides black and white, Pomeranians come in brown, blue and sable. The white is snowy as ermine, and the black like ink. The first black ones in England were bred by Gladstone, who was extremely fond of Pomeranians as pets.

These tiny dogs bring prices in no way commensurate with their size. The price averages from $500 to $1000, and as much as $2000 has been paid for an especially fine one.

Some of the Pomeranian's distinguishing points are these: A profuse coat which is more like fur than that of any other dog, having an upper and an under coat; the hair is not curly nor is it brushed smooth; it stands out from the body in a fluffy way; the nose is pointed, the ears small and erect, the feet dainty and "feathered," and the beautiful plume, as the tail is called, is carried erect.

Very affectionate and lively are the little Poms, but jealous of attention paid to any other pet, playful and intelligent and quick to hear any noise. Mrs. Williamson declares that hers know everything going on in her house, and are superb watch dogs on account of their acute hearing. The same regimen of food and exercise suitable for any house dog suffices the Pomeranians, although they are in every way more dainty.

An entry of one hundred and eleven English Setters, one hundred and seven Pointers, thirty-nine Irish Setters and twenty-one Gordons at the New York Show made up quite an interesting bench exhibit in itself.

The old English bob-tailed sheep dog was represented by seven specimens at the Westminster Show.

Preparing Rough-Coated Terriers for Show.

No person can have been closely associated for a long time with exhibition Terriers, such as Fox, Irish, Scottish, &c., without having frequently noticed that something has been done to make the exhibits more fit for the show bench. They have been smartened up, and appear "fresh" and "fit as fiddles." This has been so much the fact, that one would expect it to be a matter of common knowledge in all parts of the world where such Terriers are exhibited.

We are particularly concerned with Fox Terriers, though much of our talk may be equally applicable to all rough-coated Terriers, and some smooths. It would surprise many to read the numerous letters we receive, asking questions on this subject, though as we said above, we thought everyone knew the dogs were trimmed. Many breeders are fond of wires, but because of their utter inability to prepare the dogs, either give them up, or show them in such form, that they are quite unlike show dogs.

Some writers ask us to tell how it is done; others beg we will put the writer "in the way of getting a kit." The last-noticed evidently has an idea that it is necessary to have a box of tools. All our correspondents, though generally novices, agree that the dogs have to go through some tooled preparation to fit them for exhibition. Each operator has his own way of doing the business, and each prevents anyone else from seeing the process. One gentleman who writes to us says, "I came upon Mr. — preparing his Terriers for the show, but directly he saw me he put up the articles he was using, and stopped the business, whilst no persuasion or offers of mine would induce him to let me into the secret." Another would-be-cup-winner tells of how he visited an exhibitor's celebrated kennel somewhat unexpectedly. The champion dog was in such full coat, that for the moment he was not recognized. The following week, on calling again at the same place, this dog was found denuded of his coat, and quite the opposite of what he was at the time of his first visit.

Many of those who read these remarks, must, at some time or other, have heard the chaffing which has passed between the patrons of the two sections. The "smooth fancier" charges the "wire man" with having trimmed his "poodle," and with having taken off too much of "the sea-weed arrangement." The wire fancier retorts that the smooth dog could not win unless "some of his neck cloth had been removed."

Whichever side one chooses to take, there can be little doubt but that some smooths are "prepared," and we should certainly believe we are correct in saying that no wire would stand a ghost of a chance in hot company without more or less trimming. The effectual arrangements of such details marks the successful exhibitor, and no doubt it accounts for so many wire-haired Terriers being in charge of professional handlers—men who know exactly what is wanted, know how to do it, and the proper time to carry it out. He can easily decide whether a Terrier carries too much or too little coat, whether it is soft or hard, and what is wanted to make it proper. It is seldom one sees a Terrier put down in the form we once did. Many then looked as if the superabundant coat had been cut off with scissors, or had, according to the show slang, "been chopped with a knife and fork." Others we have seen unquestionably singed. The trimming grew so glaring that the attention of the Kennel Club felt so keenly interested in its suppression, that a Watching Committee was appointed to report owners whose exhibits appeared in such condition.

We do not recollect this committee reporting anyone. The probability is that they found trimming so general that to have reported one would have entailed the reporting of many more.

This action though put exhibitors on the qui vive, and it was necessary to find some other way to prepare their Terriers than plucking or cutting just before a show. Several well known exhibitors determined to demonstrate that it was possible to show wire-hairs in a perfectly natural state. The most successful in this direction was Mr. Redmond with "The Untrimmed," which won the Challenge Cup at Barn Elms, and was claimed by Mr. Wharton.

The result of all this attention was that one heard less of the question for a year or two, but it was only another plan which had been substituted. We have applied to several of the best known experts to write us an article upon the subject, but we have never yet had the promised contribution. A gentleman of whom we asked the same question a week or two back, replied: "I always prefer to do what I have by myself, and let no one whatever see what I do." How, then, could he publish it to the world? Several exhibitors have been brought before the Kennel Club for trimming, but in most cases they always declared that nothing had been done but use the comb. The majority of exhibitors to-day would declare that they did "nothing" to their dog before the show. Exactly so; it is what has been done earlier which marks the departure of the modern from the older method.

The general practice is somewhat in this way: An exhibitor makes up his mind to enter for a particular show. Some weeks before this show comes off the dog is "stripped" of his old exterior coat from nose to tail. This is done so carefully that he knows the dog will be just in full bloom again about the time of the show he has decided upon, and this terrier turns up without any superabundant coat "in excellent trim." A glance at our show reports will indicate in several ways that:

1. The same exhibitor generally has a duplicate team, of which he brings out a fresh lot directly the old one is becoming stale, or has grown too much coat.

2. The exhibitor generally arranges that his new team (or part of it) shall come out, after a rest, at a large show.

3. The reports of shows speak of such and such a dog being soft in coat, or with too little coat on. This is often accounted for by—in the first case the old coat requiring to be stripped; and in the latter the new coat has not filled expectations, and grown as quickly as was anticipated.

The only tools necessary to carry out this "stripping" are a brush and a comb. Spratts had a comb made specially for the purpose. It is described in their catalogue. Strongly made with short teeth, and a handle of horn. They have recently introduced a smaller one more effective, and only differing from the other in being shorter in the blade. Grasp the comb firmly in the hand, and with that and the thumb the whole of the long hair may be drawn off in a very short time. Experience will soon show how much or how little to take off. From a month to six weeks is required to allow the new coat to replace the old. It will be seen from this that the dog requires very little touching up before he visits a show.

There is one other point to be noted, and that is, to avoid all washing during the time the new coat is growing. A clean, plentiful supply of good wheat-straw for his bed will make washing quite unnecessary, but if his coat looks a bit grimy—it ought not—when he goes to the show, it is useful to do something to clean it. This may be easily performed with a little wheaten flour. Take an ordinary sized soup plate and fill up the centre with flour, put it in the oven for a few moments to get hot. Then take the dog in hand, and start at the head, thoroughly rub the flour into his coat. When you have done all you think necessary, take a perfectly clean brush, get out all the flour, and then rub him down well with a clean, rough towel. If this is practiced a few times there will be no need of washing, and if the brush is stiff enough it will bring out all traces of the flour and clean his skin.

The above does not profess to be a "full and complete" history of the subject, but it is written in hope of assisting some of the many who have written to the Chronicle.—The Hermit in Fox Terrier Chronicle.

Doings in Dogdom.

N. H. Hickman lost by tuberculosis his handsome Pointer bitch Kenwood Belle, by Senator P. She was recently bred to L. Auhert's Ashbury.

The Wheatland Four Corners has the following announcement: "Poison will be placed for coyotes on the Durst place south of town. Dogs and dog owners should make a note of this." The dogs probably will enjoy a meal when they note the matter, and subsequently attend their own inquests.

W. W. Van Arsdale last week sent East his noted English Setter bitch Peach Mark in charge of his trainer, Chas. Babcock. Peach Mark will be bred to Tony Boy, now at J. M. Avent's headquarters, Hickory Valley, Tenn. This "nick" will make another grand addition to the gilt-edged ones on the Coast.

It is reported that J. Otis Fellows, the pioneer Cocker Spaniel breeder, says the American Field, in its straitened circumstances, partly because his afflictions prevent his gaining a livelihood. A subscription list has been started and though it is not headed by the wealthy devotees of the merry Cocker, it has assumed large proportions, not only from those devoted to this breed, and from many who are ever ready to render aid to the afflicted, but by many who thus wish to join Dr. Niven and others in resenting insulting remarks made on account of his circumstances and position.

The new fancier of wealth may spend a small fortune for a great dog and so be in the winning honors from the start, but, in the highest degree of bench show success—the winning with dogs of the owner's breeding—the rich and poor amateurs have an even chance in the race for the blue ribbons. The latter often has the best of it, for he devotes usually his own time to the dogs, while the rich man must depend on salaried kennelmen. In rare instances blue ribbon dogs have been picked up very cheap by good judges. Quite a noted Greyhound was bought as a puppy for twenty dollars from a curbstone vender in New York, and Trafalgar, a famous Bull Terrier, was bought for not much more from an Adirondack guide by one of a hunting party who knew the points of the breed.

All lovers of dogs will rejoice that at last the germ or microbe of distemper has been discovered. Dr. Copeland of London, according to the Chronicle, has succeeded in isolating a "coccus," or rounded form of microbe, from the secretions of the lungs and nose of dogs suffering from the disease in question, and with the identification of the particular bacillus to which the disease is due fanciers may hope for the coming of the knowledge which will enable them to prevent the ailment and save much pain and suffering to their canine friends. The coccus of distemper is easily cultivated by laboratory methods, and a pure and strong culture produces fatal effects in the dog. But when the strong culture is heated to sixty degrees Centigrade and carbolic acid is added to it a vaccine can be used to inoculate dogs, and so to prevent them taking the disease. Experiment has shown that puppies thus vaccinated escaped infection when exposed thereto, the dog breeders in Great Britain and abroad are assisting in the work of the further elucidation of the powers possessed by the vaccine to confer immunity, and of the length of time such protection may last.

Called Down.

The efforts of the local "apostles of game protection" have been deservedly catchised by the Marysville Democrat. The editor of that journal was the Chairman of the Committee of Fifteen which drafted the bill proposed by the Game Convention which met in this city last year.

The present game legislation muddle at Sacramento is aptly described in a telegraphic report this week as follows:

The committee bill regulating the manner and season in which wild game shall be taken furnished the solitary feature of the day's proceedings in the house. Duryea's amendment extending the open season for the killing of deer from July to October, instead of July to September, as at present, was voted down. Then followed something like twenty amendments attacking various sections of the bill. Greer, Schlesinger, Johnson, Feliz, Higbee and others became tangled in controversy at various stages of the consideration of the bill. Greer's amendment permitting the carrying of wild duck, plover, wild pigeons and rail out of the State was beaten out, the Sacramentan lost on his proposition to amend by permitting a person to kill more than fifty ducks a day.

Schlesinger tried to kill the bill by moving to strike out the enacting clause, but failed. He succeeded, however, in forcing an amendment which permits of game being sold in restaurants and open markets, and handled by cold storage companies, as now.

Feliz tried to have the bill amended so as to forbid any man owning land and prohibiting others from hunting upon it to hunt there himself, but his amendment was lost. Then the bill went to third reading.

It is now proposed by a few that the laws of the State be changed so as to permit the market sale of game during one or two months in each year. In other words, we are asked to spend large sums to propagate and protect game and pay wardens to look after it, during ten to eleven months of the year, and the other month or two offer a bounty of 25 cents a head on birds and $2 or $3 on deer (or whatever the market will pay) to destroy the results of the labor and money expended during the other eleven months. That would be equivalent to hiring a man to plant your potato patch and when the spuds were grown, licensing the youth of the neighborhood to gather them in to sell for their own benefit. It's worse. In the latter case you waste only your own efforts, while in the former you squander the resources of the State and injure the people at large.

In commenting on the foregoing the Marysville Democrat says:

The present laws of the State do not prohibit the sale of game, therefore the esteemed contemporary is in error when it says it is proposed by a few that the laws of the State be changed so as to permit the market sale of game during one or two months in each year. It is presumed that Pastime intended to refer to a proposed law that was manipulated by a few, and introduced in the Legislature early in the session. And this reminds us that there has been peculiar and unfair means resorted to by certain men who were in duty bound to stand for the bill formulated in the State Convention of sportsmen held in San Francisco last summer. The question of prohibiting the sale of game during the open season was fully discussed, and when the vote was taken it was defeated by five to one, or in that proportion. When that point had been decided it was a plain duty of the minority to acquiesce and give their support to the bill then formulated. But the fact remains that a few members of that convention did inject this clause into another bill and had it introduced into the Legislature, thus dividing the strength in favor of greater protection. Pastime, no doubt, means to favor greater protection of game in California, but it certainly has not exercised proper discretion in its contention for a law that would not stand the test in court a single day. When we concede that the game of the State belongs to the people thereof, we can go no further after fixing a limit to a close season and limiting the number a person may kill in one day or a season. When a man has killed a quail or duck during the open season it is his property and to undertake to deprive him of the right to sell it or give it away is in conflict with the spirit of the Constitution of California. We do not believe in a law that will dictate to a man how he shall dispose of his own property. Personal rights must be respected, even though it is distasteful to Pastime, or any other sportsman. There already is a decision on this point in this State and it is not the part of good judgment, or in the interest of greater protection to bite off more than one can chew, as in the case of prohibition of sale.

A Game Commissioner.

On last Saturday morning a bill was introduced in the Senate creating the office of Game Commissioner which evoked quite a controversy. The bill is designed to lighten the work of the Fish Commissioners and relegate the supervision of the game of this State and its protection to a separate establishment. The Game

Commissioner will serve without salary. There has been $5000 appropriated for game protection this year. This amount will not by any means be sufficient to meet the expenses of such a newly created department. As a means of raising the necessary funds for this purpose another bill has been introduced whereby a shooting tax of $1 per head will be levied upon the sportsmen of the State. There seems to be some reason in this latter proposed law, as it will be the means of raising the money from the class for whom, and in whose benefit, it will be expended. The bill providing for a State Game Commissioner will pass both houses, but should the gun license bill fail to pass, and it has much opposition, then the Game Commissioner bill will die a natural death and great will be the chagrin of several individuals who have been working harder than did Jacob when he wrestled with the angels. The office of Game Commissioner will necessarily have subordinate positions appurtenant for so much per capita per annum and this desideratum is the milk in the game protection cocoanut sought by the one or two "apostles" who are interested in game protection solely for an individual purpose.

These designs are transparent enough to bring forth an opposition that may result in a failure to recognize needed measures for the protection of our game.

Trap Shooting.

In a recent article published in the Chicago Times-Herald, Mr. E. S. Rice, a prominent sportsman of Chicago, has expressed some pertinent views on the growing popularity of trap shooting, some extracts of which are here given:

In these days of close application to business, the oft repeated admonition from the family physician to "go out of doors more," is heeded best by him who, with dog and gun, journeys a-field, or properly equipped and accompanied by a little party of kindred spirits, repairs to the shooting park for an afternoon of target breaking or live bird shooting and the absolute dispelling of all business cares and worries.

Trap shooting, both at live birds and inanimate targets, has shown a decidedly healthy growth during the past year. Many new gun clubs have sprung up all over the country, almost every small town of five hundred souls boasting of its little aggregation of congenial spirits banded together for the purpose of friendly competition at the traps with a shotgun.

The consumption of inanimate targets at these country shoots is very large, and that there is a good profit in supplying same, is demonstrated by the fact that new clay bird companies are constantly coming to the front with their wares in competition with the older and better known concerns.

It is also a fact that more pigeons have been sacrificed at the traps during last year than ever before in the history of trap shooting, and even the festive little sparrow has been made a target for the practiced eye and steady aim of the sportsman.

That quaint and inimitable shooter, Fred Gilbert, is accredited with the original remark that "A sparrow at twenty-five yards looks like a bumble-bee, and flies like a pickinenny chased from a melon patch."

Be that as it may, this tantalizing little target furnishes exciting sport and excellent practice for one desiring to excel in quick, snappy shooting, which is most necessary in killing this small quarry.

Never in the history of trap shooting has there appeared before the public, and using as a medium sporting papers, so many newly organized gun clubs, which have, in due course of time, become parts of city, county or State Leagues, thus severally and collectively exercising a beneficent influence upon shooting interests.

Those organizations, either as local or State Leagues, have at one time or another during the year, given tournaments, usually well attended and from the true sportsman's standpoint, highly satisfactory.

The live birds used during many tournaments were remarkably active lots, making shooting extremely difficult, and yet, in spite of all this, many excellent scores were made, showing most conclusively that the sportsman of this country are remarkably good shots; that they are becoming more devoted to the sport of trap shooting as the years go by, and if some of the best of them should go across the water in the near future to compete in an international contest with a picked team of English sportsmen (as may, perchance, be the case), God pity the Englishmen, say I—for in all confidence and sincerity, I beg to express the opinion that American sportsmen to-day excel all other nationalities in the use of their favorite weapon—the shotgun.

Joe Manton's Pistols.

Joe Manton, the famous gunmaker, was crossing Hounslow Heath, when he was stopped by a highwayman. On hearing the summons to "stand and deliver," Manton looked hastily out of the window and recognized a pistol of his own make leveled at his head. "Why, damn it, you rascal," cried the indignant gunmaker, "I'm Joe Manton, and that's one of my pistols you've got. How dare you try to rob me!" "Oh! you're Joe Manton, are you?" said the highwayman, coolly. "Well, you charged me 10 guineas for this brace of pistols, which I call a damned swindle, though I admit they're a good pair of barkers. Now I mean to be quits with you. Hand me over 10 guineas and I'll let you go because you're Joe Manton, though I know you have got £50 at least about you." Joseph swallowed his wrath and promptly paid the 10 guineas. But he never forgave the highwayman for getting a brace of his best pistols for nix, and he made himself a special double gun, with barrels barely two feet long, which he always carried about with him afterward when traveling, and christened "The Highwayman's Master." With this weapon, it was said, that he subsequently shot a highwayman who stopped his chaise, and mortally wounded him.

The Wholesale Murder of Pigeons.

An editorial with the above caption in the Examiner this week on live pigeon shooting (?) is strictly in line with the usual style of diatribe indulged in by many writers who are technically unfamiliar with a subject matter, and, to make their arguments palatable to a general public whose previous information is, at most, only superficial, will color their pen pictures with a job lot of morbid phrases, "catch lights" and denunciatory adjectives that would lead a nervous reader to imagine the scenes and incidents transpiring on a trap shooting ground during a pigeon match to be as gruesome and gory as Flodden Field.

But before going any further into the matter, we will offer the saving clause, that if the writer first alluded to has relied on the reports of pigeon matches, as usually given in the columns of his paper, as models of technique for his knowledge of pigeon shooting, we will overlook his temporary delinquencies in that respect.

We will also take occasion here to place the other morning dailies on the same plane, usually, of confusion and unreliability. This digression may not be exactly relevant; it is simply made to assert facts and also to avoid the charge of playing a favorite.

Live bird matches are not being "organized on a huge scale," at least not on the Pacific Coast, the club announcements are almost identical with the programs that have been followed for years.

An "appeal to the ingenuity and avarice of the human beings who shoot" is made, for what purpose? Presuming that the writer refers to animate objects (which he does not), why not include field and marsh shooting at wild game—the same objections might be made, but the distinction never is by the ready-made humane scribe.

Trap and field shooting are lines of sport that have created in the United States, a class of marksmen second to none in the world. It has aided in developing the manufacture of ammunition that has made history which has brushed the cobwebs of presumption and intolerance from the musty burrows of conservatism prevailing in some parts of the plantation across the "herring pond." The American manufacturers of shot guns and other fire arms have led the world in producing a high standard of "shooting-iron." The elusive live pigeon and the much pitied "blue rock" have both been humble, primary factors in achieving those results.

How a shooter can be accused of avarice when every live bird shot at costs the shooter (for birds) an average of thirty cents at least, is hard to understand.

In club shoots the winning members are rewarded at the end of the season with medals or other trophies in kind. If shooters would change about, and "practice at targets the size of a man two miles away," the cost and reward, if any, would be comparatively the same—the incentive in perfecting this style of shooting would be to place oneself in proper trim to kill human beings. The implication by the editorial writer is undoubtedly that killing pigeons is cruel and "not noble" but sniping human beings would be the proper caper.

"The swiftest 'bluerock'" is an exceedingly difficult mark to hit. Good shots during this particular diversion we have frequently noted which have elicited a round of applause from shooters and spectators alike. We have yet to hear from anyone, supposed to be in his ordinary senses, that the sport is "thoughtless and cruel." It is somewhat expensive however as a sport. We have heard the remark by a devotee of "bluerock" shooting, that "it costs more money to feed a shotgun than to run a small family." Perhaps the writer referred indirectly to a possible "thoughtless and cruel" neglect of shooters' responsibilities when he advanced this peculiar and laughable humane plea.

The "murder of live birds," or pigeon shooting at the traps has stood the test of several of the highest tribunals in the States. It is a recognized sport and is the means of dispensing, directly and indirectly, several millions of dollars annually. The editorial writer referred to might, with equal force, offer the same arguments in favor of the other sheep, whose wool he wears, or for the calf whose hide covers his feet.

We have yet to observe at a trap shoot, the "pigeon with broken wing fluttering beyond bounds to be kicked to death by the first boy or other ruffian who can get near it." Wounded birds are always given the coup de grace immediately, in or out of bounds. Ruffians do not frequent trap shooting grounds, any evidence of ruffianism is always summarily dealt with. The attendance of shooters and spectators at a shooting match is generally a criterion of respectability and individual standing in the community.

In the foregoing we have taken the writer somewhat seriously for the reason that allusions which were intended for pigeon shooting would possibly be misconstrued. For that individual's guidance in the future we will inform him that the "blue rocks," for which he so strenuously makes his plea, can be purchased in barrel lots at about $7.00 per 1000. Take a day off and observe just how trap shooting is conducted and some interesting information and facts may be derived therefrom. One thing is patent, however, of "blue rocks," whilst it is true they have a "streak of yellow" around their tarry faces, the veriest tyro would not claim they had any animation or bloody blood in their make-up.

The Santa Clara County Fish and Game Protective Association has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Dr. A. M. Barker; Vice-President, Homer Prindle; Secretary, D. J. Prindle; Treasurer, Harry Doble; Prosecuting Board—George H. Anderson, S. G. Tompkins, F. E. Brockhage, C. M. Wooster and P. F. Gosboy; Prosecuting Attorney, L. B. Archer.

Reports were presented at the annual meeting last week that showed the association to be in a prosperous condition. Game Warden Foster, who was appointed by the Supervisors at the instance of the association, began his duties on the 1st inst.

At the Traps.

The trap season is now in full swing. The local attractions to-morrow being a postponed live bird shoot of the California Wing Club and the blue rock meeting of the San Francisco Gun Club.

The Empire Gun Club will open their season on the club grounds across the bay at Alameda Junction. The Empire program for this year is an attractive one. Besides the regular club medal race at 25 targets and the re-entry money race, also at 25 targets, the Yellowstone and Schumacher trophies are placed in competition again and two additional prizes are offered club members and others—the Lewis Allen Handicap Gun prize and the Jas. P. Sweeney record medal.

The club grounds have been rearranged and several improvements made. The maugratrap section of the ground has been so arranged that distance handicapping—from 16 to 22 yards—is available in all handicap races. This is an innovation that will be appreciated by the shooters.

The opening club race at the Union Gun Club shoot last Sunday was participated in by thirty-one shooters. In the club race at 25 targets, the men were handicapped in distance. The club purse was divided among four classes. C. C. Nauman won first money, O. Fisher and W. Janssen were high guns for second. The third division was taken by A. M. Shields and H. Hess won fourth money. In the handicap race following the shooters were ranked in accordance with the individual record made in the previous race. The target allowance was from 25 to 30 birds. The men who scored 20 or over were scratch men. Those who broke from 16 to 19 inclusive were allowed 1 blue rock; 12 to 15 breaks inclusive secured 3 extra birds, 11 and under made the allowance 5 birds. Fred Feudner and O. Fisher tied for the first class monthly medal in this race on scores of 22 each. On the shoot off at 10 targets each scored seven, the second tie resulted in two straight scores of 10 each. A miss and out then decided the ties in Feudner's favor, Fisher losing his second bird. The second class monthly medal was annexed by H. Von Soosten, a novice at the traps, who scored 17 out of 30 targets. In the ability handicap medal match the tie resulting between A. R. Jackson and C. H. Shaw will be decided in April. Tom Lewis and Fred King also tied in the "walking match" shoot. Twenty squads indulged in practice shooting; some excellent scores were made by these shooters at No. 2 set of traps. The Union Club members will shoot live pigeons on the 31st inst.

The scores made last Sunday are the following:

International Trap Match.

The long-talked of plan for the arrangement of an international wing shooting tournament between teams representing the United States and Great Britain has taken definite shape, and Paul North, of Cleveland, Ohio, has been authorized by a number of New York men prominently identified with trap shooting to complete arrangements for a match that have begun already.

The same men have approved Mr. North's suggestion that a fund be raised by subscription among the patrons of trap shooting, and Thomas Marshall, Mayor of Keithsburg, Ill., and twice winner of the Grand American Handicap, has been designated as custodian of the fund, which shall be used to send a thoroughly representative American team to England to compete against a pitched English team.

It is estimated that about $4000 will be ample to cover all the expenses of sending an American team abroad, and the promoters of the plan anticipate no difficulty in raising that amount. This sum, it is announced, must be raised by April 1st to enable the manager of the team to carry out his plans.

The team matches which it is proposed to hold will include competitions at both live birds and targets. Several meetings have been held by the men who are pushing the matter, and inquiry among the most expert trap shooters has been made to learn who of the best of these are willing to make the trip.

Among those who have expressed willingness to go if their business affairs will permit are R. O. Heikes, J. A. R. Elliott, J. S. Fanning, "Fred" Gilbert, W. R. Crosby, C. W. Budd, W. Parmelee and T. A. Marshall. Among others prominently mentioned are Edward Banks, E. D. Fulford and W. Le Roy. It is hardly probable that Harvey McMurehy, although mentioned by the Eastern press, will go as a member of the American team.

Cartridge and Shell.

In connection with the question of game extermination and the destruction of wild life going on, it is interesting to note what is happening in much the same way in other parts of the world. An official statement to the effect that during the past year there was an increase of nearly six thousand pounds in the value of monkey skins exported from the Gold Coast tends to show that the warnings issued by Past Colonial Governors must have been unheeded, although for a time there certainly was a slight relaxation in the indiscriminate slaughter of these animals. To what an extent this is carried out, even to the danger of extermination, may be gathered from the fact that in 1896 it was reported that during the six previous years no fewer than 884,768 skins had been exported to the value of £195,300; and, inasmuch as only those in good condition, with few shot holes, are capable of being disposed of, it is estimated that during the period in question as many as a million of these persecuted creatures must have been massacred in the Gold Coast District alone. Indeed the slaughter only showed signs of decreasing when the traders, having depopulated one district, found themselves obliged to go farther into the interior, a risk many of them were indisposed to undertake. Thus, in 1894, as many as 168,405 skins, valued at £41,000 were exported, whilst two years later the number fell to $67,660, the value of which was £8662. Alas, that the ancestors of the human race (see Drawin, passim) should thus be ruthlessly killed to satisfy the vanity of ladies for seal skin jackets and the pride of men to wear bearskin lined overcoats! For monkey skins are capable of any development.

Fully 16,000 persons attended the formal opening of the Forest, Fish and Game Association exhibit at the Coliseum on February 27th. Many of the leaders of Chicago business and social life were there, and the interest manifested in the various exhibits led numbers to promise to return when there were fewer present and more time to look at objects of interest. So great was the crowd that it was difficult to move, and only when all went in the same direction could the throng make any headway.

Maurice Thompson, the popular author, novelist and sportsman, passed away at Crawfordsville, Ind., on the 12th inst. Twenty years ago he was well known to and his writings much appreciated by lovers of out door sports. The "Witchery of Archery," "By Ways and Bird Notes," "Toxophilus in Arcadia" and "Sylvan Secrets" are several of his most entertaining books on sports and out door life.

ROD.

The Eagle's Swoop.

[For BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.]

High o'er a deep and rushing stream,
A giant, beetling cliff arose;
From water's edge to dizzy crest,
Grew neither tree, nor scrub—
A sheer, rough, ragged wall.

Upon the lofty, topmost crag,
A lonely, sullen eagle perched;
Hard by, a nest of sticks, was built,
Wherein were huddled eaglets three,
Whose cries so harsh were heard above,
The swirl and roar of angry river.
The mother caught the hungry calls,
And waters scanned with eager eye.
"How can I stop those famished mouths?"
Was thought which filled the eagle's heart.

While thus she spake within herself,
A fish-hawk far below was seen,
Skimming along the whirling flood—
With preening beak, the parent bird,
Watched the angling of her foe;
She poised with ruffled, outspread wings,
Waiting the instant when to swoop.

See! from the stream a fish is snatched!
From throat of hawk exultant scream,
Awakes the echoes of winding shores:
But, fiercer still, is eagle's shriek,
As thro' space she madly darts;
Down, swift as hurtling arrow flies,
The mother shoots to clutch her prey.
From dripping talons drops the fish,
As quickly swerves the hawk aside;
Ere quarry reaches rolling waves,
'Tis seized with eagle's savage clutch.

With heavy wing she beats the air,
Slowly rising in circles wide,
Until the cyrle's safely reached;
Then, scaly prize asunder's torn,
An lo! the eagle's cries are hushed.

Striped Bass Club Rules for 1901.

The rules adopted by the San Francisco Striped Bass Club, and which will be in force for this season, are as follows:

RULE I—The season for taking striped bass shall be between the first day of March and the first day of December of each year.

RULE II—The official days when bass may be taken by the members of the club shall be on all legal holidays during the season.

RULE III—Any member not wishing to angle for striped bass on Sundays may, by giving due notice to the secretary select a day, this day to be his official day throughout the season.

RULE IV—No fish weighing less than three pounds shall count as a record fish, and all record fish must be taken with a single rod and line,

RULE V—Any member using a drop line, throw line or any other contrivance but a single rod and line, on an official day, shall be ineligible to compete for a prize on that day. And all casting must be done from the reel.

RULE VI—All record fish must be weighed in the presence of another member of this club, and notice of same, including weight and name of witness, must be sent to the secretary by the member catching the fish, otherwise it will not be recorded.

RULE VII—There shall be three official outing days during the season—one in May, one in July and one in September—the dates thereof to be selected by the Executive Committee. Three prizes of the value of $2.50 each will be awarded to the members catching the three largest striped bass. Any prizes not won on an outing Sunday will be offered at the following outing Sunday, but in no case shall more than $15.00 be awarded in prizes on any outing Sunday.

RULE VIII—No member shall be entitled to more than one prize in the regular fishing contest.

RULE IX—In case of a tie in the weight of a fish, the members catching the same shall draw lots at a regular meeting of the club, the winner to take the prize allotted to said bass and the loser to take the next lower prize.

RULE X—Practice casts shall be held on one Sunday every two months, the date to be appointed by the Executive Committee. A casting tournament shall be held after the close of the fishing season, the prize or prizes and date to be selected by the Executive Committee.

The "Ripley High Hook" medal shall remain in the possession of the member catching the largest striped bass in conformity with the club rules. He shall surrender it to the member catching a larger bass, and so on. This medal shall remain in the permanent possession of the member catching the largest bass in the season. No witness shall be necessary, and all days shall be record days to compete for this medal.

For the opening of the trout fishing season Clabrough, Golcher & Co., have secured a line of staple and new goods that will "warm the cockles" of the most enthusiastic angler's heart. Flies that will tempt a strike from the most sulky trout in pool or rifle—some new ones that are beauties. Carded silk lines that are unexcelled in finish and strength. Leaders for fly-fishing, of gossamer appearance and that have a surpassing strength. A new supply of gut and leaders of variety and sizes that are applicable to every phase of angling. Among the novelties we noticed an aluminium fly-box that will be most acceptable to trout fishermen. The box is light, compact and durable, and so arranged that an assortment of flies can be placed within, the fly bodies being always dry and the snell kept moist and ready for placing on the leader. Striped bass rods and reels, the latter showing a line of goods smaller than the salmon reels, but designed to carry 200 yards of No. 15 cuttyhunk. Compact, durable, with click and drag or for free casting at a surprisingly reasonable price. Some self-winding automatic reels in the show cases are worthy of inspection. A full stock of assorted sizes of spoons has not been overlooked. In short, the angler will find a joyous lot of fine tackle for his every wish on stream, lake or bay.

Among the steelhead anglers at Point Reyes last Sunday were C. R. Kenniff, J. Boswell Kenniff, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. B. Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. MoManus, J. Carroll, Paddy Doogan, Bert Spring, Champion John Gallagher, Steve Riordan, Al Smith, W. A. Cooper, Andy Legaspe, J. Price, G. Walters and others. Most of the fishermen caught a fish or two. Andy Legaspe hooked 36 small fish in the "white house" pool. Al Smith and Del Cooper, who hooked a six and a half pounds spent fish in nice condition, fished at the "big rock" and Ziegler's point. The Kenniff brothers, Hollywood, McManus and the ladies also fished at Ziegler's point. A nice lot of small fish, averaging from seven to eleven inches in length were caught. The fair anglers put their respective botter halves way into the shade on the day's results with the rod.

The Paper Mill is at present full to repletion with suckers. Many anglers regard these fish with hatred and aversion. If it were not for the scavenging and cleansing the suckers give the bottom of a stream, it is a pertinent question as to whether or no the game fish could exist in numbers sufficient to afford any great degree of sport. The humble sucker has a value not to be despised, even though his reputation as a spawn eater is a mark against him.

Bay fishing is becoming better every day. Salt water eels, many of them weighing over four pounds, have been plentiful along the rocky Sausalito shores. Rock fish, "blue cod" and sea trout are caught in plentiful numbers every day at the Marin fishing grounds.

THE FARM.

Signs of Health and Disease in Poultry.

When fowls are judiciously fed, made to take exercise, and their quarters kept clean and free from lice, there is comparatively no trouble with sickness, except in cases of contagion.

Poultry raisers should learn the cause of diseases, how to prevent them, and there will be no need of medicines in the poultry yard.

When the comb and wattles of the fowls are of a bright red color it indicates a condition of health.

When the fowls are busy scratching, the hens laying and singing, and the cocks crowing, are signs of health.

When you can enter the henry after dark and hear no wheezing, it proves that there are no roup fowls in the flock.

When the manure is hard and a portion of it is white it indicates a healthy condition of the digestive organs.

When the edges of the comb and wattles are of a purplish red and their movements are sluggish there is something wrong.

When the fowls lie around indifferent to their surroundings, they are too fat and death from apoplexy, indigestion or liver complaint will result unless the trouble is corrected.

When the fowls are restless and constantly picking their feathers, they are infested with vermin.

Black Minorcas for Utility.

I bred Black Minorcas for a number of reasons, among which are utility, beauty and commercial value. I place utility first because my experience has demonstrated that there are few better utility fowls than the Black Minorca, especially as now bred. First, they certainly excel in egg production any other fowl as they lay as many eggs as and a much larger egg than the Leghorn. The size and the beauty of the Minorca egg are certainly very attractive to the eye, and their large size makes them very much in demand for market. Then, too, the Minorcas have been advanced in size very much in the past few years and for a table fowl are growing right along. Fanciers are no longer satisfied to breed leghorn-Minorcas but want them up to standard weight and above to be at all satisfied, until now we see on exhibition Minorcas much above the requirements of the standard as to weights. Neither the fancier nor his customer will be satisfied with fowls which fall below standard requirements as to weight.—Ex.

What the turkey is to America on Thanksgiving Day the domestic goose is to Germany all fall and winter long. The goose is the standard luxury in the fowl line of all the subjects of the Kaiser. Unfortunately the Germans do not, despite their earnest efforts, raise anything like enough geese to supply their trade, so recourse is had to Russia for enough to go around. The month of December and the first half of January include the weeks when the goose trade is at its height in Germany and every day during that period a special train brings from twenty to forty carloads of the big birds to Berlin. The daily average receipts are 15,000 birds during the holiday season. Rigid inspection is enforced and if one bird in any of the individual consignments is found diseased, a quarantine of eight days is required, the cost of which for any considerable flock is over $400 chiefly for fees and feed. If another death takes place from the cause first discovered, another eight day period must be passed in quarantine before the flock is released, a system which has practically rid the Berlin authorities of all trouble to keep diseased poultry out of the bawliwick. Importers have found that it hardly pays to pay approximately $900 for the sake of palming off as sound a few diseased or infected birds.

It Kills the Squirrels.

The Anaheim Plaindealer is authority for saying that "Principal R. N. Bird of the West Anaheim school, has given a simple and inexpensive receipt for killing squirrels a very successful test. From his experience in using the mixture he is satisfied that ranchers will find it a certain destroyer of their industrious enemies in the ground. The formula is as follows:

"Strychnine 1 oz., cyanide 2 oz., croton oil $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., oil rhodium $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., one cup of vinegar, four eggs, four cups of honey or syrup. Dissolve the strychnine in the vinegar. Add cyanide potash, croton oil and eggs. Then put in the honey. Mix well with five gallons of wheat or barley. One-fourth of this quantity will be all you will need at one time.

"The poison should be spread in the same manner as other squirrel poisons, with the uses of which ranchers are familiar. The formula given above was secured by Mr. Bird from a Santa Fe division track superintendent, who had used it along that road. Through it he ridded his division of squirrels. It was the only satisfactory poison he had ever found. It is now in general use on squirrel infested divisions of the railroad."

A successful business woman who owns a dairy says: "It is a strange fact at first when one comes to think of it, that the large yielders are the healthy ones of the herd. One of my cows made 629 pounds of butter last year and has never been below 500 pounds, even when she had two calves in the year. Since I learned how to feed her this cow has never missed a meal; indeed, when fresh I believe she would take almost any amount of grain offered her. Her mate is the same. I am now sending to beef all the heifers that do not do well with their first calves, for I am more and more convinced that cows that will not be thrifty under intelligent care are useless for the dairy, just as the cow that goes into a panic at the sight of a stranger in the stable is a loss to her owner constantly. We want strong cattle that are treated kindly enough from babyhood to think of the human family as friends, not as fiends."

The Scottish Highland and Agricultural Society is by far the wealthiest corporation of the sort in existence. At the last annual meeting the treasurer's report showed that the profit on the show held last year at Stirling was $6392 and the excess of receipts from all sources over expenditures for the year $12,241. Besides this sum, which was then in cash in bank, the society possesses stocks, bonds, mortgages and other quick assets amounting to $487,335 or counting the cash in bank and subject to check something like half a million dollars. All the society's assets are in the form of interest paying securities, which, if put on the market, would realize much more than the face value as stated above. No other show-holding association on earth can show such a prosperous balance sheet.

It is a little wearisome to read in journals opposing irrigation about the nation being taxed to water the arid lands. How much tax has the nation paid towards such purposes? The nation seems to have abundant revenue to build immense ship canals, provide unlimited harbor defenses, great ship subsidies, but if we talk about using a few million dollars to supply a few million acres with water in order that they may be productive and converted into a home by some wandering toiler, there are those who are always ready to raise a great hue and cry about taxing the nation. This Western domain is eminently fitted for homes for the white race, far better for homes for this class of people than islands of the Philippine archipelago, and yet the nation paid its millions for Oriental possessions under the pretext of furnishing room for American enterprise. Would it not be the thing to water these arid wastes and make homes for our people, thereby multiplying the nation's wealth? It is the thing to do. It is enterprise, and it will prove profitable to the nation.—Montana Husbandman.

The Agricultural Department at Washington during the course of 1900 collected no less than 450 varieties of seeds and plants in foreign countries which it is hoped will do well in various parts of the United States where hitherto crops of similar sorts have not been matured. Among the most important of the new acquisitions may be mentioned the Alexandria clover from Egypt, intended for late fall planting on irrigated lands in the West; the seedless grape from Italy intended for raisin-raising in the desert lands of Colorado; cotton from Egypt, long famous for the length and fineness of its staple and now under experiment in 100 fields in the South. East India yams, alleged to be far superior in yield and flavor to the native sweet potato, wheat, oats, barley, alfalfa and many other plants and seeds.

The Iowa Experiment Station states in a recent bulletin, No. 52, their test of the amount of water absorbed by butter under different conditions, and they found that the butter held most water when the cream was quite cool, or at 52 degrees, and the water in which it was washed was warmer, or at 70 degrees. When the cream was warm, or at 71 degrees, and the water was at 40 degrees, there was but little water absorbed in the butter. We need a standard for butter which shall declare that there shall not be over 13 per cent. of water in butter, or at least 85 per cent. of butter fat, and the balance in caseine, salt and other elements, including the moisture. Then we shall be sure of receiving what we pay for. We scarcely care to spread our biscuit or our steak with either cold water or sour buttermilk.

There seems to be somewhat of a craze for big steers just now. If an unusually large animal of this kind shows up at any of the big markets a dozen bidders are after him at once. A stock company was formed one day last week to buy a very big-framed grade Shorthorn steer that came into Kansas City for sale in a bunch. It is said that he will weigh at least a couple of tons when fat. This steer is said to be a "dead ringer" for the big steer fed by D. M. Moninger, Galvin, Ia., some years ago. That one was nearly white, Shorthorn by breeding, scaled 4100 pounds and after being exhibited in Chicago was taken to England and there lost sight of for good and all.

To run a creamery successfully help must be sufficient to prevent any man having to do double duty. When a creamery is run short-handed some of the vital things are neglected. The man at the weigh can be conscientious, but if he has to leave his position to look after the boilers he will have to take some things for granted in the quality of milk he is receiving. It is a short-sighted policy to attempt to save a few dollars a month on wages and lose it in the selling price of the butter.

A band of stock sheep, consisting of 6400 head sold in Natrona county, Wyoming, the other day at $4.40 a head.

As an example of what may be termed "fool legislation" that passed by the Colorado legislature in 1881 providing for the payment of a bounty on loco weeds destroyed is perhaps entitled to the first rank. The law providing for this payment remained on the Colorado statute book for four years during which time no less than $425,139.67 was paid out at the rate of one cent and a half per weed. The business of growing loco paid better than cattle breeding or potato farming and things came to such a pass that the senator who introduced the obnoxious bill and pushed it into a law had finally to take to the tall timber to save himself from being roughly handled by an "outraged people."

A fatal disease has been raging in some herds of cattle in Texas. It first appeared in Kendall county and in one band of 400 head, fifty animals succumbed. The State Veterinarian examined each one of these dead cattle and in each instance found a large number of black worms in the lungs and air passages. Dr. C. W. Stiles of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington has been dispatched to study the disease and is now located at Dilworth, Tex.

A Rush county, Indiana, farmer recently sold a bunch of swine five months and eighteen days old, that averaged 200 pounds each. He received $5 per hundred for them. They were Poland-Chinas. They were fed corn and oats ground together and mixed with warm water. Milk and slops were also fed.

Balance of the time at Santa Ana.

Neernut was foaled in 1891, and the great race mare Neeretta 2:09 1/2 is his first foal to race. She was the champion four year old filly of 1899, getting a record of 2:11 1/4 that year, which she reduced the following year to 2:09 1/2. Neernut's oldest colts are coming six years old. He is a blood bay, 15 1/2, hauds high and weighs 1100. He trots without boots, weights or hopples and is fast and game, having a record of 2:14 in a sixth heat. He combines the blood of the two greatest trotting families in the world.

Mr. B——, a prominent horseman from the East, recently remarked in hearing of a crowd of horsemen: "I believe Boodle is destined to be a great sire of speed, but laying speed aside, his colts with their size, style, beautiful mane and tail and toppy appearance in general, with 3-minute speed, will sell East for more money than the little bullet-shaped cyclones such as are frequently produced with 2:15 speed."

FOR SALE.

I Have for Sale on my Ranch near Salinas about

Seventy-Five Head of Highly-Bred Horses, Mare, Yearlings and Colts.

I will sell them all together or any number of them. All are finely-bred and most of the mares are stunted to some of the best horses in the country. Below I give a list of some of the mares and the horses by which they are in foal. I would greatly prefer selling them in a body and would give a great bargain to anyone who would buy them or even one-half of them. I am selling these animals on account of my age as I am now eighty-seven years old, and too old to be bothered with race horses. These animals are now running out on my ranch about seven miles from town. It is a very large ranch and I could not get them up without a day or two's notice and would not like to be asked to get them up unless a man wanted to buy at least eight or ten. Anyone wishing to start a good stock farm can do no better than to buy my entire band or a portion of them.
